Second Nuclear Test By France Rebuff To Mr. K.

Sahara Blast Is Reply To Khrushchev Remarks

PARIS (AP) — France today held its second nuclear test explosion under the nose of Nikita Khrushchev.

The blast in the western Sahara constituted a slap at Premier Premier Khrushchev at the Paris for final talks. Khrushchev leaves for Russia Sunday.

In the last two days Khrushchev has also spoken out against the nuclear explosions by any power — including France. De Gaulle in effect rejected the Soviet premier's call, just as he earlier had contradicted Khrushchev's contention that West Germany is bent on aggression to avenge its wartime defeat.

Informed sources said Khrushchev was told in advance that the bomb would be exploded, and that the date was not timed to coincide with his visit. It was expected that the test would have been after he left France, but the weather apparently had not delayed his trip more than a week.

The sources said Khrushchev repeated his opposition to all nuclear explosions during talks with De Gaulle and other members of the French explanation.

The explosion also underlined de Gaulle's insistence that Russia, as well as the Western Allies must recognize France as their equal in world councils.

LEAGUE OF CONFERENCE

There was no immediate public reaction from Khrushchev, who was secluded with de Gaulle at Rambouillet, the presidential chateau outside Paris. They were to talk there today and Sunday, presumably ranging over the global international scene, but without special emphasis on Germany and disarmament.

Technical, scientific or cultural agreements may be announced before Khrushchev ends his 11-day state visit, but no French-Soviet political pact is expected.

De Gaulle's government announced that the nuclear blast, just before dawn at the Reggane test base, 700 miles south of Algiers was successful, and that all safety precautions were taken.

LIMITED SIZE

A communique said the device exploded was a conventional bomb of much smaller size than the first French plutonium bomb set off Feb. 13, 1960, in terms of power." The first bomb had a force of 70,000 tons of TNT — about three times more powerful than the 20,000 tons of TNT bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

The second French explosion is certain to arouse a new storm of protest from around the world. States contending that it endangered human life and future generations by putting more radioactive matter into the atmosphere.

RIGHTS OF CIVIL SERVANTS CAUSE HEATED DEBATE

Members Get Hefty Wage Increases

TORONTO (CP) — The rights of members of the Legislature when they were given a big salary boost Thursday afternoon turned into scowls at night as the rights of civil servants and alleged patronage in the government caused a wild three-hour debate.

Eight hours after Premier Frost promised the members and cabinet ministers increases of $1,600 and $3,500 a year in indemnities and expenses, the legislators hurled accusations and challenges back and forth.

Kennedy (CCF-Port Toronto Woodbine) and Mr. Frost engaged in a running battle over the mood of Ontario's 30,000-odd civil servants.

Mr. Frost said government workers are reasonably content after having received two pay boosts in 1959 and an additional increase effective today.

PATERNALISM CHARGED

Mr. Bryden charged the government with an "antiquated paternalistic" policy in not allowing the civil servants "to be a bargaining unit to protect their economic interests.

Collective bargaining is not suitable . . . not practical," said Mr. Frost. "We have no intention of changing the system."

COMMONS BEATS DEADLINE BY CHANGING BILL

14 Companies Can Sell Power to U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Hustling to beat a midnight licence-expiration deadline and also to clear the way for Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech, the Commons Thursday lopped two clauses from a proposed government amendment to the National Energy Board Act.

The trimmed-down legislation was passed in time to make it legal for 14 companies to continue selling hydro power to the United States. Under previous legislation, their licences expired March 31.

The clause-cutting came as opposition members chastised the government for—in the words of Liberal Leader Pearson — "muddled confusion and inefficiency" in not bringing the measure before the Commons until deadline day.

TWO CLAUSES CLIPPED

Out went a clause to give the board power to set tolls for natural gas moved through a purely provincial pipeline when that line is booked to use crossing a provincial boundary and one that would have extended hydro-electric permissions to the 14 companies on a retroactive basis if the bill had not passed in time to receive rival assent.

The amended measure went through the Senate sitting the time to be given royal assent with five other bills just before 6 p.m.

The matter of pipeline tolls is almost sure to come up again.

Trade Minister Churchill told the House that the energy board had been hard-pressed because of hearings on natural gas exports and this had brought the delay in presentation of the bill.

But Mr. Pearson and CCF House Leader Hazen Argue were unhappy that the whole bill go through. Both said there could be a question of whether federal government control of tolls on gas moved within a province's boundaries would be valid under the constitution.

The Commons then turned to a further consideration of government spending with federal participation in the Trans-Canada Highway construction program until March 31, 1964. The present deadline is 1951.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) noted there had been some suggestions it was time to start considering a second cross - Canada highway. He wanted Minister Walker and Prime Minister Diefenbaker to have a report on progress in the Lakehead region before there were any "new visions."

"Of all the misbegotten highways," the Trans-Canada from the worst. He asked Mr. Walker to find out why Ontario government was "frittering away and lazing along" with Trans-Canada construction in that area.

Budget Highlights

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Personal and corporation income tax rates remain unchanged.

Budget surplus for 1960-61 is forecast at $12,000,000, compared with a $405,800,000 deficit for the year ended March 31.

Wage increases costing $15,000,000 in a year will be made for 50,000 civil servants effective today.

Maximum allowable deductions of medical expenses will be increased for income tax purposes, effective January 1, 1960.

Changes in income and estate tax acts will help widows.

Canadian textile industry will get increased tariff protection, especially against imported cotton fabrics.

Expenditures are estimated at a record $5,800,000,000, compared with $5,707,000,000 in 1959-60, and revenues at a peak $5,892,000,000 as against $5,301,000,000.

No changes are made in taxes on liquor or tobacco, sales or excise tax rates, or estate tax rate.

Minor tax changes won't affect revenue picture.

Tariff board will examine the tariff structure on engineering and architects' plans, nails, etc.ns and glass imported for decorative, ornamental and protective machinery.

Forecast surplus of $40,000,000 for old age pension fund would be first in fund's nine-year history.

White Police Kill 3 Negroes In March on Jail at Durban; Britain May Veto UN Move

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)— While police fired today on a Negro crowd marching on this big city's jail, Reuters reported that three Negroes including a woman were killed and three wounded.

The column of Negroes which reached the jail marched down West Street, the main street of Durban, South Africa's third largest city.

As the mob marched, shouting freedom slogans and singing, they forced other Negroes in the streets to join them.

Witnesses said they saw marchers lift some bystanding Negroes bodily and force them into the line.

It was the most riotous scene Durban has experienced in the current racial crisis.

Today's marches started after a riotous day and night in Negro settlements stretching from Cape town through the Atlantic and Indian Ocean port cities of Durban Elizabeth and Durban.

There were casualties in skirmishes in settlements during the night and in some places houses, administration buildings and churches were burned. Buses were stoned as agitators tried to force other Negroes to observe a work boycott.

Three separate columns of Negroes marched out of Cato Manor settlement this morning, but only one got through as soldiers and police with armored cars and rifles with fixed bayonets managed to stop or divert the others.

The gunfire casualties at noon today were the first inside Durban although four Negroes were reported injured in bus stonings

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The United States today threw its support behind a resolution to have the United Nations Security Council call for an end of South African racial segregation policies. But reports circulated that Britain would kill the proposal with a veto.

A veto would almost certainly mean an emergency meeting of the 80-nation General Assembly to take up the situation which has erupted into violence almost daily for more than a week.

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge led off this morning's meeting of the council with a declaration that events such as the racial strife in South Africa might be more dangerous to peace than some international disputes.

He appealed to the South African government to reconsider its racial policies in the interest of peace, as well as the interest of justice.

"It is not too late to reverse the tide in South Africa," he asserted.

Lodge spoke as some council members said they had been informed by Britain that the resolution, sponsored by Ecuador, would be vetoed.

Sir Pierson Dixon, the British delegate, said only that "I am not revealing my intention."

Lodge called the resolution "constructive."

PC Govt. Intends To Ride Economic Expansion Wave To Secure Balanced Budget

Civil Servants, Widows Get Boosts, Textile Industry to Be Assisted

BY DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government, with two record peacetime deficits in its short term of office, now intends to ride the crest of economic expansion into a balanced budget. It will leave tax rates unchanged.

Finance Minister Fleming indicated Thursday night in his budget speech to the Commons—his third—that he will rely on 1959's scaled-up tax rates and continuing population and business growth to produce extra revenue for a $12,000,000 surplus in the 1960-61 fiscal year.

Major benefits from his speech were wage increases for some civil servants, minor tax concessions that will be a boon to widows and people with abnormally large medical bills, and further tariff protection for Canada's textile industry.

FIRST SINCE 1913

It is the first forecast surplus on government accounts in four years. If the forecast pans out, it will be the first in the Conservative administration since 1913.

The 1959-60 year that ended at midnight is expected to have had $405,800,000 deficit, running the total for the last three years to a whopping $1,053,700,000.

Mr. Fleming said he decided this was the time to pare the country's record national debt of $12,405,300,000. "As desirable as it might be, it would mean tax boosts which "present circumstances do not, in my judgment, warrant."

He considered the main advantage of the budget balance to be the prospect of much lower government borrowing.

With the surplus, the government's additional cash requirements for the year starting today would be cut to $710,000,000 from $900,000,000 in the term just ended.

AND OTHER BORROWERS

This would allow other borrowers — businesses and provincial and municipal governments — more room in the Canadian money market. "It could make a big difference in the conditions under which they would be borrowing."

The immediate budget reaction from William Pearson, MP for Kenora-Rainy River and Liberal financial critic, ran along these lines:

"A very dismal surplus . . . a very good budget . . . a do-nothing budget . . . a pretty cold porridge for the unemployed and for the provinces . . . a budget we certainly not sharing in this unprecedented boom in which the minister referred."

Mr. Fleming's proposed tax changes will be made effective in cases by amendments to the excise and sales tax acts at the time of a technical nature. In no case will they increase tax revenues to any great degree.

On one hand, his siring of small tax concessions will help the public treasury some $2,000,000 a year. But on the other side, he proposes amendments that would offset this decline by plugging existing loopholes and clarifying the statutes.

Among the concessions is the plan to raise by at least 50 per cent the amount a widow or individual medical expenses that may be deducted from personal

Pennsylvania Senator Wants Bomarc Dropped Completely

WASHINGTON (CP)—A member of the United States congressional committee on appropriations says he will ask the 16-member body to recommend entire elimination of the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile program.

Representative Daniel Flood, Pennsylvania Democrat, said in an interview also he will ask for complete cancellation, "as though the Bomarc never existed." He claimed a lot of support for his position and said the decision "will be close."

However, subcommittee chairman George Mahon, Texas Democrat, said he is aware of Flood's plans and that in his personal opinion the reduced Bomarc program as outlined by the U.S. Air Force will get congressional approval.

DECISION SOON

The subcommittee is made up of nine Democrats and seven Republicans. Mahon said its decision on the Bomarc will be made in two or three weeks. Decision of the subcommittee is likely to have a major effect on how the Bomarc program makes out in the full course through both houses of Congress.

All U.S. government spending proposals must be approved by Congress before they go into effect. The committee on which subcommittee indicates it would be costly to cancel the Bomarc program now and build manned fighters.

A report of testimony by Maj.-Gen. R. J. Friedman, air force budget and comptroller, estimated that if the entire program is closed down, about $1,700,000,000 will have been actually wasted and only $250,000,000 saved out of the $2,000,000,000 appropriated or spent on the A and B models of the Bomarc.

But the air force decided to replace the missiles by manned aircraft, the saving would be about $1,000,000,000—or about $1,000,000 a plane—compared with $2,400,000 for a Bomarc missile. These figures covered development as well as procurement costs.

HUGE EXTRA COST

The net increase in cost by switching to fighters would be about $750,000,000 on the basis that the air force would need a fighter to replace every missile eliminated.

In addition, annual maintenance costs would rise to about $9,200,000 for manpower, and maintenance for a fighter, compared with $2,800,000 for Bomarc.

Under the air force proposal now before the congressional subcommittee, the Bomarc program appropriation for the next fiscal year beginning July 1 would be reduced to $40,400,000 from the $421,300,000 originally proposed in the President's January, 1961-62 budget.

Over-all Bomarc spending from the date of its inception until completion of the program would come to $2,211,600,000, down $654,-600,000 from the sum the air force originally planned to spend.

It would seem that the U.S. Air Force proposes to reduce its total Bomarc program to about 250 missiles from 1,050 originally planned. The reduced program would include two squadrons of Bomarc-B missiles for Canada.

White College Pupils Making Study Of South's Racial Problems Jailed

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)— Eleven white college students from Illinois making a study of southern American racial problems as part of a sociology course occupied jail cells for several hours here Thursday night because they ate in a cafe with Negroes.

This first-hand experience also brought the arrest of their teacher, Prof. R. D. Mesmith of MacMurray College at Jacksonville, Ill., his wife and seven Montgomery Negro students with whom they had lunch, Thursday.

Several hours after police raided the integrated luncheon at a Negro cafe and hustled the group off to jail, all were released on bond. When they left the jail the Mesmiths went to the welfare department and picked up their two-year-old daughter who had been cared for there.

All were charged with disorderly conduct and "actively calculated to create a breach of the peace." Finger ordered the cafe closed as a public hazard. Assistant Chief Curry Talley said gas heaters, electric hot plates and other equipment violated fire ordinances.

Meanwhile, classes at all-Negro Southern University in Baton Rouge, La., were boycotted by about 2,000 students as an aftermath to the ousting of 18 for engaging in sit-in sympathy demonstrations. They flooded college officials with applications for withdrawal forms.

School President Felton G. Clark said no withdrawals would be authorized unless written or telegraphic permission is received from parents.

Banda Released After Year in Jail To Confer With Colonial Minister

ZOMBA, Nyasaland (AP)—Dr. Hastings Kamuzu Banda, Negro nationalist in the British protectorate of Nyasaland, was released today after a year's detention so he could talk to Britain's Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod.

The 54-year-old physician was flown from Gwelo prison, in Southern Rhodesia, where he had been held since last March.

Macleod is touring the Central African Federation, composed of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, collecting opinions on the federation's future. Banda wants Nyasaland to be separate, contending its largely Negro population is being overwhelmed by the ruling white minority in Southern Rhodesia.

Banda, who is head of the African National Congress in Nyasaland, was imprisoned under emergency powers declared as an outbreak of violence in Nyasaland. The protectorate government headed by Sir Robert Armitage accused Banda and his congress of plotting a wholesale massacre of whites and Negroes.

A British government commission investigated Armitage's charge and reported last July that it had found no evidence in detailed plan for a massacre plot.

NAMES IN PICTURE INCORRECTLY SPELLED

What a difference the change of a letter or two in a name can make!

It is bad enough when it occurs once in a newspaper article but when it happens three times in the one picture caption, it must be some kind of a record.

It happened yesterday with the names of three telephone employees, who won safe driving awards. First the name of Mac Mooney, showed up as Rooney, then the name of Gordon Cable appeared as Cole, and finally the name of Leo Hachey appeared as Hackney. The Ontario Intelligencer regrets the error.

ADULT PROGRAM TO START SOON

The Prince Edward County Health Unit will be starting its adult polio immunization program within the next two weeks. This program is to give third shots to those people who received their first two inoculations during the spring of 1959. The Health Unit will be holding an evening clinic in Rossmore on Monday, May 23rd, between the hours of 7.00 and 8.00 o'clock.

NEW CONSERVATION OFFICER AT GILMOUR

The conservation staff of the Tweed district of the Department of Lands and Forests has been augmented by Officer At Ruxton.

Officer Ruxton will be working out of the district headquarters and has taken up residence in Madoc.

Mrs. Ruxton, the former Flora MacKay, was the Post Arthur district's regional secretary prior to her marriage. The couple live in Lakefield now, just Duncan.

The officer has been with the department for several years, spending the last two in Prang in the White Lake district. He formerly resided in Tweed, where his father was the district forester.

ICE-FISHING IN NORTH NOT GOOD

Ice-fishing in the lakes north of Kingston and other areas of the district has not lived up to expectations, according to Lands and Forests Department officials.

Hundreds of fish-hungry people have been on the lakes every weekend and the "haul" have been anything but good.

Officials state they are concerned over the actions of some fishermen in bringing dogs with them. It seems the dogs are allowed to run unchecked where deer are yarding.

They remind sportsmen that their dogs are to be kept in check otherwise necessary action will have to be taken which could result in the loss of the dog and/or court action against the owner.

CUSTOMS RETURNS UP FOR MONTH AND FISCAL YEAR

Customs returns for Belleville were up for the month of March and also for the past year to relations to corresponding periods a year ago. It was noted by the Customs collector Gordon Miller.

Returns for March totalled $598,194.94, as compared with $718,332.32 for the same month a year ago, while returns for the fiscal year ending March 31st totalled $12,833,311.76, as compared with $11,470,204.77 for the 1958-59 fiscal year.

White Cane Club Celebrates First Decade of Existence

By GLADYS WARD

Ten candles decorated the birthday cake of the White Cane Club as they marked the first decade of their existence on Thursday night. The tables in the Recreation Centre were decorated with roses and each person was presented with a rose made of roam rubber by the President of the club, Mrs. Wallie.

Many out-of-town guests were present from Kingston and Trenton, and representatives from the service clubs in the city congratulated the club members and wished them continued success in rthe future. Greetings were brought from the Kinette club by Mrs. D. Bacon; Kinsmen club, Lyna Johnston; Regent of the Moose, Mrs. N. Shandrow, and Mrs. Szrymgeour, who invited the club to dinner in April; Rotary club, W. Hurst; Kiwanis club, Mrs. Bert Queens, Mrs. Burton; Lions Club, President Lowen; Y'men Club, John Lamontbee; YMCA, D. Dimmentidge; Advisory Board to Bilby Manor, Mrs. Bowerman; Ship Group of Kingston, Mrs. A. Gallop and Assistant Field Secretary of C.N.I.B., Mrs. Ferguson and N. Sprague of Trenton.

GUESTS INTRODUCED

The President, Mrs. Waite introduced the guests at the head table, followed by roll call of everyons in the room. Miss Mildred Rushlow led the assembly singing "We Are The Builders of the piano. Miss Rushlow sang several solos, and invited the guests to join her in the choruses. Mr. Burton and Mr. Paul Libby of Kingston played several mouth organ duets.

The draw contest was conducted by Mrs. Rollins and was won by Mrs. R. Spafford of Kingston and Mildred Fisher, Mrs. Scarlett of Trenton won a prize for selling the most tickets.

Field secretary, P. L. Timmins introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Ida Dunca, a man who was interested in many worth while activities. Mr. Duncan is Public Relations officer for Eaton's, and has spoken about five hundred times in Ontario, Quebec and New York State.

Included in his remarks with humorous anecdotes, Mr. Duncan said that a appreciation of humor started at an early age, and that one was never too old to enjoy it. Even the mishaps could be turned into fun in retrospect. It was good to promote laughter and is good for us, the speaker noted, as he illustrated with jokes of the various nationalities, the clergy and different nationalities.

DOOR READERS

"Canadian people are the poorest read of any on the North American continent", the speaker commented as he urged the listeners to support Library Week next week. "Reading cures all" literature provides the foundation for all living. A quarter of a dollar is not a lot to spend to read from cover to cover and then passed on to the neighbors. Now we content ourselves with reading digests and picture magazines. If we depart much farther from good reading we will lose our appreciation of same. A come lazy-minded. We know from our school days the value of things difficult to get and we had a greater sense of appreciation We had more sense now.

"I am tired of hearing that Canada has no culture. A million newcomers have brought great cultures to Canada, but let us not say we have no Canadian culture. We are in danger of being swamped by imported cultures. We have a culture, that was born in our log cabins. In Quebec, Nova Scotia, Canada and other provinces we have developed our own cultures. Be Canadian and be proud of it. We do not want to accept imported cultures in perference to those of our grandmothers and grandfathers. I'm shouting out to the things left to us by our forefathers," Admire John Fitzgerald who goes from coast to coast urging people to be thankful they are Canadians.

"I am impressed with the generosity of citizenship, which I have often seen performed. Prior to the ceremony the applicant is examined by a judge and he has to pass a test that many who were born here would flunk. We have become indifferent to our own nationality.

HAS ACTIVE INTEREST

"The true citizen has an active interest in his community, his church, and service clubs and he has downright appreciation and pride in them. The ideal Canadian citizen thinks of the principles and philosophies of his life; thinks of his home as the foundation of democracy, of good schools to educate his children, of a partner with Christ as a reward, of freedom to worship in the church of his choice, of contentment, by all means; but complacency, never".

The speaker was thanked on behalf of the club by Mr. R. Phillips, who presented a corsage to the entertainers by Clarence Morris; to the Lions Club, who catered the banquet and to Mrs. Kuchma; and to the Kinette club by Pat Saunderson.

Mr. Duncan drew for the door prize, which was won by Mrs. Gordon Hall.

The Kinettes served special refreshments at the close which was carried in a big birthday cake, which was described to the club members by Mrs. G. G. Wright.

Residents Go Deeper in Mud At Stirling

It is not merely water alone which is bothering the residents of Stirling at the end of this spring break-up.

What's bothering Stirling residents is the combination of water and dirt. Or in other words Just plain mud.

The mud is the result of extensive sewer installation which has Church and Bridge streets up to their knees in it. Not to mention much of last summer and now the frost is leaving the ground, village residents are going slowly deeper into the mud.

Some say it won't be long to come. So far frost remaining in the ground is keeping cars from being completely mired.

What the villagers are afraid of is when all of it happens when the frost is completely out.

F.A. Sprentall, Utility Manager 50 Years, Retires

Secretary Manager of the Stirling Public Utilities for the past 50 years, Mr. F. A. Sprentall has retired from the post now.

He is being succeeded by W. N. Fitzhall, former manager of the Brighton utilities.

Stirling Reeve James V. Holt said that Mr. Sprentall is expected to be retired from his position with the utilities but will be keeping a close interest in the activity.

Also resigning from the Stirling public utilities staff is Gordon Bailey, who had acted as superintendent for the past 25 years.

Reeve Holt said there were no other changes contemplated.

Pleads Guilty To Car Theft

Robert Calbury, 21, of Toronto, will be sentenced Tuesday on charges of car theft and theft of gasoline.

He pleaded guilty today before Magistrate Wilson Hall.

Calbury admitted stealing a car from Boyce's used car lot on Pinnacle Street on March 18 and stealing gasoline from a service station. Later, he said, he took two friends for a drive. The car was stopped by O.P.P. on Highway 401 at the Glen Miller cutoff.

Similar charges against Leo Joseph Palmer, 17, of Belleville, and Dobler Clapanzi, 21, of Toronto, were withdrawn after Calbury's admission.

Wm. Sutherland Dismissed As Police Chief of Stirling

Machine Shop Foreman Native Of This City

George Caldwell of Green South Carolina, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Caldwell of Albert St., Belleville, a machine shop foreman for the recently opened Homelite Company, was featured in an article in The Greer Citizen.

The article, is as follows:

"The company's machine shop foreman, George Caldwell, a Canadian of Belleville, Ont., is an excellent example of the fine young men working with Homelite. His combined talents of an electrician and machinist have earned for him a name of a most dependable and trustworthy employee.

"Looking back over the years, George explained he completed short time in Florida before settling in Delaware as an employee of Industrial Engineering and Equipment Company. Three years later he terminated his employment with this company where he remained the same length of time and then joined the Canadian Pacific Continental's fabricating division. On April 1st, (1959) he joined Homelite and worked for a short time in the Gastonia plant preparatory to coming to the Greer division.

"As machine-shop foreman George is in charge of the machine, guide bar and finishing departments.

"Concurrent with his work experience, he studied Industrial Management at the University of Delaware then completed I.C.S. courses in Industrial Engineering.

"George and his wife, Evelyn, and their daughter, Anita, and son, Charles ,resides in Spartanburg. The older son is attending Carnegie Tech. in Pittsburg. Both are members of the Presbyterian.

"George leads a variegated life among the arts and by mentioning music and working with electronics. He has a flair for music estimates his talents in both fields. For his friends delicious. He make a batch out of anything and right now, in his spare time, he is building an electric organ from 'scratch'.

"George holds Grotto membership in Masonry".

Authority Will Get $350 Grant

The Moira River Conservation Authority will receive a grant of $350 from the Ontario Department of Planning Development, this being 50 per cent of the estimated cost of improvement of facilities at the O'Hara Conservation Area north of Madoc.

Announcement of the grant was made by Hon. W. M. Nickle, Minister of Planning and Development.

Authority chairman Bruce Smith today said the planned work was expected to be done this summer. Work to be done will include extension and improving of existing nature trails, provision of shelter, fireplace shelter, erecting entrance gates and constructing four fireplaces.

IN MEMORIAM

BEER. — In loving memory of my dear husband, George Beer, who passed away April 1, 1959.

A beautiful memory of one so dear;
A sad reminder we miss you here;
Thinking of you keeps memory green,
To one that we will never forget,
Sadly missed by wife and family.

HALES. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Henry Hales, who passed away April 1st, 1951.

Within our store of memories,
We hold a place secure;
For no one else can ever be,
Loving husband in our hearts,
Ever remembered by wife and family.

KINCAID. — In loving memory of a star-crossed husband and father, Daniel Kincaid, who passed away April 1st, 1939.

Had a nature you couldn't help
A heart that was purer than gold;
And in those words Dad and loved him.
Lasting memory will never grow cold.
Only remembered by wife and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Charles Kellar wish to thank relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness during their recent bereavement. Special thanks to Rev. C. Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — The improved demand for slaughter cattle of last week was in evidence again this week as prices were strong to 25 cents per hundredweight higher.

Cow prices were barely steady to 30 cents lower and top bulls were easier. Veal calf prices were easier and hog prices closed not established. Sheep and lamb prices were firm.

Cattle receipts were slightly lighter than last week and 1,100 head more than the same week in 1959. Receipts from Western Canada totalled 322 head, 1,250 head less than the previous week. Shipments for Eastern Canadian centres were the same as last week and there were no exports to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 23-25 cents higher with sales to 22.75 and a few loads of heavy steers at 24; good 22-23; medium 19-21.50; common 15-18.50; good heifers 22-24 with sales to 21.50 and an odd choice at 22; medium 17-19.50; common 14-17; choice cull yearlings 23-24 with odd tops to 25; good 22-23; good cows 17-18; sales to 16.50; medium 15-16; common 13-15; canners and cutters 12-14; good heavy bologna bulls 19-21.

Stockers: Good handyweight stockers 23-24 with sales to 25; common and medium 18-22.

Calves: Good vealers 33-35 with choice to 36.50; medium 29-32; common 20-25; boners 12-18.

Curling Notes

A mixed bonspiel is going on at the Quinte Curling Club and the final games on Saturday night will close the curling season, in this city. Some of the best curling of the season has been witnessed by the large gallery that has followed the play. There are four rinks left in the primary competition with four in the secondary. The semi-draw in these two events will be held with the two final game in the primary on Saturday night and the winner will be given possession of the Northern Electric Trophy for the season.

In the primary event, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mott, with Mr. and Mrs. Court Miller, will play Mrs. Hazel McNevin, Mr. and Mrs. Vic White and Doug Athey as skip, while in the other Mrs. Lloyd Shepherd will take Mrs. Nina Gault, Harry Trepanier, Mrs. Mildred Stanton and Mac Mofat.

In the secondary event, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gilo with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Riley will meet Dr. and Mrs. Bill Seattie with Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Wilkinson, while in the second match Mrs. Joan James, Mrs. Dawson, Mr. Ed and Mrs. Mac White will meet Mr. and Mrs. Jack Diamond and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham.

Congratulations to Stan Reston and Mrs. Reston and Mac Mellon, Ken Bulford and Walter Elliott for winning the consolation competition at the local club. They went through the tournament without a loss.

Three Graders Trying to Keep Roads in Shape

Mild weather has brought about a number of tasks which have required, during the past, immediate attention of the Public Works Department in this city. The thawing conditions have required a great deal of attention to be given on the city's some 28 miles of gravel roads, mostly in the outlying areas, and three graders have been constantly at work over the past week. Due to the heavy surfaces in decent shape, in addition to the grading work done there has been a lot of crushed rock laid down. Some 300 tons of sons have been used over the past week or so and this work has been done with a view to what due to a temporary shortage of crushed rock.

The upkeep and maintenance of the 24 miles of bituminous-asphalt roads in the city does put heavy demands upon the road crews as well, the former providing for the daily maintenance of the city, condition of these roads has been carried out as close to the grade as quickly as possible and water damage to the surface.

LEAVES OVERLOADED

The sewer and ditching crews with both men and machinery are busy at this season of the year. Numerous requests for service from a number of low-lying properties within the city, the crews have been working around the clock at pumping out basements and diverting the water flow from these properties where possible. The ditching crews have been using the steam generators to thaw out a number of frozen ditches and City Engineer Malcolm Hamilton advises that the water run-off has been proceeding in a most satisfactorily over the past week.

Work on storm sewers around the city has been going ahead with the project on Farley Avenue has completed storage for the new small 40; B 56; C 22. Wholesale 47; A small 45; B 41; C 37.

Butter prices: Canada, first grade 64¼; second grade 63¾; cooking 64¼; non tenderable 64, in light trading: Western 64½ (nominal).

European Trade Split Occupies Washington

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—The threatened trade split in Europe between the "six" and the seven countries grouped as the market talking point among diplomats here as a result of Prime Minister Macmillan's visit to Washington.

More attention was being paid today to reports of differences over this issue than to the latest joint position arrived at by President Eisenhower and the British leader in an effort to obtain a nuclear test ban treaty with the Soviet Union.

While he was here, Macmillan had discussions with State Secretary Herter about the developing economic situation.

income for taxation purposes. Personal exemptions remain unchanged for several years.

These limits are increased to $2,500 from $1,500 for the single taxpayer, to $5,000 from $3,000 for those married, and to $700 from $500 for each dependent with the overall dependents raised to $3,000 from $2,500.

In addition, widows gained tax exemptions with the intent to avoid the double impact of death duties and income tax on pensions, and unmarried men and women left estates of persons who have died since Dec. 31, 1958, is still allowed income deductions on pension payments if the pension fund has been subject to estate tax.

TO REVIEW SALARIES

Some other main budget features:

Some 50,000 civil servants, mostly clerks and stenographers, will get wage boosts as of today totalling $15,000,000 a year. Salaries of the other 130,000 civil servants will be reviewed before the end of the summer.

The Tariff Board, textile industry, suffering competitively from low-priced foreign imports, was given more tariff protection with a rise of almost 15 per cent in textiles, leather, furs and goods used for women's dresses and men's white shirts.

A Tariffs will be covered on several items such as silk fabrics, aluminum foil, wool and cotton and adding machine parts, cigar manufacturers will be given a manganese metal for alloys and a fertilizer products such as linoleum and for petroleum oil.

4. For the first time in its nine years, the basic old age pension of $55-a-month old age pension is paid to all persons 70 and over will earn a surplus of $1,000 next year. Estimated at $40,000,000, it would be paid out in the fiscal year 1959-60 deficit of $34,000,000, carried into the new year. Estimated deficits totalling $600,000,000 were written off with tax revenues.

5. The estate tax will be added to the income tax appeal board.

ECONOMIC UPSWING

In general, Mr. Fleming pegged private fixed capital as the current signs that Canada's economy will continue to rise.

He forecast a six-per-cent increase in the gross national product in value of all goods and services produced—to a record level of $56,500,000,000 and $37,000,000,000.

On the basis of the existing tax structure — without changes in rates—this would yield there 1963-64 revenues, compared with the year ended yesterday (in millions of dollars):

Income tax	$1,750	$1,555
Corporation tax	1,340	1,190
Sales tax	795	737
Excise duties	615	585
Estates tax	85	88
Non-resident tax	80	75
Other taxes, duties	670	655
Non-tax revenue	532	551
Total	$6,367	$5,934

The $391,000,000 increase in revenues would be more than enough to offset the anticipated $173,000,000 rise in expenditures to $5,880,000,000.

THIRD FOR DEFENCE

Mr. Fleming said about one-third of the budget will go for defence. The balance covers—in general terms—things—hinges—like debt charges, the bigger civil service salaries, and the greater amount posted into social security and welfare payments in line with the rising population.

"Sufficient unto the day is the budget," he said, adding that Prime Minister Diefenbaker has called for a general fiscal conference with provincial premiers for next summer.

Highway Seven Flooded Mile East of Kaladar

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway 7 eastbound returned to Southern Ontario Thursday night after the temperatures were not low enough to freeze the precipitations in some sections of the province.

The department of highways reported today that the eastbound lanes of some highways in Southern Ontario were flooded. Highway 3 at Pittsburgh was closed, old Highway 86 east of Bluevale in the Goderich area was blocked and Highway 3A, from Beckett's Bridge to Chambers Corners, was closed.

These other highways were flooded: Pickering cloverleaf under Highway 401, Highway 7, one mile east of Kaladar and the junction of Highways 80 and 127.

BUILDING MATERIAL

Canadian production of sand and gravel in 1959 reached a record 120,000,000 tons, an increase of 11 per cent over 1958.

Trenton Tax Rates Higher, 84 Residential, 90 Business

Up 6 and 5 Mills Respectively

TRENTON — Trenton council brought down its budget yesterday for the coming year. The mill rate for commercial property has been set at 90.272, an increase of 5.09 over 1959, and the residential rate has been set at 84.374, up 6.37 from last year.

The budget report was made available to the press at a committee-of-the-whole meeting yesterday.

Finance chairman Vagn Lange said this had been the most trying year in recent years, from the standpoint of the harassed councillors who have spent long hours trying to arrive at a mill rate which would result in the ability of the town to meet estimated expenditures for the year and at the same time prove to be unpopular with the taxpayer.

Mr. Lange suggested that each councillor heading a department of council prepare and release for publication, a statement explaining to the public the different expenditures of his department. These statements will be released over a period of six or seven weeks. He said that in this way the public would be informed why that portion of the budget had no control over certain items, and the members of other civic departments.

URGES CAPITAL BUDGET

Mr. Lange said he was suggested that the capital budgeting expenditures take immediate steps to set up a capital budget program. He said that the town was finding itself embarrassed by lack of its ability to pay for borrowed money. Mr. Lange said that he thought each department could be asked to submit periodic reports as to expenditures and estimated needs. The councillor added that Lorne Sellen, fallen economy to delay certain projects which may proved to be costlier later on.

Councillor D. R. Fraser said he felt some system of penalizing departments that delay submitting estimates of expenditures until the last moment should be brought into effect.

Town clerk Lance Graham, in reply to a question by Mr. Lange, said that the capital budget committee, of which Mr. Lange is chairman, is to consist as soon as possible, setting a tentative date when the town might be in position to build a police station without raising the mill rate.

The councillor said that he thought the town's present police department deserved an answer to their request for a new building if only to let them know of a concrete promise that action will be taken, and a stipulated date at which this action is liable to be taken.

In the meantime, the councillors will consider plans advanced by Councillor W. J. Whitley for a series of minor repairs to the present building that would render the station "livable" at very little cost to the town.

WANTS ADDITION

Councillor Graham, who is chairman of Protection to Persons and Property, suggested to Mr. Whitley that he should be informed of the repairs asked to carry interim inspection of the present police station.

The sentence in question carried a reference to co-insurance. The councillors were not in favor of this suggestion. Councillor J. McNeil said that the addition would be an "eyesore."

Councillor Graham came back with a counter suggestion that a building could be erected on a site in the vicinity of Dixon Drive and Bessey Park, which could house the ladder and provide accommodation for staff members and the fire department. He said that the fire chief had told him that two additional firemen would be needed.

Councillor Whitley suggested that part of the present police department's building on Meyers Avenue could be used for this purpose, at least as a temporary measure.

The feasibility of this plan will be explored.

Two More Teachers Added To List of Resignations From Staff of Trenton High School

TRENTON — Two additional teachers have added to the growing list of staff resignations from Trenton High School, bringing the total to five. Staff members who have submitted a letter of resignation to the board of its all over Ontario stating that they are dissatisfied with the way what they consider "the irresponsible, continuous and incompetent" interference by the Ontario Board of Education against the board and the teachers.

The twelfth staff member, a commercial teacher from New Liskeard, Miss Harriet Hamilton, signed the statement with the comment that she had taken an earlier planned to teach in England next September. She said she wished to go on record as stating that "she would have certainly signed the statement in view of ceaseless difficulties and unnecessary atmosphere created by the Board's unjustified actions against the staff."

Miss Rita A. McCormick, B.A., head of the English department, and a staff member at the high school for 18 years, handed her letter of resignation to the board yesterday, in which a month ago I had no thought of leaving Trenton, except that the board that no problems of staff-board relations remained, I would have left the system to work harmoniously under a new board with a good teaching staff, for a good student body, and for the continued development of the past three years have proven my hopes to be ill-founded, and the unnecessary involved anxieties felt in some former years, the treatment of other staff members."

Miss McCormick went on to say that she particularly objected to being accused of "taking a holiday" by one board member, with reference to the remark made at a board meeting concerning the inspectors accompanying students on trips to Ottawa. She said that anything connected with their English classes is not with the art gallery or the museum.

GIVES REASONS

Mrs. Margaret Burris, B.A., Modern and Civic Physics Education, also notified the board (in writing) of her resignation yesterday.

In her notification, Mrs. Burris stated: "I don't have spent the greater part of my life in happy association with Trenton High school first as a student, then as a teacher, you may perhaps imagine the dismay I feel at the conditions the staff and Board against the school's staff and pupils.

"As a staff member I fully share the belief of my fellow-teachers that a crisis situation has been done.

"It is the conviction now that there is not likely to be an end to such injustices. It is entirely impossible for me to have much heart for a future here."

The staff resignation statement released to newspapers, radio stations and television stations in Ontario centres, the staff members who state that their resignations are "a symptomatic result of board actions," the following statement appears:

"The Trenton School Board is not respected by the membership outside Ontario for teachers to staff its high school this fall.

"Additional resignations expected to have appeared in newspapers at the week-end."

The following teachers signed the news release:

Miss Rita A. McCormick, B.A., principal; Rita McCormick, B.A., head of English department, living in Toronto; Miss Margaret M. Burris, B.A., B.L.S. (Librarian and English teacher); Barbara A. Thomson, B.A. (Home Economics); Karl J. Webb, B.A., B.Ed. (History).

Doubt Chewing Gum Was Cause Of Illness

HAMILTON (CP) — Officials were inclined today to doubt that chewing gum was the cause of a mysterious illness which affected Ancaster school children this week.

The children said that the gum was loosed to them from a pump car.

New Police Station Nearly 'A Must' Say Councillors

TRENTON — Whatever their individual convictions have been in the past on the subject of a new police station for Trenton, the councillors are now pretty well of the same mind on the subject, and that is that a new building is a must in the not-too-distant future.

At yesterday's committee-of-the-whole meeting, a letter was read from Mr. E. E. Wiggins, who had gone over the present building from top to bottom and had submitted a report on the probable amount of each outlay necessary to repair the floor, the roof, move cell blocks, build an additional room on the south side of the building, bring about a major change in the plumbing and heating system and other minor alterations and repairs.

Mr. Wiggins stated that in his opinion the project would be too costly that he would hesitate to recommend it.

Councillor Vagn Lange, the chairman of the finance, suggested that the matter be referred to the capital budget committee, and that the budget be given in council as soon as possible, setting a tentative date when the town might be in position to build a police station without raising the mill rate.

The councillor said that he thought the present police department deserved an answer to their request for a new building if only to let them know of a concrete promise that action will be taken, and a stipulated date at which this action is liable to be taken.

In the meantime, the councillors will consider plans advanced by Councillor W. J. Whitley for a series of minor repairs to the present building that would render the station "livable" at very little cost to the town.

WANTS ADDITION

Councillor D. R. Graham, chairman of Protection to Persons and Property, suggested to Mr. Whitley that he should be informed of the repairs asked to carry interim inspection of the present police station.

The sentence in question carried a reference to co-insurance. The councillors were not in favor of this suggestion. Councillor J. McNeil said that the addition would be an "eyesore."

Councillor Graham came back with a counter suggestion that a building could be erected on a site in the vicinity of Dixon Drive and Bessey Park, which could house the ladder and provide accommodation for staff members and the fire department. He said that the fire chief had told him that two additional firemen would be needed.

Councillor Whitley suggested that part of the present police department's building on Meyers Avenue could be used for this purpose, at least as a temporary measure.

The feasibility of this plan will be explored.

Flying Officer "Cy" Stewart, a pilot at No. 6 Repair Depot Ferry Flight during the past year will leave the RCAF to study architecture at the University of British Columbia. Flying Officer and Mrs. Stewart live at 70A Bridge Street, Belleville.

Ask New Tenders For Insurance Result of Error

TRENTON — As the result of an error in one sentence of a letter sent to tenderers for insurance to cover Trenton Public Utilities buildings, new tenders will be called within the next few weeks. In the meantime, the tenders that the letter had been sent, did not consider applications which referred to co-insurance, and it is now felt that an injustice has been done to the unsuccessful tenderers.

It was agreed that the five insurance agents who handle this type of insurance should be asked to appoint three of their number to make up a list of the specifications required and that the three members would be issued on the strength of their findings.

The matter was discussed at a special meeting of the committee-of-the-whole yesterday evening. Present at the meeting were: chairman, A. E. Atkinson, Commissioners W. J. Whitley, manager James Page, Mayor James MacDonald and J. McLaren and three members of the press.

The Price of Progress

Donald Gordon, president of the CNR, has promised that he will give advance warning to communities which will be affected by the discontinuance of automation of the nationally-owned railway system.

Mr. Gordon made that pledge to the Commons railway committee Wednesday. The day before he had stated that two out of three old division points would have to be eliminated, to reap the benefits of modernization.

Mr. Gordon's assurance of advance notice is good news and we can be certain that he will be as good as his word. At the same time, though, we can also be sure that he means what he says when he declares that the CNR will not bow to political pressure to maintain conditions which are economically unsound.

As a community with a long-time association with the CNR, although not today primarily a railway town, Belleville residents will hope that the division point here will be maintained. At the same time, we ought to recognize that when Mr. Gordon was given the job of running the CNR the people of Canada expected that he would run it as efficiently as possible. Members of the Commons railway committee have urged him to consider the "social consequences" of modernization, and we may be sure that these consequences will be given first consideration by the CNR president. Though, though, what is truly good for the CNR is good for Canada and what is good for all of Canada will eventually be good for every community in it.

If, by ill chance, Belleville should be one of the division points eliminated in the interests of efficiency and economy, we shall all have to meet it. But it will be the price of progress and Belleville is today much better able to pay its share of this price than would have been the case in some earlier years.

Teasing Statistics

The Bureau of Statistics is teasing us again.

If that message gets through to Ottawa, there may be a rustling in the paper-filled room where the statistics buried beneath an avalanche of paper. The ripple on the surface of the debris will be caused by a faint raising of eyebrows, somewhere in the depth of the litter. And from the depths a voice - - - - say:

"Teasing, my dear fellow? Well, now, let me see - - - - Ah, yes, here it is. The last recorded case of teasing in this department was back on April 1, 1935, when a certain junior stenographer, who shall be mercifully nameless, was overheard saying to a certain junior clerk, one full minute before her official lunch hour, that - - - -

"That's not the type of teasing you mean? You mean the whole bureau is teasing? The WHOLE bureau? Teasing whom? The public? The WHOLE public? Well, now, I say, really!

And we say, really, that the whole bureau was just teasing the whole public with its report on Canada's gross national product for 1959. At least, in The Canadian Press version of the report. Oh, yes, the bureau was admirably specific in explaining that while the dollar value of the gross national product increased by six per cent, one third of this was due to an increase in the price level, with only two thirds, or four per cent, being an increase in the physical volume of production.

But then we come down to such juicy facts as corporation profits "averaging" 14 per cent above 1958 levels (surely "aggregating" was the word intended) and labor income gaining 7.8 per cent. And just when we were prepared to make something out of these figures we realized that we didn't know how much the amount invested by corporations had increased (or decreased) so that we knew nothing about the rate of profits, and that we did not know how much the labor force had grown or dwindled, so that we knew nothing about the level of wages, and that, in fact, we were not at all sure what was meant by "labor income" anyway.

And so we say, as far as we are concerned the bureau of statistics was just teasing. Perhaps this situation will be remedied if we ever run into the official report —though come to think of it the official report will probably be so bulky that running into it would be like running into a brick wall.

Letter To The Editor

Bus Service Needed For Annexed Areas

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I have read with interest letters to the editor in paper regarding bus transportation for the city, and in all the comments, even your splendid editorial on the question, no mention was made of the necessity of bus transportation for people living in the newly annexed areas and holding a position in the city. There are many elderly people who would have to give up their positions in the city if the buses were taken off their routes.

Another myself, living a good mile from Front Street, I felt that my life was hanging by a thread as I listened to Alderman Wilson's recommendation. I am sure that all the patrons of the buses are grateful to the City Fathers who have turned down Alderman Whalen's recommendation that the bus service be suspended for the winter.

I hope that the present drivers will be kept on the buses, as they have never had an accident to my knowledge and are to be commended for their respect.

Head of CNR Is Dismayed

Ottawa Journal

That intrepid man, Mr. Donald Gordon, is not easily dismayed. Yet in his report on the Canadian National Railways for 1959 we detect a note of frustration, to say the least. Thus:

"The financial results for 1959 were disappointing, particularly when considered in relation to the record level reached by the Gross National Product. The fact that the presence of the Canadian National and indeed of the railway industry in general did not reflect more greatly the buoyancy . . . brings into sharp focus the serious challenge facing management."

And it was not that Mr. Gordon and his executives weren't doing their best to meet this challenge; the report lists a whole catalogue of technological improvements and innovations to cut costs and gain efficiency. What seems to be the trouble, though Mr. Gordon doesn't say it specifically, is that while railroading and seemingly inescapable operating expenses, plus ceilings on rates, are constraining competition from air line, buses and automobiles, the railways are up against all but insuperable problems.

And it is not much answer to this that in 1959 the Canadian National did better than in 1958 (its deficit, $43,382,000 as against $51,591,424); Canada as a whole more prosperous in 1959, on what some people call "a wave of prosperity." What if 1959 had been a bad year — worse than 1958?

Not that all this should strike us with terror. After all, the Canadian National's deficit in 1959, greater — it is considerably less—than the deficit of the CPR, and if we are willing to pay some $50,000,000 for radio and TV, for what some people frighteningly call "culture," we perhaps should not mind too much paying a few for transportation—certainly vital in a country like Canada.

The thing for regret is that we can't have it at a little less than that. It is claimed that in some among us keep demanding more and more of the railways we may come to the point where it will be crippling cost.

Right at this moment unions are making demands on the CN that, if granted, will add roughly another $30,000,000 a year to its costs.

Strictly Personal

Dog Fanciers Are a Dog's Worst Foes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I wasn't surprised, last winter, when a miniature poodle won Best-in-Show" at the prestigious Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show. For nearly 10 years, the poodle has been the dog in American canine circles.

Fashions in dogs are as fickle (and as pathetic) as fashions in clothes. I can remember back when the airedale — la plus chic; who has seen an airedale lately?

Then we had the vogue of the collie, and those poor dear creatures were bred for "conformation," which narrowed their heads so much that they were left with brains no bigger than a pea, and ruined for all practical purposes.

A few years later, the cocker spaniel became the rage. One Breeders were so frantic to produce thousands of these dogs that they committed all the sins of genetic sins, and turned the cocker into a nervous and spoiled little beast.

In his marvellous book, "Man Meets Dog," Konrad Lorenz has recommended previously, Dr. Konrad Lorenz charges that we have systematically bred the worst of the finest breeds of dogs for "appearance" sake, and for the dubious honor of winning a blue ribbon in a dog show.

Some of the more respectable owners of kennels have confirmed this; privately, in interviews with me. When a certain breed becomes popular, the inevitable result, sooner or another, is usually not too long before the breed is commercialized into a parody of its original self.

The poodle is a fine dog through this unhappy process, and the dog-owning public is totally ignorant of his fine breeding, true origins and virtues. The poodle is every inch a dog. His French dog (it is German), and a lap-dog fit is an excellent guard. Most people think of him as a circus performer, or a cutesy entertainer, who sits up and begs and engages to its dignity and intelligence.

The greatest enemies of dogs are often the professional dog breeders, who misuse dogs down for their own vain and neurotic purposes — not to breed animals that have superior virtues of their own kind, but to pervert them into shapes, colors, and temperaments that meet some arbitrary standard set up by self-styled "experts."

To love an object in the wrong way (whether a man, a child, or a dog) is always to corrupt that object. Most dog-owners are totally involved in the dog world — either for passion or for profit — we have injured our dogs more severely and permanently than the scientific vivisectionists they are forever reviling.

Soviet Plans First Motel

Fort William Times-Journal

That Soviet motel chain, rumored since Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan toured the American motel on his 1958 trip, promises to get started this summer.

As with many other developments in the Soviet, Moscow has been announced that "plans have been drawn up, etc." for what is called the "Mir" (peace) city, "international autotourist complex."

The site will be in the Ostankino district on the northern edge of Moscow.

An attractive park, a small artificial lake, and a row of mechanical gardens are in the neighborhood.

This motel settlement is to be a tent city in an oak woods.

It will have an amusement park, encircled by an asphalt road. There will be a main building with a cafe, a snack-bar, a post office, and a long-distance telephone exchange.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Never underestimate the self-confidence of the human animal. Let him rise to positions of eminence among us, they succeed in persuading us that they really are as important as they deem themselves to be.

Self-importance usually reveals itself early in the life of its possessor. You will see it in the important little boy who is a pain in the neck to all his school-mates. Everybody but his parents takes an instinctive dislike to him. Even his teachers are irked by him despite the fact that he becomes without fail the most assiduous and best scholar in the class. On him self-importance might make him the head of the literary society, the captain of the debating team or, finally enough, the captain of the football team. He has the force and weight of his self-importance behind him. He is clean-shaven. He is admired for his prowess by his contemporaries. He is respected by them for his self-assurance.

Into adult life his self-importance will carry him quite happily to the arms of the waiting scouts of the big industries who haunt the graduation scenes, and his career is assured. There is a saying that the world takes a man at his own valuation. It isn't quite that.

It is that some of the most distinguished human characteristics are essential to the progress of our society.

Crime and criminality are more closely allied, perhaps than is human suspicion — and Chesman could have been caught early enough, his energy and ingenuity (as everyone had his dazzling success in posture) might have been put to useful and substantial fame.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

PATIENT UGHED TO ACCEPT PHRENIAN'S DIAGNOSIS

"Dear Doctor: I have been having a burning sensation in my chest, on the right side, for four months. I have been to a doctor for a checkup and he says it is neuralgia, but for some reason I am not satisfied with this answer. I have a fear of it and will you help but worry that the burning sensation is a sign of that. — Mrs. T. S."

Weigh the two major factors in your letter. I will discuss pronouncement against your fixed fear of tuberculosis. Which carries the most weight? Why the doctor's opinion! That's why you went to him!

We must grant that physicians, like anyone else, can make mistakes. The more difficult the problem the more chance of error, and the greater the harder the physician works.

Your pain is not the type I feared it was TB, and went to the doctor. And he said it was neuralgia. Why not accept his opinion? After all, you paid him for his advice, didn't you?

TB as a rule has no characteristic pain anyway. It is the type of disease which creeps up on you.

Frankly Mrs. F. it would be a mighty fine thing for the health of this country, and all other countries, if only TB. were the most dreaded disease. It caused some vigorous pain. Then the doctor would say, "Something about it right away.

But tuberculosis develops slowly and painlessly. For some signs yes. But they are signs which often appear only as a rule and people attribute them to something else. Like a cough, a chronic cough, fever, loss of weight pleurisy. The pain of pleurisy by the way is usually a sharp pain not a "burning sensation." When "burning" pain is more likely to be — as your doctor said — neuralgia, or muscle irritation, or some other matter in the chest but outside the lung, not inside it.

To be quite frank, I'm not at all convinced that the "burning sensation" sent you to the doctor to find out whether you had TB. I heartily wish that more people were sensitively conscious of the danger of that disease. It remains for all we can do — if only we have a chance to find it early — one of the easily curable ills. Partly because people don't give us a chance to find a case soon enough.

Incidentally, I think that some of the literature of a few decades ago has much of doubtful use, so far as TB is concerned. There are so many diseases of important sign, and that then it is not the only way.

Not true! In the majority of cases it is the other signs that send the one to watch for. And so far as that goes, I can't see why you have a chronic man in whom coughings, blood in the first sign of tuberculosis. She was treated at once and recovered quite nicely.

Your trouble is neuralgia, a quite common chest pain.

Why suddenly? What can happen to an eye if the cataract is left alone? Nothing is done about it? — O. M. P."

Convict Driver Under Influence Of Anaesthetic

TORONTO (CP) — A county judge ruled Thursday that a driver impaired by a dentist's anaesthetic is just as guilty as one impaired by alcohol.

Judge Brock Thompson in so rejected an appeal by Grant King, 26, convicted of impaired driving last October.

King said he was driving home from a dental appointment when he became involved in a slight accident and was arrested. He said the dentist had used an anaesthetic before extracting two teeth.

The court was told that the dentist's nurse had warned King not to drive after the injection of sodium pentathol.

Religious Issue Blown Wide Open In Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Denunciations from rival camps of a timbut widely used newspaper advertisement blew the religious issue wide open Thursday in the crucial Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary.

The ad was published widely in weekly newspapers across the state. It in effect called upon Protestants to close ranks behind Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota on grounds that any Republican Roman Catholics will jump over to Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts in next Tuesday's primary.

Humphrey, a Protestant, Kennedy a Catholic, Supporters of each declared the ad had been hurt by the ad.

Humphrey broke up his tight campaign schedule in Milwaukee, called what aides described as an "emergency press meeting," and declared:

"I want the record clear. Any and all literature, ads, statements, oral or written, from any source that tries to make the issue of religion or the ugly fact of bigotry are not of my making." I repudiate them. I deplore them. And I denounce them."

The ad was placed with the Wisconsin Press Association, an organization of weekly newspapers, in the state.

Its manager, Carl Zielke, said the ad was authorized by the Square Deal for Humphrey committee, headed by Charles M. Schultz.

Schultz, vice-president of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO, hastily repudiated the advertisement.

Schultz said he didn't know the contents of the ad in advance and has no idea who the other committee members are.

Foreman Wanted To Stop Work on Tunnel Project

TORONTO (CP)—Construction supervisor Murray Frank told a coroner's inquest Thursday that he was overruled when he wanted to stop work on a tunnel project in suburban North York shortly before five workers were trapped by fire and flood.

He said Robert Kipp, bonding company representative of the firm building the project, ordered that the job continued just two hours before the disastrous fire March 17. He quoted Kipp as saying: "we've got to meet a deadline."

The inquest was into the deaths of Pasquale Lorenzo, 27, Giovanni Fanello, 23, Guido Montella 22, Antonio Mensilla, 23, and John Cassello, 29, in a watermain tunnel under the Don River.

Mr. Frank said 300 feet of the tunnel had no fill, which should have been placed at 60-foot intervals. He said he told Mr. Kipp "if anything happened we'd have no means at all." He added:

He said Fetterly Adjustment Services, the bonding company, hired Mr. Kipp because the job was slow and costly and he was "trouble shooting and that sort."

Telephones and fire extinguishers were not in the tunnel at the time of the fire, said Mr. Frank. Every man was examined by a doctor.

Dr. R. C. Ritchie said the five men died of carbon monoxide poisoning and asphyxiation from smoke and sand after a flash fire caused by a welder's torch set fire to insulation.

Eric Silk, assistant attorney-general, told the jury it must not only find the cause of death but make recommendations for "the prevention of accidents of this kind in the future."

The hearing continues.

Minister Blasts Hunters for Damaging Signs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hunters and efficiency experts provided targets for members in committees of the Ontario Legislature Thursday.

Highways Minister Taylor of Alberta blasted hunters who go about the province shooting up steel highway signs simply because they like to hear the "ping." This practice cost the government about $10,000 last year said the minister, speaking on a proposal for a fund to compensate farmers whose stock is shot by hunters.

Gordon S. Cowan (L—Halifax Centre), alleged that a group of United States efficiency experts hired by Nova Scotia's Conservative government to streamline the administration had failed to produce economies. Highways Minister Smith replied that although the estimates were unchanged, reorganization had resulted in more efficient use of finances.

ADVISES CAUTION

Provincial Treasurer Fines suggested to the Saskatchewan legislature that the province go slow on construction of a road to Uranium City until the future of the uranium industry became clearer.

Premier Douglas said no legislation will be introduced this session in connection with the government's proposed compulsory, universal medical plan.

Premier Manning told the Alberta legislature the province expects to produce more sulphur as a byproduct of natural gas in two or three years than the entire consumption of the free world.

Prince Edward Island's legislature gave second reading in a bill to remove restrictions on the sale of liquor as individual may buy. The bill would also allow a simplified system of liquor permits.

"Every association that comes to us wants something," Mr. Frost added. "They always ask for something more. Did you ever hear of a team union that went to the employer and said they were satisfied?"

PATRONAGE TAUNT

Mr. Frost called the CCF financial critic "the greatest example of patronage in the province." He was referring to Mr. Bryden's former affiliation with the Saskatchewan government as deputy minister of labor.

"You solicited membership for the CCF party when you were there," Mr. Frost charged. "And your wife too."

Mrs. Bryden was formerly employed by the Saskatchewan government.

"When she's not here to defend herself," Mr. Bryden yelled.

He admitted being president of the Regina CCF club for two years. "I have a perfect civic right for freedom of political action . . . even as a civil servant."

Time and time again Donald Morrow (PC-Ottawa West), chairman of committee of supply, told members to stick to debate on the $433,000 estimates of the treasury department.

AGREE TO TAKE RAISE

Earlier, the members accepted a salary increase and pension plan without a murmur. Members' indemnities were raised to $7,000 a year from $5,400. Cabinet ministers were given $21,000 a year, an increase of $3,000.

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer was given the same increment as a cabinet minister where previously he received only $17,400, including expenses and representation allowance. Mr. Frost and the board of $3,000 to bring his salary and expenses to $20,000 a year.

The contributory pension plan, also mandatory, begins payments at age 55 after 10 years' service. Benefits are to be graded according to length of service and the amount contributed.

Mr. Frost introduced a three-part bill to legalize the new salaries and indemnities and the pension plan. He also named a select committee of six legislators to inquire into all aspects of the pension scheme.

The bill provides that a member may pay arrears, in whole or in part, back to the date of his election to the legislature. Contributions are six per cent on basic salary indemnities.

WON'T TAKE UP OPTION

Mr. Frost said he would not take up the option to purchase the minister's portion of the pension plan. He has been a member for a year. This decision is final and I would much prefer it would not be the subject of comment.

This leaves me in a perfectly clear and unembarrassed position to tell the House and the people that it is a fair settlement that such pensions are an indispensable requirement to enable the best men to serve and demanding days in which we live.

ACT APPROVED

The House also pushed through its controversial bill amending the Labor Relations Act but only after the opposition attempted to have seven amendments. All were ruled out of order.

And the legislature's committee of supply was given the Ontario Energy Act and an act to set up an Ontario Energy Board, giving the government sweeping powers over the oil and natural gas industry.

Provincial Treasurer Allan announced a study of efficiency and salary structure of the civil service—is under way starting with the lands and forests department.

Safari for Souls
With Billy Graham in Africa

By TOM McMAHAN
Religion Editor, The Stair, Columbia, S.C.

TEL AVIV, Israel — People pushed past barried ushers in a Haifa cinema and in the Jerusalem YMCA as Billy Graham's Holy Land pilgrimage suddenly became a major preaching crusade.

Others knocked again and again at the church doors which were locked in readiness for dangerous overcrowding. Inside, many stood for an hour in a stuffy balcony while some climbed atop school desks to watch the American evangelist speak.

In Tel Aviv's twin city of Jaffa, 1,200 people jammed into a church which normally seats 600. One hundred and fifty others listened via a loudspeaker in the garden outside.

It was here that the widely publicized controversy arose over the Israeli officials' refusal to let Graham's sponsors rent the large tent available for such a meeting.

"Time" magazine reported that the audience that was refereed to Prime Minister Ben-Gurion was from America. According to "Time", the old Zionist cabled that he had no objection and that he would ham refrain from mentioning Jesus Christ before a Jewish audience.

Graham said repeatedly that he had come to the Holy Land really as a pilgrim and incidentally to preach to the Christian community; but, if Jews came to the services he would not keep them away, and they did come. Of the 6,000 who heard Graham in the various places, well over half were Jews and the rest were mostly Arab Christians.

The newspapers gave excellent coverage to the meetings, including accurate summaries of Graham's talks. Some said that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and man's only Savior. The same message was heard over an Israeli radio station across "no man's land." Radio Jordan broadcast the entire sermon which Graham had preached a few days earlier to a standing room only crowd in the Jordanian section of Jerusalem.

Christian meetings on this scope have not been held in the Holy Land in modern times. Observers said that they detected a great spiritual hunger in and where the great majority are totally without formal religious faith and where primitive zeal of Zionism is dimming among the youth.

The unbeliever in Israel is within certain limits. Graham recognized that the background of Israel's society has developed. Christian lands accounts for much of the social and economic pressure brought about on Jewish converts to Christianity. He told his audiences that these persecutors were false Christians. He also emphasized that Christ was crucified by the Romans and not the Jews, and that we are all partly responsible because our sins helped nail Him to the cross.

The Israeli government went out of its way in welcome to Graham as a "true friend of Israel." President Ben-Zvi invited him to his residence for a 15-minute visit and kept him for an hour. Mistress Golda Meir, Israel's foreign minister, entertained Graham and several other Christian leaders at a luncheon. Graham had a half hour conversation with the minister for religious affairs, Rabbi Burack.

Graham was careful to avoid being involved in the political differences between the Israelis and the Arab world. He told representative of the Gospel and not a political spokesman in any sense; however, he did appeal to Arabs and Jews to the words of Christ as the best and forgiving love.

In Haifa, the beautiful seaport near the Lebanese border, Graham invited his hearers to accept Jesus as their personal Savior. Three or four hundred responded. In the audience among them were several dozen Jews. At Jerusalem and Jaffa Graham emphasized the role of local Christian leaders and gave them full credit for results. The preached forthright Gospel messages and asked interested persons to see their pastors. The Christing Council which had invited him in Israel, retired from nine weeks of campaigning, mostly in Africa, and troubled with insomnia, Graham left for Paris by air and boarded the Queen Elizabeth for Cherbourg.

He hoped to get some rest before going to Africa where interest in his African tour, already considerable, has been whetted by Graham's stories in three international magazines.

Senators Favor Better Pensions For Commoners

OTTAWA (CP)—A number of senators made a plea Thursday for better pensions for members of the Commons — "the other 265."

Five senators spoke in favor of improved security for MPs—and particularly prime ministers after they have retired or have been defeated in the effort.

Senator T. D'Arcy Leonard (L—Toronto) led the move and was joined by Senate Liberal Leader W. Ross Macdonald, Senator William H. Brunt (PC—Sarnia), Senator Leon Methot (PC—Quebec) and Senator Wishart Robertson (L—Nova Scotia).

Senator Walter Asseline, government leader in the upper chamber, said he would be happy to concur in Senator Leonard's comment that he hoped the intention of the government the introduction of improved pensions.

The maximum amount members can receive on leaving the House is $13,000 a year. Members contribute toward the cost of the pension and they receive it only if three parliaments before being eligible.

This pension seems to be inadequate and ungenerous," Senator Leonard said.

Unorthodox Tal Leads Botvinnik In Chess Match

MOSCOW (AP)—Mikhail Tal, unorthodox Latvian challenger, has smashed the chess world with early victories over world champion Mikhail Botvinnik of the Soviet Union, Tass said today.

The Russian news agency's chess expert, Vyakov Rokhlin, commentator for reports on the 24-match series for the world title, said Tal had "turned a new page in psychology and technique."

"His amazing knowledge of chess was revealed with particular force in the sixth and seventh games," Rokhlin wrote. "The skeptics say that Tal wins because Botvinnik makes mistakes. But it is difficult to keep one's wits in the turmoil of a stormy game against Tal."

Tal, 23, leads the 47-year-old Botvinnik five points to two.

TCA Faces Heavy Expenses in Next Few Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines tries to cut fares whenever it can but it faces heavy new expenses in the next few years, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Thursday.

He told a Commons committee which approved $59 million in the report and budget for 1960 that TCA had to meet the cost of introductions of transatlantic fares, by international agreement, and would not try to make them into modest profits on domestic lines.

TCA's profit in 1958—$2,562,000—was 72 per cent lower than in 1957. The profit-sharing company, when only shareholder is Canadian National Railways, is making no forecast of surplus for 1960.

The first of the line's big jets, DC-8s, went into service today on non - stop transcontinental and transatlantic service. The airline is buying turbo-prop Vickers Vanguards for intermediate - range service and will sell its remaining North Stars, using Vickers Viscounts for the balance of its schedule.

Mr. McGregor said the next big leap forward in airline service will be introduction of supersonic plane, carrying passengers at 1,500 miles an hour, roughly twice the speed of sound. This, however, were not likely to be used in Canada flying until the 1970s.

CPA CUTS IN

Mr. McGregor reported TCA had had a serious cut in traffic cost of Vancouver-Japan by introduction of competition by Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The agreement between TCA and British Overseas Airways Corporation, signed in London last spring, has meant more economic use of available aircraft and crews, Mr. McGregor said.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said there seemed to be a "lack of enthusiasm" in competition internationally between TCA and BOAC and introducing economies and fares between TCA and BOAC domestically. Mr. McGregor replied.

He also said TCA had asked the Air Transport Board of Canada to allow it to begin setting a minimum charge for chartered service. Other airlines have been picking up Canadian charter traffic at Britain and Burlington, Vt., to avoid the tariff.

Liberals Plan Annual Meeting

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Liberal Association's annual meeting will be held in Toronto Friday with an expected 1,000 delegates.

National Leader Lester B. Pearson will be the main speaker at an evening banquet.

Provincial Leader John Wintermeyer will speak at noon. Other speakers will include outgoing association President William Henderson of Kingston.

Pearson Predicts U.S. Will Scrap Bomarc Program

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson predicted Thursday night that the United States will scrap its Bomarc missile program unless if the weapon continues to fail its tests.

Mr. Pearson spoke on the CBC program The Nation's Business.

Noting that the U.S. government had decided to slash appropriations for the missile to $50,000,000 from $421,000,000, the Liberal leaders said:

"Indeed if the weapon continues to fail its tests—it now has a record of seven failures out of seven attempts and the test proposed for this week has been put off indefinitely—there is no doubt that the Bomarc will be scrapped entirely.

"Americans that leave Canada in air defence? With Bomarc missiles, but no Bomarcs. With the CF - 100, an interceptor plane which the minister of defence said was obsolete two years ago and which now can be replaced only by a new interceptor plane.

"That is all. Was it for this that we scrapped the Avro Arrow?"

Defence Budget Will be Reduced By $30,000,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is already calculating that defence expenditures in the fiscal year starting today will be some $30,000,000 under the estimate presented to Parliament less than two months ago.

The 1960-61 defence budget as presented to Parliament in February was $1,360,000,000, or $87,000,000 more than actual defence expenditures of $1,508,000,000 in the year which ended Thursday night.

Finance Minister Fleming said Thursday night in his budget address that about one-third of the forecast $173,000,000 increased government expenditures in 1960-61 is for national defence.

This would mean an increase of about $57,000,000 over 1959-60 for a total defence expenditure in 1960-61 of $1,565,000,000. This $30,000,000 lower than the February estimate which was $87,000,000 below the original 1959-60 defence estimate of $1,680,000,000.

MELROSE 4H CLUB

The fourth meeting of the Melrose "Helping Hands" was held recently at the home of Mrs. McLaren.

The topics in discussion were: "Sanitation"; "How We Fight Germs"; "House Flies and their Control"; and "Infection in Homes."

The first aid in the meeting was the study of open wounds.

Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Bridge St. WA's Hold Joint Meeting

The joint meeting of the Afternoon and Evening W.A.'s of Bridge Street United Church was under the direction of Mr. A. M. Fenwick and Mrs. W. J. Loynes, and the ladies of their groups. The meeting was opened by the president of the Evening W.A., Mrs. R. M. Kerr.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. D. M. Scott, who read an appropriate Easter poem.

Following a Scripture reading by Mrs. H. W. Burns, the prayer was offered by Mrs. C. R. Schryver. Accompanied by Mrs. Ross Bush at the piano, Mrs. R. H. Ralph sang, "My Task," a most appropriate prelude for the subject of the evening.

An Easter meditation was read by Mrs. E. B. Breit.

Mrs. A. J. Parrish and Mrs. K. Bird delighted all with a piano duet, "The Glow Worm."

Mrs. C. Bush, president of the Women's Associations of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, and a past president of Bridge Street United W.A., was introduced by Mrs. Parrott. Beginning with the question, "What Does the Church Mean To You?" her provocative address rose to a challenge to each one present. All members of the United Church must be true witnesses and participate in the many facets of the church activities. The numerous areas of United Church activity were explained. Each is in the financial obligations that are included under the heading of Missions and Maintenance.

Most members do not realize the enormous variety of home mission projects carried on by the United Church in addition to those in foreign countries. Mrs. H. S. Robbins sincerely thanked Mrs. Bush for her challenging and informative address.

The Afternoon W.A. presented its president, Mrs. W. Dalis, with a gift that carried best wishes for an enjoyable and memorable trip. The Coronation Evening W.A. also chose this opportunity to present a small travel gift to Mrs. Dalis, and Mrs. Locklin expressed appreciation of her willing assistance and invaluable advice during their organization period.

Tea and assorted small cakes were served to conclude the well attended and enjoyable Easter joint meeting.

Health Hints

Christ Church EBWA Views Loon L. Slides

The devotional service of this week's meeting of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church was conducted by Mrs. A. Cooper in the absence of the president, Mrs. A. Bongard. Mrs. G. G. Wright presided at the piano.

Mrs. R. Godden, Diocesan Dorcas secretary, introduced the guest speaker, Capt. G. H. Willoughby, of the Church Army, who gave a brief outline of this work in Canada and showed colored slides of Loon Lake, Sask., a village of some 300 inhabitants, situated 200 miles northwest of Saskatoon, St. George's church, the surrounding countryside which holds a real attraction for tourists, and of the Indian reservations nearby.

Mrs. E. Smith moved, and the appreciation of all members for the interesting and entertaining evening.

Mrs. Cooper thanked all who had contributed to the entertainment presented recently for a group of the Eastern Star.

Members of the Afternoon Branch and others were guests of the Evening Branch.

After the hostesses, Mrs. E. Adams, Mrs. R. Hale, Mrs. A. Reid and Mrs. H. Stevens, served tea and cookies, the meeting was closed with prayer for workers in the mission field.

Tabernacle AG Plans Bowling Party

A fine evening of fun and fellowship was enjoyed by the new adult group at Tabernacle United Church when they held their bowling party.

Gordon Priest acted as chairman and gave a cordial welcome to newcomers and those not so new.

Mr. and Mrs. John Babiak, stressed the importance of church attendance and fellowship.

In order to present a resume of the bowling league, reports of the minutes of the two previous meetings were read. The nominations committee reported that it wished to delay making nominations until the membership had increased.

The group decided to have a bowling party each fourth Saturday of April since the regular meeting falls on the fourth Tuesday of the month, is not a free night at the church. Members are to start thinking about the most suitable name for the group that they are undecided.

At the close of the business the members moved out to the auditorium where a "bug" party, under the direction of Shirley and Bill Smith, was held. Without exception, every one seemed to enjoy themselves and at times audibly as various ones were surprised with the exercitement of the game.

The evening was topped off with delicious refreshments.

The group dispersed closed the meeting with prayer.

Handsome Spring Suit

The topic for the meeting was "Education." A reading entitled "Thoughts On Education," was given by Mrs. F. Dafoe. The words, "Wisdom is knowing when to speak your mind and when to mind your speech," was dealt with by Mrs. C. Arthurs, who stated that many speak differently when away from home and that all should watch their manner of speech in the home. Mrs. Hayton gave a reading, "Why Educate."

A report was given by Mrs. W. Johnston, who recently returned from a conference on "Safety" at Guelph. There were 400 delegates present at this conference.

A humorous reading entitled "Teeth" was given by Mrs. M. Shorey. Readings were also given by Mrs. W. Johnston and Mrs. C. Bamber.

At this time, Mrs. Clifford Reid was introduced by Mrs. LaRue. During the course of her talk, Mrs. Reid asked that each branch to join the Auxiliary to-gether and send it to the district convener as soon as possible.

Mrs. B. Hollinger thanked Mrs. Reid and presented her with a gift on behalf of the branch.

A decision was made for this branc hto join the Auxiliary to the Hastings County Home.

4-H CLUB

A 4-H Club, "Foxboro Teen-Aiders" with Mrs. Glen Broadshaw as leader and Mrs. L. Lewis as assistant leader, is being sponsored at this time by the Foxboro Branch. There are 22 girls registered in the club.

Mrs. C. Bamber reported on, "Safety in the home" and since the last meeting, in the Foxboro school. At the first euchre, the lone hand prize was won by Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Hubble and Mrs. Broadshaw and won by Mrs. Lois Lewis, Miss Ruby Eggleton G. and Mrs. Dafoe and Mrs. C. Harry.

The travelling lone hand prize was won by Mrs. G. Dafoe.

Lunch was provided by Mrs. W. Simmons. Proceeds were $14.35.

For the second euchre, prizes were donated by Mrs. A. Mann, Mrs. W. Johnston and Mrs. W. Hornbough. Mrs. C. Bamber and Mr. G. Dafoe and won by Mrs. C. Harry, Mrs. C. Smith; Lyle Lewis and C. Barnes.

The lone hand prizes were won by Mrs. R. Scott and Mr. C. Smith. Records, 4-H Club.

Decisions were made to support the Adelaide Hoodless Home to send for ten subscriptions to the Federated News and to assist at the Red Cross Tea next year.

Mrs. J. Churchill, convener of public relations, is to go to the public relations conference at Guelph as a delegate from the branch.

The hostess and her committee served lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

topics for next year's programs, also the district executive meeting.

Lunch committee for next month will be M. Grills, M. Halsall, W. Rose, F. Phillipe, E. Sine and L. Allen.

Lunch for the past meeting was provided by Mrs. Burkitt, R. Burkitt, G. Striker, A. Martyn and G. Harrington. A social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Readers' Friday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . Do you have a recipe that I could use for individual casseroles . . . something I could fix ahead and put in refrigerator and bake just before serving. — Mary F.

QUESTION:

. . . I would like to have chicken casseroles or friesates without the mess of deep fat frying . . . Eileen D.

ANSWER:

I have replied to both of you girls a release from June 27, 1958 giving a recipe for Chicken-Casserole-in-Advance. Mary P., you can divide it into 4 or 6 individual casseroles — depending on their capacity and chill it until serving time then bake it.

Here is a casserole especially for Mary F. which I think you'll make a few days ahead and refrigerated and then reheated.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

FRIDAY

Peady's Creamed Smoked Salmon (see Wednesday) on Hot Tea Biscuits; Baked Glazed Squash; Sauteed Brussels Sprouts; Head Lettuce Salad with Thousand Island Dressing; Pineapple Sponge with Chocolate Sauce; Coffee.

GASPE PIE:

One rule for standard tender pastry for 2-crust 9" pie. 1 lb. each ground beef and pork. 1-3 cup chopped onions, 2 each diced carrots and turnips, 1-4 cup lard, 1 cup water, 3 tablespoons fine cracker crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon (or less) pepper, 1-4 teaspoon each allspice and ginger. Line a deep pie plate with half the pastry. (Or make 1 1-2 times the amount of pastry and line individual casseroles.) Cook beef, pork, onions, carrots, turnips in lard until meat is brown and crumbly and onion tender. Add more cream, if needed, for 10 minutes. Thicken with cracker crumbs and add seasonings. Cool and pour into pastry-lined pie plate. Cover with 2nd crust. Brush top with milk. Bake at 425 deg. F. for 1 hour or until well browned and vegetables are tender.

The next chicken casserole is for both Mary P. and Eileen D.

CHICKEN SUCCOTASH CASSEROLE

One cup each canned kernel corn and canned baby limas (drained), 1 cup cubed (1/2 inch) cooked chicken, 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons chicken fat, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 1-2 cups cooked chicken cut in large pieces, 1 cup buttered breadcrumbs, 2 egg whites beaten stiff.

Mash corn, add egg yolks, chicken fat, salt, pepper and parsley. Put one-third of this in bottom of three large or 4 individual casseroles. Add the chicken and cover with the remaining succotash mixture. Sprinkle top with breadcrumbs and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 30 to 40 minutes. As you can see this could be prepared and refrigerated until meal time arrives and then baked, but actually it only minutes baking if it comes cold from the refrigerator.

Note to Mary P: Cooked ham, lamb or veal in small cups substituted for all or part of the chicken.

Seven CWL Parishes Hold Regional Meeting at Read

READ — The Regional meeting for the women of Camden East, Deseronto, Enterprise, Erinsville, Marysville, Napanee and Read was held in Read Parish Hall last Sunday.

Benediction was sung in St. Charles Borromeo Church by Father O'Connor, of Marysville.

Meeting was opened with the league prayer by Father Pickett, diocesan director.

Mrs. Dowding, regional convener addressed the speakers.

Mrs. Steve Brennan, president of Read C.W.L. gave an address of welcome.

Spiritual director the Rev. W. V. Hamilton, also addressed the members and welcomed all.

READ'S REPORTS GIVEN

The presidents were asked to give a report on the year's work and these were given by Mrs. Hartman, of Camden East; Mrs. Dowding of Deseronto; Mrs. Nolan, of Enterprise; Mrs. Way of Erinsville; Mrs. McAlpine of Marysville, and Mrs. Brennan of Read.

Mrs. Fisher spoke on report forms, explaining to all present, how to fill them out.

Mrs. B. A. McNamee, 1st vice-president of the diocesan council, who is also active in the Kingston Welfare Council, Children's Aid Society and a kindergarten teacher of retarded children, spoke on membership and scholarship.

Short speeches were given by Mrs. LaNoue and Mrs. Cordex.

Mrs. LeSage gave a report of the financing and urged all presidents to please have their taxes sent to her by the end of April in order to have the books audited.

RADIO, T.V. FILMS

Mrs. Dowling of Deseronto gave a speech on radio, television and film.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Father Frederick Kingston, who was introduced by Father Pickett. Father Hendrix gave a wonderful talk on "World Refugee Today". He stated, in part, "We must be universal in all our actions and in everything we do." He spoke also of his life in the prison camp and pointed out that not many foreigners ever ask for help of any kind, also anyone who is bought out to Canada always puts back what it cost to bring them out.

Mrs. Slaven, diocesan president, gave an interesting talk stating she was pleased with the reports given by the presidents. She also pointed out that soon there would be nominations for offices in all the parishes, and there would be some who would accept the job and some who wouldn't, but asked everyone to think seriously before turning down the appointment.

A few words were given by the diocesan president Mrs. Farley of Belleville.

A lovely corsage of pink carnations was presented to diocesan president Mrs. Slaven by little Mary Ann Lally.

Father Agnew spoke briefly, thanking all the speakers.

Closing prayer was said by Father Pickett.

A delicious lunch was served by members and a delightful afternoon was brought to a close.

Appreciative thanks go to all the women who served the lunch, which was well done.

Visiting priests were: Father Hendrix and Father Pickett of Deseronto.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Fine Meeting

2ND THURLOW—The March meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held in the Aid Hall on Wednesday afternoon with 27 adults and several children were present. The president, Mrs. Gena Stratton, called the meeting to order and welcomed all. Mrs. William Lazaruik read the correspondence, including a letter from the "Retarded Children's Fund," to which a donation was made. Bills and insurance were paid and arrangements for a quilt to be quilted, finished, to be done in the near future.

Mrs. Gena Stratton, Mrs. D. Craig, will convene a euchre in the Hall on May 20, and Mrs. Roy C. Howard will convene another euchre later in April.

The next meeting will be on the fourth Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Leonard Keene. Earl Keene, Harry Thomson, C. Howard are to furnish the lunch.

Mrs. Gena Stratton and Mrs. David Craig arranged the following program, with Mrs. Stratton in charge: a duet, "Easter Parade," with Mrs. Fletcher Reid and Mrs. Everett Jeffery dressed in gaily trimmed Easter hats with matching accessories, who encored and sang "Sprinkling in the Rocking" which was thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Sarah Bilekney gave readings of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Greatrix, who were married 42 years ago, describing the dresses, reception and going away suit with white furs, also Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Vivian, who were married 31 years ago, describing the wedding dresses, attendants. Also a more recent one of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stratton, who were married 13 yrs. ago, describing her wedding dress, reception and attendants, which were most interesting, as well as a surprise to Mrs. Vivian, Mrs. Greatrix and Mrs. Stratton.

As some did not have the clippings of their own wedding, a contest, "The Price is Right," having pictures of various appliances, guessing the price of each: Mrs. R. T. Baldrick, on two appliances, breakfast suite and chesterfield; Mrs. H. Thomson on TV, and Mrs. Beiggo on electric stove, each received a gift.

Guitar music, duet, Mrs. B. Pettit and Cameron, "You Are My Sunshine," encore, "Wishing A Prayer in the Morning," were well given and enjoyed. A reading, "Million Purse," by Mrs. Kay Dent, brought a lot of laughter.

The president thanked the program conveners and those who took part. Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Mitchell, who with a social hour ended the meeting, and Mesdames B. Stickney, William Lazaruik and M. Mitchell and a social hour was enjoyed.

Kingston, Father O'Connor of Marysville, Father Raymond Shannon of Enterprise, Father Agnew of Camden East and Father Martin of Deseronto.

HOW TO SEAT A DINNER PARTY

Mrs. Inexperienced's newest dilemma has to do with a situation she ran into when making plans for a small dinner. She called me today lamenting the fact that she has forgotten how to seat the party, which will include six women and six men. "No matter how I change it around," she wailed, "I always wind up with two men seated together on one side of the table, and two women together on the other! Is there any solution other than giving up and having a buffet supper?"

I can sympathize with Mrs. Inexperienced, for this is a situation where complete frustration can result unless the following fact is taken into consideration. It is impossible to seat men and women alternately, if the host and hostess are in their accustomed places opposite each other, and the total number of persons present is divisible by four! When the guests, and the host and hostess, number eight, ten or twelve, or any multiple of four, the result will always be the same, two men together on one side of the table, and two women on the other!

The method of seating men and women alternately when dining is a custom left to us from the Middle Ages, when a man and wife ate their food from the same wooden bowl. Nowadays we have modified this tradition and believe that a man and wife should not be seated together if it can be avoided, but we do alternate men and women at the dinner table.

To start according to this custom, when the guests number a total divisible by four, the hostess seats herself on the left of her usual position (the end of the table) and on her right places a man guest. This places the host at one end of the right place a man guest. This left of his wife and the man next to her at the other end. If Mrs. Inexperienced will follow this plan, she need be frustrated no longer! Her men and women dinner guests will be seated alternately.

This dilemma taken care of, Mrs. Inexperienced admitted that she was a little confused about whether or not she, as hostess, should be served first. Since consideration for one's guests should be the main concern of a hostess, she should not be served first when women guests are seated at her table. The hostess who helps herself first is showing entirely bad form and a definite lack of graciousness towards her guests.

There is one exception to this rule. If Mr. Inexperienced should bring a guest on business to discuss home to dinner, and Mrs. Inexperienced is the only woman present at the table, then she may correctly be served first.

Question: My sister-in-law has announced her engagement, and I am very anxious to give a small party for her. I would like to make it a bridal shower, but I understand this is not correct. What can I do?

Answer: You are correct in your assumption that a member of the family would not hold a bridal shower for the bride-to-be. Any other type of party is perfectly correct, such as a buffet supper, tea, luncheon, etc.

St. Mark's A.G. Sponsors Bake Sale

DESERONTO — St. Mark's Afternoon Guild held a well appointed home baking sale on Saturday morning, in the store of A. H. Stubbs.

The tables were loaded with a fine assortment of pies, cakes and cookies which sold quickly. There was also a lovely birthday cake made and decorated by Mrs. Edith Fraser. It made a lovely showing in the window along with a doll, all in pink.

The sale of tickets on the doll and cake added considerably to the funds raised. The winner of the draw was the grandchild of Mrs. Oliver, Deseronto Road.

All were pleased with the results of the event. The convener was Mrs. Dorothy Parrott, assisted by Mrs. Stubbs, Mrs. Vinton Miracle, and Mrs. William Barker.

The president, Mrs. Parrott, thanked all the ladies for their help and co-operation.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two housewives. Each week a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Caroline J. — Mother does not approve of my housekeeping.

Mrs. G. — If only she'd get organized.

Caroline J. — I have been married 19 years and I'm the mother of four children. My only problem is my mother who does not seem to approve of anything I do.

I have a rather old-fashioned, inconvenient house and find it hard to keep everything just so. I haven't been able to find satisfactory regular help as I rely on a handyman who comes once or twice a month to do the heavier work. Outside of that I do everything myself.

When my mother comes to visit, which is nearly every week-end, she pulls up her sleeves and goes to work. She keeps bothering me about what this is doing here and that is doing there and why don't I have a place for such-and-such. She gets me so upset I could scream — and sometimes do. Then mother is aware of it all the time, and two women on the other!

Mrs. L. G. — Caroline has always been a high-strung, emotional girl and I can't understand now from what she was at 14. So I don't take her carping as seriously than she thinks. I just give her time to think the whole thing over and then say anything to do with me for a month.

Mrs. L. G. — Caroline has always been a high-strung, emotional girl and I can't understand now from what she was at 14. So I don't take her carping as seriously than she thinks. I just give her time to think the whole thing over and then say anything to do with me for a month.

But I have been trying to get Caroline to understand that it would be less nervous if she would relax a little more organization into her housework. When I walk into her home I realize that it is a mother because she lives in the worst chaos, but can't come to grips with her home.

I never had help in my home and I have four children, but I kept a beautiful home. My oldest daughter is just like me, but I have never been able to get through to Caroline. Her husband is just as bad as she is — got nothing to keep the home in order.

The Council: Things have gotten to the point where it is apparently neither of them gives anything funny to the speech sole of this mother treating a fully matured daughter like an adolescent.

Mrs. L. G.'s casual remark that Caroline is at the end of her rope when she was at 14 is revealing. Apparently she is determined to keep her daughter at just that level and Caroline goes along with it by unconsciously using her only rebellion against her mother's intrusion into her life — she is acting exactly like a 14-year-old.

Mrs. L. G. is way out of line when she walks into Caroline's household with the air of a woman walking into her own home, determined to set it right after a long absence.

Both Caroline and her mother must recognize that Caroline is the feminine head of her home and that it must be run in accordance with her standards, abilities and nobody else's. Anybody else who walks into the home is a guest, who must accept it as it is or depart.

Aside from this, we think that any woman with four small children and no help, who insists upon keeping a meticulous household, will drive herself and her family into a nervous state that will be far more serious than the disorganization of the home.

A woman who has been married 19 years and is raising four children has a pretty good idea of what is necessary to keep herself and her family in good running order. The one thing she has to do without is someone standing above her and criticizing.

Bethel Zion W.I. Enjoys Doughnuts

HALLOWAY — The March meeting of Bethel-Zion Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Bay with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Don Sills, presided and opened the meeting.

Members were reminded of the sheet course, "Hospitality Foods," which will be held on April 5 and 6 from 9 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Don Sills. The president also asked the convener to have delivery boards handing in to the area conveners by the end of April.

The April meeting of the W.I. will be held at the home of Mrs. Dayle Grandon. Officers were also asked to meet at the home of Mrs. Don Sills on April 13 to make out the programs for 1960.

Mrs. Sills gave a St. Patrick's reading and the members all joined in a sing-song with Mrs. Floyd Bay at the piano.

The motto, "The Glory of Home Is Hospitality," was given by Mrs. Delbert Rowe.

The members later convened to the kitchen where Mrs. Earl Sayers demonstrated the making of jellied doughnuts. The doughnuts were served later and were most delicious.

After the meeting closed a social half hour was spent.

FAMILY HISTORY

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Three couples will relebrate their 50th wedding anniversaries at a family party recently. They were Mr. and Mrs. O. Shoemaker of Gowanstown, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. John Gille of Gowanstown and Mrs. O. B. Shoemaker of Moosbank, Ont.

W.I. Sponsors Potluck Supper, Social Evening

STIRLING — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored a pot-luck supper and social evening in the I.O.O.F. Memorial Hall on Friday evening with an attendance of 75.

All enjoyed a delicious meal and Miss Joyce Carr won the lucky plate prize.

Afterwards Mr. Ralph Johnson was chairman for a short program. He spoke briefly and gave a humorous story.

The Morrow Sisters sang two numbers, "Sweeter Than You," and "My Baby." Mrs. Roy Bush read an article, "Teaching a Calf to Drink"; Mrs. Vernon Harry read "Tall Tales from the Ozarks"; and Mr. Roy Tucker read "The Story of a Cow." The River Valley school children sang several songs.

Mr. Jack Bush and Mrs. Ralph Ulman were in charge of the assembly of quilts. Mrs. Percy MacMullen recited two poems, "I Said No More," and "My Get-up-and-Go Has Got-up-and-Went." Mrs. Glenn Bush read the story of "A Mouse's Wedding."

Mrs. Jack Bush conducted a contest and the competitors were: Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis, Mrs. Ernest Lee, Mrs. Amelia Hickson and Cheryl Ulman, and Messrs. Glenn Bush, Sheldon McIntosh, Bert Bartels, and Ed. Heasman.

The River Valley W.I. president, Mrs. Roy Bush, expressed greetings to all and expressed thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the evening, especially the 5th members of the Institute, visitors, and the conveners.

Music for dancing was supplied by Messrs. Ernest Rosebush, Harry Ulman, and Ralph Ulman. The squares were called by Mrs. Ross McDonnell.

The floor manager was Mr. Glenn Bush, and there were dance numbers for the young-sters and the oldsters.

Women Must Recapture Vitality Lost Years Ago

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—North American women must recapture the vitality they lost when they gained the vote, says Mrs. Esther Rymer of New York.

Mrs. Rymer for nine years has been director of international relations and observer at the United Nations for the National Federation of Business and Professional Clubs. She was in Toronto recently for a one - day seminar on the United Nations.

North American women have nothing to complain about, but the burden of their advantages over women in other countries is tremendous, says Mrs. Rymer.

"Women are the keepers of the conscience of mankind. They can be the negotiators and keeper of the heartstone and can give their children the true value of people," she explained.

FAMILY COMES FIRST

The first step in the important of home life wherever she goes.

"Children should share your life. They should be interested in time, it's quality," says Mrs. Rymer, mother of two grown children.

Her own busy life has taken her around the world several times. She has to be up each morning in time to catch a 7 o'clock train which takes her the 45 miles from her farm home to New York city. "If I'm lucky I'm home by 9 o'clock at night."

She finds that in this life, where she can garden and take part in career - teacher activities, keeps her "in tune."

TURNING THE SOD — For today's homes power machinery makes quick work of the excavation. Where it would take a month or more to dig a basement with a hand shovel, a bulldozer or a power shovel can perform the job in a matter of hours.

Before Shopping for House, First Select Neighborhood

Before you shop for a house, it is best to shop first for the area in which you wish to live. This doesn't mean the first step is to buy a lot, for few of us have the time, resources or ability to undertake the purchase of land, the design and planning of a house, and the personal supervision of its construction. For most of us, shopping for a home begins with shopping for a neighborhood.

The first step is to hold a family conference. Decide which section of the city you wish to live in. Your choice will be based on such factors as prevailing prices and the amount of money you have at your disposal; proximity to schools, churches, shopping facilities and public transportation. Also important is the commuting to and from work which may be involved for the head of the house.

DISTANCE CAN MEAN MORE EXPENSE

A convenient location means not only a saving in time but in money as well, for a distant suburban neighborhood can mean a substantial and satisfying financial drain for bus fares or auto upkeep, in some even mean a second car becomes a necessity for the family.

Check to see what kind of facilities are provided by the area you are considering. Are such items as gas, water, electricity, sewerage, mail delivery and police protection adequate? How about the fire department? Remember the type of fire protection offered by the community can affect your insurance rates.

If there are small children in your family, you will be especially interested in the safety of the neighborhood. Streets away from heavy, fast - moving traffic by with winding streets and "Y" intersections are much safer for playing children than a commercial laid out on a grid pattern. Traffic moves slower and with better visibility for drivers.

The proximity of such nuisance elements as flashing electric signs, billboards, factories, trains, unsightly property, dumps, swamps and noisy traffic operating on steep hills near by should be evaluated carefully. It's far better to find out about these things beforehand than to have them come as an unpleasant surprise after you have committed yourself to a neighborhood.

Most people are happier surrounded by others of an income level comparable to their own. There is less pressure to keep up with the Joneses, and less risk of neighboring property detracting from the value of yours.

"Sample" your prospective neighbors to discover how congenial they are. Ask them about life in the area, the facilities available, the drawbacks of the neighborhood. In this way you'll not only find out what they are like, but you'll discover how they feel about their surroundings. You'll be able to find out much more from people who have been living in the neighborhood than you will from any amount of your own detective work.

Find out in advance both the assessment and tax rates for the property you propose to buy. Low taxes and high assessment in the long run are the same as a high tax rate and low assessment, since the former is going to come out of your pocket anyway.

CHECK ZONING CAREFULLY

Zoning by-laws should be carefully examined also. You'll want to know whether the neighborhood of your choice is likely to be changed greatly from residential or commercial purposes in the near future. Such changes in zoning can greatly affect the value of your property in terms of appearance and in terms of possible resale. Much can be learned from examining the zoning trends of districts surrounding the neighborhood where you propose to live.

Finally, you should always keep in mind that the purchase of a home in a new neighborhood is an investment which can be good or bad. A lot depends on the amount of care you take in choosing it, both for family satisfaction and financial security.

DISTINCTIVE BEAUTY can be added to the foyer, where the guest forms his first impression of your home. Using a new marble tile, called Markwa, for one entire wall adds luxurious charm to your entire house.

For a New Note, Try Stenciling

Stenciling once brought to mind apples on the kitchen walls and a fish decor in the bathroom. However, with the resurgence of painted and hand-decorated furniture stenciling is becoming an established art.

Walls of family rooms receive original murals as stenciling moves into larger areas and the painting of patterned "rugs" on floors gains in popularity.

Stencils are available at art supply stores, or draw your own designs free-hand and cut them out. You will, of course, have to leave connecting ties where necessary, to make the stencil hang together. Use architect's translucent tracing paper to trace designs from pictures or fabrics. Then transfer them to heavy brown paper using carbon behind the tracing paper.

When using a stencil brush, load it sparingly and touch the cut-out surface lightly. Take care that excess paint does not run down behind the stencil. Special stenciling colors in oils are thick.

When removing your stencil to repeat the pattern, examine underneath to make sure no paint has lodged there. When dry, a clear coating of varnish over a stenciled design protects it.

Clean Excavations Mean Less Work Later On

This is the third in a series of articles by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Federal housing agency, on building a house.

Power machinery is a boon to house building. Digging for a foundation once a back-breaking task, has become a comparatively simple operation. Modern equipment can complete an excavation in a matter of hours.

Before digging begins, an understanding should be reached with the builder on two points. Where is the soil to be deposited and which trees, if any, should be spared?

If there is good top soil on the lot, the builder should be asked to stock-pile it on the site. It is more economical to conserve the top soil than to replace it afterwards. Top soil will be needed as a seed bed for the lawn.

Trees can be protected by wrapping several thicknesses of sacking or other similar material around the trunk. This wrapping should extend six or seven feet above the ground to prevent accidental damage by bulldozers, power shovels or trucks. Another way to protect trees is to put a triangular fence around the trunks.

Have the lot cleared of all debris, tree stumps and dead branches before operations begin. Neglecting this elementary step can mean endless annoyance later on. Soil containing rubbish is difficult and expensive to work.

In areas where rocky terrain is overlaid with workable soil, blasting outcroppings are often encountered below the surface. In this case, specially designed footings will be required. Otherwise, when settling takes place cracks may develop in the footings or in the foundation walls. In soft rock, such as shale blasting can often be avoided, but in harder formations explosives will likely be needed.

Special precautions should be taken when excavating in winter. Power machinery can normally dig through eight or nine inches of frozen ground, but if frost has penetrated to a greater depth it may be necessary to blast. If the ground is covered with snow it should not be tramped down. Loose snow is a good insulator and slows down the loss of heat stored in the ground. Frost penetrates much more rapidly where the snow has been packed. Foundation work should begin as soon as the excavation is completed and protection against frost continued until the concrete has set.

Whenever possible, trenches to the water and sewer mains should be dug and services installed at the time of excavation. It is cheaper to have the job done when the excavating machinery is already on the site. Secondly, if all work below ground level is completed by the time the carpenters start on the superstructure, materials can be delivered with less chance of damage.

How to Keep Cut Flowers Blooming

Treat your cut flowers with tender, loving care and they'll last longer, stay fresher and add that cheery note of color to light up your day and brighten your living room.

Experts of Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association offer the following tips to keep your cut flowers at their very best.

1. Cut flower stems slantwise or straight across with a sharp knife. Never use shears as they will crush the stem and reduce the water line of the container.

2. Place flower stems in warm water and leave in cool place for an hour before arranging. Use cool water in your permanent vase.

3. Keep your cut flowers away from either heat or drafts. Place flowers in a cool place during the evening to insure freshness in daylight hours.

4. Cut the flower stems with a sharp knife when you change the water each day. Make sure vases are kept scrubbed clean.

Fresh flowers add the gracious touch of good living to any room. You can help your blossoms to keep sparkling and beautiful with just a few minutes' attention each day.

High Cost of Baths

It takes more labor to put together the walls and plumbing of one small bathroom than it takes to frame a three-bedroom house, says House and Home, professional magazine of the home building industry. The average bathroom costs a builder five times as much per square foot as any other room except the kitchen, which builders list as No. 2 in cost per square foot.

DRILLING IN SHEET METAL

Clean holes are assured when drilling in sheet metal if the sheet is first clamped between two pieces of scrap lumber. Drilling through the "sandwich" prevents grabbing and jagged edged holes.

Trend Back To Homes With Basement

In recent years, home builders note a trend back to the house with a basement.

Families want more work and play space than they can get in basementless homes, and the most economical way to provide it is by building a basement.

With land costs soaring, a house with a basement sacrifices less lot area, creates extra space for lawns, flowers and outdoor living.

Its uses are almost limitless—storage, recreation, placement of heating and laundry equipment, hobby rooms and work shops depend on adequate basement space.

Basement living space can be built for about one-seventh the cost of above-grade construction.

In many parts of Canada, concrete block is a favored basement building material. It is economical, easily available, and quick and easy to work with.

With a properly constructed block basement, laid on solid footings and properly finished outside, there is no problem with dampness. Concrete block can be easily painted, and partitioning is simple at the time it is built, or during construction. Block walls will take several different kinds of finish. Special nails can be obtained that will hold in block.

Finishing off a basement recreation room can be a pleasant and profitable task for the home owner who wants to realize the benefits of extra living space at low cost.

Modern electric hot water heaters deliver hot water up to six times faster than the old storage-type heaters twice their size.

Here's How to Keep Fireplaces Agleam

Cleaning the fireplace fairly often means the job never becomes too time-consuming or difficult.

Try this routine to make the task easier: dampen ashes slightly before scooping them into a bucket. Next, vacuum the entire area with the cleaners dusting brush — which can be washed later by swishing through warm suds and rinses. Then scrub with a brush and thick suds.

If smoke stains persist, tackle them by scrubbing with a solution of trisodium phosphate, available in paint stores. Finally, polish any brass fittings with metal cleaner.

Kill, Kill, Kill That Crabgrass!

Gardeners throughout the country this spring will be declaring war on their perennial enemy, crabgrass.

The strategic weapon is chlordane, long familiar as a lawn and household insecticide, but now recognized as one of the most effective means of preventing growth or germination of crabgrass seeds.

The secret is timing. Chlordane must be applied to the turf before the crabgrass seeds begin to germinate. In most areas, this means before April 1, but county agents can give more specific dates.

A single application of chlordane will kill crabgrass seeds and also leave a residue which later on will destroy many common soil pests such as ants, Japanese beetle grubs, and cutworms. With the insects gone, you'll also have less trouble with moles digging up your soft, green turf.

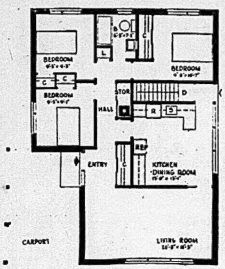
BETTER HOMES START IN BETTER FAMILIES



Attractive Three-Bedroom Bungalow Particularly Suited for Narrow Lot

This brick veneer three-bedroom bungalow has been designed by architect R. Whiteley, of Don Mills, to ensure good internal circulation. The floor plan is so arranged that any part of the house may be reached without crossing the living room.

The large kitchen, which can be used for dining, is conveniently located in relation to both the main and secondary entrances. Ample cupboard, closet and storage space is another attractive feature of the plan. The front door is protected by a roof overhang, which is extended to form a carport. For best orientation the front door should face north.

The total floor area is 1,085 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 30 feet, two inches, by 40 feet, 10 inches. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 292, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Few Things Can't Go In Washer These Easy Days

Just a few years ago, the very idea of a completely washable home was in the realm of "never never land." In those days, facilities could choose furnishings and accessories for either beauty or practicality, depending on its personality and budget.

But now, beauty and practicality go hand in and. Almost any item you might want is available in wonderful washables that have the look and feel of yesteryear's most luxurious home furnishings.

Remember that old dust-catcher, the Austrian cloth shade? Today's version, made of miracle fabrics which shed soil quickly, is even more charming. There is a special note of elegance in one style that features panels outlined in gold metallic cording. Try using the new Austrian cloth shades as decorative roll-ups by themselves, with tailored curtains, or in tier and valance combinations.

For a contemporary type of window treatment, flocked cambric or silk-embossed cotton lawn window shades contribute one type of washable glamor, thanks to a new, invisible vinyl.

Area Rugs Add Floor Interest

A tour of decorators' own homes in New York pointed up the new trend in floor treatments. It is wide expanses of highly polished floor combined with textured, striped or carved area rugs to accent conversation groupings.

It is significant, in that what decorators do in their own homes will frequently influence work they design for their clients.

Against floorings of polished vinyl tile, rubber or wood parquet, handsome area rugs were displayed in much the same way you would hang a handsome painting or a modern tapestry against a plain-surfaced wall.

The vivid colors and rich textured effects stand out as an embellishment to the gleaming floors. By contrast, they lend a feeling of warmth and luxury to what might otherwise seem a cold, bare floor.

It is quite possible to pay $50 or more per square yard for hand crafted area rugs done to special order in leather, fur, bark, hemp and glittering gold threads. Even mink has been used. Puerto Rico and Guatemala are nearby sources for the fine hand made rugs. Some are imported from Hong Kong, Morocco and India.

Yet it is possible to find handsome area rugs with a handmade look, machine tufted in this country, for under a hundred dollars. A collection of textured striped rugs designed by John and Earline Brice for Cabin Crafts include some tuft-deep cotton, and resilient, soil-resistant Acrilan yarns, others of plushy

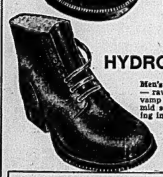
Kitchen Questionnaires

How would an expert rate your kitchen? You can judge this for yourself by answering the following questions from mthe Research Bureau of the Design Centre for Interiors. If you can say "yes" to all the questions, your is a fine kitchen:

1. Is your ... a family room, or is mother the only one who can find the baking powder?
2. Has the lighting been planned for overhead illumination as well as local lighting at work areas?
3. Is your kitchen safe enough for the youngest child?
4. Is the ventilation adequate?
5. Can all cabinets, walls and appliances be cleaned with just a damp cloth?
6. Has the kitchen been planned to save steps?
7. Is there storage space for everything within reach?
8. Is the kitchen decor co-ordinated with the rest of the home?
9. Do you get a lift when you walk in for breakfast?
10. Can the whole family eat comfortably in the dining area?

CARPET COLOR



In choosing a carpet color, decide first whether you need a warm or a cool color. The warm colors — such as red, yellow, orange — tend to make a room seem smaller and cozier. Cool colors, such as blue and green, have the opposite effect and may be used for giving the effect of added space and light in a room.

Canada's Economic Prospects Bright And Healthy

Only Textile Producers Get Immediate Help on Sizable Scale From Fleming Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian industry will have to wait a while for major tariff changes. Only the textile producers are getting immediate help on a sizable scale.

Finance Minister Fleming's budget Thursday night provided tariff protection almost exclusively for Ontario, Quebec and Alberta textile manufacturers.

He boosted levies on imported synthetic fibres, some cotton manufactured goods and on colored and bleached cotton fabrics, particularly those imported from the United States. He eased others on some silk fabrics and cotton yarns.

SOME RATES LOWER

A few non-textile products will enter at lower rates as a result of international bargaining sessions to obtain agreement to the higher tariff protection.

But most non-textiles products were untouched in view of the big round of negotiations that begin this fall among members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The tariff changes mostly followed the recommendations of the tariff board which is currently examining the Canadian textile tariff structure for about three years.

The tariff on imports rises to 25% per cent from the current 20% for most - favored - nation countries, remaining unchanged at 17½ per cent for Commonwealth countries, for both colored and bleached cotton fabrics.

Tariffs on synthetic fibres generally increase to rates of five per cent for Commonwealth countries and 12½ per cent for most - favored - nation countries. Previously they were free for Commonwealth countries and 7½ per cent for most-favored-nation countries.

The rate on manufactured cottons, other than clothing, rises to 25 per cent for both Commonwealth and most-favored-nation countries from 22½ per cent previously.

Silk fabrics will enter at a rate reduced to 30 per cent for Commonwealth and 22½ per cent for most - favored - nation countries from 27½ and 30 per cent, respectively.

Mr. Fleming said further textile negotiations will be undertaken "in due course" on other board recommendations concerning hosiery and knitted goods, woollen clothing, hats and caps, coated fabrics, laces and embroideries.

Besides duty protection for the hard-pressed textile industry, the government has been negotiating with Japan for quota restrictions on textiles coming into Canada.

Despite quotas in 1959, Japanese textile imports almost doubled and Mr. Fleming told the Commons earlier this session that some of the increase in individual lines was far in excess of orderly growth.

Following presentation of his budget, he told reporters that the negotiations with Japan on 1960 quotas are not yet completed.

TARIFF ON POTATOES

Mr. Fleming made these other tariff changes:

1. Instant potatoes from Commonwealth countries other than the country will be charged 17½ per cent instead of entering free.

2. Selmorapah bits from Commonwealth countries will be charged five per cent and from most-favored-nation countries 10 per cent instead of 17½ per cent now in both cases.

3. Malt intended for farm animals will be charged 10 per cent instead of 15 from most-favored-nation countries, the continuation to enter free from the Commonwealth.

4. Business machine manufacturers will pay 17½ per cent—half the former rate—on typewriter parts and 10 per cent instead of 15 on adding machine parts from most-favored-nation countries.

5. Toy electric trains and linoleum will enter from most-favored-nation countries at 25-per-cent duty instead of 27½.

Widows, Orphans Will Be Aided By New Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming proposed income and estate tax changes Thursday night to help widows and orphans and who suffer heavy taxation under particular circumstances.

The estate levies fall on a man who dies this year will be taken into account when an income tax is levied against his widow's or children's inheritance. On repeal, the taxes levied on annuities left in an estate for a widow can be revised if she dies or emarries within four years of her husband's death.

Mr. Fleming announced there would be no change this year in any of the rates of taxes on income or estates.

But he said there was a double impact on some of estate and income taxes on the surviving families of some taxpayers.

Superannuation, pension, and death benefits may be taxed as income and as part of an estate.

In future, the estate tax paid on such benefits will be deducted for the purpose of calculating taxable income.

THE DOUBLE IMPACT

"This measure is being introduced to alleviate a prob'em that sometimes affects the financial resources of the widow and the dependent children," Mr. Fleming said. "The purpose is to provide relief in certain cases from the particularly double impact of estate tax and income tax, which can substantially reduce the resources of the surviving family."

When a taxpayer died and left his widow the right of an annuity for his widow, it was taxed on the basis of his life expectancy and the market value of the annuity on the day of his death.

If the annuity died or remarried soon after her husband's death and fell unexploited, the annuity was to be paid only while she lived. Therefore, she would not have received as much from the estate as planned.

The proposed amendment will provide that where certain classes of income rights are terminated or altered within four years of the death of the testator, the assessment may be reconsidered on request and appropriate adjustments made.

It was intended to refund estate tax when a life annuity or income maintenance was terminated prematurely.

Election Date Will Depend On Economic Factors During Next 12 to Eighteen Months

OTTAWA (CP) — The Diefenbaker government entered the first year of full power today, standing poised and ready to come into any opening for a late 1961 or early 1962 general election.

Political observers took this as a clear indication from Finance Minister Fleming's 1960-61 budget Thursday night. The election date will be set by economic factors during the next 12 to 18 months.

Mr. Fleming made no tax changes and predicted a moderate surplus of $12,000,000. There is little doubt in political circles that the Conservatives can claim they balanced the budget. If there is a big boom, they will have more leeway for pre-election tax reductions.

The Liberal opposition like on financial policy already is clear. In answer to Conservative assertions that they have balanced the budget, the Liberals will say: "Yes, but you built up the big deficits in two years ever produced in a like period under any government."

Opposition financial critic William Benidickson (L — Kenora-Rainy River) in the Commons Thursday night called it a "shocking budget—just gimmicks, no remedies."

Mr. Fleming told reporters about the budget presentation that its main feature, besides the substantial surplus, was that it demonstrated the federal government's intention to withdraw as much as possible from domination of the money market in Canada, leaving it open to borrowings and municipalities who might have had to go to New York to obtain capital.

Helping the provinces and municipalities with their financing problems has been a major plank in the Conservative platform, aimed at creating a warm friendship between the senior and junior levels of government, a potent political factor.

The last election, in which Prime Minister Diefenbaker won Canada's most decisive federal election victory, was held March 31, 1958. Parliament's life is limited to five years, but a government can call an election at any time, and usually does so in the fourth year.

The real deciding factor is how accurate the surplus estimate is. It is based on a six-per-cent increase in the gross national product in the current year in the U.S., and the American economy reasonably—five out of the last eight times—has slumped after such a budget. An American recession is usually reflected in the Canadian economy.

If the country only holds its own in the next 12 months, the government can run through to the spring of 1962 with substantially the present tax system and can campaign for re-election on a balanced budget appeal.

If there is an upturn in the economy, it can make dramatic tax cuts next year and call a late 1961 election on the basis of its record, on the basis that it led the country out of the 1957-58 slump and produced prosperity.

Old Age Pension Fund Will Be Paying Own Way

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal old age pension fund will be paying its own way in the country year for the first time since it was established 22 years ago.

Finance Minister Fleming told the Commons in his budget speech Thursday night he expects the fund to have a $10,000,000 surplus at the 1960-61 fiscal year starting today.

The fund, from which the government pays the $55-a-month pension to persons over 70 and who has had deficits totalling $230,000,000 since it was inaugurated in January, 1952.

Of this, $500,000,000 was paid by the federal treasury and the provinces and municipalities with their financing problems has been a major plank in the Conservative platform, aimed at creating a warm friendship between the senior and junior levels of government, a potent political factor.

The last election, in which Prime Minister Diefenbaker won Canada's most decisive federal election victory, was held March 31, 1958. Parliament's life is limited to five years, but a government can call an election at any time, and usually does so in the fourth year.

An American recession is usually reflected in the Canadian economy.

If the country only holds its own in the next 12 months, the government can run through to the spring of 1962 with substantially the present tax system and can campaign for re-election on a balanced budget appeal.

If there is an upturn in the economy, it can make dramatic tax cuts next year and call a late 1961 election on the basis of its record, on the basis that it led the country out of the 1957-58 slump and produced prosperity.

Heavy Payers Of Medical Bills Will Benefit

OTTAWA (CP) — Taxpayers with unusually heavy medical bills will benefit from amendments to the income tax law announced Wednesday night by Finance Minister Fleming.

The maximum amount of medical expenses that can be deducted in calculating taxable income is being raised—effective this year—to 3 per cent of income or $1,500 for a single person, and to $3,000 from $2,000 for a married person.

The change is being made in the basic $100 exemption allowed everyone for what the government considers the normal medical expenses of the average healthy Canadian.

Mr. Fleming said existing upper limits of allowable medical expenses have not been changed for some years at $500 for each dependent, up to a maximum of $2,000 which can be claimed by a father for four children.

"Over a period of years, increases have taken place in the cost of medical care and in the accepted standards of medical care. The maximum limits that were once considered appropriate are increasingly found to impose hardships upon people of moderate means."

The new limit is $750 for each dependent up to a maximum of $3,000 for dependents, the maximum deduction possible for a family would be $4,500 for husband and wife and $3,000 for the dependents.

The net cost of carrying foreign debt in 1959 was less than 1½ per cent of gross national product, as against 2 per cent in 1950 and over four per cent in 1926-30.

SEES LESS NEED

Mr. Fleming predicted that the need for foreign capital would continue to decline in relation to our economic development and growth.

But he did not echo Mr. Churchill's conclusion that a local pool is not living beyond its means.

Instead, he called on Canadians to watch their spending and investing habits. The demand for social security and other government services, together with national investments, had required foreign capital to help meet the demand.

Mr. Fleming came close to Mr. Coyne's arguments when he said: "We must place emphasis on greater productivity and efficiency rather than on sheer size . . . on greater saving rather than on excessive consumption. I have every hope that . . . both business and the public at large will be disposed to review more carefully their spending programs."

The government was carrying out its responsibility of trying to "establish the conditions of financial balance" in which these efforts could succeed.

"If all of us, working and saving together, will increase the total amount of capital available for sound investment in Canada, we can reduce our reliance on foreign resources. In short, we have at our disposal the means to achieve in a positive way the objectives which negative courses of action would hope to accomplish."

DEFICITS COURSES

Mr. Fleming listed — and rejected—some of these negative courses: unbalanced budgets, continual deficits and growing foreign debt; government controls, import restrictions or surpluses, restraint on Canadian tourist travel, government help to business, provincial and municipal governments where they should borrow through bond issues.

As for foreign ownership of Canadian industry, Mr. Fleming said Canada welcomes foreign capital if it is "free and not compulsive."

There was increasing evidence that foreign capital was more conscious of its Canadian responsibilities. Prime Minister Diefenbaker had ordered a government deficits and growing foreign debt; government controls, import restrictions or surpluses, restraint on Canadian tourist travel, government help to business, provincial and municipal governments where they should borrow through bond issues.

As for foreign ownership of Canadian industry, Mr. Fleming said Canada welcomes foreign capital if it is "free and not compulsive."

There was increasing evidence that foreign capital was more conscious of its Canadian responsibilities. Prime Minister Diefenbaker had ordered a government review of the practices of United States firms operating in Canada.

"It would be better if the desired result were achieved by such persuasion than by legislation."

He repeated his past flat rejection of any government action to force down the exchange premium on the Canadian dollar even though the premium helps reduce the prices received for Canadian exports and makes imports cheaper.

TARIFFS AND TRADE

Dealing with trade, Mr. Fleming said—Canada has been consulting with "possible political implications of economic disagreements within western Europe." He was referring to the six-nation Common Market and the seven-nation European Free Trade Association would not result in discriminatory trade practices.

Canada would press European countries to meet their obligations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, and extend to other countries the tariff cuts being made for trade with the United States.

Mr. Fleming made these other points:

1. Inflation is like a drug, feeding upon the rate on outstanding bond debt rose to 3.92 per cent from 3.54 per cent during the year.

PLAYBOY TO DIE

PARIS (Reuters) — Georges Rapin 22-year-old society figure convicted of underworld Mr. Bill, was sentenced Thursday to die by guillotine for two murders. Rapin was accused of shooting Montmartre night club hostess Pauline Thirei, burning her alive with gasoline, and also of shooting to death a service station employee who spilled petrol on him while refuelling his car.

Fleming Exhorts Canadians To Save More and Reduce Reliance on Foreign Capital

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming, picturing Canada's economic prospects as bright and healthy, Thursday night predicted national production will rise an above-average six per cent in 1960.

But in his 1960-61 budget speech to the Commons he exhorted Canadians to save more and cut this prosperity in order to reduce Canada's reliance on foreign capital.

Mr. Fleming forecast the gross national production value of all goods and services — would rise to between $36,500,000,000 and $37,000,000,000. A similar rise last year pushed 1959 national production to $34,320,000,000.

Further, he intimated that price rises would stay little or no rise in the rise: "Relative price stability seems reasonably assured."

VINCENS CONFIDENCE

The confidence of the minister was summed up in this statement:

"The economic expansion which Canada now is experiencing is obviously based: incomes are rising and we have demonstrated a willingness to save more; confidence is high and capital investment, plant, equipment and export prospects are bright. I expect that these forces of expansion will continue during 1960."

He noted mid-February unemployment was higher than a year earlier, but said he is confident unemployment will be less by the end of winter and the continuation of economic growth.

Mr. Fleming's plea to Canadians to save more came as he stepped down the corridor to see whether the nation is running too heavily into foreign debt by high spending habits.

Last year there was a record $1,460,000,000 surplus on current international payments, $385,000,000 of it a commodity trade surplus and the rest a deficit on "invisible" services—interest and dividend payments, travel and freight costs and the like. The deficits have increased the inflow of foreign capital.

REPORT RECALLED

The recent annual report of Bank of Canada Governor James E. Coyne strongly warned that over-spending, financed by foreign capital, could lead to recession. He called for more effort to cut delay towards living within the nation's means. His prescription: spend less, put more emphasis on efficient production, rely more on Canadian savings for expansion.

But Trade Minister Churchill, in a later Commons speech, said that over the years Canada's production—the means of carrying foreign debt—has risen faster than the debt. He said there was little "to substantiate the claim that foreign capital has been living beyond their means."

Mr. Fleming repeated the trade minister's argument. He said Canada has built up a growing ability to carry foreign debt. Further, he said that broadly speaking a substantial part of the country's resources, including foreign capital, was going into efficient, productive investment rather than into consumption.

The net cost of carrying foreign debt in 1959 was less than 1½ per cent of gross national product, as against two per cent in 1950 and over four per cent in 1926-30.

Profit-Sharing Plans Modified By New Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The government intends to give a special income tax treatment for employee profit - sharing plans by which employees share a portion of annual profits with their workers, Finance Minister Fleming announced Thursday night.

The legislation will be introduced this year and allowed to stand until the next session so that changes can be discussed, he said in his budget speech.

Employees would not be required to pay tax on shares of profit tucked away annually and held by a trustee to accumulate. Tax would fall due only when the employee actually received the cash or profits given out by the employer.

Existing tax rules for these plans had been criticized because they do not allow non-taxable deferral annually in building up a retirement kitty.

last general wage increase amounting to eight per cent—in July, 1957. It was made retroactive to May 1 that year. The civil service commission recommended wage increases in June last year but the government rejected a boost then.

50,000 Civil Servants Get Wage Boost Starting Today

OTTAWA (CP)—About 50,000 of Canada's civil servants get a wage increase today totalling about $15,000,000.

Finance Minister Fleming announced the increases—mostly for clerks and stenographers—in his budget address in the Commons Thursday night.

He held out high hope that other groups of civil servants will get wage boosts before long.

Mr. Fleming said a conference after his budget speech he said the pay of postal employees should be put on a par with that of civil servants and a royal commission will be felt in 1960-61 for the first time.

The result, predicted Mr. Fleming, will be total revenues totalling $6,630,000,000 in the new fiscal year, as against actual pension payments of $590,000,000.

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Restaurant Association Thursday decided to establish a foundation for the advancement of education and science in the hotel-restaurant field. An objective of $100,000 was set.

Fiscal Highlights

Highlights of the economic portion of Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech in the Commons Thursday night:

Gross national product at a value of goods and services will be between $36,500,000,000 and six per cent in 1960 to between $36,500,000,000 and $37,000,000,000.

Relative price stability "seems reasonably assured."

Canadians are urged to save more in order to reduce reliance on foreign capital.

"Economic expansion is "soundly based" with incomes rising, business confidence high and export prospects bright.

Employment is expected to rise with the end of winter and continuation of economic growth.

Canadians must place emphasis on greater productivity and "on greater saving rather than on excessive consumption."

Foreign - owned businesses should be encouraged, through persuasion instead of legislation, to recognize their Canadian responsibilities.

Average interest rate on outstanding bond debt rose to 3.96 per cent from 3.51.

Lessened Federal Borrowing Acclaimed But Budget Wins Faint Praise, Some Criticism

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prosperity—again playing the boards after a recession absence —was the star of Thursday night's budget presentation, according to initial Canadian reaction.

Its stellar performance meant the budget could forecast record spending, produce a modest surplus after the whopping deficits of recent years and still hold to decrease taxes.

These things — welcomed for themselves—also added up to the fact that the federal government won't have to do much borrowing in the coming year, and this is regarded as a constructive influence on the whole money supply situation and upon the availability. It will mean less inflationary pressure and more money available for other borrowers—provincial, municipal and corporate.

The return to this situation in the country's finances was generally acclaimed, but otherwise the budget won faint praise and some criticism.

"ORTHODOX" BUDGET

W. H. Evans, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said that from the taxpayers' point of view it is a case of being "thankful for small mercies," and he termed the budget "unexciting and orthodox."

He added that with the government spending more in the last year than it collected in revenue it was obviously unrealistic to expect any significant reliefs.

"In the circumstances," Mr. Evans continued, "the biggest thing in favor of Thursday night's budget presentation, according to initial Canadian reaction.

Sunday School Lesson

The Spiritual Illiterate

By ROY L. SMITH

There is something very strange about it. A man may be highly successful as a business leader, thoroughly informed on many aspects of foreign affairs, and something of an expert in some form of art. And yet he is a spiritual illiterate.

The Y.M.C.A. with its red triangle stresses the idea that man, by nature is a three-natured being. Unlike the dumb creatures which display evidence of a mind and body combination, man adds a third and the most important, in his spirit.

It is in the realm of the spirit that we live at our best, and yet we understand so little of the laws which govern the working of the human spirit. Dr. Charles Steinmetz, the world's foremost electrical wizard of a generation or more ago, once declared that he expected his greatest discoveries in the realm of the spiritual. And, instead we have cracked the atom and explored its nucleus.

MATTHEW WAS A TEACHER

In the days of the forming of the New Testament, the most important functionary in the Jewish synagogue services were not entirely unlike a modern university seminar when, under the leadership of a scholar, inquiring minds explore all angles of a great problem. The highest compliment any Jew ever paid another man was to call him "rabbi," or, that is to say, "teacher."

The worship services of the first century Christian church were patterned very largely after those of the Jewish synagogue, and the most honored officer of the congregation was the expert of the Jewish rabbi — the "teacher."

The author of the first Gospel in the New Testament seems to have been a teacher in one of the churches in Syria, and many scholars believe that it was the church at Antioch, which was one of the four great cities of the ancient world.

SERMON ON THE MOUNT

Among the Christians of the first century there were many stories and sayings of Jesus in circulation. It was many centuries before the time of the printing press, and all learning was by word of mouth from face to a pupil. The public memory was the national library.

There were, of course, manuscripts and collections of manuscripts, in existence, but these were consulted only by the learned, and they were relatively few in number.

Matthew, the teacher, in an effort to conserve the teachings of his Lord, gathered together a large collection of these sayings and teachings, and presented them as one unified body of instruction, which we today call "The Sermon on the Mount."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for April 3: "JESUS, THE MASTER TEACHER," Matthew 4:23 through 7:29; 9:14-17; Mark 4:1-3, 10-13; 33-34.

going so he seems to have had the assistance of earlier documents on which precise words were recorded.

That the "sermon" does not consist of a single occasion, seems evident from the fact that the Gospel of Luke presents many of them (sometimes in a slightly altered form) in connection with many disconnected events.

CORE OF CHRISTIANITY

The precise form and manner by which the "Sermon" came down to us is, perhaps a matter of secondary importance. The essential fact is that in the three chapters of Matthew which include the Sermon on the Mount may be said to be the core of Christianity.

If any man wants to know what Christianity is, let him read these three chapters. If any man wants to know what kind of redemption Jesus provided for the world, here it is. If any man wants to know how Christianity differs from the other great religions of the world, let him compare these three chapters with the teachings of any other faith.

The other books of the New Testament may add their theologies and their comments to these three chapters, but none of them add anything to the moral and spiritual essence of the faith.

There it is. And any man who can read can also know. He can see for himself.

Imaginative Engineering — Advanced Styling Again Makes Pontiac Outstanding Value In '60

Pontiac is again making headlines with its distinctive line-up of 1960 models. This outstanding car, which last year made such a styling hit, has been chosen the winner of the coveted International Fashion Award — an honor that is clearly reflected in its present distinctive lines. Styling is clean, uncluttered by needless chrome and useless adornments.

Many Models Feature New Luxury and Comfort

The reasons for Pontiac's current popularity are obvious the moment you open the door and step inside. Seats are soft yet firm — and generously padded with resilient foam cushioning. Fashion-plate interiors come in a wide selection of different designs featured in handsome, hard-wearing fabrics of many outstanding patterns and colors. Instruments and controls have been regrouped into a smartly styled housing. And visibility is second to none! There's a large Vista-Panoramic windshield up front and safety glass all around for the finest possible protection.

Special side trim and distinctive interior appointments quickly mark the Parisienne as one of the most luxurious of all Pontiacs. This distinctive series features rear seat foam cushioning for extra passenger comfort, fully carpeted floors, padded instrument panel, dash-mounted electric clock and many other impressive appointments.

The Laurentian series is another gay and glamorous member of the family. Here is the perfect blend of elegance and economy, combining as it does its own smart styling patterns and colors, different interiors. Lower priced, the Laurentian models have already proved their success — and they are responsible in no small measure for Pontiac's high acceptance by Canadians.

And in the thriftiest of all series — the Strato-Chief, Pontiac offers extra luxury and convenience features — features like front arm rests, two convenient sun shades and a handy cigarette lighter, at no extra cost. Strato-Chief prides itself in having all the value, smartness and styling to be found in every new Pontiac while possessing an irresistible attraction for the economy-minded.

Pontiac Places Emphasis On Quality Stress More Comfort, Smoother Ride

Pontiac is equipped with an all-coil suspension system which works full-time on the big job of cushioning out road shock. Each wheel is isolated from the frame by a big, buoyant coil spring that absorbs bumps and jolts before they reach you. Another important part of the suspension are the re-designed angle-set shock absorbers. Inclined at an angle they give greater stability and a smoother ride — especially when making sharp turns or driving over uneven roads. All these features add up to a finer ride and greater stability whether you're driving along a country road or a turnpike.

Massive X-Frame Design

The foundation of Pontiac's successful road-hugging stability starts with its massive box-section built frame. Maximum rigidity is derived from its rugged X-Frame design — an all-welded structure of incredible strength and safety. This rear, larger body mounts of specially-formulated rubber help provide passengers with an even quieter ride, free from annoying engine and road noise.

Safer, Surer Braking

People who drive Pontiac have great respect for its efficient True-Contour Brakes. Pontiac's brake drums are constantly cooled in a stream of air to keep brake lining temperature down. In addition, Pontiac's wheels have special cooling slots that circulate even more air over the brake drums, thus increasing their resistance to heat, fade and wear.

Versatile Station Wagons

Pontiac's new and glamorous Safari station wagons are designed for six or nine passengers. And with the Safari you're as comfortable and luxurious as any passenger car. Special smooth-acting coil springs on all four wheels and positive ball-race steering make handling light and responsive. These attractive wagons are extremely versatile — making them ideally suited for business and social occasions or exacting cross-country hauls. Quick, flip-folding rear seats are a standard feature on all models.

Finest Choice In Its Field

Pontiac's new 1960 model line-up is clearly the finest ever offered to Canadians. From the luxurious Bonneville, Star Chief, Ventura and Catalina series, comes motoring at its finest.

The elegant Parisienne includes the choice of Sport Sedan, Sport Coupe, 2-Door convertible, Safari 4-Door Sedan. The popular Laurentian series features Sedans, Sport Coupe, Sport Sedan and stylish Safari station wagons in 2 and 3-seat models. Pontiac's thrifty Strato-Chief series offers 2 and 4-Door Sedans together with 2 and 4-Door Safari wagons. In all, a total of 31 different models in seven great series — each designed to meet the specific requirement of the most discriminating car buyer.

Big Economy Gains, More Efficiency, Pontiac 6s, V-8s

Providing the greatest number of miles for your gasoline dollar is Pontiac's super-efficient Strato-Six. This top-performing engine is the industry's most powerful six-cylinder power plant and provides top efficiency with peak performance.

Pontiac's most gas-conscious V-8 is the Strato-Flash series standard on all Strato-Chief, Laurentian and Parisienne V-8 models. The most outstanding improvement in the economical Strato-Flash V-8 is the fact that only regular gas is required to give top performance.

Another high-spirited V-8 is the 230 h.p. Super Strato-Flash which features 4-barrel carburetion. This spectacular engine will give your Pontiac flashing performance — with plenty of power in reserve to meet every situation.

From Pontiac's dependable Six to its top-performing V-8's there have been many outstanding improvements in design, improvement and economy. These advancements are justly revealed upon test driving any one of Pontiac's new 1960 models.

Choice of 4 Transmissions

Pontiac's famous Hydra-Matic and Turboglide automatic transmissions, are exceptional options with various Pontiac V-8 engines for 1960. Proved during years of use, they are considered to be the most rugged, trouble-free automatics in the industry.

Road-proven Powerglide is Pontiac's most popular optional automatic transmission while also being its lowest priced. For those who like to shift for themselves, Pontiac's 3-Speed Synchro-Mesh is the easiest, smoothest, most efficient standard transmission of them all.

Outstanding Choice of Power Teams

Pontiac offers a unique combination of engines and transmissions for 1960. A wide range of high performance V-8's and an efficient Six team up with a big selection of dependable transmissions to satisfy the particular needs of everyone.

Pontiac's thrifty Six and vigorous V-8's are designed to stretch dollars, pack efficient power.

Picton Takes Two-Game Lead In Playdowns

By RON SIVEL

PICTON — The Picton Merchants took a 2 to 0 lead in games over the Lindsay Juniors in their Junior "C" quarter finals by handing them an 8 to 2 defeat in a bruising contest played here. The third-game will be back in Lindsay on Friday night.

Sparked by Leon Bryant's five-goal effort the Picton team had too much for the Gus Bodnar coached Lindsayites who played it wild and woolly and suffered accordingly.

Referee Red Vilarelli of Peterborough kept things in a reasonable of sanity by issuing a total of 27 penalties with Lindsay picking up 17 amongst which were misconducts to Presley and Pierson for swinging sticks at the head.

The Merchants took a handy 4-1 lead in the first period with Bryant opening the scoring account at the 54 second mark. Proctor made it two up at 10.15 with Lindsay replying to cut the Picton lead at 13.03. Wainman firing it home with Picton a man short. Proctor picked up his second of the period at 18.24 and Larry (Pocket.) Pero cashed in with another ten seconds later.

The middle period was all Bryant as the youngster from Wellington took off on a scoring spree to collect all of Pictons goals in this Stanza.

Bryant started off hitting the hemp at 1.11 on a sparkling solo effort, Denard and Proctor picking helpers on his second at 4.25. The fast stepping kid returned at 5.48 with Proctor with Picton shorthanded and he topped off his spree with another brilliant scoring play at 11.42.

Lindsay's Wahnman came up with Lindsay only reply at 16.32 with the Merchants shorthanded.

The third period saw lots of action but little hockey as the Lindsay crew laid on the hockey.

Lindsay picked up a total of nine penalties in this lacklustre period which saw the Merchants Pero and Webb receive three and four stitch gashes to the face. Wrese a gashed ear lobe and Woodlock a nasty groin injury. Picton garnered three penalties in retaliation.

Proctor picked up three assists to go along side his two goal effort, Bryant chipped in with one helper, Denard three, Beatty two and single going to Don Chanell. Pero, Webb and Pierson garnered assists in a losing cause.

Coach Blasts Fruit-Tossing Hull Fans

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves coach Murph Chamberlain Thursday night described as "a disgrace" a 20-minute brawl at Hull, Que., Wednesday night during an Eastern Professional Hockey League playoff game between the club and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

He added that it was something "I thought we'd grown out of," and said it was a shame the Hull-Ottawa fans weren't "big enough" to take the possibility their team might lose the series. Canadiens defeated Sudbury, 4-1 but trail the best-of-seven semi-final series 3-1.

The brawl broke out two minutes before the end of the game when two players exchanged blows near the Sudbury goal and about 100 fans poured onto the ice.

Chamberlain said the Hull-Ottawa team and its supporters started the game in a defeatist mood and were surprised to win.

"They must have been prepared for some sort of showdown," he said. "There were 10,000 rotten apples and oranges thrown at us in a few minutes. All that garbage must have been brought in beforehand."

Chamberlain said, however, that the fans love it, vicious, despite their strong feelings. No one was severely injured.

"Some of them ought to become baseball players, their aim was so good."

"The incident reminded me of the days when I used to play hockey for Montreal. If the club couldn't win then the crowd tried to see that he lost it. The Quebec people are like that."

Flin-Flon Jrs. Dump Edmonton

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — Three-goal efforts by Cliff Pennington and Jim Baird featured a 10-4 win by Flin Flon Bombers over Edmonton Oil Kings in the Western Canada junior hockey playoff semi-final here Thursday night.

The win was Flin Flon's first in four games in the best-of-seven series. Edmonton won the first three. The fifth game is here Saturday night.

ACID IN WATER SUPPLY TELLURIDE, Colo. (AP) — Nearly 2,500 gallons of concentrated sulphuric acid spilled Thursday into the San Miguel River when a tanker truck slipped off an icy road. The downstream towns of Naturita, Nucla and Uravan were advised not to use river water for a while.

VOLKSWAGEN'S AIR-COOLED REAR ENGINE —MORE GO PER POUND

Every pound of the Volkswagen engine is built to work. Dead weight in an engine is the enemy of efficiency. That's why Volkswagen's engine is cast of aluminum and magnesium alloys (even lighter than aluminum).

Volkswagen reduces dead weight in still other ways. The engine is air-cooled—no bulky radiator. (No water to freeze in winter, or boil over in summer.) An oil-cooler, usually found only on high-priced sports cars, is standard on the Volkswagen. And placing the engine in the back gets rid of the conventional heavy driveshaft while giving direct drive to the wheels.

In mud, sand and snow, where other cars skid, you go.

You get up to 40 miles per gallon. Volkswagen's engine can take top-speed driving all day long without strain. Definitely... the toughest 198 lbs. going!

No wonder, then, the principle of the Volkswagen's engine has now been adopted by leading European and American manufacturers.

Volkswagen's ingenious engineering gives you other benefits, too. Torsion bar suspension, independent on all four wheels, provides riding comfort even big cars can't match.

TRADITIONAL German craftsmanship goes into every detail of the Volkswagen. In fact, a gold watch is given for every Volkswagen driven 60,000 miles without a major repair . . . and more than 150,000 have been awarded! It's not surprising that Volkswagen is the largest selling small car in the world—BY FAR!

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Strangely enough, some of the many good points of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association are its "vices."

And if Frank O. Doherty of Thorold, Ont., the OMHA's popular presidential bachelor father reads this, he can treat himself to a button-hustin' glow of pride.

For in this part of "Upper Canada" as the estimable Frank's Western Ontario gabbers have labored this garden of the gods, two of the association "vices" have been doing a job of work—and doing it mighty well.

They are second-vice Albert Watkin of Peterborough, and Hastings county's gift to the OMHA, Douglas Patterson, third vice-president, address, when he is home, Stirling, Ontario.

Years ago, Sam Curry of Tweed, minor hockey pioneer of this part of Ontario's puck-chasing hinterland, laid the foundation of organized minor hockey in its uncharted areas.

The Peterborough range was pretty well fenced in and organized. But beyond the perimeter of Sam's activities lay a big area that was ready for the "taking."

Sam, working as a top line ranger, did a tremendous job until business and other commitments forced him to relinquish his duties.

The hands of Doug Patterson, one of the Curry staff of efficient lieutenants, caught the torch. It has glowed brilliantly since.

Patterson consolidated the area Curry had pioneered. He surrounded himself with a force of trusty minor hockey men and it was not long before "Upper Canada" became an important link in the OMHA chain of activities.

With the help of his fellow "vice" from Peterborough Patterson opened new vistas of organized hockey for the youngsters of the little places. Installation of artificial ice in some of the larger centres helped them tremendously.

This season it is estimated that Messrs. Watkin and Patterson "fathered", with the help of their local aides, some 4,000 hockey-conscious youngsters from Peterborough to Gananoque.

Bantam, midget and juvenile groups had the most successful season in 1959-60 in the history of Eastern Ontario minor hockey.

Inauguration of the new peewee classification added to the Watkin-Patterson labors. They did a tremendous job—organizing teams and leagues in their various districts. "It was a great success—and will be bigger and better next year," was the duo's consensus.

These are the efforts Junior "A" and pro interests would throttle by their suggestions that youngsters should not play organized hockey until they are 13 years of age.

Be that as it may. Besides their regular and additional work each year, the Watkin-Patterson team had dreams for expansion. For the past two years they have been in touch with the Ottawa District Minor Hockey Association. Fruits of these efforts was seen a few days ago when the Peterborough juvenile "A" team, Eastern Ontario champions, played their title game with the Ottawa District champions. The Petes won the first of the two-game series 5-4.

It is a Watkin-Patterson hope that this may lead to an annual playoff event or events similar to those of the NOHA-OMHA championships.

Peewee group winners in their various classes were Wellington, Trenton and Napanee. Wellington and Norwood won bantam honors. Stirling, Campbellford and Madoc won bantam, midget and juvenile top spots. Gananoque won all three classifications in the "B" grouping.

Said Patterson:—"Competition was very keen with five communities winning more than one title. All indications point to several new names of excellent calibre in the Quinte district next season, any of which could go all the way."

Both Watkin and Patterson—and the OMHA—are not unmindful nor unappreciative of the tremendous assistance given them by local hockey men—club coaches, managers and referees—who give so unstintingly of their efforts.

Here in the city, too, minor hockey had a splendid season, thanks to the fine men who are the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, and their associates, the hard-working coaches, managers, etc.

The same success was achieved in other parts of the district—in Picton, Wellington, Trenton, and many other places. Each and all did a fine job.

Hockey is the Canadian youngsters' sport heritage. They will play it—and continue to play it—as long as there are the Patterson, the Watkins, the Doherty's, and other fine men who have spent years bringing about organized play. Efforts by the moving ranks to uproot it—or make changes to their own liking—should be and will be met with determined opposition.

Hawks Shot Down, Habs Await Red Wings Or Leafs

Mighty Montrealers Move Into Stanley Cup Finals After Fourth-Game 2-0 Win

CHICAGO (CP) — Montreal Canadiens are halfway toward an unprecedented fifth consecutive Stanley Cup and they don't seem to care who they have to face in the second half of their chase.

The mighty Canadiens moved majestically into the Stanley Cup finals Thursday night by defeating Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 to win their best-of-seven semi-finals in four games.

Coach Toe Blake said after the Canadiens' shutout—their second in as many games over Chicago—that it didn't matter whether Detroit Red Wings or Toronto Maple Leafs win their way into the finals.

"They're both tough and either can come up against us a hot team", he explained in the jubilant Canadiens' dressing room.

NOT WORRIED

But he made it clear that he isn't worried about the outcome of the finals—the matter which team provides the opposition.

Blake picked his Vezina Trophy winning goalie, Jacques Plante, as the big man in Thursday night's effort.

"The difference was the goalies," he said, "(Glenn) Hall was good for periods but Plante proved why he has been the National Hockey League's all-star goalie for three straight seasons."

Plante, who provided the balance for victory as Canadiens' pace cooled early in the season when he doomed a face mask, slopped 25 shots Thursday night for his 4th second shutout in as many games. Hall in the Chicago nets handled 29.

Claude Provost and Dickie Moore scored for Montreal. Both goals came in the second period, as the powerful Montreal attack peppered the Chicago net steadily.

The first period was evenly fought when the third settled into a more defensive pace as the Canadiens protected their lead.

GO ALL OUT

Both teams opened rough and fast but there was few good shots in the first period.

In the second Montreal came to life and peppered Hall with 15 shots, two of which went through, while Plante made only eight saves.

Provost's goal came at 4:47 on a 30-foot shot from 222 during relays from Andre Pronovost and Albert Langlois. Provost blasted the puck through a maze of players and it was in the netting before Hall could react.

Moore scored the game up at 11:26 with assist from the Richard brothers, Henri and Maurice. He split the Hawks defence of Ernest Vasko and Pierre Pilote and fired from 10 feet out.

PLANTE ASTRIGHT

Plante, who had to go to the dressing room for a stitch on a cut received in the first period, was tremendous in the final period as he withstood repeated Hawk assaults.

Although Blake gave Plante credit for Montreal's final win, the simple truth was that the balance of the world champion Canadiens came to much for the Hawks, who finished third in the NHL regular season.

Two features of the brief series pointed up the dominance of the Canadiens.

First, Montreal never was behind in any of the series' games. They always scored the first goal and then methodically held on for the win.

HULL HELD DOWN

Secondly, the Hawks' starry left-winger, Bobby Hull, who won the league scoring title with a great surge late in the season, managed only one goal during the semi-finals.

Although Hull was handicapped by a sonsolitis attack and missed the first game, Montreal's defence throttled his scoring punch-ital and thus killed the big offensive threat of the Hawks.

Coach Rudy Pilous of the Hawks called the Canadiens a great club.

"They got the first goal and had the depth and experience to hold you off," he said.

"When you get beat and shut out two nights in a row you gotta say they're a better club."

Tonight's Game Is Big One For Junior B's

Peterborough Laton-Canuckes and Belleville Lumberi-Rollins renew their battle for the OHA Eastern Junior "B" group championship at Memorial Arena tonight at nine o'clock.

The Canucks lead the best-of-seven series two games to one and the Belleville club is realizes that a win tonight is of the utmost importance.

Fifth game of the series will be played in Peterborough Wednesday night.

Actually coach "Red" Granville is quite confident that they will pull out a victory and go on to capture the series. "At least now the boys know that they can beat those guys. We have played at least as well as they have in the last two games. Neither club played good in the last game. Monday game (Canucks won 3-0) but they happened to get the first goal. If we had scored first it would have been a different story. My boys looked real sharp in that 4-1 win Thursday night and I'm sure they can equal that effort tonight," Granville said.

Observers of the series to date have been greatly impressed by the stellar defence play of Belleville defenceman Pat Hamilton and goalie Bill Moxon. Both have been outstanding in the last two games, and if Belleville can regain the scoring ability it showed in the first game, 7-6 goals during the 29 scheduled games, the combination of offence and defence should lead to a series victory.

Tonight's game begins at nine o'clock and it is hoped that a capacity audience will support the club to the fullest. Admission prices are low but the hockey is top-notch.

Norm Siebern Star Shines In Kansas City Firmament

By The Associated Press

Norm Siebern became so sunstunned in the New York baseball outfield his batting began to fade.

Now the 26-year-old left-handed hitter is on first base for the Kansas City Athletics, and he's hitting a rosy .373 with team-leading spring totals of four home runs and 20 RBI.

Manager Bob Elliott tries Norm at first Thursday and the ex-Yankee responded with a homer, a double and three runs batted in. He fielded without an error although the A's lost to the Baltimore Orioles 5-4 at West Palm Beach.

When New York manager Casey Stengel let Norm out of the doghouse late in the 1959 season, Siebern batted .296 in 54 games at first fielding 1.000 with 15 putouts and two assists.

But his work in Yankee Stadium's treacherous left field was something else. Norm played in 134 games in 1958, his first year as a regular, and carried a .300 batting average into the world series.

BAD LUCK ON BRAVES

Then Milwaukee fly balls, aided by high winds, haze and a beaming sun, began dropping all over left field. Norm was benched quickly. He played only three series games and hit a mere .125.

Again last year Stengel benched him for Hector Lopez, another fielding gamble. From Aug. 1 he was only three times batting—and that enabled him to finish at .271.

Then the Yankees traded Siebern, Don Larsen, Hank Bauer and Marv Throneberry to the A's for Kent Hadley, Joe Demaestri and Roger Maris, the left fielder they wanted.

If he can keep hitting and play the bag, it will cost Throneberry a job that had been virtually handed to him by the A's, who had a collection of four unimpressive first basemen last year. Siebern throws right. Throneberry is a lefty all the way.

OUTFIELD SHAPES UP

Bauer, the A's leading spring hitter, has clinched one outfield job along with Bob Cerv. Russ Snyder and Dick Williams will platoon the other. If Siebern remains in the infield.

Hadley homered off Jim Bunning for the Yankees Thursday as did Tony Kubek, but Detroit Tigers tore into Mark Freeman for four first inning runs in a 5-2 victory at Lakeland.

In other Florida games, St. Louis Cardinals (12-3) moved to the top of the exhibition standings with a 7-5 triumph over Pittsburgh Pirates (11-6) at St. Petersburg, and Milwaukee Braves edged Washington Senators 7-6 at Orlando.

In Arizona, Chicago Cubs shaded Boston Red Sox 4-3 at Mesa for their seventh straight, and Cleveland Indians rallied to whip San Francisco Giants 11-5 at Tucson.

'Doubles' Crown for Wolves? Meet Blackburn for T'Coop

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Less than a month ago, Wolverhampton Wanderers were unceremoniously dismissed from the European Soccer Cup competition by Barcelona and subjected to a barrage of unkind comment relating to their fitness to uphold the fair name of British football.

Ever since the talented Spaniards ground Wolves into their own sacred turf at Molineux, the indomitable Midlanders have offered considerable evidence of their intention to defy the critics by holding their place at the top of the domestic heap.

One point separates them from the leadership of the Football League's 22-team first division and their third straight league championship. And they have to beat only Blackburn Rovers at Wembley Stadium May 7 to win the Football Association Cup.

HARD TO ACHIEVE

The league-cup double hasn't been achieved since Aston Villa did it before the turn of the century. The same club frustrated the most recent bid by defeating Manchester United in the 1957 cup final after the Busby Babes had wrapped up the league title.

Wolves, whose robust, unaesthetic style infuriates the game's connoisseurs, advanced impressively Wednesday night with a 5-1 home victory over third-place Burnley.

Adding to the lustre of the Wolves' performance was the fact they won despite the absence of regular goalkeeper Malcolm Finlayson and outside-right Norman Deeley. Deeley's standin, 30-year-old Gerry Mannion, scored his first goal in league competition and set up two more.

The down-to-the-wire race continues Saturday with league-leading Tottenham Hotspur at home to last-place Luton Town while Wolves visit Everton, another side with relegation problems. Burnley, four points off the pace, entertains Sheffield Wednesday, another championship outsider tying a point behind Burnley.

Gary Hull Makes Debut On Television

Gary "Whitey" Hull, 17-year-old brother of Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby, made his coast-to-coast television debut from the Windy City last night.

"Whitey" was a between-period guest on the network telecast of the Montreal-Chicago Stanley Cup playoff game. Interviewed by CBC commentator Al "Patch" Cauley, Gary "admitted" that he and Bob looked like their dad, while his other two brothers, Dennis and Ron, took after their mother.

Questioned as to whether he played hockey young Mr. Hull promptly got in a plug for the local junior club. "Yes, I play with Ron and Dennis for the Belleville Junior "B" team," was his answer. Asked about his weight, the strapping youngster said he tipped the scales at 170.

Gary has been staying in Chicago with Bob and his recent bride for the past several days. He was joined there by his mother, Mrs. Robert Hull Sr., on Tuesday morning.

While the entire Hull family must have been disappointed when the Black Hawks bowed out of the playoffs with their 2-0 defeat at the hands of the Canadiens last night, it is expected Dennis might have left a little worse about the defeat than the others.

The youngest member of the hockey-playing brother clan at 15, his Dad had promised him a trip to Montreal for the fifth game of the series there Saturday night, a game that will never be played.

Wolves Lead Points Race

OTTAWA (CP) — Sam Bettio and Tom McCarthy of Sudbury Wolves have picked up seven points apiece to top the Eastern Professional Hockey League playoff scoring race, statistics showed Thursday.

Bettio has three goals and four assists while McCarthy has two markers and helped on five other scores in four games of the best-of-seven semi - final with Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

Bill Carter of Canadiens is next with a goal and four assists, followed by five players with four points each.

Sudbury led all clubs in attendance at home games during the regular season with 129,152 fans watching 35 games. Hull-Ottawa was second with about 118,000.

Tiger Favored Over Zalazar

BOSTON (AP) — British Empire middleweight king Dick Tiger rates an 8-to-5 favorite over Argentina's Victor Zalazar before a ten-round televised fight tonight.

Tiger, a Nigerian fighting on TV for the eighth time in six months, and Zalazar meet formally after several "wars" in gym tuneups.

Tiger is the National Boxing Association's No. 8 challenger. Ring magazine rates Zalazar as No. 3. Ace Armstrong, Joe Gilardello and Holly Mims have been among his recent victims while he has a draw with Rory Calhoun.

Thrashed Zalazar has 15 knockouts among his 39 pro starts. He recently beat Yanqi Bahama.

The bout will be carried by NBC-TV and CBC-TV starting at 10 p.m.

INGEMAR SIGNS SOON

GOTEBORG, Sweden, (AP) — World Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson said Thursday he will go to New York April 13 and sign contracts for his return title fight with Floyd Patterson. The bout is tentatively set for June 22 at the Polo Grounds.

The unbeaten Swede will be in New York less than a day. He said he plans to return to Europe the same day so he can start training at Geneva, Switzerland.

Chatham Ties Can on Dogs, Needs Game for Loop Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons and Sudbury Combines both won close games Thursday night in Ontario Senior A title play, Sudbury winning in overtime and Chatham making sure of its victory with a goal 18 seconds from the final whistle.

Chatham whipped Windsor Bulldogs 5-3 to take a firm grip on the best-of-seven final series for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A title. Chatham leads 3-1.

Sudbury edged Rouyn-Noranda Aloettes 5-4 to even their best-of-two Northern Ontario Senior A final at 1-1.

The results put the Maroons one win from a semi-final berth in the Eastern Allan Cup playoffs and kept the Combines in contention. Winners of the two series will meet.

The OHA and NOHA series continue tonight with Chatham at Windsor and Noranda against Sudbury at the Schumacher Arena, Timmins, as the Sudbury arena is occupied.

At Chatham the home team took a 2-0 first period lead but were only 4-3 ahead in the second. The score remained this figure, with Windsor several times nearly tying, until 19:42 of the third period when defenceman Copper Layne got Chatham's fifth goal.

Other Chatham marksmen were Joe Mak, who got two goals, Fred Pitcher and Ted Power. Two Bulldogs' goals were fired by Tommy Walker while Hank Gross got a single.

ALMOST QUIET GAME

Maroons outshot Bulldogs 28-21 in a comparatively quiet game for the usually rough series. Referee Hugh McLean called only eight penalties, four aides.

At Noranda the visitors, who were walloped 8-1 Wednesday, made a surprising comeback thanks largely to the presence of three players unable to attend the opener.

John MacKenzie, a Sudbury policeman, was particularly responsible for turning the tables. He scored once in the first period and twice in the third, including the losing goal.

After a 2-2 first period tie Aloettes led 3-2 in the second period. The 4-4 tie was broken by Sudbury's John Bobenie at 2:39 in the 10-minute overtime period.

The other Sudbury scorer was Nick Tomiuk. The Aloettes' marksmen were Cliff Connelly, who got three goals, and Dino Leggio.

League Brass 'Won't Tolerate' Second Brawl

OTTAWA (CP)—President Ed Houston of the Eastern Professional Hockey League said Thursday the league will not tolerate a recurrence of Wednesday night's brawl in which players and fans tangled in a league game here.

Hull - Ottawa Canadiens were leading Sudbury Wolves in the dying minutes of the fifth game when Cleland Mortson of Sudbury and the Habs' Bob Perry started a fight which spread to the stands, at one point about 100 fans were on the ice.

The game, won 4-1 by Ottawa-Hull, was delayed 20 minutes. The fifth game of the best-of-seven semi-final is in Sudbury tonight. Sudbury leads the series 3-1.

Houston said both Canadiens and Hull Arena officials were at fault but not having adequate police protection.

"It was a disgraceful exhibition and I don't want a repeat," he said in an interview. "If there is another game in Hull Sunday I want the visitors protected."

NBC Adaptation of Play Pretty Hard to Take

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyer-Joseph Welch suggested in a preface to Thursday night's new Hour of Great Mysteries serie, that watchers accept The Bat as sort of period piece in the spirit of early silent movies.

But even when forewarned, this NBC adaptation of a 35-year-old stage play by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood was hard to take. An hour is pretty long for a spoof and The Bat was perfectly ridiculous and hardly a great mystery.

The plot, however, had a little or everything: Gallons of rain, flashes of lightning, screams, a fellow running around dressed as a bat, a comedy maid, an incurable Oriental butler, and bodies falling out of closets. The only virtue the show had was that the butler wasn't the villain.

Helen Hayes and Jason Robards Jr., among others played it straight and worked hard.

Recommended tonight:

Telephone Hour, NBC, 8:30-9:30 —With Jose Iturbi, Gregor Piatigorsky, Jerome Hines, Nora Kaye and Mia Slavenska.

Imlach May Recall Winger From Rochester Farm Club

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — With the crucial fifth game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals little more than 24 hours away coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs still has a big problem unsolved.

Leafs' big scoring punch in this series has come from the combined trio of Red Kelly and Frank Mahovlich, operating as a make-shift third line unit. But these two big guys still are without a steady right winger.

Four players have been dropped into that wing slot in recent weeks but none seems to have impressed Imlach. He has to come up with a decision for Saturday night and on his choice may rest Leafs' chances of a berth in the Stanley Cup finals.

Imlach flew in Thursday from a quick trip to Rochester, pull his club through a stiff workout and then went into seclusion to watch films of last Saturday night's game against Wings.

Afterwards he admitted that the problem still was as big as ever. "I don't know who we'll put on with Kelly and Mahovlich. We'll have to wait and see how the guys are going tomorrow."

Would he break up one of his other top lines? "Too late for that now."

Leafs and Wings are tied 2-2 in this best-of-seven set and Saturday night's home game is almost a "must" for Leafs. A loss would put Wings in a favored position to knock them out at Detroit Sunday night.

TWO GOALS EACH

Kelly and Mahovlich each have scored two goals. Both by Mahovlich were game - winners, Kelly assisting. Kelly's masterly playmaking, learned in 12 seasons on the Detroit defence, has meshed nicely with Mahovlich's spectacular rushing.

The search for a linemate hasn't been nearly as fruitful. Gerry Ehman, Larry Regan, Gerry James and Johnny Wilson have patrolled the wing in a regular, shuttle service.

Imlach has tried just about everything short of a major removal of his goalie, Ike Hall. He feels sure the right formula would carry Leafs to the Stanley Cup championship.

Today's workout will be Leafs' last before the game.

SETTLE WEATHER CONTS

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Fifteen member countries of the International Civil Aviation Organization Wednesday signed a new agreement on the distribution of the costs of operating North Atlantic weather ships on the European side of the ocean. The total cot of operating the 21 North Atlantic weather stations—11 on the western side by the United States and Canada and 10 on the European side—was put at about $3,000,000. The conference dealt only with the European contributors to the plan.

Meg, Tony Will Follow Light Blues

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret gave in to the wishes of Tony Armstrong-Jones Thursday and agreed to follow her fiance's old crew down the River Thames for Saturday's Oxford-Cambridge crew race.

The trip down the Thames was Tony's idea. He was the coxswain for the winning Cambridge crew in 1950. Margaret never has shown any interest in the race—until this year. They'll ride in the Cambridge launch.

The 4½-mile race usually attracts some 200,000 persons. An armada of small boats following the two shells. And millions more watch it on television.

Nieporte Leads Azalea Open

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Tom Nieporte, 30-year-old Evansville, N.Y., professional, went on a nine-birdie spree Thursday to shoot a 33-32—64 for a three-stroke lead in the first round of the $15,000 Azalea golf tournament.

He was eight under par, missing the competitive course record by one stroke.

Sharing second place at 67 were Jerry Barber, Dave Ragan and Gary Player.

In all, 20 men broke par and a dozen equalled it.

Al Johnston of Montreal fired 36-36—72 for a tie with 11 others for 21st place. Toronto's Al Balding shot 38-35—73 and was in an 11-way tie for 33rd place.

Astrological Forecast

BY CARROLL RICHTER
Saturday, April 2

General tendencies: Until evening you are under fine aspects this Saturday for making short shift of any sort of work awaiting your attention by doing it in a clever and ingenious manner. Then the evening finds energy released to reduce your most idealistic plans to a workable expression. Be compassionate to those less fortunate than yourself.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — All day is fine for shopping, running errands, writing letters, planning trips, etc. P. M. by changing your attitude, you can ameliorate conditions at home and work far more harmoniously with closest of kin.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Fine day to repair property and get utilities to work more efficiently. Also, plan a better modus operandi for your business or job. P. M. have a social evening at home with those you enjoy the most, also neighbors.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — A. M. is ideal for visiting beauty shop and getting your appearance at its best. Then be sure you take any treatments you need to improve health. P. M. bring your best talents to the attention of loved ones.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — A.M. fine for getting rid of myriad small duties. Also good for research work and garnering information you need. P. M. be sure you go out socially or for recreation and have lots of fun. Enjoy yourself as you most prefer. Be jolly.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Get out in A. M. and visit with good comrades with whom you can plan some worthwhile joint venture. P. M. confer with some real authority in your field and get valuable advice how to be more efficient and successful.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Don't hesitate any longer. Get out and attend to civic or other work with the public that will be very helpful in the future. You'll be among progressive individuals for fun, and getting those ideas worked out nicely.

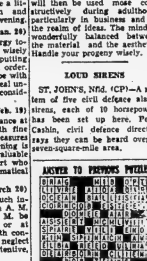
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Get away from dull routine and meet interesting and progressive people. Learn how to advance more rapidly. P. M. confer with executives and work out better plans for the future.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You can improve relationships with others as well as do all necessary paper work efficiently until 5 p.m. Then tonight, endeavor to go out socially with those whose background is different from yours. Be loyal. Have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Ideal day to talk out informally future plans with partner and come to a true meeting of minds. This can be in civic affairs, also. P. M. strange a like tle gathering of the clan and have a charming, happy evening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You are so full of energy today that you should wisely spend daylight hours putting surroundings in beautiful order. P. M. make it a point to be with loved one and come to a real understanding. Be kind and considerate.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Early get your appearance at its best. Then off with five friends to sports or pleasures you most enjoy. The evening is then best spent getting valuable advice from some expert who comprehends your problems affairs.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You can garner as much information as you need in A. M. Inquire, investigate. P. M. be sure to go out socially or at places of amusement with congenial comrades. Don't neglect loved one — be most attentive, loving.

If your child is born today — The delightful child born today will be a veritable question box, always desire to learn about many things is very great here. All this accumulated knowledge will then be used most constructively during adulthood, particularly in business and in the realm of ideas. The mind is wonderfully balanced between the material and the aesthetic. Handle your progeny wisely.

LOUD SIRENS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A system of five civil defence alarm sirens, each of 10 horsepower, has been set up here. Peter Cashin, civil defence director, says they can be heard over a seven-square-mile area.

Melrose

MELROSE — The teachers of Tyendinaga School Area met with their trustees and their wives at the home of Mrs. Jack McLean on the evening of March 14th. Also in attendance were the husbands, or wives, of trustees.

Entertainment took the form of progressive euchre and monopoly.

Refreshments and a social time concluded an enjoyable evening.

The Melrose W.I. held a meeting in the township hall on Friday evening at which Mr. and Mrs. Mac Wallbridge of Prince Edward showed their colored slides of the Rose Bowl parade, and scenery en route. Not a large crowd was present for this interesting program.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Milligan were recent guests at the home of Mrs. F. Dorsiter, Shannonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborne were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wallbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren called on the latter's father, Mr. A. R. Lamb, at Trenton Memorial Hospital, on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Leaflar spent the Sunday afternoon with the parents of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur English.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hall and family, of Tweed, were guests on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. MacFarlane.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Kenneth McMechan, and other relatives, in the loss by death recently of her cousin, whose funeral she attended in Picton on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Harry Lasler, lately a patient in Belleville hospital, was able to return home on Saturday of this week.

A meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Boys' Band, in support thereof, was held in the township hall on Monday evening. The election of officers was carried and delegates were appointed to the Brighton meeting on April 2nd; plans were also made for the ladies' pay banquet to be held in the near future.

Stirling

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Holt and Mr. and Mrs. A. Greenley, have returned home from a holiday in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Fraser recently entertained the members of their family, which included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chapman of Belgrave, Sask.

Mr. Robert Hatton spent a day last week in London Ont.

Mr. John Craighead and a friend spent the week-end at the Agricultural College, Guelph.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bush and Miss Adeline Bush spent Saturday with Mrs. Lee Asselstine.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Avery, Couch and family. Their grandson, Lawrence Couch, enjoyed a delightful birthday party that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stacey and Jeffery, Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Vernal Stacey.

Mrs. Ernest Carr was hostess for River Valley Women's Missionary Society. The president, Mrs. Lorne Mann, was in charge. Mrs. Alex Bush conducted the program and presented a chapter on the Indian nation.

Stirling L.O.L. held a successful public euchre in the lodge hall on Thursday evening. A good time was enjoyed. Mrs. Chris Bateman showed slides of her flower gardens, Stirling centennial and other points of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irish spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Don Irish, Oak Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bateman spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Mrs. Percy Lamb attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Delbert Reddick at Trenton on Monday.

WIN ADOPTION

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Combs Thursday won adoption of their brilliant four-year-old foster child Alice Marie. The court stipulated that the Combses must shield the child from further publicity until she is 21. The Combses, foster parents of the child since she was 10 months old, had at one time been blocked in their efforts to adopt her because welfare officials considered the girl too bright for them.

Wooler

WOOLER — Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gooding returned home on Friday after spending the winter at Flagler Beach in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Leighton and Mr. David McColl of Toronto spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McColl.

Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald and son of Malvern, were Sunday tea hour guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dorland.

The sympathy of this community is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Mary Adams, of whose sudden death occurred on Sunday morning.

Until Wednesday there had been some slight hope that exploratory steps might be taken to bring the Commonwealth and the opposed camps.

But Commonwealth liberals and Negro leaders had urged that the government deal with Albert Luthuli, former Zulu chief who now heads the African National Congress. The Liberals considered that Luthuli's views were moderate and that some path out of the increasingly tense racial situation could be explored with him.

LUTHULI SUBVERSIVE

But government leaders rejected coldly. They termed Luthuli subversive and accused him of seeking to set up a non-white government in South Africa.

Luthuli was among those arrested Wednesday in a series of pre-dawn raids which brought the seizure of more than 200 Negroes, white liberals, Indians and persons of mixed blood, called coloreds.

Luthuli said he had been slapped by a prison official only Friday afternoon.

The arrests were made under the Public Safety Act that provides for raids without warrants and for holding persons for 90 days.

Among those who escaped arrest in the sweeping raids was Jack Patou, the only Laborite known white author, national president of the Liberal party and perhaps the most widely acclaimed friend of the Negroes of South Africa.

Patou, 57, said not being arrested left him feeling "slightly disreputable."

"All my friends have been arrested and I'm not," he said.

Of the recent swirl of events in South Africa, Patou said:

"To abrogate the pass laws and then to do this just doesn't make sense. It isn't necessary. It is the reasoning behind it. . . The kind

Government of South Africa Decides to Cut Itself off From Contact With Negroes

By LYNN HEINZERLING

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The government of South Africa has taken a fateful step.

It has maintained its policy of strict racial segregation and white supremacy it has declared a state of emergency, has called the African defence force for mobilization and made widespread arrests.

It thus has decided to ignore all offers or demands for contacts between the government and leaders of organized native Africans. It literally has cut itself off completely from more than 2,000,000 urban Negroes.

Until Wednesday there had been some slight hope that exploratory steps might be taken to bring the Commonwealth and the opposed camps.

But Commonwealth liberals and Negro leaders had urged that the government deal with Albert Luthuli, former Zulu chief who now heads the African National Congress. The Liberals considered that Luthuli's views were moderate and that some path out of the increasingly tense racial situation could be explored with him.

The Wellington ladies presented a very fine display of sewing and them while at the sewing meetings. They also sang a song to the tune of "We've Been Working on the Railroad". The words were also composed by the ladies:

"We've been working on our sewing,
Working on our sewing,
Working on our sewing,
To make our aprons cheap".

Arthur Murray Dancing Lessons Come Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Murray Inc., which sells dancing lessons came under federal charges of trickery and deception Wednesday.

The Federal Trade Commission accused the firm and its heads, Arthur and Kathryn Murray, of promoting phoney contests through radio, television and newspaper advertisements.

These contests, the FTC said, appeal to "the innocent, unwary and unsuspecting."

Virtually anyone can win the contests, the FTC said, and collect as prizes purported gift certificates for a number of dancing lessons.

The agency charged that free lessons sometimes are given only if additional lessons are purchased, and in many cases the winners' "free lessons" are similarly attached.

Murray headquarters are in New York. The firm has about 430 dance studios around the world. A headquarters statement said:

"Individual employees of its licensed studios have been engaged in isolated practices not approved by our organization, but when reported these unauthorized practices have been corrected."

Four Companies Given Right To Sell Gas To U.S.

Capped Wells Will Be Put in Production

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government unlocked Canada's huge natural gas reserve Friday night.

After getting the new National Energy Board's assurances that Canadian consumers will be protected first on gas prices and supply, the government upheld the board's recommendations of export licences for four major companies.

The United States over the next 20 to 25 years will receive a staggering quantity of gas—6,320 billion cubic feet of it, or roughly enough to keep a city the size of Toronto for the next 150 years. This represents a major breakthrough for the Canadian oil and gas industry.

MANY WELLS CAPPED

Dozens of companies have tied up some $200,000,000 in gas wells which for several years have stood capped and idle, waiting for a bigger market than Canada alone can provide. There are such wells in Alberta and Ontario. Now, some of them probably will be put into production.

More important from the industry's viewpoint is the fresh incentive export opportunity gives — an incentive that has been lacking since many of Canada's petroleum markets were lost to low-priced foreign crude oil from Venezuela and the Middle East.

John Proctor, general manager of the Canadian Petroleum Association, predicted that the export decision will mean an outlay of $1,800,000,000 for gas and oil development in Canada over the next 10 years.

THESE WERE APPROVED

These are the gas exports to be licensed:

1. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited will tap its existing cross-Canada line near Winnipeg and build a 31-mile pipeline to deliver at Emerson, Man., on the U.S. border, some 204,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily for a total of 1,410 billion cubic feet over 20 years.

In addition, the Canadian company won authority to use its gas surplus, after meeting Canadian and U.S. domestic requirements, for a periodic export of up to 204,000,000 cubic feet daily at Niagara Falls, Ont. But the 20-year licence period sought by Trans-Canada for this leg of the operation was cut to Dec. 31, 1965.

2. Biggest project, costing $353,539,000, will see Alberta and Southern Gas Company Limited —a subsidiary of the American Pan Pacific Gas and Electricity — collect 450,750,000 cubic feet daily for shipment through a 1,400-mile line to the San Francisco area. Its 25-year total export would be 4,826 billion cubic feet.

3. Westcoast Transmission Company Limited, now exporting Peace River block gas to the U.S. Pacific Northwest, won authority as part of the same Alberta and Southern pipeline complex for additional shipments of 150,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily through Kingsgate, B.C. Limit on its 20-year licence is 1,095 billion cubic feet.

4. Canadian-Montana Pipeline Company, subsidiary of the Montana Power Company, will be given a licence to get from Alberta and Southern and ship it to the parent company at Great Falls in the extent of 36,000,000 cubic feet daily for a total of 273.7 billion cubic feet over 25 years.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Snow mixed with some freezing rain and sleet is forecast to spread over the upper lakes today while partly cloudy to cloudy skies will be general over the south with a few showers likely over southwestern Ontario later today. Sunday will be partly cloudy over the lower lakes, with a cooler air again covering southwestern Ontario, while some light snow will persist through the north.

the energy board's recommendation—was the application of Niagara Gas Transmission Company, a subsidiary of Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto, to export to northern New York state 13.5 billion cubic feet of gas over 20 years.

The board said Niagara's prices were to be low. It also took the view that Niagara, getting its gas from Trans-Canada, might start its operations without any added supplies and leave Canada with whatever gas was left over. It would have to keep up a gas flow whatever the later circumstances.

Announcement of the government's decision was made in the Commons by Trade Minister Churchill—about 15 minutes after the last of Canada's stock markets had closed for the weekend.

Reaction was almost entirely favorable.

George McIlraith (L—Ottawa West) said the decision will go down in the history books. He said that the interests of the potential Canadian consumers have been fully protected and safeguarded. . . . Only time and experience will prove the wisdom of this decision."

LIFT FOR ECONOMY

C. H. Dalton, managing director of the Canadian Gas Association, said the exports will bolster the Canadian economy more than any other single factor in the last 10 years.

Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta said he was "delighted" with the announcement. All of the export gas will come from Alberta.

The only one of the four companies ready to export gas this year is Trans-Canada. The other three licensees are still needed approval from either Washington or Alberta, or in some instances both.

James W. Kerr, president of Trans-Canada, said the company's 1960 program will cost nearly $40,000,000 and employ more than 2,000 people.

Within the next few days the company would be placing firm orders for $10,000,000 worth of pipe, valves, compressors and associated equipment.

NEW COMPRESSORS

Eight new compressor stations will be constructed between now and Oct. 31, Six of these—using 30,000 horsepower units—compressors for the first time in a Canadian pipe line — will be erected in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The engine - driven compressor station will be built at Ramore, Ont., near Timmins, and another near Kenora by the Northern Ontario Pipe Line Crown Corporation, a subsidiary of Trans-Canada.

The energy board noted that the approval of export licences would mean a capital investment of $1,000,000,000 in Canada's gas transmission facilities alone.

Mr. K. Runs Gastronomic Gauntlet Of Rich French Foods, Heady Wines

PARIS (AP) — For 10 days and nights Nikita Khrushchev has run a gastronomic gauntlet of rich French foods and heady wines.

He looks fine.

Unquestionably, this is a testament to both his hosts' cookery and his own liver.

The Soviet premier has consented certain side trips and minor visits — but not once has he ducked an official meal.

Early in his visit, however, he sent an emergency order to Moscow for a large shipment of narzan, the famed mineral water of the Caucasus.

Well stocked with this, Khrushchev has eaten his way through some memorable menus.

Before coming to France March 23 he politely suggested to his hosts that the lunches and dinners be held to two meal courses and two wines.

Beforehand, the French agreed to hold the two courses, but they wouldn't yield on wine.

They have consistently put on a show before Khrushchev, explaining with French logic that, as wine was a dessert wine, it didn't count.

The score card shows that the Russian has eaten:

Chicken — four times; steak — twice; lamb — twice; three times; fresh fish — six times; salmon, smoked and grilled — twice; lobster — three times; veal — once; spiced pork — once; duck — once; duck confit — once; roast beef — once; mixed spice sausage — once.

The warmups he has been served pate and caviar and delicacies guided by various regions he has visited.

Twenty-eight of France's choicest wines have been put before him and 19 of her most splendid champagnes.

His hosts have also poured him some of the finest and oldest cognacs in the nation's cellars.

If he has put on any weight, he's keeping it secret.

HOUSE DEBATE SOUNDS LIKE ELECTION DRIVE

University Grants Topic of Discussion

OTTAWA (CP)—After a debate that at times sounded like a Quebec provincial election campaign, the Commons took the first step Friday to give that province an alternative method of getting the federal grants - to - universities program.

There were some hectic moments as opposition and government MPs from Quebec hashed over the reasons for that province's refusal of the federal grants under the late Premier Maurice Duplessis.

The government members' side of the argument would have been possible without the Progressive Conservative ace of bettle-throwing provincial relations, Mr. Duplessis had help out against the centralizing tendencies of the former liberal government.

The other side of the fence: Mr. Duplessis made political capital of his attack on Ottawa but the Quebec government attitude changed after his death the new provincial was still based on the Liberal government's decision to give money to universities.

TWO SECTIONS PROVIDED

The resolution would change present legislation to set out two methods of providing grants:

1. Conditional acceptance of federal grants paid through the Canadian Universities Foundation at $1.50 annually for each resident of the province.

2. Acceptance of the grants, financing them with a corresponding reduction in personal corporation income tax. The federal government would allow a deduction of federal tax to cover the increase in provincial tax.

The resolution was approved and a bill to put it into effect given first reading. Further debate was adjourned until after the Easter recess. The Commons Monday starts the eight-day debate on Finance Minister Fleming's budget.

SUPERIORITY COMPLEX?

Douglas Fisher, CCF — Port Arthur, one of the few non-Quebec members to join in the debate, said: "I am proud to be speaking Canadians have a superiority complex of Canadian dimension."

Many Quebecers seemed to believe in a separatism with Quebec always having the right to withdraw from other provinces."

This was a "type of federalism that most of us in the rest of the country do not appreciate."

Mr. Fisher said Switzerland is seemed obvious Mr. Duplessis could have reached agreement on the federal government on university grants easily, if he had wanted to.

"It would have been as easy as falling off a log for the government as it is today with the Conservatives," he said.

Work Boycott Though Uneasy Peace Reigns

— CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Several thousand Africans from Nyanga Township today started marching to Capetown from a point about 15 miles outside the city but were halted and ordered back to the township.

South Africa—meanwhile mobilized its army reinforcements and air force squadrons of the citizen reserves to maintain order.

The uneasy peace reigned today after days of rioting and tension between South Africa's 2,000,000 whites and nearly 10,000,000 negroes.

Governor - General Charles Swart Friday night signed two proclamations giving the government even greater power under the state of emergency to deal with race troubles.

The proclamation, published today in the government gazette, provide for mobilization of all reserve police and armed forces until 6 o'clock Monday.

Bands of masked Negroes roamed through African locations meets near Port Elizabeth on the turtle-torn Indian Peninsula during the night calling on residents to destroy their pass books.

It was the custom of masked men worn by militant Negro agitators. While police have been trying to round up the ringleaders of the campaign to keep African masses away from work, especially in Cape Peninsula where commerce and industry remain crippled after two weeks of strife.

Demands of Negro leaders for abolition of the hated system of identification pass books was the spark that set off the explosion of violence and work boycott that have been wracking the country.

The Johannesburg Star estimated the work boycott already has cost South Africa's industry and construction projects $84,000,000.

Col. J.J Kruger, deputy police commissioner in the Port Elizabeth area said police held firm control after arresting dozens of Negro agitators, but he added that the explosive situation "could only a spark to set it off."

At South Africa's big industrial city of Durban, where police fired Friday on Negro crowds throwing stones, the centre of a police order said, "force must be used to disperse crowds." Newspapers in Johannesburg and the city of Rand said casualties in the Durban incident now stood at: at least four Africans killed and 18 wounded.

Excellent Pictures Sent Back By Weather-Eye Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first weather-eye satellite raced on to-ward its goal today as the nation's global orbits were achieved, ready to feed back more pictures of how clouds cover the earth.

The first cloud pictures radioed Friday by the new United States satellite brought an expression of "marvelous" from President Dwight Eisenhower. Needless to say they delighted scientists who had fired Tiros I into its round-the-world orbit.

Taken 450 miles up, the first photographs were remarkably clear for a first experimental weatherwatcher of what may be a network of satellites which one day could forecast big storms all over the world.

They took in an enormous quadrant of the earth, centred on the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Fleecy clouds spread over much of the U.S-Canadian area.

Everything about the Thor-Able launching rocket and the 270-pound satellite worked to fine perfection. There was a thunderous tail-of orange flame from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Tiros was supposed to go into its orbit about 400 miles up. When the checking was finished, scientists found it varied from this ideal by less than 20 miles at its high and low point.

The cone was ejected from the equator, which determines what part of the earth the photographs will cover, on a cut off less than three one-thousandths of a degree.

"I think it's a marvelous development," said Pr ex-ent Eisenhower when the first pictures were shown to him at the White House.

Tiros sounds like something out of science mythology, but it isn't. The name stands for television and infra red observation satellite.

Pearson Bitterly Attacks Federal Defence Policy

TORONTO (CP) First the Arrow . . . now the Bomarc.

In the future the Honest John.

This was how Opposition Leader Pearson characterized the government's defence policy Friday night. He reiterated his demands for "a complete - and searching parliamentary examination" into the federal defence setup.

"Remember, how a year ago we were told that the Arrow was tested and triumphant Canadian-made Avro aircraft that could take off like a rocket," he said, before a subdued audience attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Liberal Association.

"For what? For a Bomarc missile that fails in a record of seven trials and seven failures. And they scrapped the Arrow for a CF-105 which the minister of defence (George Pearkes) said two years ago was obsolete."

The United States has cut down on its Bomarc program but "we have to go on with ours or risk losing else."

He said the government now is interested in another missile. "By some strange coincidence it's like the Honest John."

Mr. Pearson told cheering delegates he had very quick and easy answer" to Canada's defence problems, but said the government should undertake a full parliamentary examination of its policies.

Addressing the largest crowd of the OLA annual meeting, Mr. Pearson lashed out at unemployment which he said the government failed to mention in its Thursday night budget statement.

"We're not going to rejoice over a balanced budget when we have 800,000 unemployed," he said.

The delegates shelved a resolution on liquor until the next annual meeting because members said the Liberal party does not yet confidence a definite liquor policy of its own.

ONT.-MICHIGAN BRIDGE DETAILS WILL BE AIRED

Soo Residents Do Not Like Location

TORONTO (CP)—Members of the legislature Monday will investigate Ontario-Michigan negotiations on the setting up of plans for an $18,500,000 bridge at Sault Ste. Marie.

Premier Frost said Friday that the committee on legal bills will hold a hearing Monday morning and that he had invited representatives of the Soo to be present.

Mayor James McIntyre said at Sault Ste. Marie that he and representatives of the Soo chamber of commerce and the city's planning board will attend.

The committee was called after CCF Leader MacDonald and Liberal Leader Winterworth asked in the House Thursday for details of negotiations with the United States.

The deal would be explained to the committee in the committee, said Mr. Frost.

"I want everything on the table here up," he said.

The international toll bridge, to cross St. Mary's River, will link Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The premier, who has long supported the bridge, told the House Thursday that he was prepared to revise my opinion if it's a matter of high unemployment.

"If the city opposes the location of the bridge the deal is off," he said. Both opposition leaders claimed there was some criticism of the bridge in various quarters of the Soo.

Meanwhile, Premier Frost and Premier Manning of Alberta at the current session may go past Easter, the government leader hinted in admitting will end April 7.

The session, he said, may end April 14, the day before Good Friday, and it may go even longer.

Asked if the sitting may be resumed after Easter, he said:

"It's a remote possibility. I never know what is going to happen."

Britain, France Abstain as UN Votes Censure

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The United States and Russia more administered a verbal hammering to the racial situation in South Africa Friday whether it will be effective remains to be seen.

With Britain and France abstaining, the 11-member council voted 8-to-0 late Friday to deplore the police killing of Negroes in South Africa and urged the union government to abandon the system of apartheid (racial separation).

The United States and the Soviet Union were among countries that changed their weight behind the resolution, overriding South Africa's contention that the views of Fourie's warning that his country may view the action if the vote was taken—as expected in some quarters, and emerged smiling after the special session ended.

Glass Coach Used for Wedding In Royal Stables for 50 Years

LONDON (CP)—The coach in which Princess Margaret will ride on her wedding day — the Glass Irish State Coach—is finely made of glass.

It just has big windows.

At Buckingham Palace spokesman said that in coaching circles it is considered to be a coach with bodies glass coaches. They give a double a good view of the ceremonials.

The Glass Coach Margaret and her bridegroom will occupy May 6 originally was built as the town coach of the sheriff of London.

It was purchased by the royal stables 50 years ago and was used to carry King George V to his Coronation the following year when the Duke of York, later King George VI, used it at his first wedding. It was rolled out again for the weddings of the Duke of Kent and the Duke of Gloucester, when Princess Elizabeth, now the Queen, married Prince Philip.

The maroon coach, drawn by two horses, carried the present Queen Mother to Hofdi Reception to Westminster Abbey. It carried the royal newlyweds to Clarence House after.

It last ventured out of the palace grounds in 1953 for the Coronation procession of the present queen.

The coach is kept in tip-top condition by employees in the royal stables. It is finished inside with rich royal blue silk. Two footmen normally stand on the rear step during its outings. One or two drivers can sit on the high box in front.

Snow, Freezing Rain Rage Across Heart of States

Swollen Rivers Spill Over Banks Disrupting Traffic

CHICAGO (AP)—A mammoth spring storm raged across the heart of the United States today hurling snow and freezing rain on portions of the Deep South and Midwest and torrential rains as far south as western Florida.

The new onslaught of precipitation augured more misery for flood weary areas. Already 15,000 persons were homeless from the sudden spring thaw topped by fresh rains. At least 10 persons died in floods.

The storm dropped snows up to a foot deep in areas of South Dakota and Minnesota by Thursday night and pushed into the Midwest today. Snow was whipped by winds up to 50 miles an hour fell in eastern Nebraska the D a st of and Minnesota, snapping power lines and disrupting traffic.

At the same time swollen rivers spilled over the banks, breaking levees, flooded farmlands and ate away at major highways and railroad tracks.

EIGHT STATES AFFECTED.

The number of homeless documented in the 1,000 mile crisis estimated that 14,000 were homeless in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. At least 1,000 more had taken refuge in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York.

Thunderstorms and heavy rains struck the gulf states. In a six hour period, Pensacola, Fla., reported 3½ inches of rain, Mobile, Ala., 1½ inches and Dothan, Ala., 1.45 inches.

Rain also hampered the eastern Ohio Valley and Tennessee as well as portions of New England where the Merrimack Hall fell in Illinois and New Orleans.

Iowa was besieged by floods from all sides.

About 1,500 persons fled their homes in the Des Moines area when the Des Moines River, fed by a tributary, the Raccoon, surged into the low areas surrounding the state capital and then receded the debris-filled flood waters from reaching the business town.

OVER FLOOD STAGE

In Michigan, rising waters menaced the city of Saginaw. Comstock Park areas around Grand Rapids as the Grand River topped the 100 year flood stage level at Grand Rapids and continued to rise. Some 200 persons already have been evacuated.

An estimated 2,000 residents in the Peoria area in Illinois where the situation was not considered critical. A total of 10 deaths have been blamed on storm conditions.

The storm system created and began to recede in western Pennsylvania today.

But in another bureau reported the storm began to break up over the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley but not before dumping up to five inches of snow on north central Kansas.

Boards Must Spread Grants Says Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Education boards will have to spread their grants rather than pay them out in increased teachers' salaries, Education Minister Roberts told a Port Arthur delegation Friday.

"He told us we were going to have to pull in our belts," Scarborough MacGray, chairman of the Port Arthur board of education said Mr. Roberts told us that there was no more money for education.

The delegation visited the minister to protest a reduction in school grants this year. They also protested grants cuts on behalf of the Lakehead Separate School Trustees and Ratepayers Association.

Mr. Roberts said the Port Arthur board will not receive less than last year.

Pick Temianka Symphony to Feature Season

The Temianka Little Symphony will be one of the highlights for Community Concert members for next season. It is a combination of distinguished artists in a light original program. The ensemble consists of virtuosos, including many outstanding young soloists from all over the United States, in a program which spans the musical literature of three centuries.

HENRY TEMIANKA

The two superb Baldwin concert grands which travel with the Symphony wherever it goes are played by the duo-piano team of William Corbett and Sylvia Jenkins. The ensemble also includes a wide range of percussion instruments from kettle drums to celesta, xylophone, tambourine and triangle, as well as a top-notch clarinetist, flautist (doubling on a piccolo) and a group of strings.

Henri Temianka is one of the most eloquent men on the American concert stage today, both musically and verbally. In addition to his capacities as conductor and violin soloist with his ensemble he also acts as an informal "master of ceremonies" combining inimitable charm and vast knowledge in a running commentary which highlights the musical program.

The program consists of such favorites as Saint-Saens' Carnival of the animals, Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 5, works by Mozart and Weber and many of the most popular encore numbers including a Strauss Waltz.

New members for the 1960-61 season will also have the opportunity of attending the last concert of this season which is the Rudie Sinfonietta. This group consists of eleven artists including this lovely soprano soloist Phyllis Williams and baritone Robert Kirkham. This concert will be held at the Collegiate Auditorium on April 8.

Community concert membership may be obtained by contacting any of the executive or the campaign headquarters at the YMCA during the coming week.

At an exhibition shoot in the Armouries last night the Quinte Marksmen "A" team edged the Northern Electric Handgun Clubs "A" team by a score of 779 to 752. The teams were very evenly matched, the final outcome of the competition was unknown until the last target was counted.

The teams were — Quinte Marksmen, captain, Tony Cavers, Mac Symons 152, 70, Steve Morphy 145, Al Day 162, Frank Affle 150, Cliff Smith 149, David Carlson 157.

Northern Electric Handgun Club, captain, Gerry Bradford 149, Reg. Sprackett 143, Bert Smith 166, A. Hutchison 164, B. Carr 132, D. Drboer 113, J. Brasford 150.

A "B" class shoot will be held Wednesday night next in the Armouries.

Bruins Edge Macs to Win Peewee Title

The Bruins scored a 1-0 first-game victory over the Macs and battled to a 2-2 tie in overtime in the second to capture the BMHA's peewee championship at Memorial Arena this morning.

Ross McDougall scored the lone goal in the 1-0 fixture with assists going to McTaggart and Brignall. Both goalies, Coughlin of the Bruins and Bosley of the Macs, played outstanding hockey in both ends of the twin bill.

In the second fixture David Emerson of the Macs scored the only goal in regulation time to tie the game at 1-1.

A ten minute overtime period was played and the Macs took the lead. Emerson was feeding the marksman, after 40 seconds of play. The Bruins battled however to knot the series on Brignall's marker at 1.55 Monday Dougall the biggest assist on the goal.

Bob Blakely was the final Bruin hero when he potted the game's last goal, the one that gave his club the series three goals to two at 5.50 of the overtime. Hannah Brignall assisted on the marker and it came with a Mac player in the penalty box.

The bantam finals between the Rangers and Macs next week. Also played this morning. Results will appear in Monday's paper.

Turnout Better At Market Here; Potatoes Higher

The turnout of farmers at market was a little better again. "Spring has sprung" in some rural areas but the activity reported snow is still deep in their fields.

Prices, except for potatoes, were unchanged over the past few weeks. Potato prices climbed to $4 a 75-pound bag. One farmer said wholesalers were also selling them at $4.

Egg prices were the same as last week, with extra large selling at 35 cents a dozen, large 30 and mediums 47.

Maple syrup was more plentiful and sold for $5-$5.35 a gallon. No maple sugar was available.

Former Foreman Gives Reasons For Dismissal

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Boyd, a former foreman on the waterfront terminal project in which the immigrant workmen died after fire broke out March 12, told a coroner's jury Friday that he was fired because he asked for safety measures.

Mr. Boyd said he was dismissed by letter and not given official confirmation of his own explanation for the dismissal.

Mr. Boyd said he complained about working conditions several times. One complaint to the department of labor brought a representative who threatened to shut the job down if supporting timbers were not fixed properly.

He testified the men had to leave the tunnel "innumerable times" after pressure ran out.

Cancer Society Here Will Open Drive for Funds

The Belleville Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society will open its campaign on Monday, April 4th, to raise funds for the organization. The national objective is $2,987,500.

Mr. Clarence Fuzzen, local campaign chairman, explained that this is the largest objective ever set by the society since it began having national campaigns in 1945.

"The money is needed," he said, "to support not only local and provincial education and welfare projects but to provide funds for a greatly expanding national cancer research program."

He pointed out that since 1947 when the National Cancer Institute of Canada was organized and became affiliated with the Canadian Cancer Society, tremendous progress has been made in cancer research in Canada.

Today more than a million dollars is spent each year by the institute for this purpose. More than 80 separate research projects are being carried on in universities and hospitals across Canada.

The Canadian Cancer Society also works on the responsibility of providing funds for this program so that there would be one dollar for every dollar spent by the institute. At first its share of the cost was comparatively light, but over the years it has increased until today the society provides more than 40 per cent of the cost of cancer research.

"The fact," Mr. Fuzzen said, "the whole research program depends upon our continued support. The research depends upon the public to provide the funds. Therefore everyone of us has a tremendous stake in finding faster cures and a means of preventing this dread disease. I know we can depend upon the people of this area to help."

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has issued a special call to assist this worthy campaign.

His letter is as follows:

"I commend the Canadian Cancer Society for the fight it is putting up against cancer.

"In support of its efforts it has organized societies in many communities, and reserves the moral and financial help of all of us in the campaign for assistance.

"I urge everyone to play part in its great crusade."

Others urging wholehearted national support in the 1960 campaign include: His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh, His Excellency, Major-general George P. Vanier, Governor General of Canada, and Hon. Leslie M. Frost, Premier of Ontario as well as several cabinet ministers, and the heads of various national organizations.

IN MEMORIAM

BROOKES. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Lillian Edna Brookes, passed away one year ago on April 2nd, 1959.

No one has ever needed a friend as much as I do. Nor ever always needed her more.

Her memory is dear, her heart has not soothed our pain,

God grant some day we'll meet again.

Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Farrell and family and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brooks and family.

BENNETT. — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Clare Bennett, who passed away April 2nd, 1955.

The face I loved is now laid low,
Her voice is stilled forever,
The hand so often clasped in mine,
Lies now in clay to sever.
I often sit and think of her,
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only friend,
That grief can call its own.

Ever remembered by husband Raymond and children Tommy, Paul, Joan and Marjorie.

GOYER. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Daniel, and our grandfather, Frank Goyer, who passed away April 3rd, 1955.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we used to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
Too far for loved ones to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And when though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his wife and family.

BIRTHS

BURLEY. — Thelma and Doug Burley, (nee O'Brien), are happy to announce the arrival of a daughter, born Friday, April 1st, 1960 at the Belleville General Hospital.

ELLIS. — Jean and Jack Ellis are happy to announce the arrival of a son, born April 1st, 1960, at the Belleville General Hospital, a brother for Faye and Connie.

ROWE. — Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rowe are happy to announce the birth of their daughter, Peggy Susan, on Tuesday, March 29th, 1960, at the Belleville General Hospital.

MEAGHER. — At the Belleville General Hospital, on Friday, April 1, 1960, to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Meagher, 12 Craig Street, a daughter, Anna Marie, sister for Anna Marie and Douglas.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to friends, neighbors and relatives for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy shown during our recent bereavement. Special thanks to Rev. L. Hale and Rev. W. Wrightson, the beautiful floral tributes, the staff of the Belleville General Hospital and to Mr. Jack Bush and staff.
—Don Marsole and family.

Trenton in 1830-34

In this sketch we have a picture of Mrs. Bleecker's hotel and ferry with its wharf, the horse ferry with its railing on either side and a flat-bottomed rowboat with oars along side. On the wharf standing along side of the two casks of merchandise, one larger than the other, stands a traveller in his frock coat and large brimmed hat peculiar to the early days of the 1830's, gazing on the far shore. On the east side we see several cribs of white squared pine timber on which some men seem to be busy working. Nearby on the shore are the Hawley saw mills. Three years later after this scene was painted, the Hastings Times of Belleville had an advertisement for tenders by the Commissioners and C. C. Wilkins, Reuben White, and James G. Bethune dated River Trent, 9th March, 1833, for the construction of a bridge across the Trent, to be 750 feet long and 32 feet broad. It was built the following year and was for many years the best bridge in Upper Canada and undoubtedly helped to bring about the decline of the Carrying Place. Before the present No. 2 Highway bridge was built in 1916 there used to be a covered bridge crossing the river.

The Abbe Galinee seems to have been the first to map the Trent River, forming the southern part of an ancient Indian canoe route between the Bay of Quinte and Georgian Bay, and gave it the name of Tanaste. Down this river in early September of 1615, with his Huron allies, came Champlain to the Bay of Quinte. Somewhere around 1790 it was renamed the Trent after a river in England, and until 1812 the settlement at its mouth was generally known as Trent Port.

Squire John R. Bleecker, at the age of 18 was employed by the government to assist in laying out the township of the Bay of Quinte district. It was during this time that he became acquainted with Capt. John Walden Meyers, who was then living in Montreal, and a friend of the Hon. John Collins, Deputy Surveyor-General. Bleecker located his own land on both sides of the Trent, recognizing the importance of the situation as an Indian trading post. In 1798 he erected a log house at "Bleecker's Grove," and a log mill and a smith shop. The first settler in Sidney township, now Sidney County, New York State, built one on the bank of "Stone Hill," on the west bank of the Trent. The same year Samuel Sherwood cut masts three miles east of the river and rafted them down to Quebec for the British Navy.

In 1794 James Smith sold his property to Henry Ripson, who built the first grist mill. In 1803 John Sheehan, who at this time was teaching a private school in Kingston, bought the broken front of the gore of Sidney township; he afterwards became the first Bishop of Toronto and the founder of King's and Trinity College. In 1806, Henry Adam Meyers removed from Meyers' Creek and erected a mill about a mile from the mouth of the river, first a saw mill, afterward a flouring mill. Up to this time the site of the future village was a dense cedar swamp and except for the mills and a very narrow road, the place was a perfect wilderness. In 1808, Henry Meyers built the Ripson mill and established a general store.

John R. Bleecker was commissioned a justice of the Peace, and in the early days Squire Bleecker of Trent Port along with his father-in-law, Capt. John W. Meyers of Meyers' Creek, were about the only ones locally empowered to perform marriages. It is said Bleecker married first Catherine Meyers and after her death, her younger sister Mary. In 1807, the Squire died, a comparatively young man. His eldest son John R. acquired all the property and his widow Mary returned to the mouth of the Trent where she opened a hotel and established a ferry to support her large family.

Thirty Calls Answered by Fire Department

TRENTON — Trenton's Fire Chief, Cecil Ellis, has issued his report for the month of March. This report will be read at council on Monday evening.

During the month, the fire department responded to 30 calls. The majority of these were of a minor nature, such as oil burner flooding, car fires, chimney fires and others.

On March 27th the Trenton fire department answered a call to Frankford under the Mutual Aid Association agreement. The fire chief and No. 1 pistoon went to the scene of the fire, the Dafoe Block in Frankford, equipped with the aerial pumper and a hose truck.

There were no major fires in Trenton during the month. The greatest loss was suffered by Mr. Arthur LeClair when his home at 18 Heber Street was partially destroyed by fire. Damages were estimated at $5,211.

There was one false alarm turned in. There were no cases of arson and no emergency calls. One volunteer fireman was slightly injured at a home fire. The stranded dog was rescued from an ice flow in the Trent River. A two-part lecture was held by 3rd Trenton West Cub Guides, consisting of fire prevention information, the use of fire extinguishers, what to do in case of fire, and instruction in first aid for burns and shock and artificial respiration.

Similar lectures were given to 12 employees of Central Bridge Company and to 25 employees of Trenton Memorial Hospital.

On March 2nd the monthly meeting of Ber Stallings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association was held in the Trenton fire hall. Sixty-seven firemen were present, 80 per cent. The firemen were welcomed by Mayor James MacDonald.

Four training sessions were held by the Cobourg firemen. One training session was held for the volunteer firemen.

Police, Firemen Squaring off For Charity

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Fire Department squared off tonight against members of the Trenton Police Department in what promises to be the hardest fought basketball game in all history.

The battle will take place in the Trenton Community Garden and the time is 8 p.m. sharp.

The RCAF band will be in attendance to play music in the background for the melee.

Both sides are determined of victory. Brooms have been sharpened, and it is rumored that a couple of the department accused a member of the other squad of playing with a loaded ball.

All proceeds will go to the Quinte area Girl Guides to help with the purchase price of their new camp-site.

WILL PRESENT CHARTER

Due to an unfortunate set of circumstances, the charter of the Trenton and District Association for Retarded Children, which was scheduled to be presented to the local group by William R. Kirk, regional director of the association at provincial level, last month, was not officially presented at arranged.

On Tuesday evening, April 5th, Mr. Kirk will return to Trenton and the presentation ceremony will take place in the College Street Public School basement auditorium. The meeting will commence at 7.30 p.m. All interested persons are urged to attend.

Launch Crusade at Bethel Church

TRENTON — Commencing Tuesday April 5th, Bethel Temple, Trenton's beautiful new Pentecostal church located at Herman and Heber Streets, will launch the largest crusade in the history of their local church.

Highlights of the Crusade will be the preaching and playing of the Reverend Abraham Kudra assisted by his wife, Reverend Kudra is one of numerous outstanding evangelists working with the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada from coast to coast. Reverend Kudra was born in British Columbia of parents who came direct from Punjab, India. His grandfather came from Arabia.

During the course of these evangelistic services Reverend Kudra will relate the story of his life—and conversion to Christian ity, that while attending University preparing for Mohammedan missionary work in India, he was introduced to the Christian faith by a former friend.

Prior to his conversion Reverend Kudra was leader of his own Dance Band. During the Crusade a sacred musical will be featured every night. This versatile musician will play the piano, triple neck electric steel guitar, Mandolin, Electric Spanish Guitar, Banjo, Electric Accordion-Trom bone with professional ease and skill. His instrumental stylings of simple and well known hymns are unique.

In the afternoon of next Tuesday at 1.30 p.m. Reverend Kudra with Bethel Temple's minister, Rev. Ronald Reid will be interviewed on the Almanac program over C.K.W.S.-TV Channel 11 from Kingston, in connection with the forthcoming campaign.

Services during the Crusade will commence every night promptly at 8 o'clock. There will be no services on Monday or Saturday. A special program will be arranged for the children on Sunday School which convenes at 10 o'clock every Sunday. It is hoped that many in the Quinte area will take advantage of this great Crusade for Christ.

BCI H-S To Discuss Scholarships

Belleville Collegiate is holding the Home and School meeting on Monday evening April 4, in the boys gymnasium. The meeting will take the form of a discussion on scholarships, bursaries and courses.

Mr. E. A. Orr, principal, and Mr. Mack Reid of the Guidance Department, will lead in the discussion. It would prove to be an interesting meeting of particular interest to Grade 8 parents whose children will be entering high school in the fall.

As extra feature of the program will be singing by Belleville's own Quintebelles.

School art will also be displayed.

Refreshments will be served.

This meeting is open to the public and everybody is welcome.

Charge Youth With Arson In $500 Fire

WELLINGTON (Special) — Tell-tale tracks in the snow led to a charge of arson being laid against a 20-year-old resident of this village yesterday.

Foster Bailey will face the charges in a Picton court next Wednesday before Magistrate T. Y. Wills of Belleville.

Bailey admitted to investigating police that he set fire to the cabin on the farm property of Clifford Channel on the western outskirts of the village.

The cabin was used as a headquarters for the Channel raspberry and tomato pickers. It was filled with furniture and other chattels. Loss was estimated at $500.

The building and its contents were completely demolished by the blaze which took place at 11 a.m.

Twin track-trails in the snow leading to and from the cabin led investigating Chief of Police Earl Marvin to the suspect. No efforts were made to cover the tracks.

Questioned by the police officer, Bailey is alleged to have admitted firing the building.

The loss was covered by insurance.

THE JETSTAR — The Canadian government is reported to be interested in Another American transport aircraft—An four-engine pure jet Lockheed JetStar—as a possible replacement for the RCAF's Expediters. The JetStar now is being produced in the U.S. as an executive-type transport for industry but could be modified for military use.

Jesse Baker, 72, Dies Suddenly At His Home

Jesse Baker, a life-long resident of Trenton died quietly in his sleep Friday evening. Mr. Baker, who was 72 years old, has been in failing health for a number of years.

For 18 years Mr. Baker was an engineer with the Trenton Fire Department. For a considerable length of time he was the only permanent member of the staff, living over the fire hall and being on duty 24 hours a day seven days a week. In 1945, Captain Gerald Lewis joined the permanent staff and he and Mr. Baker shared 12-hour shifts. Recently at a Firemen's Ladies Night dinner O. W. Larry, town clerk-treasurer referred to Mr. Baker as "one of Trenton's most esteemed citizens". And so he was regarded by his legion of friends.

Mr. Baker married the former Lena May Cox of Trenton and the couple have five children, Jesse Jr., of Trenton, James of Toronto, Jenny (Mrs. Gerald Long) of Glen Miller, Norman of Trenton and Corporal Charles Baker, with the Ordnance Corps of the Canadian Army stationed in Coburg.

Government Eyes Jet Star as New RCAF Transport

By DON HARVEY

The Canadian government is eyeing the 600 mile an hour turbojet Lockheed JetStar as a possible medium - range transport for the RCAF.

Defence Minister Pearkes said during the defence budget debate that the government was looking around for a medium-range transport but declined to give details. A number of twin-engine Canadair CL44 turboprop aircraft were ordered recently for early 1961 delivery to the RCAF, Montreal. They will likely replace the RCAF's ancient Dakotas.

A reliable source told us the four-engine JetStar, which is about the size of the nine-passenger Lockheed Lodestar of the 1940s, would probably succeed the RCAF's twin-engine Expediters. The JetStar is being built in the U.S. primarily for use in industry as an executive transport plane but it could easily be adapted to military use.

It can be equipped for all-weather service and has an optimum range of 1,800 miles with an all up weight of 16 tons. Its four turbojet engines are mounted in pairs on the fuselage behind the wings. Powered by Pratt and Whitney JT-12 engines, the commercial version of the 38-foot aircraft has a normal service ceiling of 46,000 feet.

A JetStar was at RCAF Station Trenton a few weeks ago and last Thursday a mobile cabin demonstrator visited Calgary.

Farmer Saves Nine of 20 Cattle From Blazing Barn

WELLINGTON (Special) — A young Consecon farmer dashed into a blazing barn on his father's property early yesterday and saved nine of the 20-head herd housed in the building.

Also gutted was the beside the eleven head of cattle were a brood sow and nine pigs. 300 bales of hay and a quantity of grain.

Another brood sow was saved by the action of Douglas Skinkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skinkle, first to arrive at the scene.

The Skinkle farm is located on the Picton-Trenton highway, one mile southeast of Consecon

A night-running transport driver was the first to note the blaze as he headed his vehicle and raced to the Skinkle home where the younger Skinkle was dressing preparatory to doing the morning chores. The clock read 4.55 a.m.

Flames were sweeping through the building when Skinkle arrived at the scene. He opened the doors of the cattle shed and managed to release 16 before he was driven out. Of nine of the cows reached safety.

He returned and managed get a brood sow out, but Mother and her pigs fell victim to the flames.

Neighbors, prevented by dense smoke from fighting barn fire, concentrated their efforts on saving another barn and the Skinkle home. This barn housed several tons of farm machinery.

The destroyed barn was fully covered by insurance.

Owner Skinkle said today he had no idea how fire started.

"The barn," he said, "was used close to the highway it is possible some transient fire.

He said his vehicle and the building when Skinkle arrived at the scene. He opened ficials."

He related his suit of faulty wiring.

Canada Put in False Light

It is difficult for a layman to assess the respective merits of the Russian and Western plans for a nuclear test ban and the importance of the differences between the two schemes. Off-hand, it would appear that the joint U.S. and British counter-proposal to the Russian suggestion is much more conciliatory than many may have expected when Vice-President Richard Nixon was invited to join President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan in drafting the West's reply. It seemed evident that Mr. Nixon was called into the huddle not as Vice-President but as Eisenhower's heir-apparent and the standard-bearer of the Republican Party in the forthcoming November presidential election. This gave rise to the fear that the decision reached at Camp David might be based as much on political expediency in the U.S. as upon the requirements of the international situation. The plain truth is that nobody is going to lose many U.S. votes by failing to agree with Russia—but the cost of saying "Yes" to a Russian proposal might be facing a tirade of abuse in which the candidate was invited to choose his label, with the only choice offered by his tormentors being those of Communist or traitor. That under circumstances like these, the western plan should have won the immediate approval of British newspapers is most encouraging.

There is, though, one feature of the agreement, or at least of the Canadian Press report from Gettysburg on it, which is going to cause many thinking Canadian. The main point of difference between Russia and the U.S. has, of course, been the problem of the small underground tests, which the U.S. says cannot be detected. The Russians had proposed a gentlemen's agreement not to conduct such tests, the U.S. and Britain now offer a short moratorium on such tests. One of the provisos in the British-U.S. plan that "arrangements must be made for peaceful-purposes detonations." The concluding sentence in The Canadian Press report reads: "Included in this would be the provision for setting off a nuclear blast in Alberta's Athabasca area to separate oil from the sands there." By what right do the U.S. and Britain make provision for an atomic explosion on Canadian soil one of the conditions for a test ban? Was Canada consulted about this? If so, why was the point not raised in Parliament? If not, has not Canada been placed in an unenviable and false light? How many Canadians would insist on experimenting with an atomic blast to release the oil in the tar sands, at the risk of blocking an international agreement to ban nuclear testing? What possible reason has Canada for such an oil? Is it not a fact that the great majority of Canadians, of all parties, would be willing to wait for years, until the world is a friendlier, safer place, before letting off an atomic blast in these oil sands, if there was even the slightest risk that such a blast would prove a stumbling block on the path to an international agreement on the cessation of tests of nuclear weapons, an agreement which many regard as an essential first step towards the eventual banning of the weapons themselves and an agreement on world disarmament.

Strange Fruit

Within the next few weeks the world may learn whether Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal will bear strange fruit—a tunnel under the English Channel. Such a proposal is not new but for two or three years it has been under scientific study, instead of remaining in the dream world.

Major partners in the group considering the proposed canal are the Suez Finance Company, an English firm, the Channel Tunnel Co. Ltd., and a French group which the French State railways have the major interest in the project. Each of these three groups holds a 30 per cent interest in the project, with the remaining five per cent interest being held by a U.S. firm, Technical Studies Inc.

The Suez Finance Company was formerly the Suez Canal Company. After Nasser seized the canal and changed its name the company's Suez Company had find something to do with its money—and this study of the Channel project is the result. So, if in the future trains and cars are crossing beneath the straits of Dover it will partly be due to an Egyptian dictator. Truy, it is a strange world.

Letter To the Editor

Hog Marketing Plan Comes Under Fire

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In writing this I know that you will say that, because I have been a shipper, I should never be heard from. Well for the benefit of those of the members on the Hog Board and others, might I say, I have been a producer for a much longer time than I have been a shipper, and I honestly believe that in my time I have produced more hogs than some of the board members have ever seen, in offering this information I want to make it clear that I am in no way apologizing for having been a shipper, as the contrary is no shipper, who knew what it has been a co-operative arrairs like fellow shippers I am ashamed of the job he was doing, and, I feel, doing it in such a manner as to ask questions and to say what he honestly believes to be right without the fear of his reputation being attacked, misquoted and made to appear as an enemy of orderly and co-operative marketing.

I believe that not only hog producers but people everywhere are very concerned about this growth of authority delegated to this non-elective group whose power now overshadows that of our elected representatives in parliament.

Many producers (conformists) openly proclaim that this board is now as much a part of government or party dares stand up to them—but, unfortunately is true I'm afraid. So to join with the actual conformist members got on the bandwagon to unwittingly help the promoters of this new set-up. I presume, there are also an increasing number of fair minded and clear thinking producers who wonder where it will all end, except authority. I remember that there was ever a vote, but I think that in 1946 when there supposedly was one; so let us have a look at what we have now, as a result.

Are we to believe that the costly system of moving hogs from the farm to the processor, and from floor to the most efficient way?

Are we to believe that with all the hogs waiting at the big centres in peak times there is going to be a bigger incentive for packers to bid more for them when they are all buying from the same man? Can one man interact all the packers day after day and week after week? Who should the packers run to to bid against each other when they all realize that whether they buy or not the hogs have to be moved and delivered to the packing plants, except when it might be to the advantage of certain packers to bid a dime or so to get the daily quotest to them in order to save on transportation? The result is that the packers are all getting their hogs with little effort than ever before: the only thing none of the bigger packers don't like is the elimination in allocation: but that can only happen when the supply is short, so who is paying to make the little packers bigger?

Are we to believe that because there is a wider variation in prices from Toronto and the western markets the board should have any credit for it?

The fact is that until 3 or 4 years ago the demand out west was ahead of supply, hence prices were more in line with Toronto, but in late years, not knowing what to do with their stock piles of grain; the west is now producing more hogs than can be consumed there, the surplus has to be moved and the storage and later sold where the consuming population is, in the Toronto and Montreal regions, so freight and storage are both the main difference prices.

Does it seem just and fair that this board should have the right to use our money to suppress the opposition to their plan so that no proper consideration may be assured? These and many questions have never been answered to the satisfaction of thinking producers or Money taken from producers for self praise and false propaganda proves wrong; there is no way to prove the success or failure of the present plan. There's nothing else to compare it to.

Thousands of producers believe that one desk selling without competition is the best selection makes the "Market Place" a bargain.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DEFIANCE OF DEFEAT

A artist, called upon to produce a shield depicting courage, carved on that shield the representation of a plum tree. People protest and this artist asks for the fact that the oak required courage. Or if not the plum the pine or a whole Testament. "No," replied the artist. "The plum tree represents courage; for the plum tree begins to bloom while the snow is on the ground."

One of the great passages in the prophecy of Jeremiah is that which tells of Jeremiah's purchase of a field in Anathoth, while Babylonian armies were already invaded on that field. Jeremiah bought that investment at a time when all seemed lost. Jeremiah would be destroyed. Yet he was so certain of the eventual return of his people to this land that his purchase of the field was made to declared: "For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Houses and fields and vineyards shall be possessed again in this land."

You may have the experience sometime of facing a collapsing world. All that you hold dear, all that you had looked forward to with anticipation, may be swept away. In that day, remember God's holy assurance of comfort, strength, and eventual triumph.

We have never lost unless we have lost honor. And even when we have lost honor, there is free forgiveness — and a second chance.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 2nd, 1940

Nineteen years ago on March 20th, Lodge Lodge No. 350 of L.O.B.A. was first organized and this event was fittingly celebrated Thursday evening when the members were at a banquet in their spacious friendsy W.M. Sis. Kennedy extended a hearty welcome to all present. A three-tier birthday cake with nineteen candles was the centre piece of attraction, the centre of all eyes, and when cut proved as good to eat as it had looked. It had been prepared and was the gift of W. Sis. Caigler. Guest speaker, Rev. Foreman, gave a splendid address that made a great impression on the minds of all present. W. Sis. Turner proposed the toast to the King. Miss Mae Sedore rendered the popular solo singing "Little Old Lady", a reading was given by Miss Hazel Kent. W. Sis. Savage proposed a toast to L.O.B.A. which was responded to by all present. Singing of God Save the King brought the evening to a close but all look forward to a larger and better birthday party next year.

Miss Marie Storey of Kitchener, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Jones, John Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hubbard have left for Oshawa where they will spend the next few months with the parents of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. Mc-Worrell, returning to the city in September.

Mrs. D. P. Ross and two children of Toronto are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Collins, George Street.

Railways Try New Methods

Ottawa Citizen

Canada's railways, hard pressed by other forms of transportation, particularly the trucks, continue to cast about for ideas in the only way that offers any real chance of survival: through improvement in equipment and service. The dieselization program and the trains is the most striking example, but there are many others.

The latest improvement to come to notice is a new type of freight car purchased by the Canadian National Railways for hauling flour in bulk. Bagging is eliminated, and it is claimed that the new car reduces by more than one-half the time needed for loading and unloading freight cars.

The flour is removed from the car by vacuum siphoning, a method that has never been applied before to this commodity. And the system also combines rail and road transportation, by unloading being done in other types of freight containers as railways, both in Canada and in the United States.

The railways are working on other improvements designed to meet competition from the airplanes. The public stands to benefit from these changes in the moving goods. It has the choice of the cheapest and most efficient service.

For the railways, it is an uphill struggle. In the past are the days when only the railways had to be reckoned with, and when they enjoyed a virtual monopoly over much of their business. Those days cannot be resumed so far in the other direction that many wonder whether the railways will be permitted to survive.

The handicap under which the railways labor is their enormous capital costs in relation to those of their competitors. The only way is the only carrier that owns its roadbed. Other carriers subsidies for some line deemed to be in the national interest—has to pay the entire cost of construction and maintenance costs. It requires a million volume of traffic to meet those costs, but it causes the railways little if any charges to the shipper are higher than those of its competitors.

The royal commission, now studying the railways labor and Transport Commission, now studying the railways' financial position, is expected to deal with in its report. There is certainly not going to be any quick solution.

Simnel Cake For Mother

Vancouver Sun

For Mother's Day you can find cards, gifts and flowers, but where in Vancouver, for example, on Sunday, can you find a cake

Anyone who wakes up next Sunday morning, like Mother's

I'll to thee a simnel bring,
'Gainst you come a-mothering, will probably have to make his own.

Quite a job it is, too. You start with a raised crust, as for a pork pie. Then you roll out, however you will fill it with approximately half the ingredients of a Christmas cake, and heavy on the candied peel. You bake the crust. (b) Then you brush it with egg, and (c) bake it.

"When ready," says an anonymous recipe, "the crust is as hard as if made of wood, circumstance which gives rise to the expression 'as hard as a simnel cake' in which (simnel cakes) were formerly sent as presents to whom they were sent as presents and which had never been one before . . . one leaf taking here for a footpool."

The traditional cake is a major job of engineering. As the recipe suggests, a degree of affectionate thoughtfulness that would be snatched from a rock could ever match.

In Elizabethan times it was a gift for Lent.

We can't help wondering, however, about the wisdom of the modern mother cracking her simnel cake as a token of affection bearing as it does a resemblance to marine plywood.

A tear mother might bedew her offspring about the ears with his own almond curving lustily for gifts of cards, candy and flowers.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard there is no cure for edema. Will you give your opinion on this trouble? And what is best for the patient? H. I. S."

Your handwriting is firm and clear. I don't know your age, but feel sure that you are of active, healthy age (I'd guess 50 or perhaps 60) and so I suppose you ask is one which doesn't often get well as soon as the early 40's. Am I right?

Anyway, regardless of age, edema is the accumulation of fluid, mainly water, in the little spaces between the fibres of our tissues. The result is swelling. The most likely place for it to occur is, of course, the feet and legs, since they are the lower part of the body and excess fluid would naturally gravitate there.

It is quite possible, in some cases, to have edema in the lungs, or abdomen, or in an arm, or under the eyes, or other areas. It depends on the cause.

Saying that there is "no cure for edema" is silly. It means that you can correct the cause, you can correct the result. If the cause is one you can't correct, then you could rightly say that there is no cure for edema, or the cure. But there are many situations in which the cause can be treated effectively and easily, and hence there are countless cases in which edema can be cured.

Probably the commonest cause is some defect in the kidneys, the kidneys. Either way, fluids are not passed through the body and expelled with the vigor which is needed. In such cases, quite aside from removing the cause, the heart or kidney ailment, if it can be done, a number of there are other steps to be taken. The first is to "salt" diet. This is aimed at limiting the amount of sodium in the body, as sodium attracts and holds water.

The fairly new so-called "diuretic drugs" often help encourage the discharge of water through the kidneys are a very useful aid.

In some cases, especially a member (arm or leg) which is afflicted with edema will be helped by elevation. This is to drain away the excess.

Most assuredly, ill health of some general nature can result in edema. Once the body is restored to health and vigor, the edema is dealt with by Nature's own methods.

So, while in some instances we have to accept the fact that a certain case of edema cannot be "cured", we must also keep in mind that other cases can be, and still other cases can be helped and eased.

The main thought here, I think, is this: We'd all like to have "perfect health" all the time. But who really expects that? As we grow to maturity and beyond, we should take the time to learn about things which will help us, and "about" us. After all, what do we really want? Do we expect to be perfect specimens all our lives, or are we willing to accept and appreciate moderate health, grumble with a few ills, two, but enough to enjoy life? To me, that's my fair share of being alive!

"Dear Dr. Molner: I've always been told beer is fattening, but on a recent commercial the announcer said beer was high in protein. What is the truth?" Mr. M.

Protein, if you eat enough of cases in which edema can be cured, if you eat enough of it, is fattening. There's some protein in beer, but it is also alcohol which is not protein, but is laden with calories and hence fattening.

W.J.M.: All I can say is the mineral discovery is the first I've mitted. Since a sore has formed it must certainly have a history.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

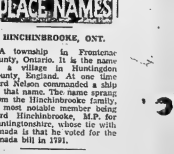
ART IN THE HEART

Great art comes from the heart. The artist is but the lifeinspired medium. His colors come from God's garden. He puts warmth to every canvas. He lends himself to the inspiration of his creations. That is why great art never dies.

Natural art, as we find it in nature, is the highest art of all because it is entirely unselfish. Like the feeling that is inspired, so is the expression. There is no aiding nature for pure expression. There is meaning to all this. It is because art is born in the heart, never leaving it.

There is art in the circulation of the maple leaf, and scores of other leaves, but there is no appeal touches all. Beauty affects everyone. It is God creative.

Our best self is responsive to great expression. We gather from day to day. We endeavor along with it for the choicest of our thoughts and deeds. There would be no art in the world without it, but it begins in the heart in the first place. It is something by which we strive and live.



Laureate's Task Is Hard

Baltimore Evening Sun

To be poet laureate is still an honor and it remains something of a burden. Even though a laureate is not required to celebrate (a) royal weddings, (b) births or (c) the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo, he is frequently falls below the level of true poetry, and it also happens that poetry written in modern times have usually been the work of amateurs whose creative powers had waned.

Mr. John Masefield wrote five lines on the birth of England's new prince. They are simple, clear, graceful and pleasant enough in sentiment, but they are not poetry. They are inspired. After all, Mr. Masefield's laureate for nearly three decades. In his desk are his finished and unfinished poems. A few days in only a few months. It is unfortunate, perhaps, that even "The Everlasting Mercy" and "Dauber" are not the poems that came fresh to the book shops. Thomas Hardy may have been a better poet when he told Tennyson was 77 when he composed "On the Jubilee of Queen Victoria" — and it is forgotten by all save the poet's editors.

To be sure, Mr. Masefield's "Collected Poems" has been published the 4,000 lines of the "Everlasting Mercy" and much his longest and perhaps his best poem, on the day after he had turned 83. But the "Testament" has nothing to do with historic events or the Royal Family and Bridges wrote very little in the occasional vein. Indeed in the Twenties, questions were asked in Parliament about his failure to concert with the muse and produce something appropriate for the peace, the unveiling of the Cenotaph and so on. At least one can say for Mr. Masefield that he faced his task and performed it, if not as best admirable as that is, it is not the way poetry is written.

HINCHINBROOKE, ONT.

A township in Frontenac county, Ontario. It is the name of a village in Huntingdon County, Scotland. In one time Lord Nelson commanded a ship of that name. The name sprang from the Hinchinbrooke family, the most notable member being Lord Hinchinbrooke, M.P. for Huntingtonshire, whose tie with Nelson can be noted for the Canada bill in 1791.

Unfair Way To Collect

The decision of the Sydney City Council to continue to permit the publication in unlicensed civic taxes is not one which commends itself to any fairminded citizen of his community who has any consideration for the feelings of those to whom victims of the archaic and vicious method of collecting money.

The idea is to use the weapons of fear and extra-authority to extract taxes from Sydney citizens in arrears and unscrupulous the method has been effective in collecting a large percentage of overdue accounts. But it is a method of which any civic authority which uses it should be deeply ashamed.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One thing the scarce over cigaret-incident cancer has done is to restore pipe smoking to a moderate status of the dignity of popularity. We see far more pipe smokers today than we did ten years ago.

A well-seasoned pipe, comfortably filled with a well-cured tobacco, has the same seductive effect, as far as taste, aroma, and general euphoria are concerned, as has a fine golden roast chicken, a handsome sizzling grilled steak, or a tin plate full of pork and beans on a camping trip. The contrast between a cigaret and a pipe of tobacco is the contrast between giving your hands a brief slither and slosh in the wash basin and having a lovely lazy hot bath.

Pipe smoking, after the American War in 1856, was largely confined to what used to be called the working class, in the days when the middle classes were able, and the Victorian era had its climax in a cloud of gentlemanly and sportsmanly pipe smoke.

It took the 1914-18 war to usher in the age of the cigaret. Prior to 1914, cigarets were the toys of the schoolboy, the playboy, the sportsman, pool shark and polite lounger.

War and smoke are thus curiously involved.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

Early Singers

After a long, blustery winter nothing is more cheering to us Canadians than the songs of our early migrant birds. The eastern meadowlark's voice, clear and sweet, often comes to our ears while snow still lies in shaded hollows of our fields. The high-pitched, whistled song, "tee-you, tsee-ear", has been translated as "Spring is here" and indeed there can be no better interpretation for the slow, slurred notes.

Yet the quality is far more pathetic than cheerful, very different from the bright notes of the song sparrow — another early arrival. Meadowlarks have many songs, even the same bird using a great variety; yet to the untutilated all sound pretty much the same. Song sparrows, however, are individualists. Although nearly all begin with three identical notes, after that each continues with his own little tune, often easily recognized by the careful listener. No two birds sound exactly alike.

Of late years the western meadowlark, found from southern B.C. eastward across the Prairie Provinces, has been pushing into Ontario. This bird, 1¼ inches shorter than the 10½ inch eastern species, is otherwise similar in looks. Its song, however, is entirely different, being a rich melody of six or seven deep, clear, flutelike notes.

"FLIGHT SONGS"

The "flight songs" of the two meadowlarks are much more alike. This song is heard in the mating season. Started when the bird is on a perch — such as a branch of a lone tree, a fence post, or the highest spot on a rock — it continues as a flight is made across the meadow.

Those in a position to know tell us that a characteristic of the western meadowlark is its habit of singing throughout winter as well as summer. The eastern bird, with us from March to November, also has on various occasions been heard every month of the year.

The majority of our meadowlarks and song sparrows spend the cold season not very far south of our border, and consequently have no great distance to travel north. This at least in part accounts for their early arrival in Canada. And the odd bird has been found wintering within our boundary. This is particularly true of the song sparrow.

A meadowlark's nest, placed in a depression in a meadow, is usually started toward the end of March or the beginning of April; but some have actually been found in the Montreal area containing eggs as early as March 20th. However, nesting operations of song sparrows are retarded, as females do not come north until considerably later than males.

My Sin Scarred Torch I Pass to You

By ALMA MASON

(21st in series)

The most successful parents are often those who willingly acknowledge their own mistakes and shortcomings and try and correct them for the sake of their growing families.

It is impossible for children to love parents who stand on cold unapproachable pedestals of seeming perfection. Parents who pattern their lives on the doctrine of subjective idealism; who are blown up to abnormal proportions of egotism never really reach the hungering heart of a child.

Children of such parents are desolate and bitter. The empty spots in their lives reach out to be filled. The gang on the street corner is, to them, the only answer to the vacancy they experience.

Those who have known defeat and disaster through wrecking the moral code, but have risen to conquer their errors and faults, often make ideal parents.

An alcoholic, when he became a father, learned to be the master of his wife and child to overcome the bitterness and fear he experienced the comfort and stimulation received through prayer. His wife had been a tremendous help to her husband. Through humility implemented with courage to ask mercy for God's hand in the darkness. He stumbled over and over, but finally established himself as someone on a glorious summit of protection immediately against his attacker.

The growing son witnessed the valiant battle waged by his parents. His respect and love grew tremendously as the man before him was persistently attempting to overcome the devil that threatened to destroy his own soul and the souls of those in the home. The lad early in life, therefore, learned to follow in the footsteps of his father by attempting to curb his own base instincts and desires.

Being an impassioned and dynamic minister preaches and ministers to Italians and jetsam in an east side mission on New York City, when he speaks to his mother congregation of the power of faith in oneself through God to conquer evil, he believes what he speaks. He has told his eager listeners that through personal experience in his boyhood home he was motivated to help others battle the same devil that he realizes that the structural iron of his noble faith knew the Stronghold, which, alone by stone was placed in his young life by a humble, ecstatic father; one who for the sake of his son, battled and conquered the opponent seeking to destroy him.

Parents who build an impalpable wall around their children, who abort circuit their defeats to hide them from their children, when the walls warm and crack their hearts impassable. They build in fear of the imperfections of pride and deceit.

SCORNFUL OF PARENTS

So many of today's restless young people exhibit a defiant and scornful attitude towards parents. Does our apparent inability to project sure and loyalty into the lives of our children produce an attitude of scornful pride we erect? Would it help matters to confess to our children our faults of omission and commission? We have all suffered them. Would it help to admit that we have made a shambles of what used to be an indomitable family structure, the home? Should we ask their forgiveness and seek their help in rebuilding and reshaping the forsaken hearth of today?

A minister who visits the schools was stunned to find that only one child in class knew anything about the ten commandments. Only one in forty was willing to seeing any kind of religious literature in the home. Perhaps we should pull down our parents with our children before God and

In meek supplication, pray that the altar of home be revived and dedicated anew. What else will abide in our hearts that black, terrifying abyss of atheism? Let us confess our failures of God fearing adults and reconstruct our lives and the lives of our young people on the solidity of prayer and faith in God instead of the foundation of indifference and selfishness.

How can I hope to guide you through

The arid desert wastes of sin?

How can I hope to keep you true

Without a sense of being kin

To pitfalls laid for stumbling feet?

To snares set for a sapling oak?

The demon of your young defeat

Once choked my faith and slew my goal.

I hold a hand that conquered hell

And stronger in the battle grew

To God I love who bears my name;

My sin-scarred torch I pass to you.

A Few Tips on Tipping to Aid You Poor Unwary Travellers

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Peering between the lines of more letters than we've counted on the subject, we detect that what concerns people about tipping is not how much to tip, but how, with dignity and good taste.

And it's true that forking over a sum based on your estimate of how much more than his salary he's worth to you, you stand about one chance in four of really appearing appreciative.

The other four chances can make you look like a piker, a cheapskate or a fool, depending.

What, for example, do you do if a cab driver hands you three singles and a nickel out of a five or a $1.95 charge: tip the five cents (not enough), a dollar (it's too much) or fumble around in your pocket for the right change which you already know you don't have?

The answer in this and similar cases is always to have change; break a bill into small bills and small ones into silver at all convenient opportunities. These will usually be at hotel cashiers' or in restaurants when paying your bill.

Some travellers hold that an employee who doesn't even seem enough to be prepared with the right change either doesn't deserve or doesn't expect a tip. But life isn't always that simple.

Here are some other ideas on how and when to tip as unostentatiously as possible, regardless of the sum you choose.

AT END OF TRIP

Railroad porter — Only on stepping off the train at the end of your trip; he'll be waiting expectantly for you at the foot of the steps. If your trip is more than one night and there is a change of shifts, the porter should make his departure from duty known to you in a pointed manner.

Pullman porter: railroad, dock or airport — When he has dropped your bags in the rack or on the baggage cart and has stands awaiting your indulgence. Remember that in railroad stations there is a fixed charge per bag, usually 25 cents, over and above which a tip is expected.

Bellhop — After conducting you to your room, he will busy himself opening or closing a window, turning on or off air conditioning or heat, checking towels and opening baggage racks. Finally he will turn to you and look at you with a pointed, precise moment you ought to place his tip in his hand.

This sounds highly stylized but by playing along with the business you'll avoid feeling like a clod when it's done.

Waiter captain — This is a specific found only in night clubs and classy continental restaurants. He's the one in neat dinner jacket or tails, as distinct from the waiter in gaudy uniform, who takes your order and is supposed to serve or see it served properly. While the waiter's tip is left on the tray as usual, a captain's should be handed to him discreetly, as in a handshake, on your way out. Don't look as if you'd be near your table as you leave.

Headwaiter — The sergeant-at-arms of the door of night clubs and fancy restaurants should be taken care of only if good tables are scarce or nonexistent, and then only in advance, whereupon they will materialize miraculously by.

Bartender — In case you're not a barfly by experience, always pay for your drinks as served, unless a check is left in front of you, in which event they will be collected for as you leave (it's bad manners to pick up your change after each drink) as if you're afraid someone will steal it.) On departing take all but what you wish to leave for the bartender.

Cocktail waitress — Though you may be ordering dinner, she may collect for drinks on the spot. Again the ubiquitous tip will be in evidence.

Cigaret girl — Since you were too lazy to go out and get your own or too thoughtless to bring them with you, the penalty tray will be presented with your change, usually with carefully selected denominations among the coins.

Shipboard stewards, bus/boys, children's counselor, waiter, bus boy, mailre d' and maid, etc., at resorts — Always, but always, in envelopes prepared the night before and awarded on the occasion of your departure.

Tour guide — Also as you bid him farewell at the end of your tour, whether it be a day or a month.

Airline personnel — Never, but never. Hasn't it cost you enough so far?

O.S.D. Students' Portrayal Of Snow White and Seven Dwarfs Captivates Audience

"To each his own"; but to the majority, the story of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs", as portrayed last evening by the students of the Ontario School for the Deaf, still maintains its captivating allure.

The fickle centres around the jealousy and hatred of the wicked step-mother queen toward her beautiful and good step-daughter, the lovely princess Snow White. The queen deems that she is the most beautiful woman in the kingdom, resorting to murder to gain the supremacy over Snow White. In its gripping appeal, it is shown how the foolish things of the world are used to confound the wise, and the sweet things of the world (dwarfs and fairies) to confound the mighty (the queen) and bring to naught the things that are".

The operetta, arranged by S. Ann Johnston, and in the musical interludes, and accompaniments, by Miss Ladies of Bridge Street United Church choir, was a "thing of superb beauty", and will long remain in the memories of the spectators, as "a joy forever".

Preceding the presentation, the assistant superintendent, Mr. D. E. Hurley, owing to the absence of the superintendent, Mr. A. L. Dennett, B.A. B.Paed, who was detained bound from London, Ontario, welcomed the audience among whom were the Girl Guides from Wellington, and the Pioneer Girls from the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Belleville, and outlined briefly the purpose of the school play, namely to give outlet of speech to the many who are hearing loss, from the time they enter the school to the day of graduation.

The Queen, Phyllis Band, under the direction of Zenon Slus, rendered the "Overture to Snow White."

3-ACT OPERETTA

The operetta consisted of three acts, seven scenes, all of which were enchanting, both in the scenery effects, and costumes. To select any one scene as outstanding, was indeed difficult, but of the first opening, the Castle Ballroom, took one back into bygone days — the lovely, winding, red-carpeted stairway to the upper balcony the castle, the colorful and shimmering costumes of the princesses and their lords, graceful dancing, so vastly different from that of today, was gracious and dignified. Then the scene where the angels guided the sleeping princess as she lay in the forest, where the queen had sent her to be slain, was one of beauty and feeling, in which the singing of the childhood prayer, "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep," added a further accent of loveliness.

LIGHTER TOUCH

A lighter touch was introduced by the seven dwarfs whose distinctive traits, in walk, hands, especially "Grumpy" who, throughout, then and on giving it due thought, decided the production was the better part of valor.

The Queen was well portrayed by Mary Ann Oates, whose vanity was at last her undoing and the King, Bruce Gregory, did a fine job of the worried father and disappointed husband.

The lovely princess, Snow White, was gracious and demurely charming, while the seven dwarfs were a gay little company of colorful figures.

In the last act, the scene was again in the ballroom of the castle, where the story was brought to its happy ending with Snow White and her friends. Charming as bride and bridegroom, accompanied by the various lords and their ladies, who were pompously introduced by the court page, Carl Masters, to the King, his friend, whom the King had raised to the peerage for his saving the life of the princess.

Again dancing was held, led by the princess in her beautiful white satin gown of state, Prince Charming in his black and white satin costume. At its close one of the little dwarfs places a crown upon the princess' head, and the curtain descends the fairies completes the scene.

THE CAST

Stage manager — Eugene La Blanc; assistants — David Harvie, Herbert Alton; costumes — Mrs. Vincent and her girls; properties — Mr. Vaughan and his stage crew — Mr. Graham and his artists; hair styles — Mrs. Hurst and her girls; make up — Mr. Graham and Mrs. Lewis; scripts and slides — Mr. Chard and typing girls; programs — Mr. Morrison and his boys; directed by — Mrs. Gordon; soloist — Miss Donna Dennis.

Grateful thanks, was extended by Mr. Kennedy to all of the participants for their hard work in preparing for and presenting this play. Thanks are also extended to all other members of the staff and student body who have helped behind the scenes" in numerous ways and without whose willing assistance this production would be impossible.

Special thanks were also expressed to the ladies' Chorus of Bridge St. United Church and Mrs. Lewis and the staff who have put in many hours rehearsing the music for the play, and for the splendid job she has done a good turn for the children of the Ontario School for the Deaf.

This superb presentation, with its artistic backgrounds, and subdued lighting was, worthy of the many curtain calls it received from an audience loath to let them go.

The presentation will also be given this evening and Monday evening.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

"Some change in the form of life gives from time to time a new epoch of existence."—Samuel Johnson.

The travel section of a newspaper's Sunday edition lends wings of enchantment the world over with the lure of each page. Never in the world's history have its avenues been so open, inviting and accessible. It's quite breathtaking to read:

"Flying to the exotic East? Then travel on The Mandarin Jet, the busiest airliner in the world. Stay at Tokyo's hotel New Japan; luxurious Oriental and Occidental designs in tatami mat and western style rooms . . . a kind of service each King and Queen enjoys at his castle . . ." is the qualm! way expressed to make one long to visit Japan.

One could spend the morning lingering over pages decked by the charms of Africa, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, Australia, India, the Caribbean, Alaska, the United States and Canada. Imagine going to Ceylon! Here's an island, the advertisement declares, where offers tropical sunshine, golden beaches and blue-emerald seas to sport in. How gay and interesting to see different races and religions of Ceylon which give rise to a variety of costumes, customs and festivals. The Government Tourist Bureau offers modern amenities by operating a chain of rest houses for about $5 a day, including meals. Easy to get to — just there; comfortable from New York.

Or why not fly Brantiff, the world's fastest jetliner to South America; select from a sheaf of tours the ports of South America which seem most interesting. The seven-day air cruise sounds fabulous.

No country on earth offers travellers such unique attraction, claims the United Arab Republic (Egypt-Syria). Where else, is asked, does one encounter the sphinx, the pyramids, Luxor, Aswan, the Egyptian Museum, the Temple of Karnak, the Nile, the Red Sea and other wonders? Where the banks of the Nile, as well as the world's most ancient city of Damascus afford modern accommodation. Thanks to a favorable exchange and up-to-date facilities, assurance is given that vacationing in this hospitable historic republic will be most pleasant and surprisingly inexpensive.

PRIVATE HOMES

So great is tourism in Israel, reveals this article, that visitors are assigned private homes during their stay. This experiment has proven richly rewarding by the establishment of closer ties with the people. Yugoslavia points out considerable inducements: amazing mountains with magnificent lakes and fjords, fascinating cities, fine art treasures and hundreds of islands and resorts on the famous Adriatic coast.

The shrinkage of the huge, big world of ours is producing numerous globe-trotters . . . Among them, Olga Achtenhagen offers useful suggestions: Travel light, she urges. Two pieces of luggage is ample and conserve space. "You can go around the world with your sewing necessities in the hand box that holds a typewriter ribbon." Have travelers' cheques made up in more than one book. Keep these in different places, so if one is lost, "all is not lost". Thyra Winslow writes in "The World, With Love" that she finds riding buses like a native, in any country, keeps her in touch with people who "are as friendly as you want them to be." A woman travelling alone who accepts a small poodle or pomeranian will always be with friends for "people are attracted by pets and love to talk to them".

Not all travelers agree with Samuel Johnson, however, that the same journey should not be made again, being a tale that's told, and that seeing satisfies. Many have the desire to go back again to visited places. Sir Robert Bruce Lockhart, who has "all my life been a wanderer," would barter the whole Continent, the New World and the East's beauty, for one journey from London to Strathspey, Scotland, "which I have made over a hundred times." For here, his heart throbs, was his home.

But then Johnson never strayed far from his 18th century London. But not from choice, Wrote he to Mrs. Thrale: "If I had room enough, what would I do? Perhaps . . . I might go to Cairo and down the Red Sea to Senegal and take a ramble in India. Would this be better than building and planting? It would surely give more variety to the eye, and more amplitude to the mind. Half fourteen thousand pounds would set me out; we are all forms of existence, and bring me back to describe them."

The half fourteen thousand pounds was never his to be; his only "ramble" was the tour of the Hebrides. But he traveled with his mind and said: "Those who waste your lives over a book at home, must take life on credit."

Bellevignette: Overheard while ch bub-en route to Trenton, a child describing his cold feet: — "Mummy, my toes have got ginger ale in them."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. T. S. — Clifford can't get over his broken heart.

Clifford S. — I can't face life without her.

Mrs. T. S. — My son is a fine young man of 23 and he is suffering so much from a broken heart that I am getting almost frightened about what he will do.

He was going with a girl for four years and a year ago they became engaged. His father and I approved very much of the match. But at the last moment, the girl walked out on him and married another man.

That was several months ago and he can't seem to break out of his depression. He never had many friends, especially during the last few years since he became so engrossed with this girl and keep telling him to go out and join clubs, but he says he won't have anything to do with another girl, ever. He lies awake all night reading and smoking and in the morning is too tired and depressed to even go to work.

Clifford S. — My parents can't understand that you can't just go out or join clubs if your heart is not in it. Every time I go anywhere and meet people I feel more alone than when I am by myself. I was never the sociable type and now it is worse than ever.

When Evelyn walked out on me, my whole world collapsed. She was everything to me and don't think I can face life without her. She knew how I counted on her and didn't care enough to stand by me when a better-looking, more successful guy came along.

The way I see it, it's not what you are but where you are that seems to count in this world. People think you are nobody and will step all over you if you don't dress well and haven't got a big car. I could never make out ladies because I don't have the dough.

The Council: Prepare for a shock, Clifford.

It's not "people," but you, who put this overwhelming value on dress, money and a big new car.

If you look around, you will find plenty of men who don't have all this equipment but who "make out" with girls and are respected by the world in general.

For some reason, you do not have enough respect for yourself without these things. You are afraid to face the world with nothing but your own individuality. You think this unique possession is such a small and shaky thing that nobody can possibly care for it.

Our guess is that Evelyn did not walk off with the other man because he was better-looking and more successful. He may have been so only in your eyes. But in any case, Evelyn was probably attracted by this man's self-confidence, by a man who was able to give you because there was no need to bolster his own ego at every step.

You should recognize that Evelyn made a wise decision and that your marriage to her could not possibly have been happy. Your overwhelming dependence upon her was too much for any young woman. You need to learn to love yourself, value yourself if you expect others to value you.

Our advice is to get some sleep and then get out and join some of those clubs your parents suggest. Put your heart in it, even if it takes some effort. Then see how many people give a hoot whether or not you have a big new car.

LETTER:

I am enclosing a recipe for Digestive Biscuits that was requested by one of your readers. It is an English recipe, but as you know the English tablespoon is larger than ours (equal to 2) and the tablespoon is smaller, so I adjust accordingly. SATURDAY

Chicken Succotash Casserole (see Friday); New Sliced Beets; Asparagus Side Salad with Relish Mayonnaise; Rhubarb Pie (see Monday); Tea.

DIGESTIVE BISCUITS:

4 oz. plain flour, 4 oz. medium oatmeal (I use Ogilvie's), 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon baking soda, 1 tablespoon milk, 3 oz. fat, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Mix all dry ingredients together then rub in fat. Mix to stiff dough with very little milk. Roll out thinly, cut into rounds with 2 1-2" cutter. Bake on greased trays 20 to 25 minutes at 325 deg. Fahr. As this is small amount I always double recipe.

ANSWER:

Thank you for this hard-to-find recipe. I hope our inquiring reader sees this.

LETTER:

. . . When you gave a reader's request for a ham loaf recipe, such as they had eaten while on a trip to Pennsylvania, I resolved to write you, as one of my most cherished recipes is one for ham loaf which we had in Pennsylvania last year. Unlike your recipe, which called for uncooked ham, this one one use up the last bits of a ham or picnic ham . .

HAM LOAF:

(Courtesy D. M. R.) One lb. cooked ground smoked ham, 1 lb. ground pork (or sausage meat if not too fat), 1 egg, 1 cup fine fresh bread crumbs, 1 onion finely chopped, salt and pepper to taste, milk to moisten. Mix above ingredients together well, and put in loaf pan. Mix together the following ingredients: 1-4 cup vinegar, 1-4 cup cold water, 3-4 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard. Pour over ham loaf, and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour. Serves 4 or 5. If I have more than 1 cup of ham, I substitute for some of the ground pork, and it turns out equally as well.)

If you should be writing about lemon pies and meringue in the future, would you kindly mention whether you put the meringue on the cold or hot pie filling? . . . Reader.

ANSWER:

Thank you so much for being interested and sending your favorite Ham Loaf it is fine. Please write below to Interested Reader who is puzzled about meringues weeping too.

MODERN MANNERS

QUESTION BOX

Question: Can a woman who is invited to a party, a coffee, a tea or a luncheon, regret simply because she thinks that, by doing so, she will not be indebted to her hostess? Meaning that she will not have to entertain for this person in return? Some friends of mine feel this way and I think it is wrong. Is it really true that just because you turn down a bid to a party, you have no obligation? This doesn't seem right to me.

Answer: You are absolutely correct, with but few exceptions. It is really not considered obligatory to return the hospitality when you attend a coffee or tea party, or a cocktail to-do. It's nice however, to do so if you can. When you have been entertained at a meal, such as lunch, dinner or late evening supper, you are obligated to return the hospitality. This rule holds whether you regret or accept.

Question: At the home of friends the evening I was surprised when, after dinner, the host passed cigarets to his wife, before offering them to any of the other ladies present. Am I wrong in thinking that he should have offered them to the other ladies first?

Answer: No, you are not. A host should always show deference to his guests by seeing that they are taken care of first. In this case, he should have passed the cigarets to all the ladies, offering them to his wife last.

Question: I am fourteen years old. The group of girls that I go with are not allowed to date yet, unchaperoned. When I go to a school dance, or a party at someone's home, and one of the boys from school is to be my escort, I would like to know which parent should take us to and from the party? His or mine?

Answer: There is no set rule regarding this. I think circumstances should decide. The mother of the boy may call the mother of the girl, or vice versa, and work it out together, based on what is most convenient for both. For example: perhaps one parent will take you to the party, the other pick you up. May I offer congratulations to your parents for being sensible about not letting you date at your age.

Question: This is a silly question, but it worries me! My wife persists in using paper tissues, instead of handkerchiefs, when we go places. She is always waving little wads of paper around. This isn't very good form, is it?

Answer: It would seem more dignified, and certainly more pleasant to the observer, if a linen handkerchief is in public. At home, the tissues are indispensable and certainly sensible.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE

Who is on the Lord's side?
Who will serve the King?
Who will be His helpers,
Other lives to bring?
Who will leave the world's side?
Who will face the foe?
Who is on the Lord's side?
Who for Him will go?

Not for weight of glory,
Not for crown and palm,
Enter we the army,
Raise the warrior psalm:
But for love that claimeth
Lives for whom He died:
He whom Jesus nameth
Must be on His side.

Fierce may be the conflict,
Strong may be the foe,
But the King's own army
None can overthrow;
Round his standard ranging,
Victory is secure;
For His truth unchanging
Makes the triumph sure.

Chorus:
By Thy call of mercy,
By Thy grace divine,
We are on the Lord's side,
Saviour, we are Thine.

"Wherever she went, she tried to make sure that there was no one whom she met who did not know and love Jesus".

There is a tribute that ought to gladden any Christian; it is the picture that one writer has given of Frances Ridley Havergal, whose hymns have added immeasurably to the spiritual wealth and peace of humanity and who has been acclaimed by many as the world's greatest woman hymnist.

Frances Havergal found her greatest happiness, always, in winning men and women to Christ. Her hymns — and many of our best religious lyrics have come from her pen — reflect her zeal for soul-winning. Most of her verses were written quickly, under inspiration. Often she would, pause in her daily tasks, take out paper and pencil, and jot down ideas in such perfect form that they needed no later polishing.

"Who Is On The Lord's Side?" is a popular Sunday School hymn. Some of her other songs are just as familiar. Her hymns, "True-Hearted, Whole-Hearted" is another favorite in church schools and young people's religious meetings. One of her most beautiful poems is a prayer which was fulfilled in her own splendid, consecrated life:

"Take my life and let it be Consecrated, Lord, to Thee;
Take my moments and my days;
Let them flow in ceaseless praise;
Take my hands and let them move
At the impulse of Thy love;
Take my feet and let them be Swift and beautiful for Thee".

A Lift for Living

Practising Life's Good Ideas

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Our professional baseball players are now preparing for the gruelling months ahead. However, most of them have kept in practice" since the end of last season and would do because their playing days in a highly competetive sport are all too brief.

Eternal effort is the price of skill and coordination of eye and hand. "Practice makes perfect" is the old maxim I had to copy over and over in school. My own handwriting is proof that practice does not always produce perfection. Nevertheless, without practice we cannot hope for more than mediocrity.

The little girl taking piano lessons wked her companions act consuming ice cream around the corner turns against the monotonous voice calling, "One-two-three-four, let's try it again." She would like to tear the music sheet out the window and the instructor along with it.

There is no glamour in practice. But without practice we would have no master musicians or great symphonies.

One of the world's greatest pianists once said that if he neglected his practice for one day he could detect the difference in his playing; if for two days his critics noticed it; if for three days the public knew it.

FROM DRUDGERY TO JOY

When we keep practising, there comes a point where we pass from the drudgery to the joy of it.

The beginner in music would like to forgo those finger exercises but if he perseveres in trying to get the hang of those lessons the day will come when the music "gets" him.

Simple little tunes we can pick up without much practice if we have an ear for music but great symphonies require much living to be enjoyed. Is it not true that our liking for the best things is usually an acquired taste? And acquired, mind you, by much practice. Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Usually not at first. Preachers, when pleading for contributions, frequently say, "Give till it hurts." On that principle many a hard-fisted deacon would stop after the first dollar. The minister should say, "Give till it stops hurting," for if we keep on giving after the first pinch we eventually find pleasure in it.

Not only our own pleasure but the very safety of society is at stake in this matter of keeping in practice. Who would feel safe on a ship if the crew did no drilling and waited only for the alarm of fire? Lifebelts under the berth and printed rules on the wall are not enough. We trust our lives and property to those trained by long practice to act in an emergency.

The times call for citizens to put their ideals into practice, and then keep practising them until they carry their virtues with such an easy grace that they make goodness attractive to others. It would seem that we are going through an "awkward stage" in our culture.

STUDYING AWKWARDNESS

I have been studying awkwardness in watching the growth of my grandchildren. The tiniest one, who is learning to walk and talk, is awkward in walking because she has reached the age where she has the impulse to walk but has not yet mastered it. I might read to her a treatise on Greek dancing but it would not help her one iota. What she needs is a nursery floor on which to walk and a parent to guide her steps.

Similarly in our society. We have plenty of good impulses. Despite our juvenile delinquency, I believe high school and college youth by and large have better ideals of world peace and racial brotherhood today than in my boyhood. Yet they are making so many missteps.

Our youth in their social relations, like my little granddaughter in walking, need practice and guidance. We all must develop our good impulses and ideals into standards of action. And that takes practice.

For this reason the health of democracy demands the local drill-grounds of character in home and school and church. What we do in our communities is even more important than what we say in Congress. Our failures to respect fair play and human dignity in our local communities furnish propaganda material for the Communists in their efforts to win the underprivileged peoples of the world.

The old saying is still sound, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." But we should put alongside it another principle, "Eternal exercise is the price of liberty." Yes, and the price of faith and hope and love.

Sunday Is Red-Letter Day For New Alliance Church

Sunday will be a red-letter day for Pastor Sackville Palmer and congregation of the Alliance Church, West Moira and Coleman Streets. The construction of the new addition to the church, which started last October now is complete and at 3 p.m. Sunday the dedication service will take place. Former members and friends from far and near will be gathering with the congregation for the occasion.

The Alliance Church, branch of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Canada has been well-known in Belleville and district as a centre of evangelism and missions, for more than 30 years. As much as $5,000 has been sent in a single year for foreign mission. One of the church's own young people, Mrs. Cecil (Eunice) Smith (nee Veley) now is a missionary with her husband in Equador.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance is the sixth largest missionary organization in the world.

The Women's Missionary Fellowship in the church meets regularly to pray for the missionaries in the field and also carries on handwork projects to provide articles for the outfits of outgoing missionaries. The men of the church are also vitally interested in missions and they have recently formed a Layfmen's Missionary Fellowship which meets monthly.

Overcrowded Sunday School facilities and need of space for youth work was one of the main factors that prompted the building of a new addition to the church.

The Pioneer Girls' groups and the Boys' Brigade which are growing steadily in attendance, are active in the church and promote much interest among the youth. The Alliance Youth Fellowship for teenagers meets each week and has a program geared for their needs. Young Adults meet in their own fellowship monthly. Even the babies are not forgotten in the program of the church and the Cradle Roll Superintendent carries on an active ministry among the babies and parents.

The Alliance Witness, a bi-weekly newspaper edited by Dr. A. W. Toner of the Avenue Road Church, Toronto, is the official organ of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. It has an, ever-increasing circulation and is read by people of all denominations. Belleville ranked fourth in the district in the subscription campaign held for the publication last November. An interesting fact is that Dr. H. L. Turner, president of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, attended Albert College.

For some time the church auditorium has been inadequate to accommodate the morning congregations and extra chairs have had to be used. In the enlarged sanctuary, almost double the number can be comfortably seated. The "new look" has certainly been given to the outside and inside of the church. The front of the church has been done in birch panelling. A baptistry has been installed and a beautiful water scene has been painted in oils as a background. The latest in cove lighting adorns the large platform. The aisles of the church, the front and the platform have been covered with mushroom-colored carpeting. A pastor's study, church office, nursery, spacious Sunday School facilities and a kitchen have all been provided in the new building. Modern folding doors have been installed in the large Sunday School rooms.

A new main entrance has been built on the east side of the church and is attractive with large aluminum doors with polished glass panels. The public address system which has been installed can be heard in all auditoriums in the building.

Music is an important part of the services each Sunday and the church is privileged to have as its organist and music director, Mr. Wilbur Leonard, supervisor of music at the Middleton Park School, Trenton.

GEORGE F. ROSS

George F. Ross, baritone soloist from Barrie will be feature Sunday at the dedication services of the Alliance Church. Mr. Ross has travelled extensively throughout Canada with choral groups and has thrilled his audiences with his unique presentation of Gospel songs.

REV. C. V. FREEMAN

Rev. C. V. Freeman, pastor of the Alliance Church, Belleville, from 1938-1947, returns Sunday to speak at the dedication service for the new addition to the church which takes place at 3 p.m. Mr. Freeman is well-known to many residents of Belleville and district and is at present pastor of the Alliance Church in Oshawa.

REV. GORDON A. SKITCH

Rev. Gordon A. Skitch, Gospel preacher from Kilchener, will be the special evangelist for the week of dedication services being held at the Alliance Church, April 4-10. Mr. Skitch has had wide experience in pastoral, evangelistic and radio work and is well-known in Canada and the United States. He was district superintendent in Western Canada for a number of years and was instrumental in the founding of many churches for the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Alliance Church Has Diversified Functions

Daily Vacation Bible School is an important part of the summer program of the Alliance Church. For two weeks in July, children from all parts of Belleville gather each evening to enjoy the programs that have been arranged. These include singing, Gospel stories in word and picture, and attractive handwork for all ages. The school is staffed with experienced help from the church and is under the direction of Mrs. Sackville Palmer.

EXTENTION IN THE DISTRICT

The work of the Christian and Missionary Alliance has been growing rapidly in the last few years in Ontario. One of the most recent works started is in Kingston where a growing congregation meets each week in Liberty Hall under the leadership of the Rev. Paul Valentine. Other works have been established at Barrie, Orillia, Oshawa, Cobourg, Sudbury, Stoney Creek, Kitchener and Waterdown. The superintendent for this district is the Rev. Nathan Bailey, who is also vice-president of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. The district office is in Toronto.

Mr. Palmer is completing his fourth year of ministry in Belleville. He is a native of Calgary and served in the Canadian Army overseas for five years before training for the ministry at Canadian Bible College in Regina. He has held pastorates in Midland, Chatham and Ottawa.

ANNUAL COUNCIL

The annual council of the Christian and Missionary Alliance convenes this year in Portland, Ore., May 11-16 when delegates from all over Canada and the United States will gather for a time of fellowship and to transact the business of the society.

Missions are also an important part of the council. Hundreds of missionaries attend and take part in a colorful costume parade on the Sunday afternoon. A "Preachers' Chorus" of more than 70 voices thrills the audiences with their singing.

1960 is a special year in the history of the Christian and Missionary Alliance for a new president will be elected at the council gathering.

GLEN ROCKS BIBLE CONFERENCE

The Christian and Missionary Alliance in Canada operates a summer conference on Lake Rosseau, Muskoka Lakes. Here the whole family can have a wonderful vacation and at the same time enjoy some of the best in Bible teachers and missionary speakers. The activities of the conference are planned for the whole family and there are well organized children's services, youth services and sports. Dr. J. E. Hunter, well-known author, leads the conference in the morning devotions.

CANADIAN BIBLE COLLEGE

The Christian and Missionary Alliance in Canada is served by Canadian Bible College in Regina. Hundreds of students from the college now are in full-time Gospel work, both in pastorates at home and on the foreign mission field. A group of 10 men known as "the singing men" will tour Ontario on behalf of the school in June and will be at the Alliance Church in Belleville, June 24.

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Spectacular sports events today are drawing larger crowds at higher admission prices than ever before in Canada. The increase in popularity and the trend to organization account for part of this wider interest, but much of it is the result of a change in the nature of the sport itself.

In review of professional sport the Canadian Bank of Commerce monthly letter points out that Canadians spent roughly $225 million at professional sports events—about one per cent of disposable income.

By way of comparison, estimated expenditures on tobacco and alcoholic beverages at $1,485 million were over six per cent of estimated personal disposable income.

Most of the money spent on sports went to horse-racing, football and hockey—with racing accounting for 95 per cent of the total in the form of bets. About 70 per cent of the betting on horse-racing is done in Ontario.

About $120 million was bet through pari-mutuel machines at thoroughbred racing tracks, another $80 million—$90 million at harness races. "Other sources" account for between $50 million and $60 million, to bring the estimate of total wagering in Canada last year to more than $225 million.

Quebec, incidentally, is the centre of Canadian harness racing. In 1958 betting in Quebec on harness racing amounted to $70 million while the total for the rest of Canada was $12.6 million.

Canadian football fans spent about $6 million to see professional games last year, and a chart of growth in seating capacity of stadia shows an increase of from 125,000 to 210,000 in ten years. In 1921, the year of the first east-west Grey Cup final, 7,538 persons paid $9,991 to see the game. In 1958 it was recovered 41,207 taxes paid $369,490 for tickets. In addition to gate receipts in 1958, television rights brought in $125,000, radio rights $14,000, film rights $30,000 and program rights $5,000.

Gate receipts at professional hockey games in Canada amounted to $3 million a night, and total attendance at these games must exceed one million persons.

The advertising value of football is perhaps more marked than that of other professional sports. With an estimated total seasonal attendance of nearly 2,000,000 and some 4,000,- 000 watching the Grey Cup game on television, sponsorship awards, television and radio rights and other activities are of great value. As long as the interest of Canadians in football remains as high as at present, such advertising is not likely to decrease.

It might be said the grey flannel suit is replacing the windbreaker as the standard dress of the professional sportsman. His status symbol is no longer the college young business man. And actually this is what he really is.

An average National Hockey League player may earn $11,385 per annum with a pension of $150 per month at 45 while others earn $400 per month at 65. In addition, at the latter age, he receives a paid-up life insurance policy of $35,000.

The financial rewards of football are probably much the same on the average although no detailed figures are available.

The earnings of jockeys vary widely, from those who exercise the horses and may receive a small sum for having an occasional mount in a race, to the $35,000 to $45,000 a year earned by top members of their profession. The average appears to be about $5,000 a year.

Senior League Irks Dudley, "OHA Better off Without It"

TORONTO (CP)—George Dudley, treasurer of the Ontario Hockey Association, says he is disgusted with clubs in the Senior A series.

"We have lost complete control of them," he said as OHA executive meeting Friday night. "We'd be better off not to have a league than the one we had this year."

Dudley, also secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said OHA Senior A clubs acted like children and threatened to quit when they didn't get their own way.

"Let them quit," he said.

The executive took two hours to decide to support a regulation adding two words to an obscure regulation which would require the OHA to punish a league member which failed to forward franchise fees.

COULD BE INELIGIBLE

Failure to pay the fee, required in Junior A and Senior A leagues alone through member clubs' voluntary decision, could disbar clubs from playoffs and even league action.

If the regulation were changed the OHA would have to enforce it, Dudley said.

It would have been embarrassing this year since neither Chatham Maroons nor Whitby Dunlops of the Senior A posted the $2,000 required, he said.

A motion to accept the change passed by a slim margin and the OHA will be asked to amend the by-law.

The executive decided to increase the Senior A league from 25 per cent of the gate during round-robin playoffs instead of the present 17½ per cent taken in playoffs.

Barons Take Two in Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The surprising Cleveland Barons, with a 2-0 game bulge over Rochester Americans and the season-champion Springfield Indians, one up over Providence, enjoy the home ice advantage for night in the American Hockey League semi-finals for the Calder Cup.

Cleveland, which finished fourth during the season's campaign, made it two in a row over the Americans Friday night with a 2-1 triumph. Freddy Glover, scoring champion, scored what proved to be the decisive goal at 8:12 of the second period. Earl Ingarfield's first - period marker had given the Barons a 1-0 margin. Big Hank Chesham Maroons por Whitby Dunlops of the Senior A posted the at 11:6 minutes and 20 seconds with a third-period tally at 18:20. Mayer had shut out the Americans 2-0 on Wednesday.

Wings Believe They Can Hurdle Bower Roadblock

But Leafs Favored to Take Verdict in Key Struggle; Habs Not Fussy Who Wins

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—"We should be pretty tough in the finals."

That, coming from Toe Blake, was the height of daring. The usually reserved Montreal Canadiens coach, most successful in National Hockey League history, seldom ventures to put even one foot on the stoutest part of the limb.

Blake was all smiles as he led his team home Friday night from its conquest of Chicago Black Hawks in four straight games in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Several hundred fans gathered in Windsor Station to greet the league champions and defenders of the Stanley Cup, although their arrival time was not announced publicly. However, many of the players got off at Westmount Station in the city's west end.

NEVER RESIGNED

Canadiens were never behind in any of the four games of the Chicago series, but Blake said it was as tense and exciting as any of the nine-playoff series through which he has led the club successfully since becoming coach in 1953.

Who would Blake rather meet in the finals, and so decide which way the Stanley Cup will go, which will be the "series," he said.

"I just hope that their series goes seven games," Jean Beliveau and some of our other boys would get rested."

Beliveau, who was sidelined in February with a groin injury, said he felt fine and was looking forward to the finals.

PRAISE FOR HALL

Big guns for the Canadiens in the series were Bernie Geoffrion with six goals and Dickie Moore with five, of which four were goals.

The players were loud in their praise of goalie Jacques Plante, who registered shutouts in the last two games.

The team came through the Chicago series with one injury. Marcel Bonin got a bone chip in the ankle in the first period of Thursday night's final game. He had to be stopped off the ice Friday night and his ankle will be x-rayed again.

Blake said he was "really worried at times" about the series. That was at the end of regulation time in the second game. If Chicago had scored in the overtime period, instead of us, that could have been the turning point.

TORONTO (CP) — Of Johnny Bower it has been said: "He has the ability, the temperament and the guts."

No one is more aware of this than Detroit Red Wings, who regard the 36-year-old goaltender as the big hurdle in their bid to beat Toronto Maple Leafs here tonight in the fifth game of their Stanley Cup semi-final series, now tied 2-2.

At a mellowed age when most players should be drawing pension benefits, Bower has been magnificent, producing the finest hockey of a professional career that goes back 15 years.

The man who pinned the "goat" label on Bower is Jim Hendy, general manager of the American League Cleveland Barons. Bower played for the Barons for eight years before crashing the National League with New York Rangers in 1953.

TRAVELLING CAREER

Bower has also been knocked from pillar to post, ending up with Leafs in 1958 when they were in desperate need of a goaltender.

"I don't know why he didn't make it sooner," Hendy once said.

Detroit coach Sid Abel observed Friday night as the Red Wings practised for the fifth game:

"Our big problem all season has been Bower. Punch Imlach has had around the net. Take this series. We've had 165 shots on Bower and Punch has got 40. Bower is good, I'll grant you, but not that good.

"One of these nights we are going to get lucky and snow them under."

PRAISE FROM IMLACH

Punch Imlach, scrapping his arrangement of sending Leafs to their training headquarters in Peterborough, Ont., put the team through a workout Thursday and Friday. One would have thought that Stanley Cup hockey was every shot the way Bower operated.

Both figures Wings can snatch a win tonight and head into Sunday's sixth game at Detroit with a chance to end the series. Next meeting is scheduled for Toronto Wednesday. The winner goes against Montreal Canadiens who beat Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 in their best-of-seven semi-finals.

"I have plenty of confidence that we can take a game from the Leafs on their own ice and, of course, win the big one at (Detroit) Olympia," he said.

The bookies have installed the Leafs as favorites tonight. If you want to bet on Leafs you must give Vic Stasiuk and company or offer $11 for the chance to win $8.

Both clubs will be at full strength. The Wings' leading scorer winger John McKenzie and defenceman Marc Reaume ready for action. McKenzie, out five playing with a fractured nose, will split wing duties with Len Lunde, his playoff replacement, on a line with Gerry Odrowski or Cliff Aldcorn.

Reaume, bothered by a shoulder separation and an injured leg, will be in only one of the four playoff games.

Brawl Marks Windsor Win Of Cage Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — There was nothing unlucky about number 13 for head coach Frank Wansborough as his aggressive Windsor AKO squad. The eastern champions edged Vancouver YMCA 68-67 in overtime Friday night to capture the senior Canadian Junior men's basketball championship series 3-1.

It brought to a sensational close Wansborough's 13 years as AKO head coach. Assistant coach Jack Truant takes over next season as Wansborough bows out because of business pressure.

Windsor's upset victory over the taller Vancouver YMCA squad was soured somewhat by a brawling session which erupted just as regulation time ended with the teams tied 59-59.

Vancouver forward Ted Lane crashed into Windsor's Jack Rochester Americans and the Schroeder at the end of the first season-champion Springfield Indians, one up over Providence, period. Both fell to the floor and came up swinging. When Lane lost his balance and slipped to the floor, Schroeder pounced on him.

FAN IN THE MELEE

This brought Vancouver coach Lance Hudson charging into the fray along with Truant. The coaches took wild swings at each other before a Windsor fan left the stands to kick Hudson. The fan was pulled out of the pileup and thrown off the floor by YMCA's Roy Needils.

Tom Nieporte Ups Margin In Azalea Open

WILMINGTON, N.C. (CP) — Tom Nieporte shot a four-under-par 68 Friday and added that to five strokes after 36 holes of the $12,000 Azalea open golf tournament.

His total was 122 against 127 for runnerup Dow Finsterwald, whose 66 was the best round of the day. Bill Casper Jr. fired a 69 shot a 73 for a 36-hole total of 146.

A score of 140 was the cut off point for the 63 pros heading into the last 36 holes today and Sunday.

Two other Canadians, Jerry Magee of Toronto and Al Johnston of Montreal, also qualified for the last two rounds. Magee shot a 71 and Johnston a 74. Both have 146 totals.

SEEKS TRADE

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—Larry Popelka, 30, of York Rangers says he wants to be traded to another National Hockey League team. In an interview Friday the centre said there are a lot of things about the club with which he is not satisfied.

He said the Rangers made a big mistake by letting Jack Evans, Guy Gendron, Danny Lewicki and Dave Creighton get away from them.

"Rangers are going to have to spend money sometime. They have been if they want to build a playoff contender," he said.

Casey's Faltering Yankees Lose Six of Seven Starts

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees, with a feverish spring record of 6-1, needed something, but a psychologist?

Jim Bronzan, witty writer, professional pitcher and amateur psychologist, proved that Friday. The Cincinnati righthander pitched his first seven innings for a 3-0 victory over the Yanks. He followed only four hits.

Bill Henry and Raul Sanchez completed the shutout, the Yanks' sixth loss in their last seven exhibitions.

Bronzan, who has written humorous magazine pieces, is readying a book to be called The Long Season. He's also kippered reading his arm for the long game. He went the route last Sunday in a six-hit, 4-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves.

With St. Louis Cardinals and Reds last year he started 10 times and finished only once. His won-lost record was 9-6 and his ERA 3.80.

Much of that work was in relief, but continued strong outings could move Bronzan alongside Cal McLish, Don Newcombe and Bob Purkey as a starting righthander. Joe Nuxhall and Jim O'Toole are the top Cincinnati lefthanders.

OTHER SCORES

In other Florida games, Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 on Jerry Lumpe's 10th inning clout. Pittsburgh 4-3; and Baltimore defeated Washington 3-2. Philadelphia Phillies outclogged Chicago White Sox 12-11 in the opener of their Series that can series at San Juan.

In Arizona, Boston Red Sox beat San Francisco 8-6 in 10 innings, and Chicago Cubs outclobbed Cleveland Indians 13-12.

The Tigers shocked the Cards with 10 runs in the third inning and St. Louis manager Solly Hemus let his ace, Larry Jackson, suffer through it. The strong righthander worked two shutout innings after the Tigers broke the explosion in which 15 men batted.

Bob Cerv, Kansas City's power man, hit a ninth-inning, tie-breaking homer to hand the Pirates their fourth straight loss.

Al Pilarcik faced the Orioles' 16-hit attack with three doubles and drove in two runs, including the decisive tally in the fourth inning off Tex Clevenger.

AL SMITH BUST

Al Smith hit three homers and drove in six runs but a late rally by Chicago White Sox fell short, Philadelphia got circuit clouts from Joe Koppe, B. C. Smith and Jim Coker.

The Giants hit four homers, including two by Willie Kirkland, but they weren't enough to help the Red Sox or Allen Worthington, who pitched scoreless ball in the ninth and tenth. The Giants swapped Worthington to the Red Sox only last Tuesday for Jim Marshall. Giant Jim Davenport and Orlando Cepeda also homered.

Tony Taylor won for the Cubs with a three-run shot after two were out in the ninth. Teammates Frank Thomas and Dick Gernert also hit grand - slam jobs. For the Indians, rookie Mike de la Hoz bolstered two with the bases empty and Tito Francona, John Romano and Bob Hale all hit two-run homers.

3,000TH WIN

NEW YORK (CP)—The sterling silver ice bucket which has been kept polished by the New York Racing Association brass since Tuesday finally was handed over to Hirsch Jacobs at Aqueduct Friday night. The veteran trainer scores his 3,000th victory. Blue Waters broke a 12-race losing streak that had kept Jacobs from the winner's circle since Tuesday when he got 2,999. Blue Waters is owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs—his wife.

Juniors Score Twice in 3rd To Whip Peterborough 7-5

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trailing from the opening minutes of the game, Lambert-Rollins climaxed their uphill battle with the only two goals of third period here last night defeating Peterborough Lexton 7-5 and evening their Junior "FD" group finals at two games apiece.

Fifth game in the best-of-seven affair will be played in Peterborough on Monday night. The sixth game will be back here sometime next week but definite date has been set as yet. The largest crowd to see a junior game here in several years, 644 paid admissions, witnessed last night's come-from-behind victory.

The locals got off to a poor start with the visitors opening the scoring at 3.17 of the first and taking leads of 3-0, 4-2 at the end of the first and 5-3 early in the second.

Then the Lambert-Rollins started to click. They held the Peterborough attack scoreless from the 7.18 mark of the second period, tied the game 5-5 by the end of the frame and won it in the third.

Chris Kerruish scored the winning goal after 16 minutes and 40 seconds of play in the final chapter. Kerruish broke in with Jack Elliott, made him a decoy and gunned the duck past goaler Gary Curtis from 15 feet out.

Peterborough lifted Curtis from the nets in favour of a sixth attacker with a minute and 33 seconds left to play but the move backfired. Belleville moved the puck into centre ice near the end minute and Elliott finally poked it loose from a goalmouth pile-up and shovelled it into the rigging to wrap it up at 19.25.

Gary Goyer was the top point man for the winners with a goal and two assists. Dennie Hull, who played a standout game, Elliott, Don Forsythe, and Moe Hunter each had a goal and assist; Kerruish and Larry Maxwell had the other goals while Gary Needham and Pat Assistotine got assists.

Jim Jewell and Bill Watson triggered the Peterborough goals each. Grant Heffernan had one and one, Ken Britton two assists, Stu Muldread and Wayne Nicholls one apiece.

Stick-swinging Tom Ruttan of the Canucks, a six-footer plus, was the chief offender as the clubs picked up 17 penalties. Peterborough drew ten of that total, including the only two misconducts, with Ruttan getting one of the plus five minors. He engaged in battles with Pat Assistotine, Larry Maverty and Don Forsythe at different times.

Back in the clean but high-scoring first period, Heffernan knocked down Ruttan's goal-mouth shot and plucked it by Curtis for a 1-0 score at 3.17. Jewell broke into the clear when Belleville messed up a clearing play to make it 2-0 at 5.50.

Ruttan cut the margin in half, finishing a short passout on a play with Elliott and Rowbotham at 7.17, but Bill Watson put that back two minutes later. Jamieson was in the sin-bin when Moe Hunter rapped home the second try at 11.06. Jewell stole the disc in the dying seconds of the period to open up a 4-2 lead.

Ron Hull dashed in after taking Goyer's perfect pass and deked Curtis out of his skates on a pretty play to make it 4-3 at the two-minute mark of the second. Belleville was all over Curtis' net but Another Peterborough scoring before Ruttan and Assistotine mixed it to cool down the play.

Watson's second goal, at 7.15, completed the Petes' scoring then the homesiers took over. Maverty combined with Goyer and Assistotine at 7.42 and Goyer finally tied the count with a single shot on a power play at 10.35.

Before Kerruish potted the winner both Monzon and Curtis turned in determined third-period bids. Monzon stoned Eckert when he was in alone and on the rebuttin play Kerruish broke in the.

Meanwhile Ruttan slashed Mavety without reason and drew double minors at 2.16, then went after Forsythe, again with his stick at 18.47. He got his fifth minor and misconduct on this occasion.

Peterboro — Curtis, Bryan Watson, Jamieson, Nicholls, Jewell, Muldread, Eckert, Heffernan, Bill Watson, Ruttan, Wright, Morris, Millburn.

Belleville — Moxon, Assistotine, Mavety, Rowbotham, Elliott, Forsythe, Ethier, Hunter, R. Hull, Kerruish, Kennedy, Needham, Goyer.

Referees — Vern Goyer and Tim Williams, Belleville.

'Sugar', Baldoni Fight Tonight

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, who says "a birth certificate has never proved anything," matches his aging but ageless body against young and rugged Tony Baldoni in a 10-round bout tonight.

Robinson, 39 May 3, has visions of retiring as king of world middleweight boxers, where he has reigned five times.

"I'd love to quit with boxers if I could—with the title," Robinson said recently.

The Baldoni scrap is a tuneup of Sugar Ray's return bout with Paul Pender in Boston April 23. Pender won a split decision from Robinson last Jan. 25 to win the New York-Massachusetts version of the middleweight championship.

Robinson was stripped of his when the game was called, the title last summer by the National Boxing Association because he failed to defend against an approved fighter within the prescribed time limit.

Robinson has a 30-year ring record of six defeats in 153 fights. Baldoni, a 28 - year - old mauler, has a 23-6 record.

Hotly-Dispute Coal Gives Bulldogs Win Over Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A disputed goal and consistent play made the difference Friday night in the Toronto Marlboro hockey playoffs as Windsor Bulldogs stayed alive by defeating Toronto Maroons and Oshawa Alouettes took the lead in the north.

Goaltender Gerry Mazinga of Chatham Maroons had his mitt behind the goal line when he stopped a puck with his glove—so the referees ruled. Chatham players thought otherwise and it took 15 minutes to restore order as the Windsor arena.

Officials finally calmed down the simmering Maroons and the Bulldogs held on their one-goal lead. That left their best-of-seven final series at 3-2 for Chatham, with the sixth game at Chatham tonight and a seventh, if necessary, at Windsor Sunday.

Alouettes gained a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five OHA series with Sudbury Combines by crushing them 9-0. Winger Cliff Connelly scored three goals for the winners.

At Windsor the game seemed like another win for t' Maroons who led 2-1 until the 15th minute of the third period. Then, all in a minute's play, Lou Dietrich and Joe Zeffiro scored to bring the home team.

Other Bulldog marksmen were John Utendale and Lou Bendo, while George Atkins, Jim Connelly and Joe Lee scored for Chatham.

Chatham players demonstrated wildly after referee Jerry Olinski confirmed the winning goal. They ripped down the screen behind the net and swung at the goal judge with their sticks.

Apart from this one outburst, it was a fast, clean, closecheck-ing game with only three minor penalties. Bulldogs had a 36-26 edge in shots on goal.

Hull-Ottawa Shades Wolves

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A rookie helped Hull - Ottawa Canadiens retain a lead in their semi-final series against Sudbury Wolves by a 3-2 win Friday night in the Eastern Professional Hockey League. They trail the series 2-2.

Montreal Royals meanwhile, pinned their hopes on another newcomer to stave off possible elimination on Sunday by Trois-Rivieres Lions who lead the best-of-seven semi-final 3-1.

Hull-Ottawa and Sudbury meet in the sixth game of their series Sunday in Hull, Que.

It was Kenny Laufman of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen whose addition contributed to the Hull - Ottawa victory. Coach Sammy Pollock put him in place of Billy Carter with Bob Courcy and Gilles Tremblay in the Canadiens' line.

The move paid off as Courcy fired two goals and Tremblay notched the other. Laufman assisted on two goals and made the other move on Tremblay's winning counter.

Real Chevrefils opened the scoring for Sudbury, but Courcy's pair gave Canadiens the first-period edge. Ernie Roche tied it up in the second and Tremblay fired the winner 10 seconds after the opening of the third.

NEW PLAN FROM STATE FARM MUTUAL "THE WORLD'S LARGEST CAR INSURER"

NEW SAVINGS, NEW BENEFITS IN AUTO INSURANCE! FIND OUT IF YOU QUALIFY

FIVE NEW FEATURES

1 NEW LOW RATES ON LIABILITY!
2 NEW "STEP DOWN" RATES ON COLLISION & COMPREHENSIVE!
3 NEW SECOND-CAR DISCOUNT ON COLLISION COVERAGE!
4 NEW "SMALL CAR" DISCOUNT!
5 NEW MEDICAL BENEFITS AVAILABLE!

Here is the best all-around insurance buy! State Farm has every offered you. And this is the company that's always been famous for its low rates and friendly service.

☞ Ask about the new liability rates! We estimate that some 500,000 Ontario drivers may qualify for new savings under our new Class Plan. Your new rate depends on how much you drive, who else in the family drives your car, and what you use your car for. For instance, if you drive for "pleasure," you naturally get a better break than somebody who drives for "business."

☞ Ask about the new "step down" rates on collision and comprehensive! Effective now on State Farm policies, you can qualify for one of two new auto age-group rates that may give you real savings.

☞ Ask about the new second-car discount on collision! State Farm's discount now applies to collision as well as to liability coverage—for the first time in Canada.

☞ Ask about the new "small car" discount! State Farm now gives you an extra 10% discount on major coverage for almost every make and model of small car. This is new in Canada and another "first" for State Farm. (Also applies to families who will receive a second-car discount on liability and collision.)

☞ Ask about new Extended Medical Payments! State Farm now offers extended medical payments that give more liberal benefits. You and members of your family are insured against injury, so a result of an auto accident, whether you're driving, riding or walking.

☞ Policyholders! The new plan will be reflected in your next premium notice.

SEE YOUR STATE FARM AGENT NOW!

No matter when your present insurance expires, you'll be smart to see your State Farm agent now. He's listed in the White Pages.

OR, if you like, fill out and mail the coupon. You'll be given full information promptly. Whatever you do, don't wait. There's a real "buy" waiting for you.

TV TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Have you ever wondered why television reception is better on some days than it is on others?

Although clear weather isn't necessary for a good television picture, high and low barometric pressures have a definite bearing on fringe area reception.

During the winter months the barometer begins dropping just before a mild spell and reception usually improves. When a cold snap is due the pressure will rise sharply and reception will likely fall off.

Generally speaking, the period of best reception is from April until September when atmospheric conditions are most stable.

It is during periods of poor reception that the condition of your TV set counts most. If your set is out of adjustment or needs repairs, you may not get any picture — or at best a snowy one.

CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 354 Coleman St. can't do anything about atmospheric conditions but they can make certain that your set is performing at its best. Give them a call at WO 8-6791.

THE LAST ANGRY MAN.

Starring Paul Muni nominated 1959 Academy Award best actor.

When an actor of Paul Muni's stature returns to the motion picture screen, in a role that is tailor-made to his vast talent, it is truly an event of the first magnitude. Muni currently stars with David Wayne in Columbia Pictures' film version of Gerald Green's best-selling novel, "The Last Angry Man" opening Friday for its first showing at the Park Theatre. Featured in the principal supporting roles of the new Columbia drama are Betsy Palmer, Luther Adler, Claudia McNeil and Joby Baker.

Muni, who has etched some of the finest film portraits in Hollywood, is magnificently seen in "The Last Angry Man" as a general practitioner, dedicated to his slum-dweller practice.

Fame and fortune, which Muni has scorned all his life, beckon when television executive Wayne asks him to appear as the first personality in a new TV show, "Americana U.S.A.", on the strength of a little humor interest item printed about the medico and his condemnation of "the gaols who won't let you in". Both for Muni and Wayne, the forthcoming TV show is seen as means of resolving personal crises; Muni's continuing dissatisfaction with his neighborhood and his patients, Wayne's failing marriage to lovely Betsy Palmer.

Advance reports indicate that Muni has not lost his magic touch; if anything the years have only polished and strengthened his enormous technique. Wayne is as capable as always and Miss Palmer is effective as his wife; Luther Adler plays a brash specialist and Muni's long-time friend, Claudia McNeil, who, currently stars on Broadway in "A Raisin in the Sun", and newcomer Joby Baker, as Muni's nephew, are also featured in support.

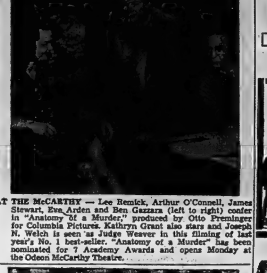
"The Last Angry Man" was penned for the screen by Gerald Green from his novel. The Columbia drama was directed by Daniel Mann.

ADDED FEATURE

"On The Waterfront" winner of eight academy awards stars Marlon Brando, Eva Marie Saint, Karl Malden, Lee J. Cobb and Rod Steiger. There will be but one complete show for this double attraction commencing at 7.25. Cozy Theatre feature times for start of attractions.

Als to Scout U.S. College Football Teams

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four football league will send scouts out to the United States today to scout the training camps of some 60 U.S. colleges.



Chief scout Harvey Johnson and assistant coach Ken Ploen and Leo Cahill will spend 30 days in the U.S. covering about 20 colleges each.

At a press conference Friday Perry Moss, general manager, also announced that announcement of signings will be made shortly.

He said two players were offered raises and one—a Canadian—took a big cut in salary. Others were asked to accept cut salaries. He gave no names.

The Canadian Colts State University head coach also said he had viewed films of all Montreal games last year and had graded the players on the opposing teams as well as the Alouettes.

"We'll have the best records and probably lose more games than any other club in Canada," he quipped. The Alouettes open a monthlong training camp for 100 Canadian prospects May 2 and Moss said he expects 30 to 35 will be invited to attend the club's regular camp opening July 4.

Yanks, Canucks May Make Hockey Deal

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—The possibility of an agreement between the Western United States Collegiate Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was suggested Friday night.

Gordon Juckes, of Melville, Sask., CAHA president, announced he has been invited to represent the CAHA at a meeting of the collegiate association in Minneapolis April 9-10. He will discuss with the WCHA mutual problems regarding Canadian hockey players accepting scholarships to play for the seven U.S. universities that make up the association.

OASA Opens Annual Session In Woodstock

WOODSTOCK (CP)—The Ontario Amateur Softball Association opened its annual two-day session here Friday to plan for the 1960 season.

Included in the opening day's agenda were nominations for offices. Elections are today.

Among the nominees were six who are assured of acclamation: Clarence Perkins of Simcoe, for his second term as president; Leroy Pickard of St. Catharines, for his fifth term as secretary; W. L. Alguire of St. Catharines, for his 24th term as treasurer, and H. K. Champion of Hannon, and Dave Leether of Peterborough, for their second year as directors.

Two others will run for office today: Andy K. Davidson of Stratford, will try for the second time for president's office, and Orville Pearson of Woodstock will be trying for a directorship.

Don Lee of Belleville continues as a vice-president.

Tiger Wins Split Verdict Over Zalazar

BOSTON (AP)—Muscular Dick Tiger of Nigeria stopped Argentina's Victor Zalazar with short, damaging punches for a split 10-round decision Friday night at the Boston Arena. Each weighed 161 for the action-packed bout.

Tiger, the British Empire middleweight champion and eighth-ranking challenger by National Boxing Association standards, finished strong with a relentless pursuit of his opponent.

Seeking higher ratings and a possible title shot, Tiger showed plenty [illegible] over the first half of the contest.

Referee Jimmy McCarron and [illegible] gave Tiger [illegible] and Judge [illegible] Zalazar.

At the Belle

Romance, Action and Adventure in 3 Feature Show

"The Adventurers", the true and shocking story of a counterfeiting gang who schemed to steal Abraham Lincoln's body from its grave, arrives Monday at the Belle Theatre, as one of a new two feature program.

Victor McLaglen, George MacReady and Fay Spain head the cast of this Twentieth Century-Fox film. The Rogue-scoundrel, set in 1876, is based upon material taken directly from the closed files of the United States Secret Service. It deals with an ex-convict and a mortician who conspire to abduct the entombed remains of the Great Emancipator and exchange it for the freedom of an imprisoned counterfeiter who has engraved an almost perfect fifty dollar bill.

Victor McLaglen — whose blend of gorilla strength and blustering humor won him an acclaim in "The Quiet Man" — is the ex-convict who attempts one of the boldest schemes of U. S. crime and George MacReady, the menace of "Gilda" and "Rock on My Door" is the Springfield undertaker who digs his own grave.

Fay Spain, who came to films via such television shows as "Superset", "Wire Service" and "Cheyenne" appears as the orphaned niece of MacReady, in love with Carl Benton Reid's stable-hand involved with the counterfeiters.

END FEATURE
UNSALTED DISH

Love without jealousy is like a dish without salt. But sometimes dishes can be oversalted. One has only to look in the morning paper. Every day we can find some interesting variation on the eternal-theme of jealousy, as in the De Luxe Color 20th Century-Fox release, "Three Murderesses", the companion Feature attraction Monday at the Belle theatre.

Jealousy is a blind passion, for instance — suspecting a secretary, without even having seen her once, because a man spends too much time lately in the office, is another well known facet of jealousy. The nerves of people in love are always under high tension. No wonder that sometimes the fuses burn through.

Judge Tom McNeeley Sr. scored for the winner, 99-95 and 99-94 on the Massachusetts 10-point must scoring system. The decision was split when Judge George Flate called it even at 96-96.

Monday, April 4

General tendencies: There are all kinds of chances today for you to bring your creative skills to the attention of those who are able to market them. And in personal matters also you certainly can be very affectionate with those of whom you are most fond. An early change in perspective is advisable. Then tonight have fun.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Concentrating upon all matters connected with the home and family will bring excellent results. Take home little gifts, have guests who are charming and compatible and have a delightfully happy evening of fun.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — This is the right day to set up that appointment for the future in order to carry through with some constructive plans positively and intelligently. Then get shopping, studying, selling, etc., done quickly and cleverly.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Begin week properly by giving full attention to important monetary affairs and streamlining any business ventures. Seek best methods to have a greater income in the future. Set up more efficient bookkeeping system.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You can commence week properly by being most friendly and getting the co-operation of others. P. M. be out visiting with good comrades so that you can make concrete plans for whatever constructive activities interest you. Have fun, too.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — It will be possible to secretly garner the information you need and then get the support you require from others. P. M. fine for romantic leanings or social activities that bring pleasure. Go to a nice night club, if possible.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Confer with comrades today and work out mutual aims. Every opportunity is yours to express yourself explicitly and gain their support and co-operation. Let there be a friendly interchange of ideas.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Be sure you are out in the world of activity to get the appreciation and support of higher-ups. They are in a mood to assist you as you desire. P. M. have dinner with most influential one.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Every opportunity is yours now to be of help to new places and sites where greater profit can be realized. Get new customers. meet those enlightened persons who can help you to acquire a more workable and happy philosophy of life.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — First day to look into a most modern system that can be applied successfully to any civic, business or personal interests you have. P. M. Ideal for resolving greater rapport with loved one through deeper devotion and kindness.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — It will be possible to cement better relations with associates, and even with competition, through serious discussion, but it is imperative you know your subject matter well. P. M. go out for relaxation at sports.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — With all that work facing you now, be sure you get an early start. Labor methodically and you can accomplish a great deal. P. M. step out with co-workers to some nice new place and reach for better understanding while at play.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A tailor-made day for you. You are brimming over with inspiration and can take the action that will bring you nearer to your aspirations. Show devotion to loved ones and be friendly and cheerful with everyone. Grow.

If your child is born today — The fine child born today will early understand all practical affairs and be particularly good at buying and selling. But there is a slight weakness in being a bit hypersensitive, which can be corrected by proper example and good diet. Also, be sure not to bolster the ego disproportionately. Give us fine a combined course of education as you may — the practical and the spiritual.

Worker Held On Charge of Murder Attempt

TORONTO (CP)—Salvatore La Rosa, a construction worker, was charged with attempted murder Friday in connection with the stabbing of his wife, Catrina 24.

La Rosa was charged after he surrendered to police.

Mrs. La Rosa was taken to hospital with multiple stab wounds and head injuries. She was reported in serious condition. Police said the stabbing followed a quarrel Thursday night.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Plush Retirement Home Nothing But Problems Claims This Couple

By THOMAS COLLINS

The golden years are getting all fouled up with houses.

For the last 30 years or so the working people have been taking unto themselves a mortgage and 30 feet of frontage. Now at retirement age there are problems.

A man named Frank Bidwell has brought one facet of these problems into focus.

Mr. Bidwell retired in 1958 from a successful career as a travelling salesman. He had a retirement income of $65 a month, investments of $16,500 and a checking account of around $400. He and his wife also owned a $14,000 house which was paid for.

"My wife had her heart set on a fine home for our retirement," Mr. Bidwell says. "I couldn't marshal any good arguments against her. And anyway, since I had been clack-clacking across the country for all these years like a gypsy, I longed for a nest place to rest my weary frame.

"So I agreed we would reward ourselves with a fine little $25,000 number that was perched on the side of a ravine. It had glass walls, paneling, a pink bathroom — the works. And it certainly was a relief from the night trains to Peoria.

"Also, since we had taken $12,000 from my investments to pay for the place in cash, and since our income was adequate, we could manage.

"But how wrong you can be.

SMART-SET COMMUNITY"

"In the first place, we're in the midst of a smart-set community that is driving foreign sports cars. That's what you get with a smart retirement house. The people don't know us from Adam, and care less. Every Saturday night, as a matter of fact, we are nigh-watchmen for the community because everybody else has gone off to have fun while we sit home in house slippers."

Mr. Bidwell says, however, that this is only part of the problem.

A retired couple who put a saddle on a $25,000 house, he says, are going to ride off a financial cliff.

"In the first place," he insists "a retired couple doesn't need $25,000 worth of brick and shingles. All those trailer parks in the south and all those cubby-hole homes for retired people prove that a couple past 65 does not need a baseball diamond to raise around in. My wife and I are living in one-third the floor space of our $25,000 house.

"In the second place, a $25,000 house represents a pile of money. As an investment it's worth $90 a month in income.

"In the third place, a $25,000 home ain't free, and retired people would be smart to figure that out. My real estate taxes at the moment are $675 a year. They will surely go higher. Added to this is the insurance on (a) the house itself and (b) the furniture.

"And if you think you can live in a $25,000 house and not contribute to everything from the Red Cross to the Society for the Preservation of Blue Jays, you are kidding yourselves.

DON'T BECOME A SUCKER

Brother! What a sucker you become when you are affluence after you retire. Even the income tax people start taking a cross-eyed look at you."

It is Mr. Bidwell's opinion, belatedly, that the normal retired couple doesn't have to impress anybody and doesn't have to have cocktail parties for mobs of people on Saturday night. The experience he and his wife have had is that a living room, a bedroom and a kitchen with a table is about all you need.

"The money you save between a $25,000 house and this," Mr. Bidwell says, "will enable you to pay the transportation for your children and grandchildren to come sit-sitting. It will also pay, with money left over, for lodging for the children in a motel down the road while you get acquainted with the grandchildren.

"When I was struggling in my career at age 35, my wife and I lived in a two-room third floor walk-up. Then, I certainly could have impressed people with a $25,000 house. It's ironic that at 62, when I could afford the $25,000 house, it really doesn't impress anybody except the real-estate salesman who loaded it on me."

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mr. Eldon Anderson underwent an operation in Toronto Hospital on Tuesday.

Friends here were sorry to hear o fthe sudden death of Mr. Fred Barnum at his home on Tuesday. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife the former Cora Mehlejohn of Bonarlaw, two sons, Roy of Campbellford, Don of Guelph and two daughters, Mr. D. Case (Evelyn), of Toronto, and Mrs. Lyons (Helen) of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sory, of Spry Settlement, visited Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Lillian Anderson is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Anderson and Lorne Anderson of Peterborough.

The funeral of Mr. Eva Brunton was held on Thursday. Mr. Brunton was a former resident of this community.

Mrs. Alfred Wright, suffered a stroke at her home and was taken by ambulance to Campbellford Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McKeown, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barlow attended the funeral of their uncle, Mr. Fred Barnum.

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell, of South Monaghan, spent the week-end with their son, Jim McConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Brunton attended the funeral of his grandfather Mr. Ernest Brunton on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Heath and Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt visited Mr. and Mrs. L. Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Mac Anderson, of Minto, on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson and family have moved to Havelock where Mr. Thompson has taken over the store of Mr. Jack Davidson.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McKeown, Foxboro, visited Mr. and Mrs. F. McKeown.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dickie, Bev and Kenie, of Brantford, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dickie.

Friends were sorry to hear that Mrs. Roy Brown, of Peterborough formerly of Bonarlaw, is seriously ill in Civic Hospital. Mr. Roy Brown is a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough following an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Mowatt and Jerry of Oshawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt during the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Baker, Toronto visited Mr. Jason Baker at Bellevville General Hospital over the weekend.

Mrs. Allan McComb is undergoing treatment in Toronto Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ketcheson and family of Campbellford, visited Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burkitt, on Sunday.

Congratulations are extended Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Webb, of Bonarlaw, who on March 31st will celebrate their 63rd wedding anniversary.

Medallion Electric Homes built with your dreams in mind

To be able to Live Better Electrically is all-important to modern families.

Recognizing this, the electrical industry has established a standard which will guarantee the excellence of a home's electrical system. A home that features the better installations and facilities that meet this standard is awarded the Medallion Symbol.

When you buy a home built to Medallion electric standards—you are assured of extra comfort, convenience and efficiency in these three important ways . . . all of which help to protect your investment.

1. FULL HOUSEPOWER—with plenty of circuits, outlets and switches.
2. PLANNED LIGHTING—a new high standard of lighting for all areas.
3. APPLIANCE CONDITIONING—some major units installed plus wiring to accommodate additional major appliances.

You can modernize your present home to Medallion standards

All progressive builders and electrical contractors recommend and will install electrical systems that qualify for Medallion certification.

Find out how you can have a Medallion Home. Call your electrical contractor or your local Hydro Office.

Threat Of Floods In South Ontario Seen Easing Off

Precipitation Area Said Sliding Slowly to East

TORONTO (CP) — The rain which aggravated the threat of flooding across Southern Ontario "looks like it is easing off" and will likely head into Quebec by tonight, the weatherman said early today.

The public forecaster said the "precipitation area is sliding slowly across Ontario and looks like it will ease to the east."

Rain Sunday and the outlook for more today caused Ontario's flood control officer to issue a warning Sunday night that many areas of Southern Ontario "might get some flooding in the low lands along the rivers."

Donald McMullen, hydro meteorologist of the conservation branch of the Ontario planning department, issued the warning.

COLDER IN NORTH

He said he did not expect "any major flooding because the rivers "can come up a fair amount" in Northern Ontario to the situation was different because temperatures were lower.

How much relief from the flood in Southern Ontario

CHICAGO (AP) — The surging Mississippi River, on a wild spring rampage along a wide stretch in southern Illinois, pounded three major levees north of Quincy today, inundating thousands of acres of fertile farmlands.

It was the first major break in the protective wall near Meyer, Ill., about 35 miles north of Quincy, and sent mountains of water cascading across an estimated 30,000 acres of corn and wheat land south and eastward.

Further major flooding downstream seemed certain, authorities said, but temporary relief was indicated, due to the heavy flooding near Meyer.

The Mississippi climbed to 24.02 feet at Quincy, more than six feet over flood stage and nearly a foot higher on record. However, no major flooding was expected in the city of 47,000 situated on high ground.

2,000 EVACUATED

National guardsmen, college students and other volunteer workers lost their round-the-clock battle to try to halt the mile-wide Mississippi from flooding the levees at the Jos Caldwell from his miles north of Meyer. About 2,000 persons living in Meyer and Warsaw, Ill., and Canton and Alexandria, Mo., had been evacuated earlier Sunday.

The break-through left thousands of other flood fighters on the Illinois-Missouri sides of the Mississippi sought to stem overflows from Keokuk, in southwest Iowa, to Louisiana, Mo.

Other rivers and streams in the Mississippi's other midwest states still were causing trouble, after more than a week of flooding, but the worst appeared over in hard-hit Nebraska.

The spring floods which also have hit Wisconsin, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota have driven thousands from their homes.

Herbert Hoover, 86-year-old former President, climbed six cents a dozen.

The index of food costs fell to 139.4 on March 1 from 139.8 a month earlier, and was below the year-earlier level of 139 on March 1, 1953.

The other sectors of the consumer budget, there were small price increases for clothing and household operation but a small change in costs of shelter and miscellaneous goods and services.

The living cost decline in Fredericton was preceded by a rise in industrial wages and salaries. At Feb. 1 the index latest available — was 129.3 compared with 103.6 a month earlier and 108.4 a year earlier. The index is based on 1949 figures equalling 100.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Rainfall over Ontario about one inch that occurred in Southern Ontario overnight was caused by a rapidly moving disturbance that raced northeastward from the Gulf of Mexico. Another such disturbance located in the eastern gulf this morning may bring another period of steady rain to southeastern Ontario tonight. Tuesday, generally cloudy and cool weather is expected over the entire province.

Troops And Police Assault Negroes Refusing To Work, Even Raiding Their Homes

Capetown Hospitals Treat Hundreds Of Natives Suffering Head Injuries

By ADRIAN PORTER

CAPETOWN (AP) — Troops and police clubbed hundreds of Negroes in the Capetown area today when the Negroes failed to join a native back-to-work movement. Police also staged house-to-house raids and shooting was heard in one Negro township.

"Police and army people seem to be beating up everybody," a Negro nurse in Nyanga township reported by telephone. "We are doing our best to help the injured, but we have run out of bandages. There is blood everywhere."

White civilians in the Capetown suburbs telephoned local newspapers that police were assaulting Negroes in the streets and taking them to police stations.

Policemen and steel-helmeted troops were stationed at bridges, street and road junctions and other key points in Capetown.

House-to-house raids were reported under way in Nyanga.

It was the biggest series of raids on Negroes since the present wave of racial unrest in South Africa swelled into violence two weeks ago.

A Negro priest telephoned from Nyanga to Negro Sentement, a city centre of racial unrest, saying two were killed and three wounded there. Later reports from another Negro there said police opened fire and four Africans were wounded. He gave their names and denied anyone was killed.

It appeared Negroes were assembled also a small hill in Nyanga, defying police armored cars. This was where the firing reported earlier had taken place.

Across South Africa, near Durban, on the east coast, one Negro was killed when police charged scattered demonstrators at Clermont Township. Unrest also continued in other places of the troubled country.

Capetown's hospitals reported a steep rise in the number of suffering head injuries from police clubs.

TO HALT BOYCOTT

The tough police moves apparently were aimed at breaking up the Negro work boycott in Capetown once and for all. The Negro stay-at-home campaign had hit this big port city hardest of all South Africa's major population centres. The back-to-work campaign was started two weeks ago on the heels of a police attack that left 69 persons — most carry, Africans — dead in Sharpeville, and they moved in on the holidays still at home.

"This is police retaliation," said one Negro who telephoned from Nyanga. "But the Africans (Negroes) who went to work will not stay when they see terms home and find out what has been happening."

As Negroes began arriving in town for work small police patrols moved in. Then Saracens moved about the streets ordering them not to "gather around." Assemblies of any sort were banned under the nation's emergency regulations.

The raids followed what appeared to be Capetown's quietest

CHARGES MAY RESULT FROM TUNNEL DEATHS

Roberts Studying Jury's Report

TORONTO (CP)—The attorney-general's office is examining a coroner's jury report to determine whether criminal charges should be brought against anyone for the suburban North York tunnel accident in which five workmen died March 17.

Attorney-General Roberts said Sunday night the affair had been serious and "a charge will certainly be laid if there is sufficient evidence to indicate we could prove it."

The jury found Saturday that the main reasons for the deaths were failure to carry out safety regulations governing work under compressed air. They found almost all regulations governing the subject were violated at least once and continually in some instances.

Their report, which contains several recommendations, is being examined by William C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions. The jury found no individual to blame.

URGES DALEY RESIGN

Donald C. MacDonald, CCF leader in the provincial legislature, said Sunday that Ontario Labor Minister Daley should resign, "live but to resign" in view of the jury's report.

Cost of Living Index Declines For 4th Month

OTTAWA (CP) — Lower food prices in February brought about the fourth consecutive monthly decline in Canadian living costs, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The bureau said the consumer price index declined one-fifth of one per cent to 128.9 on March 1 from 129.2 a month earlier.

That made a drop of nearly 1½ points in four months from the record high of 128.3 on Dec. 1 but the decline offset only part of the increase. A year's increase to the March 1 index was 125.5.

The index yardstick of living costs is based on 1949 price levels equalling 100.

The February decline resulted entirely from a relatively large 3.2per-cent fall in food costs with lower prices for beef and pork, bacon and a wide range of fresh vegetables. Egg prices, after hitting a record low of 41 cents a dozen the previous month, climbed six cents a dozen.

The index of food costs fell to 139.4 on March 1 from 139.8 a month earlier, and was below the year-earlier level of 139 on March 1, 1953.

The other sectors of the consumer budget, there were small price increases for clothing and household operation but a small change in costs of shelter and miscellaneous goods and services.

TRAFFIC DEATHS MOUNTING AS WEATHER WARMS

24 Fatalities During Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Canada's toll of weekend fatalities—especially traffic deaths —has been rising since the arrival of spring.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed at least 21 persons died in traffic accidents during the weekend. In all, 24 deaths were reported.

In the first weekend of spring eight persons were reported killed in traffic accidents across the country, and a week ago 11 died.

This weekend Ontario had seven traffic deaths including a car-train level crossing accident near Kingston that claimed the lives of a man and his seven-year-old son. An hour before the fatal collision the same train had hit a pickup truck, sending its driver to hospital.

Quebec reported six traffic deaths, British Columbia four, Alberta three and Manitoba one.

The survey includes deaths in traffic and weekend fatalities in civilies but does not cover industrial accidents.

In Brantford, James Hill, 15, was electrocuted Saturday night when he and a friend climbed a hydro pole in an attempt to see the baby-sitting in a down town hotel.

Peter Ivor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hill of Charing Cross, was thrown 20 feet to the pavement. His companion, Richard Krantz, 16, was not injured but police said he almost collapsed from shock.

The boys had tried to enter the hotel by the front door but 2,200 volts leading from it. Firemen told they could not see the girls.

They went to a back lane, passing themselves up to the bars of a window, grabbed the pole and climbed to the platform.

"It was quite a feat," a police officer said. A transformer on the platform has 550 and 2,200 volts leading from it. Firemen told they could not see the girls.

Month-Old Actors' Strike To Dampen Academy Awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tonight is Oscar night and the United States and Canada, via television, will get a look at the prettiest bunch of unemployed actors in history.

The month-old actors strike will put a pall over the 32nd annual Academy Awards but the public won't see it. The 90-minute show NBC-TV at 10:30 p.m. EST promises to be as gay and glamorous as ever.

If more time is needed, as extra 20 minutes will be tacked on the end. Last year's scheduled two-hour show found itself with 20 minutes of embarrassing dead air.

Fourteen of the 20 acting nominees will be on hand, including the two favorites for best actress — Elizabeth Taylor and Simone Signoret—both wearing gowns by the same fashion designer.

Audrey Hepburn, also a potential winner, is kept in Europe by pregnancy and Katharine Hepburn, who seldom appears at industry functions, will be at home in Connecticut.

Of the top actor nominees, only Warren Beatty will be absent. Favorite is Charlton Heston who is expected to win on a Ben-Hur sweep but James Stewart and Jack Lemmon could take it.

Lemmon, who won the supporting Oscar with a comedy performance a few years ago, could repeat in the top acting category. It would make him the first actor to ever win in both divisions and comedy is the hard way to do it.

In the supporting categories, Hugh Griffith, a favorite, is in England; George Scott is in New York play and Thelma Ritter is at sea on a world cruise. Shelley Winters and Ed Wynn, favorites for their performances in The Diary of Anne Frank, will be present.

Some of the biggest names in the business will hand out awards including Gary Cooper, Olivia de Havilland, Tony Curtis, Fred Astaire, Doris Day, Susan Hayward, John Wayne, Natalie Wood, Rock Hudson, Mitzi Gaynor, Edmond O'Brien, Gene Kelly, Gina Lollobrigida and Robert Ryan.

Entertainment will be furnished by Yves Montand, husband of Miss Signoret; Ella Fitzgerald, Joni James, Frankie Laine, Cary Grant, Frankie Vaughan and Dinah Davis.

Bob Hope will be emcee.

Negro Entertainer, Toronto Girl Call Off Engagement

TORONTO (CP)—The engagement is off between Negro entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. and Joan Stuart, 20-year-old Toronto singer whose parents said at the outset they didn't approve on racial and religious grounds.

John Hopkins, Davis's road manager, came here during the weekend to talk the situation over with Miss Stuart's parents and Sunday night the engagement was off.

He said the parting was amicable with "no blame on either side." Their separate careers would not allow them enough time to devote to marriage, he said. Davis's father had been ill in California and there were other family troubles.

Miss Stuart confirmed the breakup saying "he has a lot of people and with all his commitments we decided that it just wouldn't work."

She said she had visited him in Las Vegas recently "but his schedule didn't allow busy life barely saw him for two minutes at a time."

Mr. Hopkins said Davis has engagements in Toronto, Montreal, Chicago and South America between now and July. Miss Stuart opens tonight in Harvey Lembeck's Toronto-produced variety show Living Time.

Miss Stuart, who met Davis here during his stay in Toronto, played engagements in Montreal, announced the engagement last November but in January said they had parents. At the time she said, "I have made up my mind and that's all there is to it."

The parents said they objected on racial and religious grounds. Davis is a convert to the Jewish faith. His father is a member of the United Church of Canada.

In January Davis met Joan's parents when he played a Toronto night club.

Hold-Price-Line Theme of New British Budget

LONDON (CP) — The government slapped a higher tax on cigarettes and made only minor increases elsewhere in a bold-the-price-line budget presented to Parliament today.

Derich Heathcoat Amory, chancellor of the exchequer, abolished the purchase tax on cigarette lighters and slashed duties on imported fruit.

But he upped the price of a pack of cigarettes (suspected by cents—from 2s 3d (52 cents) to 2s 3d (54 cents)—and left unchanged the basic income tax rate of 38.35 per cent.

Mr. K. Talks Soft and Tough

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev said today Russia will do "everything for the solution of the question of a German peace treaty on a basis acceptable to the Western powers."

But he added something ugly in reporting on his visit to France. Khrushchev once more insisted on signing separate treaties with East and West Germany, a proposal repeatedly rejected by the West.

Khrushchev said the German question had bulked large in his talks with President de Gaulle and he expressed belief those talks had clarified the Soviet position for the "coming. The Soviet premier returned Sunday from a 12-day visit to France.

Storekeeper Believes He Has Found Daughter Last Seen 20 Years Ago

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg storekeeper believes he has found a daughter he last saw in Poland almost 20 years ago. The young woman denies she is the girl.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Erna Helwaski, 25, dropped into a store near her home to buy candy. Mrs. Jacob Sackerow of Arcadia saw her he thought he recognized the daughter from whom he was separated in his war-torn homeland in 1941.

As they talked in a subsequent meeting, he became more certain he was right. He visited Mrs. Helwaski at her home and told her his story.

When the Russians moved into the village of Wolyn, Mr. Gusz was sent to a Siberian labor camp. He left behind his wife and daughter, Anna, then five, and his son, Joseph, about two.

Shielding they were victims of the Nazis, Mr. Guss remarried and came to Canada in 1947. Mrs. Helwaski, who was in this country in 1954, told him she was born in Wolyn of German parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schroder.

Mr. Guss thinks the Schroders were neighbors in Wolyn and that they saved his children by claiming them as their own. His description of Mr. Schroder seems to fit the man Mrs. Helwaski believes to be her father.

Strontium Level In British Milk Up 40 Per Cent

LONDON (Reuters)—The level of strontium-90 in British milk has leaped 40 per cent, according to official figures published today.

The figures, covering a one-year period ending in June, 1959, blamed "nuclear weapons trials in the autumn of 1958" for the increase.

Britain's agricultural research council published the figures which were prepared by its radiobiological laboratory.

Strontium-90 is a dangerous radioactive component of the fallout from nuclear explosions. It is absorbed in bone marrow, particularly in children, by way of contaminated food.

The council said the strontium-90 level is unlikely to increase if atomic testing is not resumed.

It said: "Such information as is available for samples collected after June of 1959 show that the (strontium-90 level is continuing to rise in the bones of young children. This caused widespread concern among the British public, press and Parliament.

The figures released today showed that the average amount of strontium absorbed into new bone formation of British children living on milk alone would increase approximately 40 per cent.

If the large area of the country would this value be exceeded by more than about 50 per cent. But this would be the case in 1958 reproduced the highest readings—the strontium-90 level in milk at Hamilton-90, assuming that only local cow milk was taken.

The medical research council, an independent body sponsored by the state, said in a 1958 report that 190 strontium units was the highest to which people could be exposed. Steps should be taken, it said, if the level rose above 10 units.

Nepal Premier Home From Peiping Says China Claims Mount Everest

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters) — Communist China has claimed Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain, it was announced today by Nepalese Premier B. P. Koirala after his return from a visit to Red China.

He told a press conference that Nepal does not accept China's claim to Everest.

Koirala's statement came after a meeting with Chou En-lai in Peiping.

Boundary and economic aid agreements were signed between China and Nepal during Koirala's 12-day visit to Peiping.

Koirala told a press conference in Hong Kong 10 day: ago the boundary issue will probably be completed within a few months.

An Indian expedition now is making a bid to scale Everest, and a Japanese expedition is planned for 1964.

Koirala said today he could not state whether the Chinese claim to Everest is the whole of the Everest range. He was assured he would cover only a few miles.

New Rail Union Is Formed Here At Meet Sunday

Running trades railroaders of Belleville terminal formed Local No. 41 of Canadian Trainmen's Union here yesterday.

Local No. 41 has 105 charter members, including conductors, firemen, engineers and trainmen from eight districts.

Mr. Lorne Hrabin, central region general chairman of Canadian National firemen, addressed the meeting and advocated Canadian autonomy in the labor union affairs of Canadian railroads.

Mr. J. Earl White of Vancouver, C.N.U. national secretary-treasurer, was in attendance and spoke of the coast-to-coast movement away from international unions and toward Canadian unions for Canadian railroad men.

The Belleville local is the 41st local to be formed and the union now extends from Vancouver to Halifax.

Provincial organizer John Pelout of Quebec, gave an account of activities in that province and Mr. Raoul Prioux of Montreal, assured the meeting of the tremendous interest of the men in his terminal.

He sure the men are with us all across the country no matter what line of transportation our bosses may say."

Mr. Thomas Hill was elected president of Local 41; Mr. Ron Goddard, vice-pres., and Mr. Bert Squirl, financial secretary. The shop steward is Mr. Robert Dalzell.

Education Board Will Meet With Federation Secretary

TRENTON — Members of the Board of Education will meet with S. G. B. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, tonight in the board room at North Trenton Public School.

Mr. Robinson has indicated that he would have no objection to the general public attending the meeting, but the board has decided it will be a closed meeting.

Among the matters to be discussed will be the recent pinkslipping of the school by the 11,000-member federation. The action followed the school board's vote of non-confidence in the principal of Trenton High School, E. S. McIlwain.

Mr. McIlwain resigned last week, because "he no longer had any confidence in the Board of Education".

Eleven teachers also issued a statement last week, announcing their resignations. They said their action was the result of the board's action against the principal and staff.

Mr. Robinson has stated that the federation is 100 per cent behind the principal, and that "there was no justification for the board's action". Mr. Robinson charged that the "areas of dissatisfaction" between the board and the principal, which were mentioned in a statement from the board were "trivialities".

Following a series of disagreements early this year, Mr. Robinson was called in by the staff to discuss the "areas of dissatisfaction" between the staff and the board. At this time, the board issued a statement to the effect that the board had no desire to be a party to disharmony in the principal and that the members were always prepared to keep faith with the staff.

On March 14 five members of the board passed a motion of non-confidence against the principal.

Library Board Chairman Addresses Kiwanis Club

TRENTON — Guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club last Thursday was Mr. F. W. Cox, chairman of the Trenton Library Board.

Mr. Cox was introduced by Wayne Simmons, who said Mr. Cox had gone to Trenton, East Scotland in 1917 as an executive of the British Chemical Company. When an explosion in the company plant suspended operations, the company in 1918, Mr. Cox stayed on in Trenton, working for the Trenton Cooperage Mill.

Mr. Simmons said that Mr. Cox had been the library board chairman for 38 years, serving as secretary-treasurer for 15 years.

Mr. Cox said he entered library work in 1921. J. F. Fraser, manager of the Standard Bank at that time, assisted him in the organization of a library in what was then known as the Belmont Building. This building, which is now the Municipal Arms, was razed in 1916 by the Canadian Chemical Company as an isolation hospital, and in 1918 as a morgue during the flu epidemic.

The council of 1921 agreed to permit the library to be in the upstairs room and in one room downstairs of the building, the other downstairs room being given over to civic government departments.

The books for the new library were donated by Trenton residents. Mr. Cox paid tribute to the Ladies' Library Club of the day. He said that club members held weekly bridge parties and teas to raise money for library work.

Mrs. Petty was the first librarian. She was followed by Miss Angus Mowat, who went on to become chief librarian for Ontario, and a well-known Canadian writer. Donald Fraser took over as librarian in 1927, and has served until 1941 when Miss Mary Saltsberg, the present librarian, assumed the post.

Mr. Cox said that in 1933 the library board had realized that the building was inadequate to accommodate the growing membership and circulation.

Town council agreed that a new library was necessary and with the co-operation of the Trenton Rotary Club under the chairmanship of "Buster" Alyea, erection of the new building was started in 1954, the structure being known as Governor Simcoe Park. The park had originally been given to the town by former mayor Jesse Funnell.

At this time, Mr. Cox said, the board considered the new building adequate to accommodate another 10 or 15 years.

Mr. Cox said he would like to see sections where one might obtain information about art, photography and certain other specialized subjects incorporated into any addition to the library.

The speaker reminded his audience that April 3-8 is Library Week across Canada. There will be a concentrated campaign to induce people to read for pleasure, profit and progress."

"No man ever made a success of his career without reading," said Mr. Cox.

He pointed out that the main object of any library was to provide a good children's section, because a child "feeds on good books."

At the present time, Mr. Cox said, there are 23,000 books in the library, and at any time a working nine hours a day hand, 1,400 members.

In 1959, there was a circulation of 70,000 books.

Mr. Cox said the board had saved approximately $7,000 and that town council had promised to match this sum for a new addition.

Howard Aziz told Mr. Cox that council had allowed for this purpose in the budget estimates for 1960.

Police Lick Firemen 3-2 In Zany Game

TRENTON — The broomball game to end all broomball games was played Saturday night in the Community Gardens between the Trenton police department and the Trenton fire department.

Actually, the game was the zaniest mixture of baseball, rugby, hockey, basketball and broomball anyone can record.

Due to the fact that the Gardens' personnel had started "Operation Ice Removal" the last part of the game took on the aspect of water polo.

Highlight of the game was the return of the referee, Sgt. Norman Mc Mitz, Trenton's answer to the Boston strong, who had somehow gathered the impression that he was trying out a hockey game.

Jack Graham, lawman, served under no such delusion and towards the whole affair and cast around on the ice watching the players skate by.

Elmer Stacey of the fire department slammed a dozen shots home over the fence which would have worked in hockey, but the game had been baseball.

Constable Ken Camp made quite an exhibition of fancy skating, a trifle too slow side, but fancy, nevertheless.

ONLY CASUALTY

Jack Wilson, fireman, was the only casualty of the game. He received a swat across the ear from a flying broom.

Duane Foshay came equipped with a crash helmet, the most effective piece of equipment on the ice.

Every rule of every game on record was broken and re-broken, in spite of the efforts of the referee, Mc Mitz. Even Police Chief Ellis, to maintain law and order.

Of course, a grand and glorious time broke out in the third period with the police playing three-deep all over the ice.

Fire Chief Ralph Simmons fatales" on the ice at intervals throughout, adding to the general confusion.

The final score: 3-2 for the police department.

MORE . . . . . ETA

After the game, the firemen played host to their adversaries with a buffet lunch at the fire hall.

A large crowd was on hand to cheer the players on and it is understood that quite a few people bought tickets who did not attend.

All proceeds will be given to the Salvation Army Guides to go towards a new campsite. The amount realized will be announced later. The S.P.D. band under the baton of Sgt. Howard Ellis provided music during intermissions.

Trenton Man Has Jet Boat

TRENTON — Residents strolling in the vicinity of the fire hall Friday morning ended up in a cluster around a turbocraft parked on the lawn.

The owner, Fred Ashton, who has lived in Trenton for 13 years, ascribed to the curious explained that he had spent the winter in Toronto, purchasing the boat there. Mr. Ashton plans to move with his life and family to Orlando, Fla., in the fall.

The cruiser is a 16-foot family boat. It has no rudder or gears. It is propelled by an jet propeller, sucking in water through its intake screen and squirting it out through a nozzle on the stern.

As an added attraction to the onlookers was the presence in the boat of the owner's daughter, Elizabeth, who had not accompanied her parents to Florida and was getting the first of the new craft for the first time.

Trenton Rescue Unit Joins Search for Plane

TRENTON (CP)—RCAF planes today were sent into a search for a United Airlines DC-3 plane with three aboard which is believed to have crashed Sunday in Lake Erie.

Two Dakotas and a Canso flying boat took off from the Search and Rescue Co-Ordination Centre here to search the lake area off Port Talbot, 11 miles south of St. Thomas and mid - way along Erie's south shore.

New Course

TRENTON — Bill Workman, director of the Recreation Commission, today said a judo course has been arranged with Pte. Mallett as instructor.

The first session will be held at the Trenton High School gym, April 7th.

Seventy-seven people have signed up for the course.

Obituaries

THOMAS W. EMERSON

TRENTON — Thomas W. Emerson, 80 Byron Street, died at St. Mary's of the Lake Hospital, Kingston, on Wednesday, March 30, at the age of 41 years following an illness of 3 years.

Mr. Emerson lived in the Trenton area for 30 years. He had spent some time in Toronto and Montreal.

He was born in Rawdon township, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Emerson of Aldershot and the late Mary Ann Wilson.

Prior to his death he operated a retail grocery business in Trenton.

Mr. Emerson was a member of the United Church, a member of Prince Consort Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 83, and a member of the Kismet Temple, A.A.O.N.M.S., Montreal.

Surviving are his mother; his widow, the former Audrey Allen; four daughters, Sharron, Marilyn, Joanne and Jessie Rosa, Tommy and Bobby, and a brother, Everett Emerson of Burlington.

Masonic service was held in the Weaver Funeral Home, Prince Edward County under the direction of Prince Consort No. 83, A.F. & A.M., No. 28.

Funeral services were conducted on Saturday, April 9, by the Rev. T. T. Irwin.

Interment was in White Lake cemetery.

Honorary bearers were: James Wallace, Donald Zeppy, Joseph Reid, Robert Johnson, Angus MacDonald and Rod. Hollingsworth.

Honorary bearers were Claude Wallace and Harold Burke.

MRS. A. C. BRUMMELL

TRENTON — Mrs. Agnes Brummell, a lifetime resident of Trenton, died at her home, 64 Bay Street on Wednesday, March 30, after a year's illness, following an illness of two months.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Rocheleau, she is survived by her husband, Arthur C. Brummell; seven daughters and Mrs. Kenneth (Madeline) Bolger, Mrs. Russell (Marguerite) Bernier, both of Trenton; Mrs. Ralph (Mary) Mitchell and Mrs. Robert (Mary) Ferguson, both of Belleville; Mrs. Arthur (Helen) Northrop; Mrs. Thomas (Margaret) Auger and Mrs. Lawrence (Irene) Churchill, three sons, Patrick of Belleville; Lionel Wallace of Trenton; four sisters, Mrs. Leo Murray and Mrs. Leo Donovan, of Belleville; Mrs. Kenneth Bolger and Miss Irene Rocheleau of Oshawa, and one brother, Raymond Rochelau of Oshawa.

Requiem High Mass was offered by the Rev. W. H. Carty of St. Peter's Church on Saturday, April 2.

Interment was in Mount Calvary cemetery.

Bearers were: Romeo Martin, Douglas Purcell, Elliott Boyle, Martin Murphy, Kenneth Buck and Robert Vieau.

MRS. BLANCHE PIGDEN

MADOC — The funeral of Mrs. Blanche Pigden, R.R. 1, Madoc, was held on Wednesday afternoon, April 2nd, from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Hazzard's United Church where service was conducted by Rev. A. V. Plager, assisted by Rev. W. McKnight. The funeral was largely attended and there was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes. Interment took place in Hazzard's Cemetery.

Bearers were, Elliott Burris, Norris Robinson, Stanley Franks, Russell Lewis, Gilbert Tennyson.

Dies of Injuries

ARNPRIOR (CP) — Joseph Madore, 61, died in hospital here Sunday after being injured in an accident Friday at nearby Braeside Saturday.

He suffered a punctured lung, right broken rib and other internal injuries when he fell into a falling machine at the Gillies Brothers lumber plant, where he had been employed for 32 years.

DIES SUDDENLY

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Minutes after being told he had won the equivalent of $16,800 in a state lottery, Harold B. Carney, a magistrate, dropped dead Saturday. He was 61 and had been suffering from heart trouble.

Albert Acheson Of This City Dies in Ottawa

A prominent Ottawa resident, and one heavily involved some time over the weekend as the result of what police believe is a suicide and accidental death in a Bellefeuille Ottawa suburb. Dead are Mrs. Jean T. Preston, 66, widow of a well-known Ottawa civil servant, and her brother, Albert G. Acheson, 67, a retired Bell Telephone company official.

Mr. Acheson, who retired a year ago, arrived in Ottawa on Thursday to visit his sister.

Police do not suspect foul play.

The bodies were discovered by a neighbor and cousin, Donald Olson, on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Preston was found in her English-model car, the ignition key on and the doors locked. A note was found beside her body but police refused to reveal its contents.

Mr. Acheson was found in a bedroom, lying on the floor, with a gas tube pressed through to the bedroom, causing his death.

Mail delivered to the home on Friday and Saturday was found unopened and police believe this may have taken place on the deaths at Thursday evening or early Friday morning.

Mrs. Preston lived alone in the home following the death of her husband.

An inquest will be held but the time has not yet been set. The police investigation is continuing.

The late Albert Gosford Acheson was born at Westmeath, Ont., on March 27, 1893, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Acheson and had resided in Belleville for the past eight years, coming from Cornwall to his last home.

Mr. Acheson retired from the Bell Telephone service last October after 41 years of service with the company. He was a member of the Bell Telephone Pensioners' Association.

He was a member of Hollowway Street United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ellen Mabel Kennedy of Kemmel Acheson of Cornwall, and one daughter, Mrs. Bruce (Betty) Parsons of Belleville. Also surviving are three grandchildren.

City's Deficit Not Yet Ready For Presentation

Belleville taxpayers will in all probability have to still wait a week to learn the details of the city's municipal tax rate for 1960.

At least that is the opinion of finance committee chairman, Alderman Jarvah, who said today that a representative of the municipal affairs department had been in the city late last week, combining the provincial audit, which has been completed by the George Welch Company.

Alderman Jarvah said that although the audit and similar expenditures was concerned had been completed by the auditors, the actual breakdown of the city's deficit to the end of 1959 would still have to be approved by the department.

In any event, he expected the audit report would have to go before council before it was released for publication.

IN MEMORIAM

BAIRE. — In loving memory of Mary Baire, who died so suddenly April 6th, 1957.
Sweet was her smile,
But my thoughts reach out to you;
Dear was your face,
Where you could share it too;
I miss your kindness,
I miss your care,
I miss your presence everywhere,
But I know here, do not grieve,
That I have not lost you,
To me he has not gone away,
But waits for me to join him,
Where all is happy and content,
Where there is no more sorrow
Lord we pray.
To a beautiful life — a sudden end,
To God — a child returned,
A friend.
—Sadly missed by sister Mary Ann, brother-in-law Bob, sister Pearl and brother-in-law Jack.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Blanche Pigden wish to express their sincere appreciation and heartfelt thanks for the kindness and sympathy and for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy received during their recent bereavement.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the nurses and friends for their many acts of kindness and floral tributes during our recent bereavement. Also Dr. Hilborn and Dr. Hilpwell and Dr. Blakelee and Dr. Wilson of the Belleville General Hospital; to Bush Funeral Home for their kind attention and also for Rev. Pate and Rev. Wright for their comforting words.

Officer Rescues Resident From Blazing Home

BURLINGTON (CP)—A man who dashed back into his blazing cottage was rescued by a police officer early Sunday after the two wrestled for some minutes on the floor of the smoke-filled room.

Constable Steve Thompson said he arrived shortly after a fire started in a duplex cottage near the outskirts of this Hamilton district town.

He saw Kenneth Galenby, 36, owner of the cottage, dash back into the burning building. In the flash of an explosion, he saw Galenby stagger and fall and went in after him.

He grasped around and found him lying on his back on the floor," Const. Thompson said.

"When I touched him, he started to wrestle me. For a moment I thought we were both going to be goners."

BROKE MAN'S GRIP

He said he finally broke the man's grip and carried him out on his shoulders. Galenby was admitted to hospital in fair condition with burns to both legs.

Firemen said the fire, apparently started in a chesterfield in the cottage occupied by Galenby, his sons Kenneth, 10, Jack, 8, and a neighbor's child, Lynn Beavis, 7. The two boys woke up when they smelled smoke and roused their father and the girl. There was no damage estimate.

The cottage front door was also filled with smoke. Neighbors carried out Mrs. Helen Harron, 23, after she had a heart attack. She died en route to hospital.

Ford President Says 1960 Will Be Good Year

TORONTO (CP)—Though 1960 has not been as buoyant as predicted, it will still be a good year, Percy M. Sale, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, said today at the company's annual meeting.

The upsurge follow the U.S. steel strike did not occur at the pace expected but this should bring satisfaction rather than pessimism.

"An orderly continuation of business growth," Mr. Sale stated, "is inherently more desirable as it entails less risk of subsequent corrections of excesses which may develop in a period of too-rapid expansion."

Several developments had contributed to a less rapid growth rate in 1960 than Canada had experienced in 1959.

Continuance of monetary and credit restraint had had a sobering effect on business sentiment. There might well be some slackening of the heavy capital inflow into the country in 1960, as many projects which had attracted the largest direct investment now had less need for further bulk.

Against this general background, however, a moderate rise in trend through the year was indicated.

Badminton Club Presents Awards to Tourney Winners

The 18 top racqueteers of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club were honoring at the club's annual award night Saturday evening at the Armouries. Determined on the basis of their performance in the annual tournament with 78 of the club's 80-odd members competed, the award winner represented both the expert and the novice badminton enthusiast.

In the expert or "A" group, Mike Tomaso and Madge Cowley were presented with the Bruce Miller Trophy, by its donor, for top couple in the mixed pairs class. The winners of the ladies' doubles were Jacqueline Hull and Betty Walmsley, whilst Eric Roy and Mr. Tomaso copped honors for the men's doubles. Consolation awards for the mixed doubles went to D. Gunke and A. Burn.

Leading the novice "B" group were Helen Law and Mervin Potts in the mixed doubles with Pete and Irene Harris as runners-up. In the ladies' doubles top honors were won by Jean Roy and Helen Law, followed by J. Cook and D. Green. Tony Jacobs and Roy Davis took the men's doubles awards with consolation prizes going to D. Law and M. Ledger.

The awards were presented by Captain Alec Cunningham of the regiment, who in turn was presented with a badge of office in the Order of the Racquet after a happy conference of birthdates.

The awards night marks the end of a very successful year of the club's activities during which an increasing interest has been taken in this sport. There will be, however, a number of Tuesday, Friday and Saturday evening meetings of the club before activity is suspended for the summer months, according to club president Ron Walmsley.

Fifty Stitches Needed to Close Gashes in Face

TORONTO (CP) — Freelance writer Joseph Robert Henderson, 30, who came here two months ago from Montreal, was beaten with a hammer for more than half an hour Sunday night by two thugs who recognized his secondhand car and apparently mistook for another man.

He was taken to hospital where more than 50 stitches were needed to close gashes in his face.

Henderson told police he had parked his car at a downtown service station to make a phone call. As he tried to get out of the car, two men forced their way in. One lashed at him with a cane and the second hit him on the head with a hammer.

Henderson quoted the men as saying: "This is the car. Now where is the girl? Where is the girl!"

They threw him in the back seat and one man drove the car to Henderson's suburban apartment while the other kept hitting him with a hammer.

In the apartment's hallway Henderson's screams roused neighbors. One man grabbed his wallet containing $80. The culprits fled in Henderson's car.

He told police he bought the car through a friend and did not know the former owner.

50 Teen-Agers Threaten Police, One Arrested

TORONTO (CP)—Fifty jeering teen - agers threatened Toronto Township police officers who tried to arrest a youth Sunday following a disturbance in a restaurant in suburban Malton.

Rethuman owner George Kew called police when a youth he ordered out of his restaurant refused to leave. When Constable Thomas Kelly arrived the youth hit Mr. Kew.

A counter and several tables were overturned in the struggle to subdue the youth. Another constable who arrived later was kicked.

The teen-agers surrounded the officers as they led the youth to the car. A rear tire of the cruiser was deflated and the crowd rocked the car when the officers tried to drive away.

Steam Engines On CNR Will Be Out by June

MONTREAL (CP) — After 124 years, use of steam engines on the Canadian National Railways will end this summer with retirement of the last steam locomotive.

The CNR said its plan to convert to diesels—started in 1948—will be completed in June. The railway will have 2,144 diesel locomotives and 28 railbus—self-propelled coaches—in operation, representing an investment of $397,000,000.

Diesels have proven themselves cheaper and easier with less maintenance and lower long-term repair costs than steam engines.

When the CNR started its dieselization plan it had 2,463 steam locomotives in operation. Now there are about 100—all serving in Western Canada.

Most of the abandoned engines have been demolished and sold for scrap. A few of the older ones have been sold as museums and historical societies for $4,000 to $5,000 each.

The CNR pioneered the use of diesels in 1925 when a self-powered gasoline car ran from Montreal to Vancouver in 70 hours. In 1933 a two-unit diesel travelled between Montreal and Toronto.

Russia Rejects West's 3-Stage Nuclear Ban

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia today rejected the Western three-stage disarmament plan and said American proposals for an immediate ban on nuclear weapons is "utterly unacceptable."

Chief Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin told a brief session of the 18-nation disarmament conference here that the Western plan did not provide a basis for general disarmament.

The Soviet move completed the rejection by each side of the other's disarmament proposals. Chief Canadian delegate Frederick Eaton told the Communist bloc Friday that the three-stage Soviet plan for disarmament within four years did not meet the West's objective of complete disarmament under international control.

The Luddites Ride Again

...Terente Globe and Mail

A century and a half have gone by since the English Luddites recoiled about smashing machinery under the impression that it caused unemployment. Yet their spirit survives in unexpected places—not least in the Parliament of Canada. President Donald Gordon of the Canadian National Railways encountered it when he appeared before the House of Commons committee on government railways, airlines and shipping.

Mr. Gordon was sharply questioned about the effects of CNR employees caused by the introduction of diesel locomotives and other modernization measures. Some members seemed to feel that the committee ought to act as a sort of court of appeal to decide whether railway reductions were necessary and whether they were fair to particular communities and districts.

When Mr. Gordon defended the right of management to decide personnel policies and pointed out that the company was not a job-creating agency, he was told that he was employing men only to the extent that it actually needed labor, he met with a cold reception at the hands of the committee.

The odd thing is that while the CNR is criticized for dispensing with men whose services it no longer requires, this criticism is not extended to other concerns. For example, a recent statement by the Bell Telephone Company shows that in the 1958 and 1959 automation and other improvements enabled this corporation to reduce the number of its employees by 2,000 annually. Nobody takes this amiss. It is accepted as part of the process by which telephone service has grown progressively more widespread and efficient—the same process which Bell, from tiny beginnings, has expanded to the point where in spite of recent reductions it still employs 21,132 men and 16,035 men. Yet the...

A Sound Stand-Pat Budget

Hon. Donald Fleming's third budget was a stand-pat document. "Stand-patters" are seldom popular but they are often right. Mr. Fleming left taxes unchanged. In the interests of a sound economy, he could do no less. Paradoxically enough, it is doubtful whether under existing conditions he could do more. The government could not continue to pay out more than it takes in without endangering the financial stability of the country and any attempt to increase revenues by increasing taxes might easily have had the opposite effect and, by slowing down the country's rate of growth, might have confronted Mr. Fleming with a more unpleasant reminder of the law of diminishing returns. Therefore he left taxes unchanged—and placed his bets on an expanding economy that would produce a balanced budget which nearly every Canadian, no matter how much or how little he knows about fiscal matters, almost instinctively recognizes as desirable.

What changes there were were in step with the demands of economic justice and the appeal of reason. Civil servants will receive higher pay and there ought to be few Canadians who will begrudge them this increase. There is no reason why the Federal Government should be the country's most niggardly employer. Widows and orphans will be aided by revisions in the estate and income taxes. The ceiling for deductions for medical expenses is raised. All these measures deserve support.

In the coming year the federal old age pension will be raised by $10 and will be paying its own way, for the first time since it was established nine years ago. If this gives bookkeepers and accountants a comfortable feeling, we should not begrudge them this satisfaction, for the development can do no real harm, at least at this stage. A note of caution, though, is necessary here. We should not permit the fact that taxes earmarked for this fund will be adequate to meet expenditures to obscure the fact that payments are being made on account. We must be vigilant lest some actuarial-minded politician, with no comprehension whatever of the true principle behind social security, attempts to delude us into the idea that the taxes paid into the fund today are to provide for pensions for the taxpayers tomorrow. That is the discerning thing about pensions. They involve the sharing by today's producers of today's production with those unable, through age or disability, to aid in this production. Let's keep it that way.

Why Don't They Seek Office?

National defence is a subject of controversy both inside and outside of the House of Commons these days.

When the government finds itself in the midst of heated debate on defence policy, such as the recent flurry in the Commons about the Bomarc-B missile, that is the time some newspaper editors receive letters from retired army, navy or air force officers, criticizing defence policies. The strange part of it is these letters generally come from one or two high-ranking army officers who have been retired for some time and so have been out of touch with defence policy.

Any military officer is missing the boat by writing critical letters to an editor. Our first reaction when we read one is to ask ourselves why we must always hear from the same few men. Why do we not hear from the others? Surely there must be many retired officers who do not agree wholeheartedly in part with our country's defence policies. Yet they do not police their criticisms in the newspapers.

The answer, of course, probably lies in a retired officer's sense of devotion and loyalty toward the service in which he once served.

If those who write want to reach the public, they are going about it the wrong way. The way to do it and to be heard and possibly to stir up action is for any disgruntled officer living in retirement to offer himself as a candidate in a federal election. If he is elected he will be in a very advantageous position to correct the "inadequacies" of the Department of National Defence.

Letter To The Editor

Visitor Here Opposes Arena Being Closed

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Just recently I had the good fortune of bringing my Juvenile hockey team from Belleville to play against the Richard Ellis Printing club. While there, Mr. Ellis, coaching staff and players of club showed us the most out of the world hospitality. Mind you, sir, we lost the game by a score of 4 to 1 but I'm right sure we would be only too glad to play such a group of sport minded people win or lose.

Most of the time the men who handle the game on the ice receive too little credit for their work, so thanks to Cecil Ross referees Henry Ford and Harry Morgan, you did a perfect job. Also thanks to Lloyd Ross timekeeper on article I read in your paper. It was about a speech by a stapper there had dealing with lack of support for city money. His suggestion was to close the sports arena and convert it into a bus depot, he stated that the minority group which is supposed to be skating and hockey fans would more likely breathe fire down his neck for even thinking such a thing. Well, they have both. The writer also gave reasons why the city should adopt his idea. Well sir I could give him thirty when I should rest. If the city did do such a thing the only time I would agree with it is in the event that some others, is if they would promise to erect a new sports arena. Come on you fire-eaters, start breathing. Don't let it happen.

Steam Power Reign Over

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Steam locomotives hauled Canada's freight and passenger trains without rivals for 90 years. From 1836 onward the expansion of this country was largely the story of the iron rail and steam power.

The railway was one of the first countries to start using diesel engines for railway hauling, coaching and it was not long for the depression stopping all experimental work and then the advent of war, it is probable that the steam engine will remain over before now. As things stand the last run for steam engines is now scheduled but main tracks will take place some time in June of this year.

There has not yet been a statement on the winding up steam power on the Canadian Pacific, but it is obvious that the day of steam locomotives is almost at an end. We shall never see any more of the great steam engines that so recently were the most inspiring mechanical devices ever designed.

In a way it is a wonderful tribute to the steam locomotive that it survived so long without fundamental changes. It is a fact that for decades no one has changed relatively little except size and power and speed since the days of Stevenson's Rocket. But it could not have been the most favorable if it had survived into the atomic age much longer.

It is a taxing problem to speculate how long the diesel locomotive will last as king of the rails. At present it is as supreme as the steam locomotive was some 50 or 60 years ago. But there will be more rapid and exciting changes in future than have taken place up to the present time. It would be silly to bet against an unbroken 90 years of supremacy for the diesel.

At the opening of the spring non-jury sittings of the County Court today, Charles A. Payne, K.C., welcomed His Honor, Judge C. A. Cameron, to the bench on behalf of the Ontario Bar Association, while Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn also tendered the usual wishes of the court. In response Judge Cameron thanked those present for their expressions of sincerity. "My many years of practising at the Belleville were pleasant ones, it has always been a pleasure for me to be associating with the Hastings Bar Association and the barristers of this district," stated His Honor.

Many residents of Belleville have thrilled to the adventures of Major Robert Rogers under the able pen of Kenneth Roberts. Miss Rogers is the great-great-granddaughter of James Rogers, brother of the famed Major. One of the most treasured possessions of Miss Rogers, in an outstanding collection of family heirlooms and looms, is the very sword of Major Robert Rogers, the sword which figured so graphically in his exploits, and which Kenneth Roberts said that George III commanded to be painted of him, in recognition of his successful entertainment for his visitors. This painting is now in the National Portrait Gallery, London, England. Miss Rogers has a photographic copy of it.

Great Changes Taking Place

Guelph Mercury

Great changes are ever taking place in world affairs. There is a growing tendency toward one-ness in dress. The two Americas, and all the countries of Europe much alike, and in Africa and the Far East the same tendency is appearing.

Trade and industry are spreading outwards.

This makes necessary the need for a universal language, and the most likely seems to be English, greatly modified to meet the conditions of foreign lands.

Tomorrow's world will be vastly different from that of today. Space tomorrow will be merely relative and really nonexistent. We will have limitless energy from atomic and controlled fusion reaction, the source of the H-bomb's energy. Weather will be under control. Remote Regions of the world, now dry and barren, will be made into verdant lands of great productivity, and abundant life.

Automated industry will, tomorrow supply the world with goods and clothing.

Food will come from the sun's energy, and much from the seas. New discoveries in chemistry will add to the life of man, and we will live in more leisure and freedom than he has today to enjoy this.

The world of tomorrow has much to look forward to, and it promises to be more beautiful a world unified and more in step all over.

NEW HEARTS FOR PEOPLE A POSSIBILITY

I'm not much of a man for making extravagant or visionary predictions about what someday may be possible.

We are naturally interested in what may be possible later, but when it comes to our real problems, we want to know what is possible now. So that is what we almost always discuss in this column.

However I can't help commenting on two very interesting directions in which research is moving.

One is the experimentation with "substitute hearts."

The other is the transplantation of organs (including hearts). Which is the more breathtaking, I hardly dare guess.

From California, we have reports of a dog being kept alive for more than two weeks with a heart transplanted from another dog. And the research people claim it could have been kept alive even longer period. In the past, such transplanted hearts would end for only a matter of few hours. So that is real progress.

Elsewhere (mainly in Australia) repeated success has been achieved in transplanting a kidney from one twin to another when this has been necessary to save the life of a patient who chanced to have a twin.

In other parts of the world, Russia included, we hear of transplanting of eyes and other parts.

From Illinois we learn about a mechanical and artificial heart which, for a short time—about half an hour—is able to keep a dog alive while exercising.

This is a far cry from using such a mechanical heart while the patient (whether a dog or human being) is at rest, under anesthesia, having an operation. Use of a mechanical heart for patients having heart surgery has become an everyday occurrence.

As a practical matter, we cannot yet install such a substitute or an artificial heart in a patient permanently. But in view of these new research efforts, we must begin to conjure with what the future holds.

We may, for all I know, never be able to give people "new hearts" and yet, who knows what new wonders we may now be dreaming of?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OF COURSE YOU CAN!

None of us knows our true capacity, either of thought or action. It is only by test and trial that we keep excelling ourselves. The opportunity for growth is spread before us.

We need to Father our Will and use it lavishly. We can accomplish far more than we suspect. The Greater Success is ever before us.

We need a kindly Angel to watch by us and to assure us. That Angel will whisper in our ear this line: Of Course You can! And sure enough, sooner or later you will begin to note that you do things which before you only dreamed you had hidden within yourself — powers never suspected existed. You will say to yourself: "Of Course I Can" and you will.

There are times when God gives us the strength and courage to do the seemingly impossible things never before realized. We help ourselves in emergency. God leads the way, and God helps out by lending us special equipment!

We all need kindly encouragement to give us sight beyond the Veil. Many a dear one who doubt your will and belief, prove to you by demonstrating the fact yourself.

Strictly Personal

Closer Contact Between Police, Public Needed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the real social and psychological problems of our modern age, which we have not yet adequately faced up to, is the diminishing contact of the police with lawabiding citizens.

This problem is most acute in — but it is not limited to one city, or even to one country. In a recent issue of New Republic, Mr. W. Brogan, the eminent writer on Anglo-American affairs, pointed out that even the traditional British respect for the "bobbie" has shrunk visibly in the last few decades.

When I was lecturing in Toronto recently, the "Globe and Mail" ran a leading article on a proposal to add 500 policemen to the Toronto force — an increase of almost 24 per cent.

"Another important reason for increasing the size of the force," observed the newspaper, "is the problem of relations between the police and the public. Public respect for the police has been declining in a most alarming manner in recent years."

There are other factors at work, of course, such as the general moral decay in modern civilization; but a part of this decline can be traced to the fact, as the editorial remarks, that the relations for contact between police and public are declining.

We have in our smaller communities relatively free from police corruption, or big-scale gambling, even that hard-bitten indifference that prevents citizens from testifying as witnesses in cases?

Surely not because small-town citizens are any "better" in a moral sense — but simply because everyone knows everyone else, because it is impossible to hide behind a faceless mask of anonymity in a small town. The cop, the milkman, the repairman, the shopkeeper — their every proximity to one another compels them to treat each other as persons, not as categories, or personnel, or patients, or customers, or cases.

Cities need desperately to be reorganized on a neighborhood basis, as more or less self-contained communities, if we are to break them down into human images. Police should be assigned to the districts they live in, and their mechanized way of patrolling should be replaced by more personal approach. We have been too quick to accept the blessings of the machine age, without reckoning its high cost.

Want to Res... For Holiday

Hamilton Spectator

From Scotlands' Strathclyde comes the encouraging news that engineers are demanding a five-day week, and two hours in the Friday working day. The reason? They want to work a full day on Fridays they are too tired to enjoy their Saturday leisure!

There is a story about a lady that says that if business interferes with pleasure, then cut out business. And that seems to be the intention of these engineers.

A man must keep in good health to enjoy his leisure, and how can he do that if he has to work eight hours the day before his day off?

Which is the way to Sanity Street?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

LISTEN TO THE GENTLES

Some time ago we reminded our readers of the statement of Archelaeplo that the more the Bible reads the more it grows.

This great sculptor saw one day in the studio of a mediocre craftsman a huge block of marble at which this inept individual had been hacking away. Immediately, Michelangelo, the gentle, saw a marvellous statue waiting to be born. He took the mutilated block and forthwith modelled the famous statue of David. Of course it is not a statue of Jewish boy, but rather the figure of a Greek youth. Nevertheless, Michelangelo called it David, and the people of Italy flocked to see this that they had still a beautiful section of an art gallery just to house this statue.

It is when men mix invigorating ozone and vision with any kind of human technique that the finest results are had for which succeeding generations are grateful. William Shakespeare took the plain language of the Elizabethan period and put it into poetry which has not been surpassed to this day. Centuries before, the Greek poet Homer had gathered together the songs about the heroes of Troy and called his two collections the Iliad and the Odyssey. Dante was a similar genius. Bach, Mozart, Beethoven and Wagner have made the listening world their debtors.

Columbus was a chap with a crazy idea which turned out just to be true.

Genius is strange — and glorious. Listen to its testimony with serious attention.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

During the mucky season of spring, our little dog, a Welsh Corgi, has to come in by the side door, over the newspapers spread hastily, and go down cellar for a little while to dry off. We have a blanket spread for her down there for her comfort, and she has regarded the cellar as a place of banishment during the four years of her life, having failed to get it through her otherwise shrewd brain that muddiness is a sin.

Just within the past few weeks, as soon as it comes over and the family groups itself around the living room to watch TV, the Welsh Corgi quietly disappears. She has not notice her absence for a few evenings. Normally, she lies in a basket under the piano, or plays upstairs with the children. entertainment.

Then where's the dog?" enquired somebody.

We looked in the kitchen. We called upstairs. We hastily opened the doors to see if she had got outside in the mud.

She was down cellar, in that place of banishment, asleep on her blanket there. And there she goes every night, as soon as TV is turned on, and now even in the afternoon if anybody ignites the box.

Banishment is preferable to the racket the rest of us put up with.

SPRING RUN OFF — It was spring run-off time in the city and district Sunday as fast melting snow turned small creeks into rushing torrents. The above scene was on Reid's sideroad west of the city where Jones Creek overflowed roadway to a depth of three feet. Today the water had receded.

Quick Thaw Causes Floods In Two Sections of Stirling

Already in the news on two counts, the village of Stirling had additional trouble over the long weekend as heavy spring run-off caused severe flooding in two sections of the village.

Residential basements in the Emily Street area north of St. Paul's United Church were completely flooded as plugged culverts backed water up until it was three to four feet deep on the sidewalks in front of houses. Then as the water was released by trenching across the street, culverts in the downtown area were unable to take the water and basements in business block at Duffins', Cairns' and Bartlett's were flooded. One resident said there were three to four inches of water on his living room floor at one time.

Today, Stirling News Argus owner H. R. Tompkins said the picture was much brighter as the water had receded considerably.

Emily Street resident Maurice Bell said Sunday evening that the sidewalk in front of his house was under four to five feet of coolness.

Stores, Stocks Damaged

Water Furnaces in his house and in the house of next door neighbor, Earl Fox were completely under water.

TRENCHES CUT

In order to release the water in this area of the village bulldozers and power shovels were hastily put into operation with trenches being cut across the street to let the water away.

It was this flood of water which later caused the flooding in the downtown area as culverts under business blocks were unable to take the water.

And at the same time Stirling streets are a veritable sea of mud as result of a still uncompleted program of sewer installation.

At midweek deep ruts were already threatening to bog down vehicular traffic, and as the frost goes out conditions are worsening.

Still earlier last week the village found itself without police protection w... Stirling's one man police force Constable William Sutherland was fired by council.

Wellington Main Street Inundated by Flood Waters

WELLINGTON (Special) — Post-rain freshets sent flood waters cascading over the banks of mid-village creek here last night, causing damage to several stores and private dwellings.

Village fire department members and pumpers, aided by others worked feverishly all night in an effort to lower the creek level.

Early this morning they had partially succeeded, slowing the flood efforts almost to a standstill. It is felt, however, that more rain, will enhance the danger of further flooding.

Water broke over the creeks banks in the business section of Main street shortly after the o'clock Sunday evening.

As the volume increased water flooded the street rushing into store ground levels causing damage to stock and property.

Villagers rallied behind the fire department and aided storekeepers to remove their ground floor merchandise to higher levels. Stocks in basements were heavily damaged.

Suffering the brunt of the damage were Eleanor's Gift Shop; Mrs. J. B. Downs' grocery; Earle Alyea's Groceteria and the Post building.

At eleven o'clock this morning firemen reported they were holding their own. The foot of water that covered the middle part of Main street was subsiding but a number had evidenced itself.

JAM AT BRIDGE

An ice pack was jamming a bridge on the Morden farm about a half-mile north of the village flood area. The pack is holding back water flowing down from the northern areas, and if it gives way, village officials look for further trouble.

A short distance west of the bridge water has flooded the Wellington-Belleville road known as the "Town Line". The road was under water near the United Canners plant.

The creek has its source some

Baldwin's Mill Dam at Consecon Broken Away

CONSECON (Staff) — "Just Like Niagara Falls" is the description applied by many observers to the resultant flood waters caused by the Baldwin's Mill dam bursting at 2.30 o'clock this morning in this community about 10 miles south of Trenton on Highway 33. Local residents are working quickly in an attempt to build sandbag dikes to stop land erosion among the business buildings in the village.

Everywhere there is water and those who are venturing out require hipboots to get from house to house and many residents have their basements under water. Spring flooding is not new to the villagers here but the burst dam has greatly heightened local concern over possible damage before the flood waters recede.

Some concern is also evident as to the strength of the elderly stone and masonry bridge which forms a part of Highway 33 to the south of the dam. The main force of the flood waters is currently directed against a weak portion of this structure and it is feared that it may be washed out.

Senators Get Players, Cash For Roy Sievers

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Washington Senators today traded one of their most powerful hitters, Roy Sievers, to Chicago White Sox for catcher Karl Battey, first baseman Don Mincher and an estimated $150,000.

Sievers is expected to give the weak-hitting White Sox some badly needed power.

In six seasons with the Senators, Sievers hit 196 home runs a club record and averaged 96 runs batted in. He was injured most of last year, and slugged only 21 homers and 49 runs batted in.

Sievers is listed as a first baseman, but he played the outfield until he hurt his shoulder.

Mincher, who last left in and thrown right, had 22 homers and batted in 92 mark with Charleston, W.Va., while hitting .272.

Battey, right-handed hitter, is rated an excellent catcher by the Senators. He hit only .219 with the American League pennant winners last season but his defensive work is regarded as superb.

BACK TO WORK

The Chamber of Commerce and said police were merely out to stop possible trouble from loiterers. He said any non-whites taken away by police obviously were "agitators or intimidators." He added the police action was aimed at Negroes telling others not to work.

Negroes, trying to keep others of their race from going to work, showered bases bound for Durban with rocks. Police were backed by troops and armored cars.

Similar crowds were out at Kwamashalu, near Johannesburg, and the situation there was reported tense.

In the Walmer Negro settlement near Point Elizabeth, a crowd of about 100 Negroes danced around a bonfire burning passbooks. One Negro was stabbed, and the demonstrators stoned an ambulance and police car going to his aid.

SAFEGUARD WORKERS

Unsigned pamphlets were distributed in Durban Sunday, calling on non-whites to continue the work stoppage under way in varying degrees since the violence began two weeks ago. Police took up precautions to safeguard those trying to get to work.

Scores of Negroes left their homes in Cato Manor during the night to escape the notice of the demonstrators and made their way quietly to their places of employment.

At another Durban settlement, some 400 Negroes refused to leave for work. They stood along the highway, stoning buses and trying to halt cars. Police collected them into nearby buildings and held them under guard.

At Claremont the crowd reassembled after dawn to shout 2,000. Police charged again when the Negroes refused either to go to work or disperse.

Buses were stoned at another Negro township eight miles south of Durban.

60 Basements In All Parts of City Flooded

Melting snows coupled with a half-inch rainfall Sunday night kept the city public works department busy over the weekend as ditches and sewers were overflowed and up to 60 basements were reported flooded in all parts of the city.

To cope with the flooding problem the city public works department had a total of 18 pumps operating and by this morning practically all basements had been emptied.

City engineer Malcolm Turnbull said that the ditches along the 28 miles of general roadway were working well, although sewers partially plugged with sand had caused flooding conditions in many sections of the city.

"But people have been very understanding and realize the works department cannot be everywhere at once," he said.

NEARLY ALL PUMPED OUT

Mr. Turnbull said that of the close to 60 basements reported flooded, all but three or four had been pumped out by this morning.

During the night following the commencement of the rain the Moira River and the small creek flowing through Coleman Flats rose rapidly but this morning had again receded from the west.

Moira River dropped eight inches during midnight, Mr. Turnbull said.

Street flooding was not a general problem, although in one or two locations overflowing ditches caused water to run across the roadways.

The worst area was on the OSD lane where water from fields to the west flooded across a ditch and after flowing across the roadway covered driveways and basements of houses on the east side of the street.

STOREKEEPER

The storekeeper also recalled that his daughter had a birth mark on her hip.

streamed into the city from the north early this morning to go to work. Construction resumed on building sites which have been idle for weeks.

In Johannesburg, thousands of Negroes remained off the jobs, the streets of the metropolis after dark. The first time this security there was no effective curfew imposed upon them.

A Johannesburg police officer said: "It's not that the curfew has been relaxed, because we are not asking (Negroes) to stay indoors. It's the pass raids out for them." Police announced March 26 a "temporary suspension" of the pass raids for not carrying identity books.

It is difficult to find out what the Negro leaders are planning and thinking.

SURPRISED STRENGTH

The government has accused them of resorting to intimidation to force the campaign of defiance. Whether this is true or not, it is apparent that the political movements as the Pan-Africanist Congress and the African National Congress are much stronger than the whites ever believed.

"All elements are present for the development not only of a crisis but of a national catastrophe," said the Rhodesian (Deputy dicted) Sunday newspaper Daily Dreek, adding:

"We have put it out of our minds to suppress this awakening by wishful thinking. We have to make room for the political awakening of the black man."

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd is chairman of the trust controlling the newspaper. But the Nationalist government has given no indication that "making room" for the Negro means any relaxation in strict segregation.

Nor has it given up any of these normally left to the Negroes. There has been no sign of panic

Stirling Chief Declines to Name Offerer of Money

Police Constable William Sutherland of Stirling said Saturday he was offered $500 to "get out of town immediately" after he was dismissed Monday by village council. He declined to say who offered the money.

"I was fired Monday following a special meeting of council . . . and since then I have been offered this money to get out of town," Sutherland said.

Although no reason has been given for the constable's dismissal, he said he believes it was due to his founding of the Trent Valley Police Association of which 10 municipalities are members. The force was campaigning for an annual pay increase of $500.

Reeve James Holt said that for the constable's own protection council could not reveal the reason for his dismissal.

"The $500 bribe to get out of town is something I cannot understand," the reeve said. "We have approached him regarding an increase pay . . . and a while ago last night we approached him to negotiate this but he practically threw us out of his house."

"We have lost confidence in his policing of the village and in my estimation we have a right to hire and fire this man when we feel it necessary."

A representative of the Ontario Police Association was in Stirling on Saturday but Reeve Holt said he had not been approached by the council.

Reeve Holt said the constable has been told two or three months ago that it would be better if he were to look for another job.

"We tried to be kind to him and had considered severance pay," the reeve said. "But the constable had asked for a year's pay and we refused to go along with that."

Constable Sutherland's telephone, paid for by the village, was ordered cut off late last week.

Reeve Holt said that no date had yet been set for the arbitration hearing in connection with Constable Sutherland's request for a $500 raise in salary.

The Stirling police officer, along with Belleville and Trenton police decided to go to arbitration to obtain requested salary increases.

Alter Stirling Phone Numbers

STIRLING — All local telephone numbers were incorporating into new numbers on Sunday morning when Bell Telephone introduces two-letter five-figure numbers.

All Stirling telephone numbers now consist of the exchange name EXeter 5, followed by four figures, G. W. Proctor Bell manager for this region, said today.

Past numbers become part of the new numbers, Mr. Proctor said. Each number formerly composed of four figures simply takes on the prefix EXeter while those with only three numerals are now prefixed by EXeter 5.

"For example," Mr. Proctor explained, "the number 345 would become EXeter 5-1234, while 123 would become EXeter 5-0123."

All the new numbers are listed in the new telephone directory, which has just been distributed to telephone users throughout the area, and which became effective at the time of the Stirling number change, the manager said.

Emphasizing that all numbers are affected, including those for police, fire and telephone repair, Mr. Proctor advised telephone users they could help make the change a smooth one by noting the new numbers in their "Blue Book of Telephone Numbers" and other personal lists. "By doing so, th will avoid wrong numbers a unnecessary calls to informa tion," he explained.

The new police number EXeter 5-3456, that for emergency fire calls EXeter 5-36 and for the Municipality Stirling EXeter 5-3333. Telephone's new local numb is EXeter 5-3301.

Mr. Proctor reminded cust mers they will be able to com plete local calls merely by dia ing the last five figures of th new numbers, but added that use their complete numbe when placing a long distance ca or when displaying their num bers on letterheads, invoice and all forms of advertising

Stirling has had the dial sy tem for years. Introduction this week-end finishes numbe here will join Stirling to th continent wide uniform num bering system that enables tel operators to dial direct to tele phones in distant centres with out assistance from the operato in the distant place, and whil eventually will allow telephon users to dial their own station to-station long distance calls.

Girl Guides' M.A. Plans Activities

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of the Girl Guides' Mothers' Auxiliary was held in the Legion Hall, March 28th at 8.15 p.m.

There were 15 members present.

Madam president opened the meeting.

Mrs. Vi Blewett has been elected as sick convener and is to start duties immediately. The Easter and Brownie birthday party has been definitely set for April 27th at the High School.

The Mothers' Auxiliary is planning to hold an auction sale in the first week in June, for the Guides' Association is asking for furniture, clothing and furnishings, appliances, dishes, books, lamps and clothing in fact, anything that could be auctioned off. Anyone housecleaning this year, with fewer than odds and ends to give, save them and help pay for the new Guide and Brownie quarters.

All donations will be collected by May.

A motion was passed to send Leader Lassies to Doe Lake in July to get their campers' licences. Guiders are not allowed to go camping unless they have a qualified camp leader. Deseronto plans to have two by next year.

Mr. Bill Schell ran the projector for the mothers, while the members watched an interesting and educational film on "Camp Life at Doe Lake."

Leader Commissioner, Mrs. Fran Hunt announced that she will be leaving in June.

Everyone will miss her, especially the Guides and Brownies. She is well liked by all the girls.

Mrs. Betty McVicker, will be the new Commissioner, and it is said that she is a capable replacement, one who will please the Guides and Brownies.

The next meeting is to be held on April 25th at 8 p.m. at the High School.

Refreshments were served.

Two Trends Seen in Hats

Spring hats for men fall into two definite categories this year ... there are sharp, definite and unmistakable differences between the dress-up models and the casual styles.

Dressy models include the curled brim homburgs, derbies, semi-bowlers, off-the-face models with their unsnapped brims and the English-type centre-creased felts worn either plain or pinched in front.

Felts are packed in a specific manner to avoid the creases that would like to develop. According to the federal Department of Fisheries, cod, salmon and halibut steaks are available in good supply in most areas. Moreover, broiling is one of the quickest and easiest methods of fish cookery. The following guide tells how to broil fish steaks to perfection.

HOW TO BROIL FISH STEAKS

CHOOSE THE STEAKS:

For broiling, select steaks which are 3-4 to 1 inch thick. Steaks which the thinner have a tendency to curl during the broiling process.

PREPARE FOR ACTION:

Preheat the broiler. Season steaks on both sides with salt and pepper, place on a greased rack in broiler pan and brush with melted butter or other fat.

DETOTHEM:

For broiling have the surface of the fish 2 inches from the source of heat. Frozen steaks are frequently thawed before broiling, however, frozen fish can be broiled from the frozen state. Place them 5 to 6 inches from the source of heat to prevent the surface from becoming overcooked before the centre of the steaks is thawed.

NOW BROIL:

Time of broiling will depend on the thickness of the steaks and whether or not they are frozen. As a general rule, for fresh or thawed steaks allow 10 minutes total broiling time per inch of thickness, turning the steaks at half time and basting with melted fat. Frozen steaks will require about double the cooking time of fresh or thawed steaks.

The Fish is Cooked: when the flesh is no longer watery colored, and when the flesh has lost its watery look, is opaque to the centre of the steaks and will separate in flakes, the fish is cooked.

Call the Family: remove the steaks to a heated platter, garnish, and serve.

Plain broiled fish is delicious. For added flavor intersect try one of the following broiled fish steak recipes recommended by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Golden Broiled Fish Steaks

2 pounds cod or salmon steaks, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup butter, melted, 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, ¼ teaspoon of tarragon, paprika and parsley.

Place steaks on greased broiler pan. Combine the next six ingredients listed to make a butter sauce. Baste steaks with half of the sauce. Broil 4 to 5 minutes, turn, baste with remaining sauce and continue broiling until cooked. Remove to a heated platter, sprinkle with paprika and garnish platter with parsley. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Schooner Steaks Flambee

2 pound halibut steaks, 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, ¼ cup butter or other fat, melted, 1 cup grated onion, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons prepared horseradish, 2 tablespoons chili sauce.

Season steaks with salt and pepper, and place on greased broiler pan. Baste with half of the melted butter and broil 4 or 5 minutes. Turn steaks, baste with remaining butter and broil until cooked. Meanwhile combine cheese, mustard, horseradish and chili sauce. Spread this mixture over the cooked steaks and return to the broiler for 1 or 2 minutes or until cheese melts and browns. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Savory Fish Dishes for Lenten Season

BROILED FISH STEAKS WIN RAVOS

Sizzling broiled steaks, delicately tinged with brown, and just out of the oven, make a tempting Lenten entree. If you are fishing for dinner ideas these days, here is an answer to your problem. London Quartet Is Chosen To Sing at Texas Contest

At the Ontario District Regional Contest of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A., held in Oshawa this past weekend, the London Citizen's Barbershop Quartet of London, Ont., was selected to represent the District in the International Competition to be held in Dallas, Texas, in June.

This quartet will be the headline attraction at the Belleville Chapter's Annual Harmony Night being staged at the Belleville Collegiate May 7th.

There were twelve quartets competing in this contest, and the thunderous applause that followed both their afternoon and evening appearances indicated how the audience of critical fellow barbershoppers felt about this "outstanding quartet. The audience had not been wrong in their mental placing of The Night Hawks in this contest. This was confirmed by the announcement from the five official judges that the Night Hawks had placed first with the Twin-Tones of Kitchener-Waterloo and Buckeye Chapter.

In the District Chorus Competition, with nine competing choruses, the London Citizen of Achord", directed by Jim Turner, placed first. This was the first time in competition that two directors had directed a chorus, with Jim Turner directing the first number and Buckeye the second. The chorus competition was three songs, the first and the last performances closely grouped at the top. The Woodstock Harmony Hi - Lights, directed by Ken Armstrong, was a very close second.

The Belleville members at this weekend were Adam Chalcraft, Keith Lee, Don Sexsmith, Harold Pratsch, Phil Squire, Alec Burns, Bob Park and Ross Schryer (Chapter Delegate). Also in attendance from the Belleville Sweet Adeline Chapter were Muriel Bowen, Norma Lowes, Nora Wolfe, Edith Anderson and Doris Lloyd.

The Belleville Chapter is diligently working on preparations for its ninth Annual Harmony Night to be held on May 7. This show will be headlined by the Night Hawks, Regents and Canadian Chordsmen. Chairman of the event is Alec Burns with Keith Chambers looking after ticket sales and stage, Don Sexsmith, production, Ross Schryver, publicity, Al Evans, program, G. A. Brad Bradford, hospitality, Bob Park, "Afterglow," Phil Squire, treasurer. The Quintet Section of the Quota and Belleville Barbershop Chorus will also sing on the 'Parade'.

Meetings of the above Adelines are held at the Army and Navy Hall, second floor every Thursday and the Barbershoppers meet every Wednesday at 8.45 at St. Margaret's - on - the - Hill lower auditorium. Both of these organizations have "Fellowship through singing" as an unofficial motto and welcome interested visitors to their meetings. 365 Attend Fine Dedication Service at Alliance Tabernacle

"So we built the wall; and all the wall was joined together . . . for the people had a mind to work." (Nehemiah 4:6).

Through long years of patient waiting, many prayerful and persevering prayer, the cherished hope of an extension to the Christian and Missionary Tabernacle of this city, was finally realized yesterday afternoon when the new structure, in a most impressive ceremony, was dedicated to the glory of God and the spread of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The fine, new auditorium seating 365 with its new lighting effects, the beautiful oil painting designed by the pastor, the modulous rolling notes of the organ through a new amplifier system; the lovely floral tributes from near and far; and the capacity congregation, which extended into the foyer, made a picture that will be remembered.

Present in the sanctuary for this occasion was the former pastor, the Rev. C. V. Freeman, of Oshawa, who had ministered at the Tabernacle for 14 years; acting Mayor Mr. Lorne Houghton; the Rev. Rosalyn Ingram of Cobourg Tabernacle; the Rev. Paul W. Valentine, of Kingston Tabernacle; the Rev. James S. A. Spearman, of Trenton Methodist Church, Belleville; the Rev. Hope Smith, of Calvary Temple, Belleville, the Rev. Robert Snyder, of Parkdale Baptist Church, Belleville; the Rev. David Cairns, of Napanee Baptist Church; the Rev. R. D. MacLean, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville and the Rev. George Ross of Barrie, soloist, who favored with several lovely selections, including "Great is Thy Faithfulness," and "Bless This House."

The Choristers, from the Youth of Christ, assisted in the musical.

Among others, "Come Ye Disconsolate, Where'er Ye Languish," and "Thank You, Jesus, Thank You" was for all.

Words of congratulation and appreciation were expressed by the visiting pastors on this great achievement, with God's blessing on the work in the days that lie ahead.

The evening service was a continuation of this "Day of Days, with the Rev. C. V. Freeman as the ministering brother, a message of encouragement to those on, stressing that each Christian was in influence of life unto life to others, or death unto death. Mr. Ross again favored with vocal selections.

Following the morning service the Communion was observed by the Rev. G. A. Skitch of Kitchener, Ontario.

Rich Pure Silk, Double-Faced Satins Seen

By PEGGY MASSEN

PARIS (Reuters) — Many simple, unadorned silhouettes in the Paris collections were created purposely to show off luxurious new fabrics.

Pierre Balmain, for example, has a clinging sheath dinner gown as strictly classical as a Greek column, in a sheer white chiffon with pure silver lame thread running through it which costs the equivalent of $40 a yard.

This model was ordered by Marlene Dietrich, together with the white cashmere wool knit dress and coat ensemble which Balmain describes as "destined for wear when travelling by private train."

The Balenciaga collection is applauded for its panorama of spectacular fabrics, including rich pure silk, double-faced satins; warp-woven taffetas with subtle printed designs; lovely handwoven tweeds; and subtle, cross-loomed, woollen materials.

Lightweight, fluffy cashmeres also play an important part in the Balenciaga dress and suit ensembles.

FLOWERS FAVORED

Among the French silk collections, abstract and still-life designs are favored for floral prints for day wear, but upholstery-sized pastel flowers and faded cameo prints on sheer organza are particularly favored in Dior's ankle-length dresses while Bianchini's Roman-striped chiffons are a special feature of Nina Ricci's wilting waisted, gypsy evening gowns.

As for checks, hound's tooth and irregular broken-line checks continue to be unrivalled in every collection. Part of their popularity is traced directly to Brigitte Bardot's "Sweet Love, Bitter" singing" as an unofficial motto and welcome interested visitors to their meetings. Mr. Austin Watson led in prayer and Miss Lois Wright read the Scripture from Psalm 61.

The ushers, Paul Andrews and Ken Reichert received the offering.

Miss Gloria Reilly led in a Sword Drill and Miss Sandra Purvis rendered a vocal solo, "The Unveiled Christ."

Paul Andrews led in testimonies.

Ken Reichert conducted a Bible quiz and Richard Patrick led in singing of choruses.

Miss Mary Ella Grant, Rev. G. Pierce, Mr. Austin Watson and Mr. John Waddell gave their favorite Scriptures and what they mean in their lives at the Scripture verse.

Rev. Pierce closed the meeting.

Teacher Not Perturbed By Dress of Her Pupils

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Teacher Gladys Hoene isn't the least bit perturbed when her students turn up in class ready to like movie stars.

Her students are movie stars and they often find it necessary to wear a dress or two between the takes of a film.

Mrs. Hoene has been teaching child stars in Toronto for many years. Her pupils have included Ann Blyth, Piper Laurie, Sal Mineo and Donald O'Connor.

She visited Toronto with her latest protege, Sandra Dee, 17-year-old blonde beauty who received her diploma a few months ago from University High School in Los Angeles.

ACTS AS CHAPERONE

Although Sandra has completed her formal education, California law requires that she be accompanied by a chaperone until she is 18, in June.

The curriculum for Hollywood stars is the same as that set by the Los Angeles board of education for other pupils.

Lessons take place in a three-room school in a film company studio. When on location, the lessons are put on hold anywhere. Most unusual setting was a Chinese junk. Mood.

Under Los Angeles law, each star under 18 must have three hours of schooling before 4 p.m. Minimum time for lessons, sandwiched between film takes, is 20 minutes. Mrs. Hoene says that on some days the three hours is almost entirely made up of separate 20-minute lessons.

COMPLETE CURRICULUM

Occasionally an entire company must sit waiting while a star's lesson completes a lesson. There is no favoritism, however, because most students have lines to memorize in between.

Most of Mrs. Hoene's pupils confess they miss the competition and other school activities enjoyed by other teenagers.

Mother of two grown children, Mrs. Hoene has found constant travel with actors is possible because she has an understanding husband.

"We've been married 25 years and have missed hair our married life.

Her husband, Bernard, also travels a lot in his job as an electrical engineer.

Mother's Helper

BABY FINE hair can be quite a problem to your daughter. A coiffure which may work in a double pony tail—as on each side of her head. Roll the hair up ever-night on ribbon (old-fashioned "rag" method). Brush gently into pony tails, turning the ends under, secure them at the top with rubber bands. Cover the bands with small bows.

Queen's Drama Guild Elects 1960-61 Officers

After a successful 1959-60 season which netted $500 for the Queen's Theatre Fund, Queen's Drama Guild has elected the following slate of officers for the 1960-61 season, it was announced today by Dr. William Angus, head of the Department of Drama at Queen's University:

President, George Pike, third-year Faculty of Arts student from Alexandria, Ont.; vice-president, Donald Gauthier, of Smiths Falls; secretary, Barbara Stevenson, North Bay; treasurer, Martin Gerwin, Ottawa; social convenors, Beverley Rigby, Belleville and Glen Bulick, Regina. Public relations officer, Lionel Lawrence, Kingston, and production manager, Kenneth O'Connor, formerly of KCVI and now of Toronto.

Gold pins emblematic of outstanding service to Queen's Drama Guild over their period of undergraduate study at the University, have been awarded to Christopher Blackburn, Kingston; Richard Foster, Toronto; Jane Hutton, Toronto; Lila Laakso, Kingston and George Mackie.

"King Lear" will be the next Shakespearean play to be produced by Queen's Drama Guild and will be staged in November, said Dr. Angus. Cast for the production is now being chosen.

Health Hints

(by Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa)

It is safer to acquire a coat of tan slowly early in the season than to risk a severe sunburn while on vacation. Try sitting in a sunny window or in sunshine protected from drafts, for ten minutes daily, then increasing by five minutes weekly. By vacation time the skin should have acquired an attractive tan.

Vitamins, a comparatively recent discovery, have always been present in foods, in more or less degree. Study of this subject will provide information on nutrition.

While running for the bus may not hurt the young and athletic, it is not good for the over-forty, overweight or non-athletic type. Unusual activity may overtax the heart.

Whooping cough is a contagious disease that could be completely wiped out in Canada if every child were protected by immunization against a disease that can cripple and has killed children.

Vitamin C is important as protection against scurvy and to prevent tissues healthy. It should be given to an infant from the age of two weeks, in the form of orange juice or tomato juice.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

CONVENTIONAL FORMS SOMETIMES MUST BE MODIFIED

The conventional forms that we follow relative to social contacts with our fellowmen have come down to us through the years. It has always been considered bad taste to deviate from these traditional rules, and in many years few changes were made. However, the rush of modern life has brought about modifications. In some areas common sense has to take over. For example, the following question from a reader has to be worked out to fit the circumstance:

"For many years I have been an interior decorator. The first few years were spent in my home town. Recently, I came to New York and was soon associated with a large firm. In my work I have always used the name of Joelle Brown, which is entirely unlike my real one. I am to be married in May and my parents, who live in Chicago, are going to send out the announcements.

"Now the question is: How to announce my marriage in a way which will not cause confusion. If I send announcements bearing my real name to those who know me only by the name I use in my profession, they won't have the vaguest idea who it is. If I use my professional name, some distant relatives and old friends will be left completely at sea as to my identity! So what do? Is the only solution to have two entirely separate announcements engraved?"

This is a glaring example of my contention that common sense has to be resorted to in order to meet circumstances. While the following solution of this problem may not seem at first glance to be in very good taste, I am going to tempt to clarify the announcement so that all the recipients will know immediately just who is getting married! But it is not the best solution.

Having two separate announcements not only would be expensive, but also would confuse the issue more than ever. To clarify the situation I would suggest the use of the full "real " name (for instance: "Ruth Mary Jones") under which would appear, in very small-sized lettering, in parentheses, the professional name (Bette Brown). Following this form accomplishes a double purpose. It makes clear to all those who receive the announcement just who is being married, and it gives everyone the opportunity to learn both names. This is particularly to be desired if the professional carr is to be the professional career is to be continued after marriage. Future confusion can be avoided on all sides.

Question: I have been asked to an afternoon wedding that is being given for an old friend of mine who is visiting from out of town. I am unable to attend. Would it be permissible for me to send a greeting card to the guest of honor with a little note on the card about my inability to attend?

Answer: I would advise against sending a "greeting card." A personal handwritten note expressing your regret at not being able to attend would be much more appropriate in this instance.

Louise R. is 21 and a working girl. I attend college classes at night. That keeps me pretty busy, but we do find time for dating.

Up until recently all my dates were with college men and college graduates. However, a few months ago I started going out with a man of 34, who has never been to college and has no desire to go. When I speak to him about it he laughs and says he is making lots of money, and we can buy for dating.

Up until recently all my dates were with college men and college graduates. However, a few months ago I started going out with a man of 34, who has never been to college and has no desire to go. When I speak to him about it he laughs and says he is making lots of money, and we can buy for dating.

Mrs. L. R. — With all the good-looking and highly intelligent men Louisa has gone out with, I can't see the reason why she has picked on this Dan. It's true he is handsome, but he's not the only one.

I feel that it's very bad for the husband to be left in the dark when more education than the husband. I have a college degree myself and I would never go out with anyone but a college man when I was a girl. I should say why a college girl shouldn't be able to find a man from her own group.

My husband and I feel that Louisa is in danger for marriage. She can wait another couple of years. Surely in the meantime she'll meet many more eligible men. We feel her attraction to Dan is just physical.

The Council: We'll agree that persons on the same educational level tend to have similar interests and similar standards and both are needed in a successful marriage, but it is certainly a mistake to be as rigid as these parents are on that point. It is true that Louisa's interest in Dan is as much a revolt against their narrow background as it is a physical attraction. The mere fact that she has enjoyed dating the many male friends indicates that they have found interests in common, despite the difference in educational background.

Mrs. L. R. shouldn't be so amazed at Louisa's interest in a non-college man. Dan's easy confidence and his greater experience in the world probably make him more attractive to her than the still-faltering college men she has known. The fact is that the college men tend to be boys a little longer than those who get out to work over at 18 and start making a living.

These parents haven't looked at Dan on his own merits and have instead used a very haphazard measuring rod — the college degree. This degree is no guarantee of character or intelligence and the lack of it indicates very little about the man.

The L. R.'s should, instead, be willing to try to know this man for himself and get Louisa to do the same. Louisa should ask herself whether she can be happy with a man who thinks of education purely in terms of dollars and cents and who apparently finds a need to flaunt his money-making ability at those whose goals may be a little different.

An honest examination may reveal to Louisa that she shares Dan's attitudes and in that case, they may very well be right for one another. Countless happy marriages are made between individuals on different educational levels and in many of those cases the wife has the greater scholastic background.

Bags Display Varying Styles To Suit Need

The height of the hemline dictates the width of the handbag this spring. And with fashion's hemlines presenting many differences, according to the style or the occasion, new leather handbag shapes are more varied than they have been for many years.

To harmonize with shorter skirts, handbags stylists have come up with broader "horizontal" bags in smooth, grained, antiqued and suede leathers.

Long-term detail — an emerging fashion note — calls for corresponding lowered hemline to be accompanied by a long, vertical envelope of firm, antiqued calf or oversized pouchy satchel of suede leather.

Gaining in popularity is a spacious half-circle of grained leather that is as handsomely when teamed with a tailored spring dress. Detail interest comes from belting, slanted effects and horseshoe - shaped pad-ded handles.

Calf, cowhide, kid and suede leather in bone, taupe, green and amber merge with softly understated gabardine coats as well as with chiffon dresses. Alligator and reptile in vivid colors — turquoise and shocking pink — complement suits of navy, charcoal and grays men's wear flannels.

The "permanent creases" this spring. A new process impregnates the dress with the wool. Trousers with this process need only to regain their press even after a drenching April shower.

Girls Dress For Active Fashion Life

Little girl styles are ready for an active and fashionable spring-into-summer. Even the pretty party dresses show they can take it! They play hard; clean easily.

Dresses and sportswear flaunt a gay old-fashioned country air in new versions of Early American, Provincial and Western themes. Quaintly demure calico, and gingham checks, plaid, striped ticking, cotton bandanna prints, homespuns and plaid cords shape easily into modern fashions for little girls.

DRESSES BY RICK-RACK

Rick-rack braid trim makes its playful mark on many styles. Appliqued, laces, embroidered ribbons and bright buttons also accent little girls' styles, including coats, jacket-dresses, suits.

Denim is very newsy? One faded blue denim pinafore skirt and boxy jacket is worn with a frisky red and white checked gingham blouse. Navy, red and white are in a classic sporty combination, charting a nautical course.

White is important alone or flattering contrast with colors. There are many dressy white styles. Taffeta dresses are suits trimmed with colorful braid.

IMITATE MOM

Among ensembles for a well groomed look is a heather tweed boxy coat with matching skirt and color-blended checking jacket, et. "Going out" dresses with matching jackets imitate Mom's costume look, and separates add up to many fashionably coordinating outfits.

There are lots of attractive pinafores, cotton suits, skinny pants, loose cropped tops, shirtwaists, some with matching sashes. Meanies have short, fringe trim.

Coats get set for spring in worsted wools, basketweaves, wool-like cottons. Pilted checks and easy tweeds are more popular, although solid-colored coats are seen in classic box-coat or Chesterfield manner.

What about millinery for the little girl? Flowered and berib-boned sailors, derbies and bonnets are mostly seen. Color and style co-ordinating accessories add to the total well-dressed little girl silhouette, greeting spring 1960.

This ... and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

You've had a hard day. The children's pets have been difficult; the washing machine refused to work; you've had a toothache; there has been no gas for the Ford roast burnt; you feel terrible and you know perfectly well you look terrible. We all know such a day every once in awhile. Nothing has gone right.

Dinner is finally over, your husband has left for the hockey game or the curling rink or wherever. The table is cleared. The children are all goggle-eyed watching Lassie — quiet for the first time since 5 a.m. You pick up your Ontario Intelligencer for a quiet few moments before facing your hour when you have to say — "Come children, it is past bedtime."

An authoritative knock comes at the door. You throw down your newspaper and say — "What now?" You open your door and are taken aback by the forcefulness of adolescent sales talk. The power of a lingo by rote overwhelms you. Your try helplessly to catch your breath. You automatically reach for your purse as the very straight man looks pleadingly at he edges too close. The straight man of adolescence looks like a Saint Bernard — he is so young and innocent. Before your very eyes warn you of impending disaster you are lost if you aren't a strong individualist. You hear the hum-ming sad know the children must be in bed. By this time your salesman and his straight boy are part way throught the door. You want to scream.

"Madam, we are working for a scholarship. We are poor boys trying to work our way through college. Dear Madam, (and you are black by the silliness) you look lovely tonight — are those your children — what beautiful darlings — hello there" — and your two lotharios are through the door before you can stop it.

"Madam wouldn't you like a fur-lined bathtub for free? It costs you absolutely nothing madam. You look like an intelligent woman madam. Johnny — that's my boy madam — he is working his way through college too, madam — my, what clever looking children. I'll bet they are clever at school, madam. Johnny, show the lady madam some of our mink specialty of trimming bowls. They are too, too madam. You'll love them — all for free madam."

By this time Master Mind has parked herself in your favorite chair without being asked and you measure the distance to the telephone to call your neighbor to throw your uninvited pressure salesmen to the wolves from whence they came. You call the kiddies to you. You do not like these young men. You are disgusted with the sickening line. In desperation you finally get out — "Come to the point — what's the gimmick?"

"Oh, madam — you insult us — there's no gimmick madam, you just give us a down payment now, send the balance to our office and you will receive 'Baby Care,' 'Do-it-Yourself' for your dear husband and father of three lovely children, a Welcome to Sheep's Clothing' to send the kiddies into the most delightful nightmare. You sign right here madam, and you will receive a four-lined bathtub by parcel post."

The nauseating business goes on and on and on. Many women sign and hand over the down payment to get the obnoxious business over with and the young horse out of the house.

T and T knows of one case recently where a man conceded that his wife would have made short shift of a couple of these public nuisances, yet he signed on the dotted line because he was leaving, couldn't wait and didn't want the two boys to return. Their behavior and lingo worried him.

The above takes advantage of fiction, but it does not exaggerate. The man of the house is the door canvassing has been proclaimed. Women are the public nuisance, and worse than all else, forcing kind and gen-erous folk to be rude, unscrupulously when we are being canvassed by wonderful little girls selling Girl Guide cookies or Armand and honest adolescents working seriously to help themselves.

One thing that amazes us is that usually these obnoxious ones have reputable and highly rated periodicals on their side. Why do they permit their magazines to be subjected to this kind of salesmanship? We believe that we do not exaggerate when we suggest that one-fifth of the people in this city solicited at our door not less than once or eight times within the past two months while we were busy baking t'e paper.

We bring this up for two reasons (1) it has reached proportions of being a racket and a public inconvenience (2) since cup), 1-4 cup water 1 teaspoon T and T is interested in protecting and encouraging the healthy Canadian boy or girl who is delivering our newspapers through snow, rain and sleet. We think abuse should be stopped.

The second reason is important. Recently people in Trenton were publicly being warned against a sales campaign along these lines — the people of Canada's oldest newspaper who appear to have a fixed policy. They are maintained and lived up to the claim that a good newspaper sells itself and does not require questionable sales ethics. Belleville is singularly fortunate in this regard and our newspaper is an should remain dignified.

Colorful Empire Torte For Easter

by Mary Moore

(First Instalment)

Last September I mentioned a torte that was served to the Press Club at a reception at the French Embassy in Ottawa.

I have not forgotten my implied promise to pass it on to you.

It was Sunday afternoon, January third when I produced my most satisfactory results and when you read this it will be April — and I will be in England, comfortable in the thought that you are well and truly fed.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Beef and Kidney Pie with Pastry Topping; Green Beans with Lemon Butter; Tomato Salad with Spring Onions; Peach Bavarian; Coffee.

It is my Easter present to you. The empire Torte is given in full because it is comprised of multiple layers, each with a sponge cake (originally round), separated by interesting fillings and frostings and topped with same, then liberally sprinkled and decorated with nuts or coconut as in one of our variations.

Because the variations are several I have appropriated two consecutive columns to cover this torte idea. I am giving you the sponge cake part today. Actually it is the same batter we use for a jelly roll — so if you do tackle it you will have proved a method that may be used for many other cake type desserts.

SPONGE CAKE FOR TORTES:

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3-4 cup granulated sugar, 4 egg whites (1-2 cup), 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-3 cup granulated sugar (second amt.), 4 egg yolks (1-3 vanilla, 1 teaspoon orange extract.

Sift flour with baking pow and 1-4 cup sugar into m mixing bowl. Beat egg wh salt and cream of tartar in bowl until soft mounds sh Add gradually 1-3 cup su beating until stiff, not peaks form. Do not under Combine egg yolks, water, v lla and orange extract; ad dry ingredients. Beat doubled in volume. Fold in into beaten egg whites se but thoroughly. Now you h to decide whether you will t this in 4 layers on in 2 (see 1). If you want the 4-l torte, you may safely bake i a time, washing and drying for second half of batter. C ly with ungreased waxed pape into 4 aluminum pan, smoo and bake at 375 deg. Fahr to 12 minutes for sheets; 13 to 15 minutes for pans. Do not be dented with finger tip w cake — it must not be co ked 5 or 8 minutes and remo from pans. Cut each sheet o roughly in quarters — d crosswise, once lengthwise t peel off foil. Cool.

See tomorrow's column method of assembling and f ing and frosting.

Quebec Voters Will Go to Polls On June 15th

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec voters are to go to the polls June 15, Premier Antonio Barrette announced provincial government plans. Informed sources say the only other possible date, also a Wednesday, is June 22.

Dissolution of the legislature and official announcement of the election date is expected during the week of April 17.

Since Premier Antonio Barrette, Union Nationale party leader, is scheduled to address a large dinner gathering of members and organizers April 15 in Montreal, it is considered possible the election date may be officially announced that day, although not in the banquet itself.

Election preparations are under way by political parties. One Union Nationale party source, Pierre Ouellet, legislature representative for Bagot, said Barrette himself will not be a candidate. He is 77.

Other Union Nationale men, Gailpeault, has wired his leader Jean Lesage he will not be a candidate in the June 15 election. Speculation in political circles is that Lesage, leader of the Liberal party in the legislature, will run in that constituency.

Mr. Barrette and Mr. Lesage are likely to make extensive campaign tours throughout the province.

Massassaga

New Car Models Stress Safety

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

A quick look at the 1960 cars shows that safety features are being emphasized again this year — either as optional or standard equipment.

Ford, wider-arching windshield wipers with better powering, plus increased windshield area; standard further minidrive driver blind spots. Some makers offer such things as: an emergency flasher system through which all directional bulbs flash while the car is stopped for roadside repairs; assistance; improved electrical wiring insulation; vented wheels for better cooling; larger rear wheel brake cylinders and more effective brake lining; fender mounted door handles and safety locks; padded instrument panels; speed reminders.

Car makers are also concentrating on safer frame and body construction; at least two new designs have been adopted this year. Seat belts are more widely recommended, but, as yet, they are not being produced as standard equipment.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

WHITE STARLING

When trying to identify a bird in flight it is well to give particular attention to size, manner of flight, and (if possible) a yp pattern from a rear view. To tell size we must be able to judge distance. Remember that a nearby mosquito may appear larger than a distant whooping crane. However, taking that into account, the next step is to compare the bird in question with a crow, robin, or English sparrow. Then notice if the wings move slowly or rapidly, if the neck is drawn in or extended, and so on. Conspicuous very light or very dark markings are extremely useful for identification — as the black under side of a bobolink contrasted with a light color above, making this a unique songbird as far as looks are concerned. A white stern is a splendid dinking ining mark.

A goodly number of our Canadian birds show white patches from a rear view. Meadowlarks, vesper sparrows, slate-coloured juncos, hairy and downy woodpeckers are among the well known ones noted for their "white tail feathers." But white feathers on either side of a dark tail. Several others have all white tails — white rumps, or white patch just under the tail. The adult bald eagle has a white head and a pure white tail.

GIVES CLEAR VIEW

A flicker is recognized most frequently by its large white stern patch." This bird spends much time on the ground picking up its favourite food of ants. At our approach, the flicker turns its back and flies off at a low level, giving us a clear view of white rump patch as well as otherwise brown bird. In fact, sometimes we see little else but a white spot retreating from us.

Marsh hawks are comparable in size to red-tailed or goshawks. The adult male is pale grey, as are all adult goshawks. The female is mostly brown, as are all red-tails and immature goshawks. Outlines and manner of flight of these birds differ, but the unmistakable identification of a marsh hawk is its white rump.

A brant, classed under the heading "geese", is characterized by a rear white spot somewhat differently placed. When resting on the water it constantly twists around top fashion. By turns we have a front view, all black, and a back view which shows us a clear white patch of feathers under the cocked up tail.

William Bros. Ruin Booths TV Hockey Program

Williams Brothers pushed Booth TV's near the brink of elimination in the Industrial (Soo) League finals before a packed house yesterday afternoon by downing the TV crew 8-3 in a penalty-riddled battle.

Williams now lead the best-of-five titular series two games to none with the tie and can wrap up the championship with a tie in the fourth game, scheduled for Wednesday night at eight o'clock. If the fifth game is necessary it will be played next "weekend" at 12.30.

The winners were never headed yesterday, taking a 2-1 first-period lead, making it 4-0 after two frames and adding the only goal of the third.

Referee Bill Hurst handed out 18 penalties in the knock-em-down carry-em-out affair, that saw six majors, a misconduct and a game misconduct included in that total.

Chuck Rowbotham of Booth's and Williams' Gordie Green picked up fighting majors late in the first period. Gord Irwin of Booth's and the winners' Jack Lunes headed for majors early in the third and later Williams' Doug Murray and Jim Campbell of the losers also fought at centre ice. Murray also drew a game misconduct and Jack Calvin picked up a misconduct on the play for leaving the players' bench during the fight.

All in all it was a rough afternoon. Campbell suffered a broken hand sometime during the action, Williams' ace goaler Bob Cowie came up with a ripped ear, the result of a shot, and six or seven other players received cuts, bruises, cuts, a number of them requiring stitches.

In the hockey department Double Bishop spearheaded the Williams' offensive with three goals, all assisted by linemate Bert Smallwood. Doug Lucas and Gord Day scored singletons while Duke Duran, Day, Jack Lucas and "Wiener" Werner were assists.

Bob Brooks, moved up from defence to fill in on Booth's first line in place of the absent "Hunter" St. Denis, potted both Booth goals. Chuck Rowbotham, Jack Calhan and Jack Hughes earned assists.

Lucas gave the winners the lead in the first couple of minutes but Booth's tied it on Brooks's first. After that the visitors pulled away. Bishop got his first before the period ended. Day, Bishop and Brooks scored in the second and Bishop sewed it up in the third.

Brockville Wins Junior Series

HAWKESBURY (CP)—Brockville Canadiens defeated Ottawa Hawkesbury Montagarde 3-0 Sunday to win their best-of-three Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-final three games straight.

Brockville will meet the OHA Junior A playoff winners next.

Manel Morrisette and Gilles Francoeur scored in the first period and Bobby Rousseau in the third for the winners.

Game officials stood off the ice early in the third period after the crowd of 1,824 threw firecrackers and debris in objection to a penalty call. The game was delayed five minutes.

Home people may hoot at this, but there's almost as much pressure in big-time curling, particularly for the skips, as in major league hockey or baseball. And a rink of 60-year-olds would have to be in top physical shape to win the Canadian title.

Before anyone hastens to debunk these theories, they should listen to 36-year-old Ernie Richardson of Regina who skipped the Saskatchewan rink to Canadian championships in 1958 and 1960. They topped these accomplishments off with 10 straight decisions over Scotland's best in the two years.

"I believe the pressure on a skip in the Canadian championships could be compared with that of big-league hockey and ball players," Richardson said in an interview in Toronto this week. He, Lal Green and Sam Pollard just returned from Scotland.

TOUGH ON SKIP

"There may be more pressure in hockey and ball where the players make a living out of it but don't even think that it is easy for a skip, particularly in the roaring Canadian towns and cities where every game is sudden-death.

"A rink might be able to afford one loss in the 10 games it plays in the series early in the tournament every game, and every rink does, there is really pressure play.

"The skip has got to be human like that hockey or ball player and an error could cost him the chance to win the title. A skip throws the last two rocks on every end and that is it. No one comes early in the

Amerks, Reds Win Over Barons, Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Americans haven't been pushed over the brink in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup semi-final series. But they are leaning precariously.

The Americans avoided elimination Saturday night with a 5-3 victory over Cleveland Barons after losing 7-5 to the Barons Saturday night. Cleveland leads the best-of-seven series 3-1.

Providence Reds won their first game from Springfield in the other series, knocking off the league champions 7-6 in overtime Sunday night. The Indians hold a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven set after a 2-1 overtime victory Saturday night.

Stan Smyl led the Americans Sunday night with two goals. Bill Sanders, Claude Labrosse and Bob Nevin added singles. Mike Labadie, Earlnfgfield and Don Horgan counted the Cleveland goals.

The Barons were trailing 3-1 in the first period Saturday but caught fire and went on to win. Fred Glover and Eddie Mazur each got two goals and singles went to Ed Hoekstra, Bill Dineen and Greig Hicke. The Rochester scoring was split among Smyle, Nevin, Pat Flanigan, Al MacNeil and Steve Kraftcheck.

SWEENEY WINS 12:36

Providence Reds won their first game from Springfield in the other series, knocking off the league champions 7-6 in overtime Sunday night. The Indians hold a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven set after a 2-1 overtime victory Saturday night.

Bill Sweeney's goal at 2:42 of the second overtime period gave the Indians their win Saturday, and Sweeney also scored the deciding goal in the 3-1 triumph last Wednesday.

Bruce Gamble was spectacular for Providence Saturday, making 46 saves. Veteran Harry Pidhirny got the Indians in front early in the first period and was tied.

"And with 3,000 or 4,000 spectators looking on, and practically breathing down your neck, you're got to be right on or else.

"In hockey and baseball, a fellow always has somebody following him. Of course, the hockey and baseball players know that if they don't produce they'll find themselves sitting on the bench, in a hospital, we stick with the tour same men and pressure can be a disadvantage."

GRUELLING SCHEDULE

The Richardson rink, with an average age of 28 years, needed to win 100 of 115 games in Saskatchewan leading up to the provincial championship round and the right to represent the province in the Canadian tournament. And they proved that youth is a big advantage in the tough Dominion final.

The Ontario rink, average age 33, beat the Richardson, Manitoba and Northern Ontario in morning, afternoon and night rounds on the fourth day of the five-day Ch a m pionships. They had a grueling schedule the final two rounds to force a playoff, but nothing more than anything else beat them.

They lost their final two games and 30-year-old Bob Elliott, vice-skip of the Kingston, Ont., rink, summed up their key losses with "It's another day in people's lives when guys my age can stand it."

"It won't be long until only the skip on a contender can be over 30 years of age," he said.

Richardson proved that, as he's been a fixture in championship rink over the last 20 years.

Kenny Yackel tied it before the period ended.

The Sunday verdict went to Providence when Stan Balukas scored at 4:52 of the first overtime. He drove a shot into the net from a sharp angle on the boards.

Providence reached the overtime session by virtue of Ed Hoekstra's tying goal with one second left to play. It was his second goal of the night. Other Providence goals were by Dan Poilziani, Nick Mickoski, Ray Hicke and Benny Wolf.

For Springfield, Jim Bartlett had two goals and Pidhirny, Sweeney, Parker MacDonald and Bill McCreary one each. Gamble was again sensational with 46 stops.

ROUGH GAME

Three 10 - minute misconduct penalties and one game misconduct in the overtime sudden death were called during the tense, rough battle.

Terry Reardon, Indiane hold a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven set after a 2-1 overtime victory Saturday night.

Stan Gamble led the Americans Sunday night with two goals. Bill Sanders, Claude Labrosse and Bob Nevin added singles. Mike Labadie, Earlnfgfield and Don Horgan counted the Cleveland goals.

The Barons were trailing 3-1 in the first period Saturday but caught fire and went on to win. Fred Glover and Eddie Mazur each got two goals and singles went to Ed Hoekstra, Bill Dineen and Greig Hicke. The Rochester scoring was split among Smyle, Nevin, Pat Flanigan, Al MacNeil and Steve Kraftcheck.

WINNER ONLY 15

TORONTO (CP) — A young Olympic hopeful, Bruce Kidd, 15, of Toronto Saturday won the annual Gladstone Athletic Club's two-mile road race in northwest Toronto. His time was nine minutes, 14 seconds. Oshawa's Alex Oakley of the host Gladstone A.C. was the first senior in the time of one hour, 15 minutes and 42 seconds. Kevin McManus of Oshawa was third.

Hull, Royals Rally to Keep Hopes Alive

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull - Ottawa Canadiens and Montreal Royals staged great comebacks Sunday to keep alive their chances of entering the finals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League playoffs.

In Hull, Canadiens came from behind three times, then scored the payoff goal in overtime to defeat Sudbury Wolves 5-4 and tie up their best-of-seven semi-final at three games apiece. It was Canadiens' third straight victory in the series after losing the first three.

In the other semi-final game in Montreal, Royals' captain Lulu Denis finished off a power play at 4:30 of the first period to give his team a 5-4 victory over Troois-Rivieres Lions.

Royals, trailing the best-of-seven series at the start of the game, now must win the remaining two fixtures in order to reach the finals.

Hull Beaten By Amherst 8-2

HULL, Que. (CP) — Amherst Ramblers, Maritimes senior hockey champions, overran Hull Volgon 8-2 Sunday night in the opening game of their best-of-five Allan Cup semi-final series.

Only 500 fans attended.

Playing centre-ice Mooette stopped 42 of the 44 shots on him in the Amherst net, and his teammates outshone him in many more. Hull's Roger Fortin stopped 36.

Maurice Lamirande put the game out of reach in the first period when he scored three goal in 50 seconds, That made the score 5-0 at the first intermission.

Hull, the Interprovincial Senior champs, got on the scoreboard at 1:09 of the second when Leo Gravelle beat Mooette. Gilles Lacelle got Hull's second goal.

Sugar Robinson KO's Baldoni In First Round

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson last night picked all of his power of old Saturday night and he knocked out Tony Baldoni with it, one minute 49 seconds after they started fighting a scheduled 10-rounder.

The 39-year-old Baldoni was knocked completely out of his senses by the right cross. He was on his back in the ring a couple of minutes before he could even be lifted to his stool.

Robinson, who will be 40 in a month, belted Baldoni in the left kidney and dropped him to his knees for a count of three on that shortly before delivering the knockout.

For Sugar Ray, of New York, the fight with Baldoni, formerly of Wilkes-Barre and now a Baltimore post resident, was a warmup prior to a return bout with Paul Pender in Boston April 29.

Pender took a split decision from Robinson there in January and lifted the New York-Massachusetts version of the middleweight championship in the process. The National Boxing Association does not recognize Robinson as a champion in the 160-pound class for failure to defend his title.

It was the 143rd fight victory out of 153 fights for Sugar Ray, who weighed 159 pounds, one more than Baldoni.

The Baltimore Coliseum was filled almost to its capacity as 9,828 fans paid a gross of $11,986.

Nieporte Takes Azalea Open

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Tom Nieporte, shaken by a two-over-par eighth hole, bore down to par the last 10 holes Sunday and win the $18,000 Azalea open golf tournament by two strokes. The New York professional finished with a one-over par 73 for a 277 total to win $2,000.

Nieporte led after every round on scores of 64-68-72-73 to finish under par in beating runner-up Gary Brewer of Crystal River, Fla., by two shots. Brewer won $1,300.

Dow Finsterwald augmented to a 74 for a third place tie at 281 with Don Whitt of Borrero Springs, Calif. Each received $1,000.

Al Balding of Toronto shared ninth place for $425 in prize money. He carded 70 and 73 in the last two rounds for a 72-hole total of 284.

Al Johnson of Montreal won $196.

Wilt the Stilt May Join Globetrotters

CHICAGO (AP) — Wilt (the Stilt) Chamberlain, who recently led the National Basketball Association, flew east Sunday to enroll over an offer to rejoin Harlem Globetrotters.

Chamberlain flew to New York after conferring with Abe Saperstein, owner of the Globetrotters.

Chamberlain was reported to have been offered about $125,000 to rejoin Saperstein's barnstorming professional team.

Saperstein said only: "I had to hold high, but Wilt would be worth it to me."

Wilt promised to reply before the end of next week.

Chamberlain made a guest appearance Saturday night with the Globetrotters in their 85-82 victory over U.S. college all-stars. Wilt scored 28 points.

Chamberlain played with the Globetrotters during the 1958-59 season. He then joined Philadelphia Warriors of the NBA for the 1959-60 season.

Chamberlain broke eight NBA records, then announced March 24 he was quitting.

He said he was tired of excessive rough play which he said was directed against him.

Bowling Team Chosen to Represent East

BRANTFORD (CP) — Hugh Connelly of Scarborough led 130 five pin bowlers through ten games here Saturday, rolling 2,-775 to win the right to represent Eastern Canada in the Canadian five pin singles championship competition in Calgary.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Should Chatham's debonair master-mind Johnny Horeck detour by way of Lea Vegas enroute to the Allan Cup finals, he should arrive at his destination with that jaunty Alpine fedora overflowing with silver dollars.

For Johnny wooed and won the goddesses of luck and gambling in his safari through the OHA schedule and play-offs—and there's no reason why they should desert him now.

Saturday night Johnny's Maroons tied permanent nuptics on Lanmny Lamirande's Windsor Bulldogs. They won the OHA senior "A" championship and now the Horeck gunsliphs are trained on the Allan Cup.

Frankly speaking, the Maroons should win it. They should turn aside the Northern Ontario threat with not too much effort, and take the Eastern Canada title in their stride.

They might encounter stiffer opposition out west, but with his goddesses perched on one shoulder and the magic of Maniago on the other, Mr. Horeck should toir the Allan Cup back to the western Ontario city that offered him the encouraging breezes when his Maroons were in the doldrums, but like all other hockey centres rallied to his support when league and national honors loomed in the offing.

Kitchener raised a storm of protest, and rightly so, over the fact that neither the Maroons nor the Whitby Dunlops had abided by the OHA book of words, and paid their $2,000 franchise fee. The eldersprings took the issue at a meeting, declaring that since no other clubs, in the league which knew of the matter, had not officially protested, no action would be taken.

Chalk up victory Number One for Maestro Horeck.

But the Dutchmen were beiat by their own petard in the matter of the last league playoffs. Manager Ernie Goman, in a moment of something or other, swallowed the Herockian bait in a one-for-three player "deal", if you can call it that.

Gorman, his team stripped of "imports" after the Olympics, had an exhibition date with the Czech national club, and a "skeleton" club to play them. He wanted to make a good impression on the home fans.

And Warsaw's goalie is a topflight goalie like a camel needs a drink after a 36-day junket on the Sahara. So in a magnanimous gesture, he offered three players, for one night only, for Kitchener's spare goalie, one Cosmo Maniago, for the rest of the season only.

In the meantime Johnny had a problem, too. His sixth goalie of the season, one Earl Hicks, was definitely not up to senior "A" calibre. But rules-wise Horeck knew his goalie had to have a seasonal disability in order to get a replacement.

So he decided Hicks was a "sick" boy. And he produced two, not one, doctors' certificates which stated the goalie was unfit for hockey duty the rest of the season.

Chalk up Victory Number Two for Maleu Horeck.

Windsor and Belleville brass raised calm at the OHA meeting. They demanded Horeck produce Hicks and have him undergo a physical examination by a doctor of the OHA choice.

By this time, mind you, the Maroons, behind the brilliant sensational play of Maniago, had surged upward to second place in the league. Eventuality they won that spot and eliminated the McFarlands after the Kitchener chances for a playoff berth had been hanged by a noose of their own making.

But back to Hicks. "Produce him!" screamed Horeck. "How can I. The guy has disappeared. He might be in Korea, Ball-Ball, the Orient, the Arctic Circle or recuperating in a pine cabin atop Papoose Peak in Snoop Valley." In fact Horeck cared not a whit where his ailing goalie was hiding out.

Another credit mark in the Horeck ledger.

Came the OHA finals. Windsor was going down to defeat and possible elimination at the hands of the surging Maroons. So they invited the pre-Olympic Hicks.' They demanded the OHA take action on a meeting motion.

It did—and Hicks was located in Ottawa The latest word was that he would undergo an examination by an Ottawa physician. In the meantime the Maroons have ousted the Bulldogs and won the league title.

There has been no word, at this writing, of the findings of the Ottawa doctor. But if the goddess of luck is still perched on the Horeck shoulder, the doctor will agree with his Chatham counterparts. If not, five gets you ten, the OHA will do nothing about it.

If it does, it probably will mean Hicks will play for the Maroons for the rest of the playdowns. And if we know Johnny Horeck, he will not dispense with the Magic of Maniago at this stage of the game without a bitter fight or some sort of gimmick that will retain for him the services of the classy Ceasar.

Maple Leafs Meet Canadiens In Stanley Cup Final

Weekend Wins Over Wings Put Punchers on the Block; Open Series on Thursday

DETROIT (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs blasted their way into the Stanley Cup final series with two victories over Detroit Red Wings during the weekend for the opportunity — or misfortune — of skirmishing with Montreal Canadiens for hockey's most prized trophy.

They beat the Wings 4-2 Sunday night and 3-1 Saturday to capture their best-of-seven semi-final 4-2. The championship series opens in Montreal Thursday night with the Habs heavily favored.

For what it's worth—and Toronto undoubtedly thinks not a cent—the Leafs have been pictured as something akin to sacrificial lambs about to be offered to the devastating Canadiens.

This rather bleak prophesy comes from Gordie Howe, Detroit's great rightwinger.

LEAFS' "LUCKY"

"The Leafs were lucky against us and they'll admit it if they're honest," he said. "But luck alone won't do much. Canadiens have to be good as well as plenty lucky."

Howe, a magnificent performer even in defeat, was kept well in check in the six games, scoring only one goal and two assists.

His feelings about the Leafs were not shared by the boss, general manager Jack Adams.

"It should be a good series," Adams commented. "The Maple Leafs are a fine, hustling club. They're well, Neither did we —we just ran out of gas, that's all."

Leaf coach Punch Imlach was not stricken with foreboding as he contemplated a best-of-seven set against Canadiens, the second straight year the clubs have met in the final.

BRING ON THE HABS

"Just one more hurdle to go gang," he shouted in the Leaf dressing room after Saturday's game. "Then bring on them Canadiens."

The Montrealers disposed of Leafs in five games in last year's final.

Leafs staggered the Wings Sunday night with a three-goal bombing in the third period.

Centre Bobby Pulford, regarded by Detroit coach Sid Abel as the most dangerous Leaf in the league, was the key as he scored two goals, twice pulling Toronto from behind. Big Frank Mahovlich and Dick Duff scored the other Leaf goals.

Rookie Murray Oliver, with his first Stanley Cup goal, and Norm Ullman scored for the Wings.

Mahovlich fired the clinching goal at 2:40 of the final period. It was the third time in the series he picked up the winner and he'll never get an easier one.

FRONE SHOOTOUT

Pulford had tied the game 3-2 at the 31-second mark of the third period. Three minutes later there was a wild scramble around Detroit goaltender Terry Sawchuk. Mahovlich, a six-foot-one left-winger, was knocked to the ice along with Sawchuk.

A loose puck bounced to Mahovlich. Lying on his stomach, he swatted the puck into the open cage. Duff added an insurance goal at 17:06.

There was no wild demonstrations in the Leaf dressing room. The players patted each other on the back, then hurried into street clothes.

Abel congratulated Leafs with: "Nice going, you guys. Now keep on going."

He had special praise for Toronto netminder Johnny Bower, who was outstanding against the Wings.

All the guys in front of me did the work, especially in the third period," said Bower, who made 29 slops to 30 for Sawchuk.

NEXT BIG TEST

Someone reminded that Bower now must face Canadiens, "the big shooters."

"Well, we'll just have to do our best against them," Bower said. "If we don't, then we're dead."

The 13,696 fans at Olympia Stadium were just getting warmed up to the situation when Oliver added the second at 3:33 of the first period. He took a pass from defenceman Marcel Pronovost and drilled a hard shot past Bower. The Leaf goaltender deflected the puck with his stick but it trickled in.

Pulford deadlocked the score 1-1 at 9:19, jabbing the puck between Sawchuk's legs as Terry was knocked out of his cage to stop the rush.

Ullman sent the Wings ahead 2-1 when the screened shot at 31 seconds old. He worked around Leaf defencemen Allan Horton and went right in on Bower. His eighth goal shot skipped between Bower's legs.

Referee Frank Udvar called only six major penalties, three to each team.

CASTOFFS LOOK GOOD

In Saturday's engagement at Toronto, the Leafs were powered by three castoffs from other NHL teams.

Allan Stanley, Bert Olmstead and Red Kelly formed a line and the Leaf goals—plus two others that didn't count.

Stanley, who joined Toronto two seasons ago after playing with New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins, scored two goals and assisted on two others.

Kelly, who came from Detroit in a mid-season trade, and Olmstead, sold by Montreal in 1958, each scored one goal. The fifth Toronto goal was by Larry Regan on a play started by Stanley.

Warren Godfrey, Gerry Odnyk, Jack McIntyre and Alex Delvecchio each scored one each for Detroit.

Ted Wings pulled Sawchuk in the dying moments of the third period and tossed six forwards into action in a desperate bid for the deadlocking goal. Leafs checking stymied the move.

Kelly, leading scorer in the semi-finals with three goals and six assists, summed up the trade with "It's great to be with a winner."

'Victoria Park' Third in Florida Derby

MIAMI (CP) — Canadian-bred Victoria Park finished in the money but slightly below his expectancy Saturday as he ran third in the $120,000 Florida Derby, won by Bally Ache in a stretch duel with Venetian Way.

Victoria Park, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, was the second betting favorite. He finished three lengths behind Bally Ache, paying $2.50. Manuel Ycaza was up.

Third-place money of $10,000 put the colt's total earnings at $92,762. A good chunk of this was picked up in the $100,000 Flamingo Stake at Hialeah about the end of February when Victoria Park finished second, 3½ lengths behind Bally Ache.

ARCARO WOULD ACCEPT

In New York, jockey Eddie Arcaro—who's lost his mount in the forthcoming Kentucky Derby when Warfare was injured—said before the Florida Derby was run that he would accept Victoria Park as a mount in the derby if he got the call "right this minute," but "if he runs a bad race, maybe I wouldn't want him after all."

Bally Ache's win earned $79,500 and made him an even more powerful contender for the Kentucky classic. The favorite is Tompion, which Arcaro also named as the horse to beat."

In New York, John William ($3,40) also moved into the Kentucky Derby picture by winning the $28,550 Gotham Stakes at Aqueduct. New Commander was second and Count Amber was third.

The $28,475 Wilwyn Handicap at Laurel, Md., was won Saturday by Quiz Star. Hyride 2nd placed and Oligarchy was third.

At San Mateo, Calif., T.V. Lark won the $22,650 Las Vegas Handicap.

Cards Lead Citrus League, Yankees Fail to Shake Jinx

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Staff Writer

The National League clubs start thinking ahead today to the earliest season openers in the history of major league baseball's senior circuit.

With regular season operations getting underway a week from Tuesday, many of the clubs will break camp and began the northward trek with the surprising St. Louis Cardinals clinging to the top of the exhibition standings with a 13-5 record.

Getting a second consecutive route - going performance from Ron Taylor, the Cardinals concluded their Florida training Sunday by defeating New York Yankees 6-3.

Kline, acquired in a trade with Pittsburgh, scattered 10 hits and now has allowed only four runs in 28 innings. Curt Floyd contributed a homer to the Cards' 10-hit attack.

BUHL TAMES MATE

Milwaukee's Bob Buhl also went the distance, holding Washington to four hits in the Braves' 3-2 victory while Detroit's Hank Aguirre pitched a six-inning one-hitter for a 4-0 victory over Pittsburgh in a game shortened by rain.

In other day games, San Francisco blasted the Chicago Cubs 14-9; Baltimore beat Kansas City 5-2; Boston edged Cleveland 3-2 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles and Cincinnati were tied 4-4 when a downpour ended their game in the eighth inning.

In a night game, the White Sox and Philadelphia wound up their three-game series in Puerto Rico with Chicago winning 4-2. The Phils took the first two.

Milwaukee collected just five hits off the Senators' Don Lee and Jack Krallick, but Joe Adcock's solo homer—his fifth of the spring—proved the clincher. Lee Maye also hit a home run for the Braves while Jim Lemon and Harmon Killebrew connected for the Senators.

Detroit's Steve Demeter accounted for the game's only run against the Pirates with a third-inning homer, Danny Kravitz' single was the lone hit off Aguirre.

THOMAS SLUGS TWO

A nine-run sixth inning, highlighted by Ed Bressoud's two triples that drove in five runs brought the Giants from behind for their victory. Chicago's Frank Thomas banged two home runs in a 16-hit Cub offensive. Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda Bouchee.

homered for San Francisco.

Six - hit pitching by rookies Chuck Estrada and Arne Thorsland collared the As as the Orioles clustered five of their seven hits in the second inning for all five runs.

Pompeie Green's 10th inning single drove in the deciding run for the Red Sox, who took their second extra-inning verdict in three games.

Vada Pinson's fourth spring homer and a double and single by Ed Bailey good for two runs were the big blows for the Reds. The Dodgers clubbed Cal McLish and Claude Osteen for 10 hits, including Don Demeter's homer.

The White Sox salvaged the final game of the Puerto Rican series with home runs deciding the issue. Ted Kluszewski hit one good for two runs and Al Smith one, both off Robin Roberts. The Phils' two runs came on homers by Bobby Del Greco and Ed Bouchee.

Teeps Beaten Tied by Irish Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto St. Michael's College Majors fought their way back into contention in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" finals by whipping and tying St. Catharines Teepees in weekend action.

At St. Catharines Saturday the Majors beat the Teepees 5-1 and at Toronto Sunday the two teams tied 3-3. The Teepees now lead the best-of-seven series 2-1 with one game tied.

However the Irish may be handicapped in the next game, to be played at St. Catharines Tuesday, by the loss of their regular goalie Jerry Cheevers, who suffered a possible fractured cheekbone Sunday.

At St. Catharines Saturday a season-record crowd of 3,389 saw the Majors lead 1-0 in the first period and 4-0 at the end of the second. Despite many shots on Cheevers, the home team failed to score until the last minute of the game.

Pittsburgh Keenan and Gino Rebellato scored twice for the Majors while Bruce Draper got the other goal. Peter Bergo had Teepees' lone tally.

At Toronto Sunday, Buel saw Keenan and Dave Draper give the Majors a 2-0 first-period lead before a goals by Teepee defenceman Pat Stapleton in the second and early third period which tied the game.

HOK WINS OPEN

CHICAGO (AP)—Tan Joe Hok of Indonesia defeated Charoen Wattanasin of Thailand 15-6, 15-8 Saturday night to capture his second straight singles championship of the United States badminton open. Wattanasin and Finn Kobbero of Denmark won the men's doubles, the Baltimore athlete team of Judy and Sue Devlin won the women's doubles, and Judy won the women's singles title.

OASA Extends Age Limits In Minor Ranks

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Age limits were extended one year in all minor classifications at the 30th annual Ontario Amateur Softball Association convention here Saturday.

Junior age now is under 23, intermediate under 19, midget under 17, bantam under 15, peewee under 13 and squirt under 10 as of Jan. 1, instead of May 1.

Woodstock Minor Softball Association was host of the two-day event attended by 93 delegates from as far away as Virginia town in the Kirkland Lake region.

W. C. Perkin, Simcoe, was returned by acclamation to a second term as president. Also returned by acclamation were Don Lee, Belleville, vice-president; R. Gray of Windsor, second vice-president; L. G. Pickard of St. Catharines, treasurer; W. L. Maguire, St. Catharines, executive secretary and auditor; H. K. Champion, Hanoor, and Dave Leeber, Peterborough.

SENIOR BOARD

Alguire is beginning his 36th year in office and Pickard his fifth.

A. K. Davidson, Stratford, was re-elected third vice-president.

The executive committee includes: H. F. Dormer, Peterborough; Cec Dunn, Galt; S. Reeve, Sarnia. The executive committee includes: Ed. Dennis, Chatham; Jack Sims, Meaford.

OASA area representatives include: Don Pearson, Woodstock; Charles Gorham, Barrie; Clay Hunter, Hampton; Fames Kelly, North Bay; Howard Winter, Brantford; D. K. Prescott, Sault Ste. Marie; Bert Henry, Sault Ste. Marie; Charles Russell, Oshawa.

The committees and the rules committee were re-appointed en masse.

Umpires fees in all senior series were reduced to $6 from $8 and all catchers required to wear protective masks.

An invitation to hold the 1960 annual meeting in Hamilton was accepted and an invitation to stage the Squire playoff tournament in Simcoe, after an hour of haggling, was left to be dealt with by the executive at the summer meeting July 23-24 in Hamilton.

W. H. Rollins, Belleville, was named honorary president and Dave Leeber, honorary vice-president.

Cougars Edge Canucks 3-2 In Overtime

VANCOUVER (CP)—Victoria Cougars beat Vancouver Canucks 3-2 in overtime Saturday night to grab the opener of the Western Hockey League finals. The game ended in a flurry of punches.

Doug Anderson gave the Cougars the jump in the best-of-nine series with a goal at 2:13 of the sudden-death overtime period.

The after-game brawl began when a fan apparently took a swing at Canucks' Collin Kilburn, and Kilburn went into the stands after him followed by the entire Vancouver team. The brawl also saw the game officials in a centre-ice battle with another fan.

Gerry Goyer, Gordy Fashoway and Doug Anderson scored for Victoria. For Canucks it was Danny Belisle and Carmichael.

Marcel Pelletier, playing with a cracked over a swollen and infected left eye, stopped 39 shots while Vancouver's Hank Bassen stopped 25.

BRITISH WIN

ZWOLLE, The Netherlands (AP)—British defeated The Netherlands 5-1 in a preliminary soccer match here Saturday. Britain qualified for the Olympic Games.

Flin Flon Nips Edmonton 5-4

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Flin Flon Bombers gained a 5-4 victory over Edmonton Oil Kings Saturday night in the western Canada Cup series finals to reduce Edmonton's lead in games to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. Sixth game is here tonight.

Cliff Pennington, who scored nine goals for Bombers in the first four games, was checked closely and got no goals, but managed to set up three goals, including the winner.

Defeat Belmont 7-4

Wellington But Game Away From Bantam Championship

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

WELLINGTON — Not since the days when "Ole Smoke" reynolds' trainer, Miles white, led Mayers' Moira Mohicans to a provincial minor hockey championship some 30 years ago, or, for that matter, Prince Edward County.

That occurred in the 1790's when the puck papooses trailtrekked from the mouths of the Moira to "Smokeville," as this village was known then, toting hand-carved hickory hockey sticks and using bologna sliced slabs from a three-inch oak limb as pucks.

The memorable game the Miles won, the Mohicans lost and Chatham, Ont., was the referee went home minus their hair.

Since that day the "palefaces" victorious have had a hockey-wise, in bringing home the bacon.

Now this lakeside village population, all of them, have visions, and bright ones, of the starry young home-brews decoralling the OMHA Bantam championship bauble on the commanding heights of Belmont.

They locked a firm straingle-hold on the title Saturday afternoon when they whipped that Belmont, Ont., youngsters 7-4 in the first of a best-of-three series in the Aylmer, Ont. arena.

They could wrap it up next Saturday night in Belleville's Memorial Arena when the teams clash in the second final starting at eight o'clock.

Led by Jim Bell, Wellington's speedy centre ace, who accounted for four goals and an assist, Dutch Alexander's miniature "Iron Dukes" grabbed a first period lead, then, coasted with the power in the second frame, outscoring Belmont, which yielded the only goal of the final frame.

And they collected six of the nine minor penalties handed out, two of them apiece to Belmont, and one to the Dukes.

Sharing the Dukes' scoring spotlight with Bell was centre George Budajewski with two goals and two assists, Wayne Craig picked up three assists with Robert Bailey, Donny Ogilvy and Billy Gallagher getting singles.

Larry Holmes, the Dukes gnatlic centre-ice man, brilliant effort especially in the third period when Belmont mounted on the power play in an effort to the margin.

The Belmont ace John Wilshie scored two of his teams' goals with Richardson and Clarke also counting. Wilshie had two assists with Richardson and Schyller credited with one each.

Wilshie put Belmont one up at 1.05 of the first period but McNeil got that one back 30 seconds later. Budajewski put the Dukes in the lead at 11.35 but Richardson tied it up only two minutes of play. McNeil's second goal again gave the Dukes the lead, the counter coming with Graham in the penalty box near the period end.

The Dukes flashed their powerful offensive in the second period scoring three unanswered goals in less than two minutes. Garry Lavender, McNeil and Budajewski were the marksmen with Craig getting all two assists.

Belmont battled hard against the high-flying Dukes finally cutting the margin to 6-3 on Clarke's goal. McNeil scored his fourth goal of the game at 17.22 taking a perfect pass from Garry Lavender.

Wellington displayed their best potential in the third period taking the play from the Dukes, but finding the net but once due to the fine work of Holmes in the nets and a determined Wellington defence. Wilkie counted on Clarke's goal of the period, scoring unassisted at 9.36.

The series is the OMHA fifth playdown classic which young Dukes won their group and Belleville, Trenton, Norwood, Cobeconk and MacTier in their march to the Ontario finals.

Blake Not Taking Chances Orders Workouts for Habs

MONTREAL (CP)—Two tough workouts stand between the Montreal Canadiens and their first game with Chicago Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup finals.

Coach Hector (Toe) Blake had his players all engaged in what Leafs polished off Detroit Red Wings Sunday night in the fourth game of their best-of-seven semi-finals, then won the game and the series 4-2.

Canadien officials figured that Monday and Tuesday mean a game in Montreal Tuesday night. Then Coach Blake would have rested his team.

With the game set for Thursday, the Montreal players must hustle through two heavy workouts today and Tuesday. They will probably have a light practice Wednesday and nothing but a skate-through on the day of the game.

After Canadiens eliminated Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night, they had a long layoff before playing their first game against Chicago.

Blake complained four assists "The money," the practical Hector observed happily, "is different if you get into the final series."

We were asked if we knew how long man has been wearing clothes, and after admitting we had no idea, were reminded that the Bible tells us that Adam and Eve sewed fig leaves together and made

And in Genesis 3:21, the Bible tells us, "Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins and clothed them." So there is no question that clothing in some form has always been with us.

However, the record is not clear as to when man first started to clothe himself in cloth of his own weaving, such as wool, cotton or silk. It is believed that wool cloth was the first fabric to be made, probably in the form of crude felt, even before the dawn of history. Cotton probably was next and, according to the Chinese, silk was the first woven fabric. The Incas use being in China in 2650 B.C., more than 4,500 years ago.

We don't have to guess how long the automobile has been a necessity to man. That's the one field in which we try to keep right up to the minute, so that once you trade with us, you will be sure of the equipment necessity to your satisfaction.

Rangers Shade Macs to Win Bantam Title

Rangers dropped the first game of the BMHA bantam finals 1-0 to the Macs but came roaring back for a 3-1 victory and the championship in the second half of the double header at Memorial Arena Saturday morning.

Then the 1959-60 minor hockey season came to an end after another very successful winter.

A couple of Davids, Anderson and Hurst, led the Macs to their first-game 1-0 victory. Anderson scored the game's lone goal with Al Mott assisting. Hurst turned in the shutout in the club's net.

Anderson fired the Macs' goal again in the second game and Hurst also played well, but it was not enough to stop the Rangers. Richard Eves and Mott assisted on Anderson's marker.

Bobby Ethier and Billy Lesperance were the Ranger sparkplugs in their Unfair triumph. Leslie and Ethier each scored one goal and drew an assist. Tommy Dolan had Rangers' other goal while Jack Thompson picked up an assist.

Three Teams Certain for Senior ORFU

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Whether the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union will have three or four teams won't be known until April 15, it was learned Saturday at the ORFU's annual meeting.

The Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are having financial difficulties following a dismal season at the gate in 1959. K-W spokesman Alex Amiel could only promise definite word on another Kitchener entry after April 15.

By then, he said, his executive will have explored all possible means of raising a team. Included are offers from Canadian football league teams for affiliation, he said.

The other members, London Lords, Sarnia Golden Bears and Detroit Raiders, signified their intention of definitely entering teams this season.

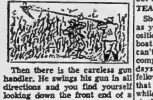
OUTDOORS
with John Alden Knight



Choosing Outdoor Companions

No place, I suppose, can you find out more about the inner workings of your fellow man than in the hunting field or while fishing lakes, streams or salt water. Fishing and shooting represent, in a way, a chance to get something for nothing. A ring-neck flushes, you pull the trigger, and down, magically comes a bird that would cost you five bucks at a game farm. A trout rises to your fly, there is a brief but exciting battle, and you trek up to your lodge and something worth a dollar a pound or more at the fish hatchery. To some folks this prospect of much gain with little outlay does unpleasant things.

Having been an active fisherman and hunter for more than 30 years, it naturally follows that I have hoisted and fished with a great many people. Some have stood the test of time very well indeed; others, lamentably, have not.

PERENNIAL PEST

Consider, for example, that perennial pest of the woods and fields, the bird claimer. A bird flushes, three guns crack, and then comes the familiar cry, "Bow-I really knocked the tail feathers out of that one. Fetch, boy; bring it here." Whereupon he pockets the bird and goes smugly on his way. That's the kind of fellow to go hunting with — once, and only once.

Then there is the careless gun handler. He swings his gun in all directions and you find yourself looking down the front end of a shotgun. Viewed from this angle a single barrel seems to be three inches in diameter. To make things worse, he is blind with his safety off. "Can't go off," he tells you. "Always I have my finger curled around the outside of the trigger guard." He forgets that the chance of his having a tumble is present with every step he takes. I once saw one of these fellows standing while stepping over a low stone fence, then had of number with from his gun completely decapitated a small bush about a foot from a small fence. We don't hunt with him any more and he can't understand why.

Out in South Dakota one year, there was a sweet young thing in the party, the wife of another member of the party. Neither of them had been hunted before. The first thing she did was to climb into the station wagon with a twelve-gauge automatic, fully loaded. I asked her if she had removed the shells from the gun. "What for?" she replied. "The safety's on." She didn't know that the safety locks only the trigger; not the firing mechanism.

"MISSED BIRD, GOT ME"

Two days later her husband fired at a ringneck directly between him and me. He missed the bird but he got me with a full charge of high-speed sizes. Only heavy clothing, a long-visored cap, shooting glasses and a range of about 70 yards saved me from mutilation and possible blindness. That couple was not invited the following year.

Then there is the guy who has spasmodic afflictions of mild Jack fever, which, believe it or not, does happen in upland bird shooting. A bird flushes or moves in the brush ahead of the dog. Then comes the fixed expression and the fanatical gleam in the eye. Believe me, brother; it's up to you to stay out of line. Once is more than enough with those people.

The same thing shows up in fishing. You and your companion drive up beside a pool in a trout stream. Sure enough, there is a school of trout rising to a hatch of flies drifting down from the riffle. The other fellow has that glassy look in his eye. He gets into his waders in time that would make a fireman green with envy. Frantically he slams into his fishing jacket. Then the rush for gear and heads for the stream, assembling rod as he runs. Most times I have put on your waders and jacket, assembled your rod, locked up the car, and then arrive streamside. There he is, right in the choice spot, casting over those rising trout. And there he stays when you make as best you can elsewhere.

TEAMWORK PROPOSITION

Shore-line fishing for bass is as you know, a teamwork proposition. One man handles the boat while the other fishes. You can't be too careful about boat companions. I once spent two days on a good bass river with a fellow who so arranged things that I was handling the boat while he fished through every single solunar period. He still is not sure why we haven't had bass fishing together since then.

Time was when I used to be pretty stupid about fishing companions on a bass river. Had to learn about boat partners the hard way. One fellow hurried into the boat and pushed himself on the back seat. I rowed to the fishing grounds and then tended boat along the shore line for about two hours. Then I suggested that it might maybe be casting, and might be a little tired. Perhaps I could fish a little until he felt like casting again. "I'm sorry, Jack," he replied, "I don't know how to row a boat." And there I was, stuck with him for a three-day week-end.

All too many — the very great majority, in fact — of the fellows who want to go bass fishing are abominable casters. I suffer through the trip with them that one time, giving casting lessons and spending most of my time fishing their lures out of bushes once. After that I have a stock answer.

The phone rings and here is Gus on the line. He wants to go over to the river for a day or two and give the bass a whirl. "Sorry," I tell him, "I'm tied up this weekend. Give me another call and we'll arrange to go over."

Over my dead body, that is.

'Medical Detectives' Give Lie to The Old Saying "Dead Men Tell No Tales"

By JOHN BARBOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — A turbo-prop plane shooting through the Indiana sky crashs apart, and 63 die.

An airliner, feeling its way through rain and fog, sets down too soon, crashes and sinks into Long Island Sound. There are 84 dead.

Yet another plane blows apart over the Carolinas, strewing 34 bodies over 30 acres.

Each crash produces one common element of disaster—human debris. And from these fragments identity must be made.

This is a problem that faces such "medical detectives" as Dr. Milton Helpern, New York City medical examiner and legal medicine expert for New York University.

In the antique building that houses the New York City morgue, Dr. Helpern and his staff give the lie to the old saw: "Dead men tell no tales."

In the debris of one New York plane crash searchers recovered 20 charred bodies. Burns made fingerprinting, a common and reliable means of identification, useless.

RELATIVES HELP

But between autopsies and advice from the families of the victims, the answers were found.

A relative remembered that one passenger had had an operation for removal of her gall bladder. Doctors found the body of a woman without a gall bladder. It was enough to make an identification. Another woman was identified by one of the most precise ladies imaginable. Noting the autopsy experts noted her unusual and extensive dental work. By dovetailing with relatives they narrowed the search and called in the dentist of one of the victims. His accurate records, plus casts, x-rays and so forth matched perfectly.

A male passenger was more of a problem. But pathologists found signs of a recent operation, checked with relatives, and the autopsy yielded the story. The man was recovering from an operation for removal of a tumor. Part of the cancer was still there. STRONG CLUE

Relatives told investigators that one victim had recently suffered

At the Belle

Romance, Action and Adventure in New 3-Feature Show

"The Abductors," at the Belle Theatre today brings you shock-crammed suspense-filled action like you've never seen before. Victor McLaglen and George MacReady are starred in this Twentieth Century-Fox film.

"The Abductors" is the exciting sinister story of two evil men who plot to steal the entombed body of Abraham Lincoln. See the reason for this mad scheme revealed for the first time, taken directly from the secret files of the United States Secret Service.

Featured in the large cast are Fay Spain, Gavin Muir, John Morley, Carlyle Mitchell, George Cisar and Jason Johnson.

Jealousy, Theme of Story

Jealousy is a marvellous theme for a motion picture, and it has been used for the DeLuxe feature, "3 Murderesses," a Twentieth Century-Fox film also starring Romy Schneider in the torture attraction, opening today at the Belle Theatre.

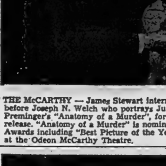
a stroke. The best of the wreckage had been so intense that bodies were dehydrated. Inside the abdomen a dehydrated brain shrinks to a third of its original size.

In one shrunken brain pathologists found two large areas of blood clotting, evidence that this was the stroke victim.

Not all of the difficult problems of identification come from airplane crashes.



Police fished a clothed torso from a Manhattan river. It had been in the water a long time. A billfold found in a pocket yielded the initials of a man on the police missing person's list.

The family, asked for some clue, remembered that the man had suffered from an ulcer. At autopsy, doctors found signs of an operation for removal of an ulcer and of hemorrhage heart disease many years earlier.

Checked with the family confirmed rheumatic heart disease in the missing man's medical history. Positive identification was made.

Grim, Frightening Drama Produced by Playhouse 90

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Alas, Baby—play, from a novel by Pat Frank, lon, Sunday night's Playhouse 90 production on CBS, was a grim and frightening drama about a few men and women who survive the first explosions in nuclear warfare.

The opening portion of the show concerned events in a small Florida community and in the nerve centre of the coolient's air defence as the moment of the first explosion drew closer. After that, it concentrated on what happened to the people in a little town.

Tragedy was routine: A little girl bidden for a Sunday's ball, an older woman dead because there was no insulin, food spoiled by lack of refrigeration, materials contaminated, looting, heart-break—and worst of all, despair and resignation by the survivors.

At the show's conclusion, a civil defence official appears to announce that, to be prepared for such a situation, every citizen should learn the warning signals, have some sort of shelter, know how to tune in for civil defence announcements and learn some first aid.

MAY HAVE MISFIRED

"I'm not sure that Alas, Baby—lon was a very good saleswoman for civil defence precaution. The TV color service is feasible.

offered very little hope even for those who escape the initial effects of the blast. Even the narrator told us in his first sentence that he was dead—"one of the lucky ones," because death came to him nothing that came afterward gave us any reason to believe life was worth living for the survivors.

The cast was excellent: Don Murray, Kim Hunter, Barbara Rush, Judith Evelyn and Dana Andrews.

Even if it was a rather grisly experience, the drama made many viewers glad to be thinking about a place to hide—or whether hiding was worth the effort.

Hard to Beat 'Ben Hur' For Top Academy Award

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Despite strife that has rocked the movie industry in recent months, Hollywood closes ranks Monday night to celebrate the 32nd Academy Awards.

Strikes and rancor will be forgotten for public speech - making at the Pantages Theatre and private merriment at the Academy Ball afterward.

There remain foolhardy souls who think they can outguess the 2,100 Academy Award voters—this writer among them.

BEST PICTURE

This year it will be hard to beat "Ben-Hur." Hollywood was impressed not by the $15,000,000 production cost, but because it came out as a film of taste and dramatic quality. Ben - Hur was by no means the best of the outshone all other epics of the field.

Room at the Top is a strong possibility. It was the most modern drama of the year. The Nun's Story was also well - liked. The Diary of Anne Frank was considered an artistic achievement by many. Every critic loved Billy Wilder for keeping Some Like It Hot in good fun. Also running: George Stevens, The Diary of Anne Frank; Jack Clayton, Room at the Top.

Choice: William Clayton, Room

BEST ACTRESS

Audrey Hepburn appears the favorite, for Miss Hepburn's role she played a long and difficult role requiring a lot of emotion. Don't care to honor a newcomer, as often happens, the winner could be Simone Signoret, for Room a startling impression in Room at the Top.

You can't rule out Elizabeth Taylor and Katherine Hepburn.

Taylor does a remarkable job in Suddenly, Last Summer. So does previous winner Hepburn, whose entrance and exit in the latter film were magnificent. But two nominations for one film tend to cancel each other out.

Choice: Audrey Hepburn, The Nun's Story

BEST ACTOR

Sometimes the Academy chooses to reward a veteran star long taken for granted. Hence James Stewart could win this year, for he's played many a film, but had to sprint in An Skinny of a Murder.

A Ben-Hur victory could win for Charlton Heston; he gave a classic performance, though it lacked what Academy voters usually like: heart. Another good role was for Paul Muni (The Last Angry Man) or newcomer for Laurence Harvey (Room at the Top). A wide-open race could mean victory for a dark horse, like Jack Lemmon. His skirted performance in Some Like It Hot was a comic joy.

Choice: James Stewart, Anatomy of a Murder

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS

Shelly Winters (The Diary of Anne Frank) shines out in a lackluster race. Susan Kohner and Juanita Moore, both in Imitation of Life, seem headed for a split vote. Hermione Baddeley (Room at the Top) appears too unknown to the Hollywood crowd.

Thelma Ritter might be rewarded, but for past performances rather than her work in Pillow Talk.

Choice: Shelley Winters.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR

Another tough one to predict. Sentiment is often a strong factor, and it could favor Ed Wynn for the crotchety destist in The Diary of Anne Frank. Both Arthur O'Connel and George C. Scott were excellent in Anatomy of a Murder, but here is another split situation.

Hugh Griffith made a brilliant contribution to Ben-Hur, supplying humor when it was much needed. Dark horse: Robert Vaughn of The Young Philadelphians.

Choice: Hugh Griffith.

BEST DIRECTOR

It Ben-Hur is named best picture, it figures that William Wyler will win his third Oscar. Runh nghim is Fred Zinneman for The Nun's Story. A whimsical turn of this voters could honor Billy Wilder for keeping Some Like It Hot in good fun. Also running: George Stevens, The Diary of Anne Frank; Jack Clayton, Room at the Top.

Choice: William Wyler

AT THE PARK — Eva Marie Saint stars with Marlon Brando and Lee J. Cobb in "On the Waterfront," opening tonight at the Park Theatre. On the same program for the first Belleville showing "The Last Angry Man", starring Paul Muni, nominated for Academy Award 1959 Best Actor.

RADIO TO TV

Ezra Stone, of the radio "Henry Aldrich" series, now is among the cast of Warner Bros. "Hong Kong Eye" television series.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, April 5, 1960

General Tendencies: The daytime is fine for getting whatever encouragement you need to forge ahead to desirable and worthwhile ideas. Be sure you think out the policies under which you would like to operate in the future. Then tonight be very careful that you do not get involved in a confusing, unconventional situation or you lose facts, supporters.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—This could be a banner day for you both in creative affairs or love, and so far as fun and amusement in favorite recreations are concerned. However, be certain you are not extravagant in any way. Be smart.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Every opportunity is yours to be more devoted to close ties today. Bring home little gifts. Steer clear of any situation that might cause quarreling with kin. Apply the soft pedal to your emotions.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—It would be wise to go to some level authority in open line of endeavor and get fine advice how to progress much faster. Also, contact those higher-ups who can also be instrumental in helping you. P.M. take health treatments.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)—A day for planning higher and better things. Contact financiers, brokers, mercantile men, et als for best advice. P.M. go out socially, but spend very little. Show appreciation and kindness to those who have been loyal to you.

Leo (July 2 to Aug. 21)—A day to make an excellent impression upon those with whom you work. Be very efficient and reveal those hidden talents you have, too. Be sure in the evening that you are not quarrelsome with members of own household.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Ideal day to take that good prospect out to dinner in some fine restaurant where you can discuss business pleasantly and get the results you want. P.M. steer clear of any argument at home. Be cheerful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Get your ideas before the right people today and pave the way to real success in the future. P.M. avoid investing heavily in anything. Go out where there are large social gatherings.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—It behooves you to learn just what your position is with higher-ups, bigwigs with whom it is necessary for you to deal. Come to better understanding. Increase good will. P.M. follow every reputation applying to you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—The right answers can be yours to any current problems if you seek the advice of serious-minded and ethical experts. You will also learn how to advance more quickly in your profession. P.M. have fun. Think positively.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Seek out that famous adviser today who can help you to solve your problems and form an alliance with him, or her in some future corporate venture. P.M. avoid only individual who uses too-persuasive methods.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—A day to come to a far better understanding with all associates as well as competition. Be sure tonight you do your best to assist a friend who is in real need or trouble of some kind. Be understanding and courteous.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—If you are very cheerful and kind with others today, you will in turn get the backing and co-operation you desire. P.M. be most careful in motion and avoid that sudden accident that may come upon you when you least expect it.

If our child is born today . . . The wonderful child born today is the type who is able to accomplish feats of real magnitude and is particularly gifted in any matters dealing with the public in general. You must handle your progeny very gently and always be ready with encouragement for best results. Permit your youngster to start early in his, or her career. The young entertainer is here.

tournment of the signature this afternoon to "discuss a matter of urgent and public importance arising out of the revelations of this report."

The jury described the attitude of management toward worker safety as "callous" but blamed no individual because no evidence showed the same conditions exist in "an irresponsible industry and not unlike those found in sub-surface construction."

The report recommended modernization of department of labor regulations for work under compressed air and urged that the department to make an exhaustive study of the subject.

Also recommended was formation of a rescue training organization under the department's authority in metropolitan centres which require them.

The department was urged to post safety literature in languages other than English when necessary and provide and enforce adequate safety inspection.

LACKED TRAINING

The jury praised the heroic efforts of fellow workers to reach the trapped men but found the efforts were "frustrated by lack of rescue training, inadequate knowledge of equipment and facilities and complete absence of organized direction."

The jury's statement was read, gave about 25 hours of testimony during the three-day inquiry.

The inquest was inquiring specifically into the death of Pasquale Allegrezza, 45. Cause was listed as acute carbon monoxide poisoning and suffocation owing to inhalation of smoke, sand and water.

Fire in the tunnel 30 feet under the shallow Don River was started by a short circuit in a welding torch power line. One man escaped and another was brought out alive.

The other dead are John Cosgrello, 36, Giovanni Fusilio, 32, Guido Mastella, 23, and his brother Alexandro, 25. All were recent immigrants from Italy.

COMPRESSORS SHUT OFF

During the confusion after the fire, someone shut off the compressor and as a result water and mud seeped into the 6-foot-high tunnel where the men were welding a 36-inch water main.

The jury found that rescue operations could have begun without the serious obstruction of water if the smoke, fumes and heat had been dissipated with decreasing the pressure.

"While decompression may have been an error in judgment a much more serious error was the failure of management to predetermine a course of action in the event of such an emergency," the jury said.

The jurors found many of workmen were completely trained for their work, most the foremen were ignorant safety requirements and several forems were not sufficiently competent to be trusted with instruction or direction of workmen.

Garden Notes

Garden Chores for Early Spring

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

From now until hot weather most gardeners will have more jobs than they can cope with. There are several of them that can be finished up indoors and others that are outdoor work that will not depend upon the temperature or the condition of the soil.

The first mild weather brings out the slugs and they eat off the tops of delphiniums, painted daisy, primulas and lupines. Cover the crowns with sharp sifted ashes which have been exposed to the weather for some weeks. Harmful properties will have been leached out.

Repairing garden paths is another job for early spring. If the foundation is sound this is easy. Clean out all moss and weeds. Rake up all loose gravel and redistribute it. Add an inch of new gravel if possible before rolling the surface.

CLEAN AND STORE

How much do you spend each year replacing stakes, pots, and flats? Cut this down by gathering up these items when they have served for the year. Clean and store them for next year. Flats should be dried, scrubbed and treated with a wood preservative. Tighten nails and store in dry place. Pots should be scrubbed in a solution of hot water and tar type disinfectant such as lysol. Use one tablespoon to one gallon of water. Stack and store. Stakes should be dried, brushed off and soaked in a wood preservative three inches deeper than they will be in the soil. Do not use creosote.

A good receptacle for this is a three foot glazed tile, four inches wide. Plug the end with a wood disk and tar to make it leak proof.

An empty motor oil tin, one gallon size makes a light weight pail for the gardener. Punch two holes at opposite sides and run a wire through for a handle. This is also useful for measuring sand, moss, soil and fertilizers.

Short of pots for sowing seeds or transplants? Use berry boxes and line them with two sheets of plastic the kind vegetables come in. Cut the sheets five inches wide by ten long, use two for each box placed at right angles.

GET EARLY START

Hardy vegetables and flowers which will be transplanted later can be planted out doors in a protected spot near the house on the sunny south side. Heat from the house will keep the ground frost free from early April. Lettuce, cabbage, tomatoes, petunias, marigold nicotiana and many others can be started this way. Nasturtiums and Zinnias should not be planted out until the soil warms up.

Peas, lettuce, carrots and onion seed, or sets can go into the open ground as soon as the soil is dry enough to plant. They can stand several degrees of frost.

Have you examined the dahlias, gladiolus, and tuberous rooted begonias lately. They may have tiny sprouts started. Get ready to pot them up or start them into growth in flats in a light window.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE — The family of Mrs. May Belnap, formerly of Rossmore, gathered at her home in Northport, Sunday, to honor the occasion of her birthday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Fojrier; Mr. and Mrs. B. Redditt and Mrs. A. Alyea.

Miss Rosemary Barlage entertained many young friends one evening, recently, honoring Rosemary Bisdee, an April bride-to-be with a miscellaneous shower.

A pleasant evening was enjoyed, all joined in wishing Rosemary much happiness.

Miss Helen Reddick is able to resume her duties again at the Bakery, having been under the doctor's care all last week.

Howard Anderson, of Ottawa, spent a recent weekend with his parents, here.

Mrs. Jessie Hill, who has spent the winter in Winnipeg, is returning to her home, here. While enroute, she plans to attend the wedding of a friend in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fraser opened their home Wednesday evening entertaining the Euchre Club. A pleasant time was enjoyed and prizes awarded according to score.

Master Perry Haire of Frankford, was the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Empey for a couple of days last week.

THREAT OF

could expect from the easing rain remained in doubt. The weatherman said there was still some weather activity in the Gulf of Mexico area and "while this one might slide by there may be another."

In the Toronto area streams were running fast and high early today but there was no immediate danger of serious flooding.

Highland Creek, just east of Metropolitan Toronto, was reported open and flowing fast with its waters creeping close to the danger level in some places.

MARGIN OF SAFETY

At Brantford, E. F. Roberts, chief engineer of the Grand Valley Conservation Authority, said water could rise by as much as three feet in the Grand Valley watershed in the next 36 hours and there could be serious flooding.

In the Greenwood conservation area northeast of Toronto, Duffin Creek was cleared of ice Saturday and poured across the highway in some places.

The public weather office said less than an inch of rain was expected in the Toronto area but about one inch was forecast for the district between Toronto and Trenton and north to Oshawa.

Rain in the Windsor - London area was expected to become intermittent during the night with about one-quarter inch expected at London by this morning.

Mr. McMullen said he could not name any specific area where flooding might occur. He said he expected there would be flooding in the low-lying areas along most streams "and to some houses near the rivers."

FAMILIES FORCED OUT

A number of families in southwestern Ontario were forced out of their homes Sunday night by floods.

In St. Mary's, six families abandoned their homes and another eight were isolated when the north branch of the Thames River overflowed its banks.

Two families in Wingham were evacuated when rapidly-rising water from the Maitland River threatened their homes. If it continues to rise, another 18 families will have to move out.

One section of Highway 86, on the outskirts of Wingham was and water was pouring through a Dyfro subway.

At Walkerton, the Saugeen River was rising at the rate of 1½ inches an hour. Ronald Britain, secretary-fieldman for the Saugeen Valley Conservation Authority, said there was "no cause for alarm as yet, but heavy rains could change the picture."

At Paisley, 13 miles north, one family was advised to move out when water from the Saugeen covered a section of one of the village streets.

Queen Welcomes De Gaulle Back After 16 Years

First Visit to Britain Since Second Great War

LONDON (AP) — Charles de Gaulle of France was welcomed by the Queen, Prime Minister Macmillan and a 41-gun salute upon his arrival in London today to begin a three-day state visit.

The French leader, back on British soil for the first time since June, 1944, reached Victoria Station aboard the Royal Family's own special train from Gatwick Airport, 30 miles south of the city, where his jetliner had landed.

With the Queen were Prince Philip, Princess Margaret, her husband, Lord Snowdon, and her aunt and uncle, the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

Another aunt, the Duchess of Kent, was on the train with the French president's party. She had represented the Queen at Gatwin.

SALUTES BOOM OUT

Massed gun salutes, by the Royal Horse Artillery in Hyde Park and by Honourable Artillery Company at the Tower of London, boomed out as the train pulled into the station.

De Gaulle shook hands and chatted warmly with the Queen, Prime Minister Macmillan and Margaret in turn.

He greeted the various military men in the welcoming party with casual salutes.

In addition to the Royal Family and Macmillan, the party included Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, Home Secretary R. A. Butler, and the lord mayor of London, Sir Rupert Stockdale—the latter garbed in splendid, traditional cloak of black and gold.

The Queen personally introduced de Gaulle to some of the welcoming party, then led the way outside the station where a 50-batted honour guard of the Coldstream Guards was drawn up in stiff at attention.

With the Queen at his side, de Gaulle inspected the guard saluting while the guards band played the Marseillaise.

State landaus then drew up for the trip through the city to Buckingham Palace.

De Gaulle was accompanied by his two sons, including Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Symbolically, he wore the uniform of a brigadier, his wartime rank.

FIRST ENGAGEMENT

It was the Queen's first public engagement since the birth of her third child, Prince Andrew, on Feb. 19.

The soldier-president will talk with Macmillan about the economic conflict with the Common Market and issues that will be discussed at the East-West summit conference next month.

De Gaulle's meetings with Macmillan mark the midpoint of the French president's preparations for the summit conference of last week and the week before with Prime Minister Adenauer. Later this month he goes to Washington to see President Eisenhower.

Officially, de Gaulle is returning the visit the Queen made to Paris in April, 1957, to celebrate coincidence with the 56th anniversary of the Anglo-French entente. French-British proclamation of friendly relations signed April 8, 1904.

The entente is showing new signs of vigorous revival as Europe's economic affairs.

Three Former Toll Collectors Held for Theft

MONTREAL (CP)—Three former toll collectors on Jacques Cartier bridge were arrested by the RCMP Monday on warrants alleging theft and breach of trust in toll operations of the heavily-rocked bridge spanning the St. Lawrence River.

RCMP Supt. Rene J. Belec said more arrests are imminent.

The trio appeared later warrants for the arrest of six men, all former toll collectors, were obtained from Judge T. A. Forbes.

The warrants were reported to involve theft of a total of $25,750. Highest individual amount was $8,500, the lowest $1,500, a court source said.

Police said the first three arrested would be arraigned today on charges of theft. They were Joseph Michel Savoie, 47, of suburban Longueuil, Andre Joseph Decary, 37, Longueuil, and Marcel Dueppe, 37, Montreal South.

Warrants mentioned Savoie on two separate theft charges of $4,-600 and $400; Decary on one of $1,500 and Dueppe on theft charges of $1,500 and $250.

Cigaret Test Case on Cancer Before Court

PITTSBORGH (AP) — Is the medical profession qualified to determine whether heavy smoking can cause lung cancer?

That was the question raised Monday at the opening of a civil trial in U.S. district court here in Pittsburgh cabinet maker's damage suit claiming a lung cancer was caused by smoking cigarets.

Defence counsel Earl F. Reed represented Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company, contended in his opening that the whole medical profession cannot say that cigarets cause lung cancer.

But lawyer James P. McArdle, representing plaintiff Eric Pritchard, 57, claimed medical scientists could determine if cigaret smoking causes cancer of the lung.

Pritchard sued the tobacco company for $1,250,000 in 1954. He said he had a lung removed in December, 1953, because of cancer. The cancer, he charged, was caused by smoking the firm's Chesterfield cigarets regularly for 23 years.

Wisconsin Vote Could Decide Kennedy's Fate

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The first big presidential primary of the 1960 United States election campaign opened early in Wisconsin today, pulling the hopes of three main contenders to the test of the ballot box.

Voters began at 8 a.m. EST with the weather forecast for fair skies and a warm day.

Election interest was at a fever pitch throughout the state, stirred in large part by the appearance of a religious issue and the hard-fought campaigns of two Democratic candidates.

One of them, Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts, said his zero hour was at hand today. "If I am beaten," he said, "I'm out."

FLEMING BUDGET BEING DISSECTED BY OPPOSITION

Claim Govt. Turned Over on Promises

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons opposition began dissecting Finance Minister Fleming's new budget Monday.

The initial clinical work produced two motions of non-confidence, both will come to a vote toward the end of the eight-day budget debate.

The Liberal party's financial critic, William Benidickson, member for Kenora-Rainy River, said the budget revealed "cavalier treatment of unemployment and left the financially troubled under the rug." On agriculture, silence was deafeningly.

Mr. Benidickson described the finance minister, in his third budget, as "still warming his coat-tails before the glow of his predecessor's fire in tariff matters." But every budget had resulted in complaints from Canada's four key customers.

MONEY MEN'S BUDGET

Ernest Gregler (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) said the budget was for "Fleming's few"—the money men and the vested interests who were exploiting Canadian natural resources.

Lloyd R. A. Bell (PC—Carleton), Mr. Fleming's parliamentary secretary, defended the administration as containing no alienating concepts.

The vehicle for the budget debate was Mr. Fleming's motion for the Commons to go into a committee of ways and means so consider the budget resolutions Thursday night.

Mr. Benidickson accused the government of somersaulting on its 1957 and 1958 election campaign promises.

Mr. Fleming's exhortations to "work and save" were of little help to "the poor unemployed who would like to work, so they could save."

Mr. Benidickson said it was discouraging to close friends, a partial list of the government's broken election promises. They not kept included promises for lower taxes, lower expenses for defence development, reorganized national defence and a diversified export trade with the United States to Britain.

Now it was abundantly clear that "the prime minister is mortal and the taxpayers' purse is limited."

Baby Girl Dies Despite Order For Transfusion

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A two-day-old baby girl, made a ward of the Children's Aid Society Monday in order to receive a blood transfusion, died early today in hospital.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Rondall of Wolfe Island, members of the Jehovah's Witnesses faith, refused to consent to the blood transfusion which doctors said was necessary to save the baby girl who was suffering a heart disease.

In special court session family court Judge Donald Menzies declared the child a temporary ward of the Children's Aid Society.

The baby was 19 hours old before the operation was started but it a ward of the society.

The infant received the transfusion minutes after the court's decision.

Astronomers Sure Intelligent Life Exists on Millions of Planets

GREEN BANK, W.Va. (AP)— Once upon a time man believed he lived in the very centre of the universe, supremely alone.

But today astronomers are confident that intelligent life and civilizations thrive on possibly millions of planets.

And somebody out there, they say, has established a technology advanced by having lived and invented for hundreds, thousands and even a million years longer than man has been on earth.

Scientists on earth have only recently developed sensitive antennae and radio amplifiers able to pick up signals beamed out this way from planets thousands of billions of miles away.

These are prime reasons for attempting now to listen for signals from space, using the gleaming radio telescope—85 feet in diameter—which is the National Radio Astronomy Observatory here. It is somewhat similar to the pioneer radio telescope at Jodrell Bank, England.

But two compelling reasons for hoping for success ultimately are the probability, enunciated by Frank D. Drake, astronomer directing Project Ozma.

One is that of perhaps 200,000,000,000 suns or stars making up a great galaxy, the Milky Way. The Milky Way is only one of billions of galaxies, some with more and some with fewer stars.

Many astronomers now think that intelligent life developed on at least 50 per cent of all stars have planets revolving around them.

To support life, a planet must be neither too close nor too far from its star, as the Earth is from this way, and life developed here.

But possibly millions of stars have favorably located planets, and have shone long enough of constant intensity to develop intelligent life. Many of these could be 1,000 to 2,000 million years close enough for radio contact despite the vast reaches of space between almost all stars.

Makers of Specialty-Type Bags Accused in Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Fourteen manufacturers of specialty-type paper and foil bags in eastern Canada were accused in a combines report today of having conspired to prevent price competition among themselves and to suppress some of their customers.

The report by the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission told of an interchange of price information in 1958-59, by the group which is claimed to have supplied about 82 per cent of an annual market of more than $8,000,000 for specialty bags.

The report said their "co-operative efforts were clearly intended to prevent, as far as possible, competition in price in the supply of specialty bags to selected customers."

The commission's findings covered certain types of bags usually made to order for commercial customers and made of such materials as cellophane or cellulose and glassine — two special types of paper. It did not cover bags of the kind that are made from plastics.

The report was based on a statement of evidence submitted to the commission last year by combines investigation officials. Mr. MacDonald naming these companies:

Appleford Paper Products Limited and John Fortune Limited (Canada) Limited, both of Hamilton; Associated Paper Bag Corporation Limited, Montreal; Bell Paper Company Limited, Brantford; Canada Paper Company Limited, Dominion Envelope Company Limited, Kilgour's Limited, Weldrick Bag Company Limited, all of Toronto; and Colonial Paper Products Limited, Ottawa.

Justice Minister Fulton said he has not yet received further steps ought to be taken.

The commission said the companies' actions were intended to prevent price competition in the paper bag trade of their customers.

It said their actions were likely to operate to the public detriment, but said it wasn't possible to express any conclusion as to the actual consequences on competition of their actions.

The report named the central figure in the group was Paul S. Appleford, president of Dominion Envelope.

Dyldeoser was that the companies drew up a list of customers with whom competition was to be suppressed. When one of these customers asked a manufacturer for a price quotation on some specialty bag, the matter would be referred to Mr. Newell, who told the manufacturer the most recent price for the bag.

Mr. Newell said at a combines hearing in 1958 that he didn't stop the circulation of wrong price information by some concerns that were trying to push up prices.

Movie 'Ben Hur' Scores Great Record With 11 Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The $15,000,000 movie Ben - Hur, most costly in Hollywood history, scored a record-breaking triumph Monday night.

It was the greatest Academy Award triumph ever scored.

The $15,000,000 spectacular from another medium—did the classic tale of Judah Ben-Hur win 11 awards for which it was nominated. The screenplay Oscar went to the British author of the play.

The movie also won the top actress award for Simone Signoret.

Charlton Heston, who portrayed the title role of Ben-Hur, won the best actor Oscar.

Hugh Griffith, a Welshman who played Ben-Hur's Arab foster father, was named best supporting actor.

Ben-Hur also won the award for best picture and best director for William Wyler.

The picture won awards for best cinematography, best art direction, best sound; best film editing; best art direction, white included; best set direction; best score by Hugh Hurst; best color cinematography and best musical scoring.

ONTARIO WASTING $300,000 ON CIVIL DEFENCE

CCF Member Makes Charge in House

TORONTO (CP)—The government was told Monday that it may as well throw its $300,000 set aside for civil defence into Lake Ontario for all the good it will do.

Thomas D. Thomas (CCF—Oshawa) said that both the federal and provincial governments have fallen down on the job of civil defence. Canada was spending only 26 cents per capita on defence but $15c per capita on armaments "they sometimes pronounce missile within a few weeks."

"Money is being poured down the drain. Why don't you come up with something the people can use," said the veteran CCF member.

LIBERAL COMMENT

"You may as well throw it all in Lake Ontario," snapped Ross Whicher (L—Bruce).

The governments would have to spend $50,000,000 to do a proper job, said Mr. Whicher, and if it wasn't going to do that it was silly to spend what was put the $300,000 into the department of education where it could be put to better use.

Civil defence exploded in the House as opposition sizzled through the $13,695,000 estimates of the department of planning and development near the close of the session. The demand for the resignation of one cabinet minister and hints that another might follow.

Planning and Development Minister Allan Grossman said communities would have only 20 minutes warning of the threat of missile attack. The provincial government was helping 479 municipalities set up CD organizations to act when this warning was given.

Evacuation was out of the question in such short notice.

The furious debate erupted into the opposition cross-fire to agree that civil defence is either a matter of high importance or no importance at all.

He said he is meeting Wednesday with the Ontario fire chiefs and also military leaders to work on a plan.

STRIKE SHAKE

Vernon Singler (L — York Centre) hinted that Mr. Mickle was dodging the responsibility for planning and development has "never developed the civil defence department" he rapped.

Grossman congratulated the government on transferring some responsibility to "expert minded men" to another department.

"Now the rest of the things have got to go," he said, leaving Mr. Mickle with no department.

Charge Conductor For Blocking Crossing

BROCKVILLE (CP) — A railway conductor was charged Monday with blocking a rail crossing in Brockville for longer than the maximum five minutes allowed in a local bylaw.

Police chief Wilmot F. Youst said Monday the charge was laid against Clifford Lawrence W., 43, of Richmond, Que. He said it was the first such case in his 25 years on the force.

Lasonde will go on trial April 19.

Police said the incident happened March 28 but declined to say why it took so long to get to Perth Street in the centre of Brockville blocked by the passenger train.

Says Canada May Have Economic Atomic Power 3 Years Before U.S.

NEW YORK (CP)—L. S. Bate, of Atomic Energy of Canada said today that he has no doubt Ontario for an atomic reactor station that is expected to produce electricity that will be being competitive" with coal-fired stations.

Bate, design co-ordinating engineer with the atomic authority, said the cost of the power would depend on how much of the engineering and construction could be placed against this first station in the Canadian program. It was usual to spread such cost over several stations.

Bate, speaking an international atomic exhibition at the New York Coliseum, said in an interview information on the program has been published from time to time since the federal government voted the necessary funds a year ago.

Bate spoke at a press conference Monday in which U. M. Staebler of the United States Atomic Energy Commission said the U.S. expects to produce economic atomic power in three areas by 1968. Observers thus reasoned that Canada could have economic atomic power three years ahead of the U.S.

But Bate said the assumption could be true because "what is known in the U.S. is not known in nonclear is another." It depended to a large extent on the interest charges on financial outlay. The Canadian authority was able to get the funds at 4½ per cent interest, a lesser rate then that prevailing in the U.S.

Bate said the first Canadian station, on the shore of Lake Huron, will have an output of 268,000 horsepower.

Negro Policeman In Plain Clothes Hacked To Death

Brutal Police Beatings Of Bantus Continuing

CAPETOWN (AP) — Two South African white policemen were injured and one Negro killed as police in plain clothes hacked to death a lone policeman in a new outburst of race-rioting today at the big Nyanga Negro settlement, 10 miles east of Capetown. The South African Press Association reported.

The South African Press Association reported that these casualties were announced by Maj.-Gen. J. Sieberg, district commandant of police at Athlone, east of Capetown.

The newspaper Cape Argus reported at least five Negroes were wounded when police opened fire in Nyanga. The newspaper said the wounded included a seven year - old child and an elderly woman, both shot in the legs.

The violence came as police with armored cars ranged through Nyanga, herding Negroes in an attempt to get them to go back to work, witnesses reported to the United States consulated. Press and Reuters news agencies.

The South African Broadcasting Corporation reported that a mob of Negroes stoned a bus this morning at Umlazi, a Negro settlement near Durban.

It was the only incident reported outside the Capetown area fighting, but in various places in the Cape Province Negroes were still expected to be trying to keep other Negroes away from work.

About 100 Negroes besieged by police armed with rifles last night at a hostel near Lamontville, 10 miles from Durban, were reported by police and a military detachment early this morning.

Most of them were Zulu tribal natives who have decided to go home until the racial strife is over. Police said many of them had been victims of intimidation by "city Negroes."

Authorities in Cape Peninsula said that the return to work today despite continued intimidation attempts. Some 10,000 Negroes were reported to have stayed away. Forces were "almost back to normal."

The first fatal fighting, witnesses quoted earlier by the Associated Press, involved Negroes, including at least one woman and a child, had been killed in police gunfire, and that there were "other casualties."

"I don't know if I am not certain how many or whether they were shot or just beaten up."

Col. V. Reay, acting deputy commissioner of police in Capetown, said the police had only fired "a few shots in the air."

OFFER PROTECTION

Reay said the police had entered Nyanga to offer protection to Negroes who wanted to go to work and to round up "intimidators" among them.

South Africa's white supremacy government has been using police to force idle Negroes back to work. But reports agreed that 60 per cent who returned to their jobs Monday after a week's boycott of transportation again in protest against the latest police action.

Thirty-five persons were reported wounded in Capetown and three police surrounded the Nyanga townships and rounded up Negroes. Negroes who had gone back to work. Police denied that many were wounded by police fire.

Hundreds of Negroes were reported beaten in Capetown Monday as police broke out rubber clubs to clear the streets of truck-blemakers.

Mouth-to-Mouth Respiration Aid Is Developed

TORONTO (CP)—A new instrument to facilitate the controversial mouth-to-mouth method of artificial respiration was described Monday to delegates to the annual convention of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

The inventor, Dr. Morris H. Brock of Saskatoon, said his "Brook Airway" has overcome main drawbacks of the direct mouth-to-mouth method — revulsion to physical contact with a person who may be dead and the risk of infection.

More than 2,000 delegates from all over the United States heard evidence that the effectiveness of the mouth - to - mouth method of resuscitation is being increasingly recognized.

William E. Stevens of Guelph said he used the method to revive a man more than seven minutes after he sank in a swimming hole.

Wreckage Found on Lake Is Missing Plane

PORT STANLEY (CP)—Wreckage found floating on Lake Erie Monday has been positively identified as that of a United States civilian aircraft which crashed Sunday on a flight from Buffalo to Detroit.

The RCAF search headquarters at Centralia, said today a serial number on a wing strut matched that of a Piper Comanche which disappeared with a pilot and three passengers aboard.

Only a slim chance remained that any of the four were alive.

Today a diver was to begin a search of the lake bottom for the main section of the aircraft. He went to the scene, marked by a navy buoy.

Flt. Lt. Bill King of Trenton, commanding officer of the Centralia operation, said the wreckage was found a mile off Talbot Point, 10 miles west of here. It consisted of a nose section and a broken strut which were held afloat by the inflated nose tire.

The committee in charge of the recent March of Dimes drive wish to announce the final figures of the drive announced to $6,154.31. Expenses involved in reaching this figure were $44.85. The committee would like to express its sincere appreciation to all the citizens who gave so generously and especially to those who helped in the drive.

NOTHING TAKEN IN BREAK-IN

City and provincial police reported little activity during the past 24 hours with no accidents of a serious nature and few other occurrences.

Provincial police investigated a break-in at the Rigby Superette Station at Rossmore, but a check of the premises failed to reveal anything missing.

THEFT OF CAR BRINGS YEAR TERM

Robert Calbury, 21, of Toronto, today was sentenced to one year in the reformatory on the theft of a car, March 15, from Boyce's used car lot on Pinnacle St. He was additional concurrent present three-month sentence for theft of gasoline.

Calbury pleaded guilty to the charges in magistrate's court last Friday.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH THEFT

Dale Beer of Belleville today was fined on his own recognizance when he appeared before Magistrate T. V. Wills, charged with breaking and entering and theft. He will appear for trial April 22.

Beer was arrested following a break-in March 29 at the Toronto-to-Star building on West Bridge St.

PLEADS GUILTY, FINED $22

Patrick Bennett, 19, of Belleville, today pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to causing a disturbance on Front St. Saturday night and to obtaining liquor while under the age of 21.

He was fined a total of $22 and in default of payment he will spend two weeks in jail.

PERMIT VALUE OF NEW BUILDINGS TOTALS $59,650

The permit value of new construction in Belleville for the month of March was $59,650, according to figures released by the city building inspector's office. Residential construction for the month totalled $38,800.

PERFECT HAND CAME AT LAST

Everything comes to those who wait. Norm M. Bird's ex colleague players.

William and Judy Mundrey of 217 Station Street, have been playing two-handed "crib" for 22 years now.

They had the usual run of "nibs" hands — but then the "29-er" never happened along. That is, until today.

Mr. Mundrey cried excitedly at the jack and threw fives held in his hand.

But his eyes popped when the Jack-pair five turned up.

Now it is Mrs. Mundrey's turn. She could have a long, long wait.

M. Hamelink New Champion Of Chess Club

Completing a nine-game schedule undefeated, Martin Hamelink of Amelia Street is the new winner of the T. R. Meeus Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Belleville Chess Club.

Not all games in the tournament have been completed, but Hamelink's final game at the Chess Club's weekly meeting yesterday evening Hamelink placed himself out of reach of any of the other nine contestants.

Hamelink defended the tournament with an 8½-½ score, winning all his games with one exception, a draw with Dick Payne, who has also completed his schedule with a 7½-1½ score, having draws with Tim Meeus and John Johnston as well as with Hamelink. Johnston could tie for the runner-up position, he having a 7½-1½ score.

Last year's winner of the Meeus Trophy was H. D. Ellis of Trenton, who has since been transferred to Ottawa by the RCAF.

Approve Plans For Construction Of Soo Bridge

TORONTO (CP) — An official delegation from Sault Ste. Marie have unqualified approval today to the government's plans for the construction of a $15,500,000 toll bridge linking the two Sault Ste. Maries of Ontario and Michigan.

Mayor James McIntyre told the legislature's committee on public bills that residents of the Ontario city are ready and anxious to begin, when the bridge is opened in 1962. Premier Frost's assurance of correcting any traffic congestion that removed city objections to the overall plans.

400 Canvassers Making Rounds In Cancer Drive

The Canadian Cancer Society's campaign to raise $2,967,900 opened Monday on a province-wide, volunteer, community level. On the local level close to 400 volunteer canvassers began their house-to-house canvass of the entires city.

Campaign chairman, Clarence Fuzzen, reported every home will be visited by a volunteer canvasser, and if a family should not be home when the canvasser calls, an envelope with a return call to ensure everyone will be able to donate to this worthy crusade may have the opportunity to do so.

Mr. Fuzzen also stressed there will be no special canvass or local business or industrial canvass only the door-to-door canvass, this year.

In order to clear up any confusion people may have that the campaign started earlier than scheduled, Mr. Fuzzen explained the Cancer Ball day held Saturday was sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Institute's funds are received from the Canadian Cancer Society, the future of cancer research depends largely upon the success of the April campaign.

More funds are needed for research to enable scientists to expand their attack in the laboratories. Last year more than a hundred cancer research projects were supported by the National Cancer Institute. More funds are also needed for cancer education to intensify the fight against cancer in scientific treatment, and for welfare services to ensure this humanitarian effort of many volunteers will continue to bring comfort to those who suffer from cancer.

PLENTY FOR RESEARCH

A total of $1,097,967 of this year's objective will be used for cancer research, $863,700 to provide facilities for research, and $1,470,233 will be used for cancer education and welfare services.

Ontario's campaign objective is $1,220,000.

The Canadian Cancer Society has predicted about 44,000 new cases of cancer will be diagnosed in Canada this year, based on the incidence rate of approximately 250 new cases a year for every 100,000 population.

Help to make sure you or a member of your family are not among those statistics. Support the 1960 campaign with a Check-up and a cheque."

Scouting activities

By CHRIS LEGGAT

9th BELLEVILLE CUBS

At a "Going Up" ceremony the other night four Cubs were promoted to Bey Scouts. The boys presented step in the adventure of Scouting. These boys were enrolled on the same day, November 14, 1956. From then on they went their several ways through the Second Star Cub to become Scouts.

Tom Henricks was invested on December 13th, 1956, Cubs where his First Star March 9th, 1958, and the Second Star March 15th, 1960. He had four proficiency badges. David Beresford was invested March 17th, 1957, received the First Star January 9th, 1958, the Second Star Oct. 21st, 1959. David had 12 badges.

GARY McGHEE—13 BADGES

The most pleasant duty we do is reporting a 13-badge Cub; to date Gary McGhee is the late one who was invested on January 10th, 1957, received his First Star on December 11th, 1957, and his Second Star January 31st, 1959. In this comparatively short space of time he also passed his tests for all the proficiency badges a Cub can get. No wonder Akela Clifford Wheeler reports this "Going Up" ceremony with pride.

The future Cubs will be presented with Leaping Wolf badges, which will be worn on their new Scout shirts. All the other hard-earned badges are taken down—a heavy price to pay for become a Scout.

It is seldom that all the Cubs go up have qualified for the Leaping Wolf badge. The success of a Cub Pack is largely due to good leaders. In the 9th there are four; some we have never had and have unlimited patience. Their reward is the fact that the Cubs also work hard to be a credit to their leaders and earn as many stars and badges.

Cubmaster Clifford Wheeler and his three ACM's, "Daloo" Lee Thompson, Bert Ward and "Rikki" Charlie James all deserve praise for the high standard of efficiency that mock has achieved.

Liberal Leader Pearson Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — William Dulmage, CBC public relations director, said Monday the CBC refused to allow an interview with Liberal Leader Pearson on Saturday's Stanley Cup hockey game here because of the political implications.

Mr. Dulmage said a sponsor's proposal to interview Mr. Pearson about his former sport connections was dropped because "no matter how you slice it, it would have been political in nature."

Former S. Africa Resident Outlines Problems of That Country to Rotary Members

"It would be fairer to call South Africa's trouble 'white' problem," Friedel Bellingan, former resident of South Africa, told members of the local Rotary Club yesterday afternoon. Giving an outline of the country's development over the past number of years and a brief synopsis of its history, the graduate chemist of Edinburgh University said that the country was developed by the whites with both whites and natives settling in the South African territory during the same period in the 1600's.

In a country which has some 10 million Bantu or natives to about three million whites (of whom 60 per cent are of Dutch Afrikaan and the remainder of English origin) there is a considerable investment by the whites, who have been responsible for the entire development of a nation which is extremely rich in natural resources, the speaker said. It is only natural that the white people want to stay in charge, he continued, but whereas the English whites were willing to give the native leadership until such time as the native had been sufficiently educated to be able to take a governing role, the Afrikaan government, the Boers insist on white supremacy and intend to maintain it even if they have to resort to force.

Education is available for many natives, said Mr. Bellstedt, but even when they have advanced so far as to become university doctorate, they are still not permitted to vote. The only exception is a native chemist who, because of the nature of the doctor's chemist continued, there has developed the conservative educated group, the speaker said, which should have under normal circumstances the most persistent demand for "one man, one vote" and the natives are providing a leader for the operation of Communist propaganda which is the main position of assistant minister of the world famous Pauri Wineries in the province, he said.

CONFIDENCE SHAKEN

What of the future? Mr. Bellstedt thinks the confidence of his life in South Africa, said he will finish out his term, but ough time left in which to accomplish anything. However, nor does he feel the investment Boer government will do anything to shake it.

He was thanked by Rotarian ward Imbling education.

Following the death of her mother in 1913, Debbie remained with her father and sister, Esther, who died in 1926. Not long after the death of her mother a prestige proposal made several years previously and became the wife of Mr. Sheridan, Clerk of Hillier district. Since May 1950, when Mr. Sheridan died, Miss Bedell, she has continued to live in the handsome home known as "The Willows" on the Bloomfield Shore Road east of Picton.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bedell were life members of the United Empire Loyalist Association of Canada. They were God-fearing Christian citizens who took great pleasure in helping their fellow citizens. Mrs. Bedell was a longtime member of the Hillier Women's Institute.

Left to mourn her passing are a sister, Miss Mattie Young of Hillier; two nieces, Mrs. Olive Dales and Vera Young in Toronto; nephew Lenox Newberry of Picton; cousins, Miss Madeline Young and Alice, Mrs. Lelia Holmes, of Bandonville; Addie Cox and E. Claude Young of Wellington, and many cousins in New York, Florida and California.

Committal service to entombment in the Wellington vault, Rosehill, will be private service in the Ainsworth Funeral Home by Rev. Alexander Miller of Wellington United Church, on Friday at Wednesday afternoon.

BIG LAW SUIT

HULL, Que. (CP) — Gatineau Power Company has instituted a compensation action claiming $19,656,988 from its tenants in New Brunswick and Maine. The action, as outlined in the company's annual report, follows expropriation of the company's New Brunswick operations by the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission.

ROBERT BUDDE

Final Concert Of Season Will Be Given Friday

Robert Budde, the brilliant American violinist will appear on Friday at the Collegiate Auditorium under the auspices of the Belleville Symphony Concerts Association, as conductor and soloist with the Radio Sinfonietta, a unique ensemble of vocal and instrumental artistry, in a program of unusual variety. The Sinfonietta features 11 instrumentalists and 4 vocalists, in addition to Mr. Budde, will be Phyllis Williams, soprano; Robert Kirkham, baritone; and Susan Belfry, pianist.

Mr. Budde, in addition to being an astounding violin virtuoso, is a witty raconteur whose comments on violinistic matters have enchanted his recital audiences from coast to coast.

CHOSEN CARE

Mr. Budde has chosen his young and talented soloists with great care.

Phyllis Williams returns to her native land after many successful appearances. The soprano has sung at the Salzburg Festival and in the historic opera house at Linz, Austria, and she studied at the Mozarteum in Salzburg on a Fulbright scholarship. She has sung with the Budde Sinfonietta since it was formed.

Robert Kirkham is a young singer whose stage presence and vocal power have highlighted many performances of opera, light opera and oratorio. He has drawn high praise as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra and on radio and TV.

Joining the Budde Sinfonietta this season lovely Susan McDonald has a list of credits. The 24-year-old American has studied at the Paris Conservatory and toured the U.S. extensively. She has won tremendous acclaim for her unique interpretive of original harp works.

The Budde Sinfonietta concludes an evening of delightful music. It has won the praise of musical connoisseurs from coast to coast.

New members for the 1960-61 season will have the opportunity of hearing this, the last concert of the current season.

Community Concert membership may be obtained at the campaign headquarters, YMCA, during this week only.

Change in City Zoning Affects Kerby's Board

A change in city zoning regulations to allow for highway commercial construction along three access roads leading into the city, was approved yesterday by the Ontario Municipal Board following a hearing at city hall.

There were no objectors to the proposed zoning change and the application was approved within a matter of minutes.

The zoning change will apply on certain areas along North Front Street, and both East and West Dundas Street where in addition to approved types of construction the RM-2 type, construction of motels, auto showrooms with new and used car sales lots, office buildings, wholesale warehouses and retail outlets and showrooms will be permitted.

The area along North Front Street where highway commercial construction will be permitted under the zoning change will extend from College Street north to the high tension power line. Similar construction will be permitted in the area along Dundas East and West Dundas Street.

Construction of a motel unit has been applied for by Kerby for the North Front Street area.

Six Opposition Attempts Fail To Change Bill

TORONTO (CP)—Government supporters defeated six opposition attempts to change the Ontario Bill 86, an amendment to the Ontario Public Service Works Act, in discussion Monday before the bill went to the third reading House. The bill will come before the legislature for third and final reading, possibly today.

Since the bill was introduced last week it has been the subject of criticism from opposition members in the House and from a variety of public organizations.

Liberal farm members proposed two amendments to the bill, which gives the government greater control over the operations of marketing agencies. The CCF proposed four. All amendments were defeated by the Progressive Conservative majority.

SEEK UNDUE HASTE

Peter Mancl L — Stormont — said Monday the government had "railroaded" the bill through without placing it for discussion before the legislature's agricultural committee, which is usual practice for bills of importance to be discussed by farmer delegations.

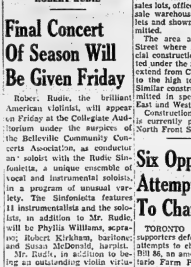
Premier Frost explained that present marketing legislation permits the government to revoke all marketing plans in Ontario if required. The new legislation merely permitted a marketing agency to "sit down" with the minister and "talk over" the most favorable plan.

The Budde Sinfonietta in the past is browbeat the bug producers and bell them what to do." CCF Leader Mac Donald charged "Now he's legalizing it."

The government would never dare cancel a marketing plan, said Grenville Davis, PC — Leeds Woodbine), because of the effect on the electors. "What they are asking for now is to be able to interfere in all phases of marketing.

"You misconstrue the power of this act," Mr. Frost interjected.

The bill authorizes the marketing board to make regulations "intervening when necessary in the operations of a marketing agency and to audit books of accounts, and requires approval of the board for grants made by local agencies.



DICTATORIAL' BILL

Ross Thatcher — Moose Bruce — called the bill "dictatorial." He said it gives the government the power to "steal the money of the farmers of Ontario."

"The only way they have in their treasury is their own pockets," Mr. Farmer said.

Agriculture Minister Goodfellow said the hog producers' agency handled some $1,800,000 last year. The governments must know how such large sums are distributed, he said.

Farquhar Oliver (L — Grey South) said the government could use the legislation "as a big stick to hold over the agencies" to force them to act as the government wanted.

Board Members Will Resign Before December Elections

TRENTON — The Board of Education met Monday night with I. M. Robb of the Ontario School Trustees' Council, and S. G. B. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation present.

Before the meeting a delegation of 25 citizens presented a written petition to the chairman of the board, T. S. Ketcheson, pointing out their concern as parents and the gravity of the situation at the high school. They asked to be allowed to attend the meeting.

As a result, R. Carswell, secretary of the board, said the board had decided that discussion would be freer if the public and members of the press were excluded from the meeting.

After the meeting the board released the following statement:

"A meeting of the Trenton Board of Education with representatives of the Ontario School Trustees' Council and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation was held this evening.

"As a result of discussions the following motion was passed unanimously and forwarded to the Secondary School Teachers' Federation for the consideration of its executive.

That, in order to resolve the present difficulty with respect to the operation of the Trenton High School, this board requests the Ontario School Trustees' Council and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation to each appoint a consultant to the Board of Education to meet with the board at its regular meetings, and such other meetings as required to attend, for the balance of the year 1960, and the members of the Trenton Board of Education agree that at a proper time, prior to December, 1960, elections, all elected members whose terms would normally continue until 1961 will retire.

ELECT FULL BOARD

This will make it possible for a full board to be elected. It be left to the electorate to determine whether he will offer himself for re-election or not.

The motion was signed by T. S. Ketcheson, chairman of the board.

In an interview later, Mr. Robinson said that he and Mr. Robb had visited the board at the board's request. He said he had stated clearly to the board the difficulty of the situation and the professional's point of view.

He said he was not in a position to know whether the board's proposals would be acceptable. He was receptive of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation but that he would bring it to the attention of the executive committee and arrange a reply to the board. He said no one was more aware of the need of obtaining a staff for the high school before next September than the federation, and that the first concern is for the education was the education and welfare of the students attending the school.

Mr. Robinson said that never before, to his knowledge, had representatives of the federation been asked to attend meetings of any board in Ontario. He said that the experiment would be unique," to say the least.

Mr. Robinson also stated that he had no way of knowing if

Fire Destroys Defosse House

TRENTON — A house owned by Jerry DeFosse, 474 Front St., was gutted by fire Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. DeFosse and their two children had been away for the day.

At 8.30 p.m., Eddy Sampey, a neighbor noticing smoke inside the building, called the fire department.

The fire, which is believed to have started in the basement of the house, had been smouldering in the stairway for some time and was well under way by the time fireman arrived.

Mr. DeFosse recently renovated and re-decorated the interior of the house.

Stirling Chief Resigns Post Says Statement

Police Chief William Sutherland of Stirling has resigned from the village council it was announced this week, has tendered his resignation effective March 31th.

This was announced this morning following a meeting at the office of the Crown Attorney John A. Pringle, attended by a delegation from Stirling council and Chief Sutherland.

The announcement said that an agreement had been reached between the parties concerned and that the settlement had been approved by the crown attorney.

Stirling council at a special meeting last Monday evening voted to dismiss Chief Sutherland. The dismissal was given as no reason for the action. Reeve James V. Holt said later that no reason had been given in order to protect Chief Sutherland.

Autopsy Shows Woman Died of Monoxide Poison

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Florence Preston, 60, died of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage of her home here, an autopsy showed Monday.

But coroner Dr. J. S. Cross said it will be three days before tests will be completed to determine whether her brother, Albert Acheson, 67, of Belleville, died of the same cause.

The bodies were found Sunday by a nephew, Donald Olson of Ottawa.

Olson visited the dwelling at the request of relatives of Mr. Acheson in Belleville who said their phone calls to Mrs. Preston's home went unanswered Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Cross estimated death occurred at least 24 hours before the bodies were discovered.

Mrs. Preston, widow of J. T. Preston of Ottawa, was seated in her car in the garage. Mr. Acheson was in bed in a bedroom over the garage. The door to the bedroom was open. There were no marks of violence.

Obituary

JESSE A. BAKER

TRENTON — Funeral services were held Monday at the Wesser Funeral Home for Jesse A. Baker, 17 Richards St., Trenton, who died at his residence last Friday.

Mr. Baker, a lifetime resident of Trenton, had been in failing health for the past two years. He was 71.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baker.

Firemen of Trenton and Belleville formed a guard of honor at the funeral home and graveside. Mr. Baker had been connected with the Trenton fire department for 28 years.

The service was conducted by the Rev. J. T. Irwin, of King Street United Church, Trenton, of which Mr. Baker had been a member.

Honorary bearers were: Elmer Stacey, Maurice Mitts, Robert Haker and Gordon Coughlin, all members of the Trenton fire department.

Bearers were: Councillor C. V. Graham, chairman of the protection to persons and property committee; ex-Mayor Ross E. Burtt, Captain Gerald Lewis of the Trenton fire department, Clifford Gates, Fire Chief and Hugh Townson.

Mr. Baker was an honorary member of Trenton Branch, No. 110, Canadian Legion, and an honorary life member of the Trenton fire department. Following his retirement from the fire department Mr. Baker served as Trenton Public Utilities Commission as pump house operator, from which he retired in 1958.

Surviving are his widow, the former Lena May Cox, one daughter, Mrs. Gerald (Jane) Long, Glen Miller; four sons, Jesse Jr., and Norman of Trenton; Charles of Cobourg and Fred of Toronto, 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Interment was in Mount Evergreen cemetery.

Should Scrap Patent Act House Is Told

OTTAWA (CP)—A royal commission Monday should investigate ways to prevent patents being used to block imports, especially in the field of foods and drugs.

Canada should scrap its present Patent Act, the commission said in an 84,000-word report. It proposed that a new act be based on the principle that the inventor who first applies be entitled to the patent, which now is the system in Canada, except that of most other countries.

Man and Mother Found Dead in Barricaded Home

ORANGEVILLE (CP)—Three provincial policemen looking for a former mental patient found "figures" would shoot it out with us" broke into a barricaded house on the main street of the village of Grand Valley Monday and found the bodies of two persons shot some weeks ago.

Cpl. Cyril Pinder, who led the attack, said the dead were Mrs. Angela Hough, 58, and her 49-year-old son Aubrey who was committed to a mental hospital in 1957 for about a year.

Both had been shot in the head with 22 calibre rifle bullets. A rifle was found near one of the bodies. An inquest into the being conducted.

"We kicked the front door down with our feet, broke through two other doors and found the two bodies inside," Cpl. Pinder told a reporter Monday night.

HOUSE TIGHTLY BOARDED

"The doors and windows were barricaded, spiked, wired and nailed shut," he said. "It must have been impossible for anyone to leave that house after the shootings."

He said he took the two constables to investigate because the Houghs had not been seen for some weeks.

They had lived together in the two-storey frame house for about 20 years after they gave up their farm home near the village, 11 miles northwest of here and about 50 miles northwest of Toronto. Mr. Hough, legally separated from his wife, lived with his widowed mother and they "kept pretty much to themselves," the corporal said.

"I just figured we'd go in," Cpl. Pinder said. "I intended to bring him out."

ARMED WITH PISTOLS

He said the three policemen were armed only with pistols and "we didn't take lead and anything like that."

He said they found the body of Mrs. Hough in the dining room and the body of her son in the kitchen.

He said they had trouble getting into Grand Valley because many roads leading to the village were flooded. They finally had to truck under the police car couldn't get through.

The Madness in South Africa

Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad. Stupid to the point of insanity appear yesterday's actions by South African troops and police in the Capetown area. At a time when there were definite signs that the natives' refusal to work was being weakened by hunger, the white rulers of South Africa suddenly turned to the club. Sickening is the only word to describe the story of Negroes being mercilessly clubbed by troops and police for no other reason than their refusal to work for the white boss. This action reveals with terrible clarity the role of the Negro as conceived by the adherents of apartheid. Where all the hypocrisy about building up two separate societies is stripped away, it is evident that the advocates of apartheid regard the Negro as a cheap source of labor who must not be allowed to refuse to work in the white man's factories, mines and plantations. The world outside Africa was a sick society, that doubt ought now to be completely dispelled.

To the intelligent observer Monday's happenings in South Africa should not be a surprise. There have been indications of a sick society in that country for some time now. After the death of Jan Christian Smuts, who led the Boers in a coalition government with the British residents of South Africa for a number of years, a very militant, Nazi-worshipping breed of Boer party became predominant. They eventually won a majority control in the legislature and their every act since that time indicates that they care not all other "white" or "colored" interests, which held considerable financial power, and to trample the blacks.

As surely as Hitler built up his Nazi party in the early 30's, so did Malan, Strydom and Verwoord build up their party and its Apartheid policy. They built so well that it is doubtful that the Apartheid theme can only be considered here as "whites"), the cabinet can suspend Parliament, completely disregard existing legislation, close newspapers and shut down radio broadcasts of the news. In short they become the supreme dictators of the country and its people.

Such a condition can only be described as repulsive to any person adhering to democratic ideals and respecting the rights of the individual. Out of such a situation there can be expected no peaceful settlement without the elimination of either the "blacks" or the "whites." The Boers, and a large number of British residents who have supported the Apartheid theme in theory if not in present policy, have created the monster which now threatens their questionable authority as the official government of South Africa.

We have been told by those who have lived in South Africa, both before and after the vigorous promulgation of Apartheid, that the native was always treated as inferior by both British and Boer alike. The only difference was, apparently, that once the British were finished with the services of a black he was free to go and do what he would, within the mores of the society. The Boers, however, apparently cannot tolerate any freedom on the part of the native. They are to be regarded as slaves and nothing more.

It is truly appalling and amazing that this sort of attitude could predominate in a member of the Commonwealth, the creation of which has been based on the theories of such philosophers as John Stuart Mill and John Locke. It appears to be valueless which British folk have so stubbornly fought for and guarded have been so blatantly disregarded by one of their own family. The cause of this may be traced to the fact that an extreme surplus of wealth (from the gold and diamond mines), together with all the material benefits which such riches have served to rob the whites in South Africa of the real values in humanity and of their faith in mankind as a whole. Sociologists may dispute this theory but we have no better one to offer.

The ruling class of old South Africa soon forgot their responsibilities with the accumulation of material wealth and became quite jealous of their position of affluence, it would appear to us. As a result we have the new South Africa, virtually a slave society. The "blacks" are slaves of the "whites" and the "whites" are slaves of a false creed and a debased sense of values.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

SHOULD WE LEGALIZE GAMBLING?

"Why not let people gamble legally? They will gamble illegally and perhaps even desperately if there is a law against gambling. Why not let people gamble and allow the government to profit by their folly? Thus do many argue.

Humanity has been back and forth over this issue many times in past generations. Always it has discovered that to legalize any evil is to degrade the citizenry. Furthermore, the government never makes out of any such arrangement enough to pay for the loss it sustains and the expense of the lawlessness which ensues.

The arguments of those who would legalize gambling and ether vices appear indeed smooth and plausible. But the more the opportunity to indulge in any evil is offered to people, the more evil they are most certain to indulge in. Compulsive gambling becomes more compulsive when under easy gambling conditions. Many who would never think of gambling are sucked into the vortex. When people have the habit, gambling habit, they are definitely in moral bondage.

And we can be sure that we will not make the situation better by any form of legalization. It has been the experience of every nation that no evil can be regulated and that attempted regulation usually produces more of the same evil.

The reason we oppose whatever is wrong — and for the simple reason that it is wrong.

Historic Hastings

Fallacies About Indians

Many of the popular beliefs held about the North American Indian are not true. This was the theme of the address of welcome delivered at the annual meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

The speaker was Professor T. F. McIlwraith, head of the Department of Anthropology at the University of Toronto.

Prof. McIlwraith set out to explode some of the popular ideas and conceptions and fallacies concerning the Indians and also to explain their origin.

He stated that the American Indians had migrated from Asia to Alaska across Bering Strait and had then moved southward, south until they covered the Americas from north to south. This migration took place about the time of the last ice age.

Since the movement took many generations, the migrants lost sight of such developments as the domestication of horses and the cultivation of crops, which their ancestors had practised in Asia. They therefore reverted to a collecting type of life.

A very small number may have migrated from Europe to America in other ways, by Kon-Tiki raft, for instance, but by not more than 99.9 per cent came across Bering Strait.

NOT LOST TRIBES

Prof. McIlwraith discounted other suggested origins of the Indians, stating that they were not one of the lost tribes of Israel; that they were not descendants of the lost continent of Atlantis, believed to be somewhere beneath the Atlantic Ocean; and that they were not the descendants of the Welsh Prince Madoc who set sail from Anglesey in Wales in the 9th century. He said there was no historical documentation, aside that he reached North America.

It was noted that on his first voyage, Prince Madoc (after whom the neighboring village in Hastings County is named) probably went as far-west as Iowa. On his subsequent voyage with his wives, children, cows, etc., he disappeared.

It is also unproven to take back word of the North American Indian civilization was Christopher Columbus. After his 1492 voyage he reported that he had reached the country of India and accordingly he called the inhabitants Indians.

There were the first two "contacts" that Europe had concerning the inhabitants of the continent, and both were completely false. The present knowledge of the "indians" dates from when he has been little better; only in the last few decades has much accurate information been gathered.

Potatoes Before Glamour

By John Gould in the Christian Science Monitor

In the constant search for forward-looking industries, the Maine Potato Industry is currently cheering over a new development.

Potatoes — often pounds of washed, graded and superlative-looking potatoes — are what will surely catch the eyes of the housewife as she wheels around the supermarket to select her commodities. This is good. Potatoes, by the way, untinseled state have been a tough nut to crack in the modern passion for beauty. Their eye appeal runs largely to a dirty look and a feel directly akin to that when up hasn't been easy. If this is the case, potatoes as prettiness all to the good.

What I deplore is the necessity in our time, of going to all this trouble. The poly-pack doesn't do anything for the potatoes; it merely beguiles the housewife. She has so thoroughly lost contact with the realities of food that she thinks a poly-bag is a bargain, that a poly-bag a vegetable needs glamour. All she's doing really, is wrapping the husband's hard-earned substance for a poly-bag that has neither vitamin value nor food value will have to be thrown away.

I say this honestly that she is getting the same old potatoes, Trex, only sized and artfully laundered. But they are still potatoes, and the bag they come in is not enough to go by.

The old-time potato bin, down cellar, is a thing of the past. So is the whole business of descending to the cellar in winter to load up with mealtime goodies. The farmers still live that way, but the villagers don't. The next generation of householders and apartment-dwellers won't be bothered buying ten pounds of potatoes at a crack in all their time. They'll run our own potato patches, buy their potato seed for next year, and then sell the rest by bushels. Burlap bags, not poly-vials and bags, some transparencies. People will know what a potato looked like. We'd get out the wagon, and afternoons we'd go out, delivering these potatoes house-to-house. Most people took at least 10 bushels a year. We always retrieved our bags. Thus the whole winter's supply of potatoes would be laid in at once, and the poly-bulkhead could be closed tight-ly to keep the cold out.

A most important thing about potatoes, then and the variety. Today a woman doesn't know what kind of potatoes she's buying. Our people liked the Green Mountain because it was mealy. We don't go for a "wet" potato. But we had other kinds, and we knew them usually as to what kind you were growing for what purpose. It's hard to find a Green Mountain, because progressive people have invented newer potatoes that yield better, resist blight, handle better and return a little more profit. It is a kind of progress without improvement, because the Green Mountain is still the best potato to find on your plate.

So nobody much planned to trot to the store after 10 pounds of poly-bag potatoes. The potato-bin way not only guaranteed against running out of potatoes but it saved money. It was considered respectable, then, to economize.

Central heating, along with home improvements, and the decline of cellars for the potatoes, early helped create the poly-bag. You can't keep vegetables in a cellar that has a modern furnace at the farm, along with our modern homes. Even with its cement and heater, we also have a separate vegetable and fruit cellar at the farm, with a ventilating stove, where a potato or apple will not freeze but will certainly shrivel. But villagers didn't care about potato storage, for by now they couldn't run to the market and get 10 pounds anytime.

In the deep winter, with snow banked about the foundations, the cellar accumulated a flavor and smell that was pungent and musty, but it was a good smell. Since snow had to be kept over the windows against frost, the cellar was dark, and a lantern was usually kept at the foot of the stairs. You'd light it and, carrying also a big bag, you proceeded to pick up the day's ingredients.

There was no heat in the cellar other than a natural underground warmth, so everything was earthy. Once in a while a mouse rime-frost would begin to work in the fall vegetables, but sometimes there would be a rusty old cast-iron stove piped into the flue of the chimney and it could be lighted to bring up the temperature.

So you'd make your tour and fill your pan. A dozen potatoes, a few onions, a head of lettuce, a jar of jelly, and, perhaps some preserved fruit. You could see the spots and carrots down there, too, and miscement and all sorts of that sort.

You'd blow out the lantern and go up, and you were always very perplexed as the burnt-out aroma of kerosene tried to mingle with the pungent and standing of the dry salt cod suspended from the ceiling. The contemplated amalgamation never quite came off, so you could open a cellar-door any time and inhale a smell both smells — each distinct. But it was a smell worth landing. Down cellar there was a definite potato smell dominating — where forty or fifty bushels were proclaiming prosperity.

P. F. P.—Prior to Poly-Packs.

Even Adlai Uses Ghost

Wall Street Journal

Conformity, they say, is forced upon people when they are under another. We never paid much attention to this sort of talk until the other day.

And then we read where one of the Democratic presidential candidates we've run across in this campaign has succumbed to the political conformity that candidates would do better to avoid: He's been using ghost speeches.

What a pity. Because whether you agreed with what he had to say, you couldn't help admiring the business of putting one word after another Adlai Stevenson was pretty hard to beat.

So you'd make your tour and fill your pan. A dozen potatoes, a few onions, a head of lettuce, a jar of jelly, and, perhaps some preserved fruit. You could see the spots and carrots down there, too, and miscement and all sorts of that sort.

You'd blow out the lantern and go up, and you were always very perplexed as the burnt-out aroma of kerosene tried to mingle with the pungent and standing of the dry salt cod suspended from the ceiling. The contemplated amalgamation never quite came off, so you could open a cellar-door any time and inhale a smell both smells — each distinct. But it was a smell worth landing. Down cellar there was a definite potato smell dominating — where forty or fifty bushels were proclaiming prosperity.

Twenty-two members of the Rotary Club were present when it held the newly-formed Belleville Rotary Club and also observed to it the charter which completes the organization of the club. A banquet was tendered at Hotel Quinte at which Mr. Ed. Meagher presided in the absence of the president, Mr. J. Ira Porter. Mayor W. R. Ellis extended the freedom of the city to the visitors and presented them with a booklet of massive proportions which was made by the Belleville Hardware and Lock Company. Aldermen Jamieson Bone, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Chamber. Secretary W. H. Doyle read a number of letters from distant Rotary Clubs welcoming the Belleville Rotary Club into the wide circle of good fellowship and useful service.

The general tax rate this year will be 20 mills on the dollar. Legally it could not be more, and nobody expected that it would be less.

The gore at the junction of Station Street and Chamberlain Road would make a pretty park; there is no doubt of that. However, the idea is nearly as old as Haley's Comet. Perhaps the idea will become a reality some day.

Before any expense is incurred in connection with the proposed basin on Zwick's Island, it might be well to obtain the opinion of an expert with regards to the plan. It was pointed out several years ago that water filtering through sand does not purify it, although it may clear it.

Messrs. Thomas and Campbell left today for Vancouver, B.C., where he intends to reside.

Please Don't Put "Pie" In "Impious"

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Why don't the radio and television announcers pronounce it correctly and clearly, as we do know —

That there is no "chee" in "amateur"; no "uh" sound between the first and last syllables of "athletic"; no "ah" sound between the first and last syllables of "ballet"; no "ant" in "antic" and "too" in "augustus"; AND NO "R" IN "author" and "authentic."

That "arctic" and "antarctic" must have each letter pronounced, and not "artic" and "antartic," as they are commonly given.

That "despicable" is stressed on the first syllable, not on the second, and that "impossible," which is almost never pronounced correctly, is also "impossible," which has no "p" in it.

That "disastrous" has only three syllables, and is not "disasterous."

That the final "t" is not sounded in "distrait" (and this word should not be confused with its pseudo-homonym "distraught.")

That there is no "dole" in "dolorums," whose first syllable sounds like "doll-."

That there is no such modern word as "heighth," which is often used for "height," because of false association with such common words as "width," "length," and "breadth."

That "heinous" has only two syllables, and rhymes with "pain-us."

That there is no "hear" in "herolum"; no "pear" in "inscomparable"; and no "nee" in "inveigle."

That there is no "ch" sound in "pincers," and no "poise" sound in "pincers," and no "z" in "poise."

That there is no "worst" in "worsted" fabric, which comes from Worstead, a town of Norfolk, England, and not from the "Woos-tid" by its inhabitants and by correct speakers.

That there is no "sack" in "sacro-iliac"; no "pen" in "penalty" (which is not pronounced by believed, a derivative of "penis"); and no "more" in "moron."

That there is no "male" in "maladroit," and no "mel" in "melodious," not three, and no "long" in "longevity."

That the word "consummate" is pronounced two different ways — as a verb, meaning "to bring to completion." it is KON-sub-mayt; as an adjective, meaning "of the highest degree," it is kun-SUM-it.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SEEK OUT CAUSE OF HEARING DIFFICULTIES

"Dear Dr. Molner; I was hard of hearing for 20 years. I am now 60). A stapes operation restored my hearing to normal in the left ear, and I am soon to have the same thing done to the right one. I hope you will point this out so that 'E.L.' may benefit from my experience.—Mrs. J., B.C."

I seriously doubt whether enough is known by the public yet about hearing difficulties. Because the fact is that some wonderful things are going on these days.

When I was young, there was relatively little that could be done for the person having impaired hearing. Over the last 25 years or so, hearing aids have improved amazingly. It was just a little over 10 years ago that the transistor was invented. Since then it has been possible to put much stronger hearing aids (which are also much smaller) using batteries into much less space.

Likewise over the last decade (and indeed in the last few years) tests to measure hearing and the ear have made tremendous progress.

The stapes mobilization (stapies is pronounced stay-peez) is an operation which consists of a series of three small bones, linked together, which carry sound from the eardrum to the inner ear.

For if the stapes (also known as the "stirrup") no longer moves properly — usually it cannot conduct sound vibrations efficiently, and the hearing suffers as a result. The stapes operation is designed to restore free motion of the tiny bone.

Fenestration — cutting a "window" in the bone behind the ninth of the inner ear, to permit better transmission of sound — is another useful operation. And there are an increasing number of surgical techniques being put to good use.

Now there are several things to keep in mind:

1.—While I am not for one patient, may be of no use to another. Stapes mobilization is the perfect example of what may be a waste of time and money for another.

2.—The ear specialist is the only one who can tell what you need. If he says a hearing aid is your best course, get one, relying on his advice as to choice of the most satisfactory type, and the fitting of it.

3.—Don't keep putting it off. Some conditions grow steadily worse and harder to correct.

4.—Some people will get the disappointing result that something has happened to the auditory nerve, and nothing can be done for them. But the majority, by far, will find that they can be helped by one known method or another.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I sunburn easily and my skin never gets back to normal until about January. Is there an lotion or pill to prevent this?—Mrs. L."

Well ,there's a drug (tablet strength 5-MOP), which is short for "5-methoxypsoralen," being used by skin specialists. It must be taken under medical supervision. The idea is to darken the skin more evenly at first, and thus prevent burning. This drug, I understand, has helped, and of others who don't benefit. But it's the only thing I know in the direction.

Otherwise, with such tender skin, start tanning early each year, and in very small doses of exposure. Also, even after that, don't expose yourself to the sun for an hour or so on the tough-hided sun worshippers. efficiently, and the bleaches and oils which help by filtering out some of the ultra-violet light.

BE YOUR FRIEND'S BEST FRIEND

How few there are of the friends we have who will take the justly term as our best friend's best friend.

Most of us can say from our heart that the best friend we will ever have is the one who bore us, and whose love and kindness, steadiness and stars, and who never surrenders his love and loyalty to us.

Lincoln once said, "All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my angel mother." It is like to think that what little of worth that I have, grew from a full and selfless Heart.

Here dwell in the picture of my Mother, as I told her about that little home in Iowa. That I would like to return to it, like to think that what little of worth that I have, grew from a full and selfless Heart.

CUTTING UP — Above Miss Pauline Bonenberger, of Chicago, teaches Elsie Hartley the correct procedure in cutting up a stick of coils as they come from the coil winding machines at the Amplifone Canada plant.

TYING DOWN — Above Thelma Bonter receives instruction on the operation of a coil winding machine from Andy Martorano, course instructor. This training coincides with the starting of new production lines at the Amplifone Canada firm.

Lynda Brooks Chosen Student For Ottawa Trip

PICTON — Miss Lynda Brooks will soon be starting on "Adventure in Citizenship" which will feature four concentrated days in Canada's capital May 9-12 learning how the nation is governed.

186 selected students from throughout the country will participate in the project which is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Ottawa. The Rotary Club of Picton has booked after transportation and registration expenses. About two-thirds of the Canadian Rotary Clubs responded to the invitation to send a leading "all round" student for the adventure.

Once in Ottawa the boys and girls will see the procession for the Opening of Parliament on May 9th and later tour the Parliament Buildings where they will receive Canadian Citizenship Certificates from Hon. Helen Fairclough, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. Other visits will include Government House (Governor General Vanier's residence), the National Gallery and a detailed tour of the R.C.M.P. barracks and crime laboratories. Students will attend a series of lectures on government and political science at Carleton University and be shown both the present and future National Capital by the National Capital Commission.

Students were selected on the basis of scholastic standing, participation in school activities and ability in public speaking. After their Adventure in Citizenship in Ottawa is over they are scheduled to describe their experiences and impressions to home-town audiences.

Miss Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Brooks, Cherry Valley, is an honor student at Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton.

Minister Accepts Call to Church In Peterborough

PICTON — Rev. F. J. Whiteley, B.A., B.D., announced yesterday that he has accepted a call to Knox United church at Peterborough. He will begin his ministry there on July 1. For the past eight years, he has been minister of Picton United, the present time he is chairman of Belleville Presbytery of the United church of Canada.

Members of the church board are meeting Tuesday night to discuss the selection of a minister to fill the vacancy.

A native of Sheffield, England, he came to Canada in 1930, and with his parents settled in Dryden, Ontario. He attended Peterborough Normal School and attended Queen's Summer School. He taught at Bobcaygeon and completed his Bachelor of Arts degree at Queen's in 1943 and received his Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1946. He served at Parham mission field while at Queen's from 1934-46 and at Lake Dore from 1946-48. He received a call to Centre Street United in Oshawa in 1948 and in 1952 came to Picton where he has enjoyed a successful ministry.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Whiteley have made a special contribution to the church through music as well. Mr. Whiteley is a member of the Ministerial Association, the Kiwanis Club and Prince Edward Curling Club.

Amplifone Company Adding Three New Production Lines

A new line of manufactured products is being taken on by one of Belleville's newest industries. The Amplifone Canada firm, whose new plant was opened last August, is branching out into three new lines of electronic components: power transformers, audio transformers and chokes. These are in addition to its current line of quality fly-back transformers.

Naturally new products require new equipment, new methods and new skills. A special training program is currently underway at the Amplifone plant with two specialists from Chicago giving local personnel training in the new techniques involved especially coil winding.

T. K. "Ted" Handing of Amplifone has brought in Miss Pauline Bonenberger of his Amplifone Chicago Corporation and Mr. Andy Martorano of another Chicago firm, Mid West Coil and Transformer, to handle the training problems inherent in teaching coil winding and manufacturing processes.

Together with the finest technical training available, the local plant has been equipped with the latest and most modern machines to ensure the finest quality possible in the three new products. Included amongst this machinery is a special testing apparatus which is unique to the Canadian electronic industry. It allows for the immediate appreciation of any faulty transformers in the final stage of completion.

Of great interest, though, is the fact that although modern machines worth several thousands dollars are in extensive use throughout the various stages of production the human element is still extremely important in order to manufacture a quality item. Thus, maintaining a happy and efficient staff is still one of the major considerations at the Amplifone firm.

High School Activities

By TRINA JANITCH

Exams are finally over, and the usual, the rustle of "new gowns" being turned over is almost deafening. Study halls are filled with students determined not to go through that last-minute evening horror ever again. Those all-to-inevitable Easter report cards are now in the preparatory stage and will be distributed before the holidays which commence April 14.

Spring term has many enjoyable events in store. One of these is the annual Mr. and Miss B.C.I.V.S. contest to be held April 13. The two lucky winners will receive a breath-taking assortment of prizes at their Wednesday morning coronation.

To qualify for this honor, a candidate must be nominated by ten students and two teachers. One of his nominators speaks in his behalf at a special noon-hour assembly, after which a poll of the entire student body and the staff will select B.C.I.V.S.'s "finest citizens".

"In the spring a young man's fancy brightly turns to thoughts of" . . . well, you know the rest.

The question is how about a young girl's fancy? The answer is "to a new wardrobe, of course!" "The Glen" H.V. will cater to this Spring Fever when they present their annual Fashion Show "Park Promenade" on April 19, in which the latest styles will be presented in a most entertaining and diverting way.

The Spring Fling is another red-letter day on our April calendar. The most exciting dance of the year will be presented Friday, April 29. Many special features will highlight this dance, including the crowning of a May Queen and her two princesses.

On Wednesday, the Keyettes of our school enjoyed a bus trip to Toronto to see "Ben Hur". As usual the excursion was a gay, complete and riotous success, and forty tired but happy Keyettes have conversation material to last them till next year's trip.

What's blue and gold and sees all over Ask any B.C.I.V.S. student and he'd be sure to reply "The Key Club dances, naturally". The boys are resplendent in their new suits, and the rest of the school certainly has no trouble in identifying a Key Clubber.

The Radio Club did their part to help lift our exam-burdened spirits last week when they presented the "Hop Hop Hooray", a most excellent tea dance. Hosts Miles was the skilful emcee of this event, which drew a large and happy crowd.

Annual President's Night Of Y's Men's Club Success

Saturday evening the Y's Men's Club of Belleville held its annual President's Night at the Hotel Quinte. Retiring president Jack Fletcher chaired the evening's entertainment and turned the gavel of leadership over the incoming president, John Luscombe at the close of a delightful evening of dinner and entertainment.

About thirty Y's Men and their wives were joined for this special event by representatives of the various service clubs of Belleville and Mr. Jack Ireland and his wife, representing the Board of Directors of the YMCA. Other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shortt and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Buck, both of whom are honorary members of the Y's Men's Club of Belleville.

After a delightful meal, President Jack introduced his head table which consisted of the following dignitaries of Y's Dom: Mr. and Mrs. Di Diamantides, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hutchinson, and Mrs. Jack Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. John Luscombe, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pearson, and the guest speaker, Mr. Gordon Dunlop, past executive member of the National Council of YMCA's in Canada.

RESPONSE FROM GUESTS

Mr. Bill Hurst, president of the Rotary Club of Belleville, made the response from the guests, and thanked the Y's Men's Club for their invitation to join them on this occasion.

The toast to the ladies was given by Y's Man Bert Ililes who added a nice touch to the evening's program (according to the ladies) by having the husbands get down on their bony knees and sing the song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart". The response to the toast was tastefully done by Mrs. Jean Prentice.

Y's Men Wes Scarrow and Bob Laugien were at their very best in heading the group in a very lively sing song.

President Jack Fletcher pointed out that our induction service reminds us that we have only one kind of member in Y's Dom and that is an "active" member. Our club this year has lived up to this fact as we had an average attendance for the year of 91 per cent. Of a total membership of 40, 15 members obtained 100 per cent attendance for the year. The following Y's Man received their perfect attendance pins: 10 year pins — Robbie Clarke and Bud Trill; 9 year pin — Jack Fletcher; 8 year pin — Bert Ililes; 7 year pin — Bill Hutchinson; 6 year pins — Di Diamantides and Jim Pearson; 5 year pin — Ron Moorman; 4 year pin — Hugh Watson; 2 year pins — John Hayman, John Locke, Merle Massey, Art Newman, Bill Prentice, and Ray Murray.

CLUB GROWS STRONGER

President Jack Fletcher, in his talk on the year in retrospect, stated the Club had grown stronger both in numbers and in enthusiasm. Attendance had been high and both regular meetings and at executive meetings. The Club had contributed both financially and in service to the YMCA and to the various international services of the Y's Men's Clubs.

The speaker, Mr. Gordon Dunlop, of Cobourg, who is a past executive member of the National Council of YMCA's in Canada, gave a very interesting and statistical talk on the development of YMCA's in Canada, and of Y's Men's Clubs. Mr. Dunlop pointed out that, with the tremendous growth in our population and this becoming more centred in the cities of our country, the work of the YMCA's will continue to grow. There is a tremendous challenge to all of us in this field in the years that lie ahead. Mr. Dunlop was introduced by Mr. Di Diamantides, general secretary of the Belleville YMCA and was thanked by the past president of the club, Mr. Hugh Watson.

Mr. Jack Ireland, past chairman of the Board of Directors of the YMCA, brought greetings from the Board and thanked the Y's Men for their efforts in the past year. Mr. Bill Hutchinson, District Governor of the Eastern Ontario Region, brought greetings from the Y's Men's Association. Mr. Hutchinson also inducted the new executive into office at a special ceremony.

Under the direction of Y's Man Rev. Bob Sherwin the following Y's Men were inducted into the Club: Ron Shettell, Neil Burgess, Ron Maker, Jack Preston, and a transferee from the Mount Hamilton Club, Jim Calman.

President-elect John Luscombe, in his first duty as the new president, thanked Mr. Fletcher for an outstanding job and presented him with a set of beautiful Y's Men's book ends.

John Luscombe, in his maiden speech on looking to the future, stated that he would continue to support the YMCA in their coming building campaign for our proposed new YMCA building. He pointed out that one of the highlights of the year would be the continued interest and growth of our Day Camp at Oak Lake. Congratulations were extended to Mrs. Sharon Newman, the president-elect of the Y's Menette's Club of Belleville.

A very delightful half hour of entertainment was put on by the Dorothy Dickey School of Dancing under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Dickey and Miss Grace Sinclair. The YMCA tumbling team, under the direction of Mr. Doug Paton, gave a humorous but highly skilled demonstration on tumbling which completed the entertainment for the evening.

Listed below are the 1960-61 executive for the Y's Men's Club of Belleville: past president — Jack Fletcher; president — John Luscombe; vice-president — Jim Pearson; secretary — John Hayman; treasurer — Ron Moorman; social — Wes Scarrow; young adult — Bill Merle Massey; membership — Jack Merith; program and social Cochrane; world outlook — Art Newman; press — Bill Prentice and Di Diamantides.

Minto Skating Club, Ottawa And McCutcheon Sisters of Belleville Give Fine Show

PICTON — All seats in the County Centre were filled Saturday night when the Minto Skating Club of Ottawa presented "The Minto Follies 1960." The show was presented under the auspices of Picton Rotary Club to aid their work for crippled children.

Spontaneous applause greeting each number testified to the enjoyment of the audience of 900.

Guest stars were two pert little misses, Peggy and Jane McCutcheon, and they completely won the crowd in both solo and pairs numbers. It was evident that both love to skate and their easy rhythm was matched by their skill in the difficult spins and jumps.

The group numbers by the Minto Club offered a contrast to the variety of solo numbers. The beautiful costumes added to their effectiveness.

First to be presented were the Gardens in black capes with silver and orange trim. Another lovely group number was The Butterflies, directed by Shirley Hennick. Their wings were in shades of mauve, orange, blue and pink with matching bodies and with 22 on the ice at one time, it presented a colorful scene. Mis Hennick's butterfly costume had a violet and red flowered wings which she effectively operated.

ENTIRE GROUP NUMBER

The Cinderella ballet saw the entire group appear in colorful costumes, some in green with matching hats and the others in pink and white net skirts. The prince and princess, Marilyn Atchison and Gordon Pranschke, were in white with glitter trim and their solo numbers helped make it a very effective presentation.

A trio of Marie Forbes, Elaine Gangon and Heather Nettleton won much applause with plenty of action.

A dance pair, Marilyn Crawford and Blair Armitage, provided a highlight as they did a difficult routine in perfect harmony.

The solo by Blair Armitage, the only such by a male, was a crowd pleaser as the young man brilliantly executed some difficult spins and splits.

Daughter of the master of ceremonies, Linda Carbonetto, demonstrated great ability in her solo.

Adding variety were the Bendinelli who demonstrated the odd actions and postures of these groups.

Excellent solo numbers were given by Lylamay Lefley, Barbara Baines, Joan Allen and Elaine Gangon, Marilyn Crawford, Marilyn Atchison and their numbers gave the crowd an opportunity to see all the art called for in fancy skating.

The concluding number, called "Minto Follies 1960," which two girls appeared in green dresses with ruffled skirts and white pedaloons and "a" ried matching pantsuits. Other were in green shorts, black, jackets and green toppers and carried green hat boxes. They presented the precision choreline for which the club is noted. This was a spectacular climax to the show.

Rotary president Harry Hinds expressed thanks to the skaters and all for their assistance. President-elect R. Robinson announced purchase of Easter Seal Arthur Lloyd was in charge of the lights, colored ones adding to the effectiveness of several numbers, as did piano music and records.

Members of the cast were entertained at luncheon at the Royal Hotel prior to returning to Ottawa.

Women's Editor in Average City Has World as Her Beat

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things have changed, out in the prairie towns and out on the bayous.

Time was when the mecca of every small town boy and girl was New York, where the streets were paved with gold. This was particularly true of those who aspired to careers in the theatre, music, writing, literature or art. If you didn't get to New York, they felt, you just hadn't made it. Only the second - raters, they argued, stayed in the old home town.

The greatest dream of every reporter was a New York newspaper job, that or ever would-be actor a walk-on part in a Broadway show, it was considered a privilege to live in one - room Greenwich Village apartment and wash the dishes in the bathtub.

BACK TO HOME

But take a swing around the hinterlands today and you'll find a new viewpoint. Maybe actors still dream of a Broadway hit but all the others are finding the pot of gold at the end of their own back yard.

The time has pesred when you had to go to the big city to find culture. Nowadays even medium-sized towns have their own symphony orchestras, their own art museums and their own little theatres and television stations.

The women's editor of almost any city has a big U.S. news paper in a town of 50,000 or more discovered a privilege in what was her beat. She covers fashion openings in Paris, Rome, London, Los Angeles, Dallas and New York. She attends sessions on child welfare, social welfare and community club work in Washington, New York and elsewhere. She is up to the minute on activities in the United Nations and UNESCO. She is a seasoned world traveller, but between trips she comes back home.

She runs a home and family, too, if she's got a job with the other, and does both well. She gets fun and excited about her daughter's first long evening dress as she does about her parents' fiftieth wedding anniversary.

She is informed and interested in her husband's business affairs and likes nothing better than a weekend of hunting and fishing, golfing or sailing with her family. She's a power in her community and a beloved participant in her home. She's quite a gal.

CENTRE - VICTORIA CENTRALETTES

The first meeting of the Centralettes Centralettes was held recently at the home of their leader, Mrs. Harmon Montgomery.

The election of officers was as follows: president, Carol Green; vice-president, Beverley Turner; secretary, Donna Spencer; treasurer, Linda Shepherd; press reporter, Mary Monigomery.

It was decided to have white record book covers for this project. "The Cereal Shelf." Items studied were: requirements of club members; requirements of record book; working procedures, disbanding, abbreviations in recipes and directions for measuring.

Mrs. Pulver, assistant leader, showed various food rules. Measuring of dry ingredients was practised.

Margaret and Mary served cereal cookies for lunch.

HOME ASSIGNMENT

Assemble and bring to next meeting equipment and supplies required. Learn Canada's food rules as regards cereals. Begin record book; fill in record of activities in "Member's Pamphlet" p. 12; fill in green score sheet for each day next week.

The second meeting of the Centre-Victoria Centralettes was held on the afternoon of April 2, at the home of Jean and Ida Warbrook.

The next meeting is to be at the home of Pat Thompson on the evening of April 14 at 7.30. The roll call is to be "One Rule for Storing Cereals."

The club reviewed "Canada's Food Rules." The parts and food value of a grain of wheat were discussed.

Mrs. Pulver read "A Trip to Town with Betty Brown." A demonstration and exhibit of the various kinds of flours and cereals were held.

Mrs. Montgomery demonstrated cooking whole wheat muffins. While they were baking, the club divided into two groups and compiled lists of rules for buying.

For lunch the muffins and chocolate milk were enjoyed.

HOME ASSIGNMENT

Find pictures of three uncooked and three ready-to-eat breakfast cereals. In record book: record the points found above, and for what you think is the best buy; find out all you can about storing cereals, and bring ingredients for muffins as assigned.

Alpha Lambda Holds Meetings

The regular meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held recently at the home of Mrs. D. Stirling.

Mrs. J. Sostaiger gave the treasurer's report and it was noted that the Black and Gold Ball was a financial success.

The cultural program was in charge of Mrs. Robert Laughlen and Mrs. Robert Irvin. Their subjects were "Voice and Vocabulary" and "Poise and Charm" respectively.

The speakers were introduced by Mrs. Laughlen and Mrs. H. House expressed the appreciation of the members for the interesting presentation of these topics.

The meeting concluded with refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. Stirling, and co-hostess, Mrs. C. Lovett.

The Alpha Lambda Chapter met recently at the home of Mrs. Robert Laughlen.

Reports were heard from each committee and business discussed the forthcoming convention to be held in Hamilton.

Mrs. Clarence Cook's food rules was privileged to have as its guests, two members of Psi Gamma Thompson and Mr. William Thompson, who led a discussion on the subject of "Phrases." This proved to be most interesting and the members contributed some of her own opinions on this topic.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Laughlen, and co-hostess, Mrs. H. House.

Community Concert Headliners To Be W. Cassel, Metropolitan Baritone, Temianka Symphony

The Belleville Community Concerts Association held its annual dinner meeting last night in the Bridge Street Church hall. The dinner was well attended by members of the executive board and volunteer workers of the association.

The enthusiastic meeting marked the opening of a one-week campaign to enlist members for the association plans to enroll one thousand members.

Miss Leona Rigger, president of the association, presided and welcomed the workers to the 25th annual dinner. She announced that Wilfrid Walter Cassel, leading baritone with the Metropolitan Opera, will be one of the artists for next season. Mr. Cassel sang here a few years ago when the Opera Quartet and has won high acclaim everywhere he has appeared. He is one of the greatest singing actors of today. Belleville is indeed fortunate to have him as he is in great demand.

Miss Riggs also announced the Temianka Symphonia which is a duo-piano team for next season. This ensemble consists of 18 virtuoso performers each a soloist in his own right. Two superb Steinway pianos travel with the symphony.

WILL REPORT THURSDAY

Mrs. Enid Stinson, membership chairman, introduced the new workers and reminded the report to be given on Thursday evening. She also stressed the importance of bringing good music to Belleville, and hoped that new members would get five concerts at the price of one opportunity of hearing the Rudie Singers on Friday evening.

Mrs. Marjorie Kegler, the Community Concert, representative for New York, was introduced by the president. Mrs. Kegler congratulated the Association on having the plan to sell five concerts for next season. She explained that Community Concerts afford everyone an opportunity to hear all categories of artists, to extend one's musical life and become familiar with a wide range of music and to keep live music alive.

Miss Riggs reminded the workers that Belleville's chance for good music depended upon them. She also stressed the need for young students to listen to top-notch artists not only to become familiar with the classics but, perhaps, get an inspiration for a career.

Colors For Spring

By VERA WINSTON

Two colors high in favor — bone beige and dark gray—join up in this spring street costume. The semi-fitted jacket is in light beige with matching pearl buttons. It is slightly shaped, has one slit pocket at the breastline and two flapped pockets at the hips. Very new are the flaring bell sleeves, elbow-length, with stitched edges. The sheer wool dress has a high, round neckline; short, straight sleeves and drawstring waist.

Novel, 'Exodus' Reviewed at Women's S.G.

The controversial novel, "Exodus," was reviewed for members of the World's Study Guild at their March meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. George Wishart, Dufferin Avenue.

The president, Mrs. Reid, was in the chair. A letter was read by Mrs. Wishart, thanking the Guild for knitting wool sent to Korea. Mrs. Buchanan, who conducted the worship service, gave a reading from the Book of Psalms and gave a brief prayer.

The program was conducted by Mrs. Meldrum, Mrs. Fleming and Miss Tickell. Each gave a synopsis of part of the novel "Exodus," by Leon. Uris. This book tells of the birth of Israel and the characters in the story are individuals representative of all the types of people who have pioneered in modern Israel.

Mrs. Meldrum reviewed Book I, which dealt with the Jewish refugee camps on Cyprus just after World War II and with the efforts to smuggle stateless Jews into Palestine.

Mrs. Fleming covered Books II and III which dealt with Palestine before and during the British mandate; the European backgrounds of some of the earliest settlers, and the beginnings of the Zionist movement.

Miss Tickell told about Books IV and V, which carried the characters in the story through the partition of Palestine after the British gave up the mandate and the birth of the nation Israel. She told of the Arab-Jewish warfare and of the Arab refugee problems, of the yemen Jews who flocked to Israel, and of the adventurers who were attracted to Israel by money and who added to the unrest in the country.

Following a discussion of the book, tea was served by the hostesses Mrs. Fry and Mrs. Hobbs.

'Scout-Parent Partnership' Topic at Aux.

The regular monthly meeting of the 1st Belleville St. Thomas' Scout Auxiliary was held in St. Thomas parish house recently with a good number of members in attendance.

After the regular business session was concluded, the highlight of the evening was an interesting talk by Mrs. Reg Churcher, the Akela of the 1st Belleville Cub Pack. His theme was "Scouting and Parents — A Partnership". He emphasized that the close co-operation of parents and the Scout movement were the same — in effect to raise a boy to be a good useful citizen. He went on to explain how a mother could assist her son with his Cubbing program — starting with the meaning of the promise and law, as applied to home life as well as Cubbing, right through to his Badge Work, and illustrated that a great deal could be accomplished by a combined team of parent and leader working together to the same goal. Mr. Churcher was thanked by Mrs. Minnett and thanked by Mrs. E. Hobbs. Refreshments were served.

Triangle Club Sponsors 'Talent Night'

A "Talent Night", sponsored by the "Triangle Club" in Marmora Hall, Friday evening, was well attended. A blackboard on the stage listed the number and name of each contestant.

As the program progressed the audience was given a chance to buy votes from appointed ushers. These were counted and tabulated on the blackboard for each number and their progress could be viewed by everyone.

Prizes were presented to the top three winners: Carolyn Chisholm, Point Anne; Rhonda Badgley, Carrying; and Mrs. Evelyn Pascoe, Melrose.

During intermission, Mr. Tilbrook, of Belleville, presented several selections on his accordion. Then, a clown, a clown act enjoyed by the children.

A humorous skit, "A Man Arrives", was presented.

Refreshments concluded the evening.

Net proceeds will be forwarded to the Overseas Relief Fund, United Church of Canada.

The 'Small Woman' Visits Cannifton United Church

A great privilege was accorded Cannifton United Church in having the opportunity on April 1st to present Miss Gladys Aylward to a great gathering, not merely of Cannifton's members and adherent but also to people for many miles around.

Miss Aylward has become a world renowned figure and her story has been well told through the media of literature in the book "The Small Woman," and the movie, "The Inn of the Sixth Happiness." Neither of these, however, can give you any idea that an sustaining glance of the "Small Woman" of China, who made her way alone and unaided into a foreign country to answer a call she could not disregard. The subsequent years in China on what, to Canadians, would be the ultimate in hardship, have been rich in experience for Miss Aylward and no one listening to her could ever doubt that they have been the topmost step of God's reward.

The great honor and opportunity afforded the congregation as Miss Aylward was made possible through World Vision of Canada, who have sponsored her and defrayed expenses. She was introduced by Mr. Barron, president of World Vision in Canada, who gave some of the highlights of her missionary career and told also of some of the projects World Vision is assisting in and promoting throughout the world.

Miss Aylward did not spend much time on her own experiences but those she did mention were both humorous and dramatic—dramatic, often, in their simplicity. She brought a message that is a challenge from the Far East that the West must heed before this world can approach peace. Although Miss Aylward is in charge of a Formosan orphanage of 145 children under the age of 5 years, she did not come begging alms. She is a padre in the Formosan army but did not ask for gifts. She had a gift to give—a message, and gave it richly and powerfully.

Her physical courage was ably portrayed in her biography and the movie but you find another courage as you listen to her—the courage of "God within."

There is not the famous Gladys Aylward talking down to, you but Gladys Aylward, a witness to Christ. Translating St. Paul's message to the Corinthians into Chinese Biblical, she called it an "advertisement for Jesus."

There is no doubt that, though small of stature, Miss Aylward is the biggest "small woman" that has challenged or met and the impact of her personality on all who heard her will be lasting.

Phil Ford and Mimi Hines Successful Team of Comics

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—An elderly woman once told Phil Ford and Mimi Hines, as they left the backlace—so easily torn, but so hard to repair.

The two young comics, now one of the fastest rising husband-and-wife teams in show business, have borne this precept in mind ever since.

"We try not to hurt each other in the little things," said Phil. "Sometimes it's the small wounds that never heal."

Phil started in San Francisco as a song-and-dance man at the age of 11. Mimi was only 10—but not pigtails—when she began as a singer in a supper club in her home town of Vancouver.

Eight years ago they met in an Anchorage, Alaska, night club and decided to team up in a comedy act. They were married in 1955.

HECTIC LIFE

Life was hurried, hectic but happy in the next few years as they toured through dozens of small night clubs in the United States and Canada, polishing their act, learning how to deal with every type of audience.

"Looking back, I can't say they had any humor," said Phil. "We kept busy. We weren't nationally known. We were — he smiled — "a very successful unknown act".

On the night of Aug. 29, 1958 they did a small bit on the Jack Paar Show, and made an instant hit. Their phone has been ringing ever since. They've been on the Ed Sullivan Show a dozen times, and emcees in the big time supper club circuit.

They now earn up to $10,000 a week, and their annual income is about $200,000—or higher.

That's all you see from the outside of a suitcase. But success hasn't so far spoiled their happiness, as it often does with husband - wife teams. They feel being married is a help rather than a handicap in their mutual career.

TOGETHER

"I deem it a very great help," said Mimi positively. "Being in love and having a certain rapport is good for your sense of humor.

"You have to love each other if you do comedy together. Otherwise you almost sure to break up in time.

"We never want to work apart. We have fun together. After the show, we take the dog for a walk and talk it over. I wouldn't trade places with anyone in the world."

The two avoid the kind of marital jokes which have been a standby for many stage comedians for generations.

"We don't go in for belittling each other for laughs," said Mimi. "I don't like that old wife versus - husband jazz. It's a made-up gag. At home I'm tired of. And I think most people are tired of it, too. Anyway, it doesn't apply to us. We have a happy partnership, and we're going to keep it that way."

North Hastings F.W.I.O. Plans Convention

The executive of the North Hastings District F.W.I.O. held a meeting recently in Madoc. Mrs. George McClenahan, president, was in charge and opened the session. Roll call showed that all branches but one were represented.

Correspondence and new business was dealt with and a program planned for the district annual convention. This is to be held in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, on April 20th. The theme of the convention will be "Take Time To Live and Enjoy Little Things."

A hobby display from each branch will be an interesting feature.

Mrs. Ertic Moore presided at the nomination of officers, the resulting slate of officers to be presented at the convention for election.

TEEN-AGE TELEPHONERS

While visiting the Inexcellencels recently, I was initiated into their sixteen-year-old daughter's telephone technique. For over an hour those of us in the living room couldn't help but hear the steady stream of gabbing comments to this friend, and that one about "what Susie did, and wasn't it awful" or "what a square the new boy down the street was." Then she called a young man to ask if they couldn't have a date Saturday night.

Somehow, an incoming call managed to sneak through. The young lady answered the ring, came to the door sulkily to inform her mother that she was wanted. "And please hurry Mother, I have some more calls to make!"

I thought that this young lady had a rather high opinion of herself and of her rights in the family circle. She assumed that it was her right to monopolize the telephone to the exclusion of the rest of the family. And her change of voice from a cheerful "Hello," thinking it was a friend of hers, to an abrupt and obviously irritated "I'll call her," when the person phoning asked for her mother, was certainly a rude way to answer the telephone. Reserving one approach for those you are trying to impress, and an entirely different one for those that seem unimportant to you, will boomerang when you least expect it to.

By taking things into her own hands and adopting the boy's prerogative of telephoning and asking for a date, she showed an utter lack of good common sense. Today this seems to be general practice on the part of the girls. But if they could hear some of the comments from the boys who receive these bids for dates, I think they would think twice before ever making the advance in the first place. From talking with young men about their feelings on this subject, I can tell you that they definitely don't like it. Traditionally it has been the right of the male to make the advance, and a young lady is overstepping her rights when she presumes to reverse the procedure.

Another hint to Miss Teen-ager: Don't forget that telephone manners are just as important as date manners. So make every effort to be your natural, cheerful self when answering the phone. Avoid giggling and; being ritimish or coy. If you are natural, your popularity rating will jump up. I promise you! Not only with your young friends, but the oldsters, too.

Question My wedding invitations have been sent out and now the presents are beginning to pour in. I simply do not have the time to write and thank people personally for them, but a friend tells me that it is not right to have a card engraved expressing my thanks. Is she right?

Answer: Your friend is absolutely correct. It is an inexcusable rudeness for a bride-to-be to resort to a printed or engraved card to express her thanks for a gift. Courtesy demands that there be found somehow for her to personally handwrite her appreciation. The note may be very short.

Club Activities

BETHEL-ZION 4-H CLUB

The fourth meeting of the Bethel-Zion 4-H Club was held on March 29 at the home of Beverley May.

A discussion was led by Mrs. Elmer Tufts on "Milk Sanitation." Under this topic, the members discussed micro-organisms, how to fight bacteria, the water supply, home pasteurization of milk and about house flies and how to control them.

Mrs. Elmer Tufts and Mrs. Fred Wellman again demonstrated posture.

The home assignments were: to make a list of people who have made outstanding contributions to health; write a story of one of these and work on the record book.

TIME OFF

LONDON (CP) — A 17-year-old schoolboy at Eton took time off from classes to give his mother away at her second wedding.

Flower-Bright Hats

By ALICE ALDEN

This spring, hats will be fine flower gardens, with the flower-covered cloche a prime favorite. Mr. Arnold chooses giant silk poppies in muted brown and green shades for an elegant cloche, the flowers beautifully arranged over a frame of French net. Beige satin is softly tied into a face-flattering bow for the band brim of this elegant, light-hearted hat.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Jane S. — Greg resents my ex-husband's visits.

Gregory S. — I feel like a spare tire.

Jane S. — I was married recently for the second time to a wonderful man whom I adore. Unfortunately, he doesn't seem really to believe this.

My ex-husband takes our two children out on weekends and comes to visit them once a week at home. When it's Joe's night to visit, Greg goes a disappearing act. He wants me to go out with him too and is very hurt when I want to stay in and talk to Joe.

I don't hate my ex-husband and never did. We just couldn't get along and I guess it was as much my fault as his. Anyway, I lived with him for more than 10 years and we have a lot in common. I can't treat him like a stranger and I think Greg should be friendly too.

Gregory S. — And just what am I supposed to do while Jane and Joe sit around chewing the rag about things that happened years ago? I'm a spare tire. The kids like me well enough when I'm alone with them but when their dad's there, they act as though I am invisible.

I don't think Jane ought to be around either when Joe is there. It's not that I'm jealous, as the believers. It's just that the kids have a right to be alone with their dad when they see him only twice a week. When Jane and Joe start raising the kids don't get a word in edgewise.

Jane thinks we can all be one happy family, but I think two husbands in one room at the same time is too much.

The Council: Greg's point of view seems reasonable to us and we don't quite see why Jane fails to understand and sympathize. We have a sneaking suspicion she must rather enjoy having these two men in her life around at the same time, each feeling a little disturbed about his status in relation to her.

Certainly, twice a week isn't a lot of time for children to see their father and they should get his undivided attention. It is a perfect opportunity for Jane and Greg to go out together, knowing the children are in the best possible hands.

We think it must also be disturbing to the children to have two fathers around at the same time. It's an idea they'll have to get used to, but until they do, it certainly wise to make things a little easier for them.

Since this marriage is a recent one, it will take time to stabilize itself. A second mate often feels a little insecure about how he measures up against Number One. Only after he has proved the value of the new marriage will he feel he is the one and only "real" husband. Greg's statement that two husbands in the room at one time is too much reveals his attitude only too clearly.

Eventually Greg will feel firmly entrenched in his wife's life when Jane's visits may make him less uncomfortable. Until that time comes, we see no point in pushing this family's "togetherness" beyond the reasonable limit.

W.I. Holds Meeting, Views Slides

BONARLAW — Mrs. Bert McCoy was hostess for the W.I. members and visitors at her home on Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Annie Spry, opened the meeting in the usual manner.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the correspondence. It was decided to donate to the Hoodless fund.

A charter member, Mrs. Tom Webb, and Mr. Webb, who celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary on March 31st, were remembered with a box of fruit from the W.I.

Thank-you notes were read from sick members.

The meeting on "Historical Research" was given in readings from the "Highlands of Hastings" and a report on Honeyland Junction and York River (C.N.R.) by Mrs. G. Burkitt. A paper on the Rathbun Lumber Company and the "First Mining Claim" to be staked in Canada in 1590, which was a copper mine, on St. Lawrence.

A paper was given by Mrs. Cyril McKeown on "Our Historic Sites."

Mrs. R. Dickie gave a talk on the history of Belleville and its name, and Mrs. C. L. McKeown spoke on the Ontario Canadian Good Roads Association is doing in the county.

Mrs. George Bateman gave a splendid account of her visit and visit to England and illustrated her talk by snaps taken on her visit and Mrs. James Spry, a talk on her trip to Florida with pictures taken while there.

The hostess served lunch.

The next meeting on April 27 to be at the home of Mr. L. Cassidy. This is the annual meeting and the conveners are asked to give their reports.

Colorful Empire Torte For Easter

by Mary Moore

Second instalment continued from Monday, April 4, 1960.

Yesterday I gave you the sponge cake batter and two baking methods of baking them; 1) four round layers and 2) eight oblong layers.

Today I am giving you the methods of assembling, filling, frosting and decorating these.

FOUR-LAYER ROUND TORTE:

Fill and frost with Hungarian Chocolate Frosting: Three squares unsweetened cooking chocolate, 1 1-3 cups unsifted icing sugar, 2 1-3 tablespoons hot water, 3 egg yolks, 4 tablespoons butter. Melt chocolate in double boiler. Remove from boiling water, add sugar and water, and blend. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each. Add butter, a tablespoon at a time, beating thoroughly after each amount. Sprinkle top with finely chopped walnuts or pecans or decorate top with large walnuts or pecans. Chill four hours or overnight before serving.

EIGHT-LAYER OBLONG TORTE:

Variation A) Fill and frost with Butter Icing: One and one-quarter cups butter, 2 1-2 cups sifted icing sugar. Beat butter until light and airy and gradually add sugar while beating until mixture is light and fluffy. Separate into 3 bowls, apportioning a little more than 1-3 each. Chill into first bowl. 1). Tint first bowlful delicately with rose or red food coloring and flavor with cherry or strawberry flavoring. 2). Tint second bowlful delicately with green food coloring and flavor with peppermint flavoring. 3). Tint third bowlful delicately with orange food coloring and flavor with orange flavoring. Spread these frostings between layers alternately, finishing the outside with pink (this being the large- as in Variation A. Chill four 15 pounds of fresh food a day. er amount). Carefully press long-shred coconut around sides. Form 3 little "nests" of coconut on top and lay 3 tiny candy Easter eggs in each. Chill 4 hours or overnight before serving. A beautiful dessert for Easter dinner.

Variation B) (for those who do not have such a sweet tooth). Make only 1-3 as much butter icing and tint it all a delicate pink and flavor with cherry or strawberry flavoring. Spread unsweetened whipped cream between cold sponge cake layers. Frost top and sides with pink icing and finish with coconut hours or overnight before serving.

NOTE:

Hungarian Chocolate Frosting (as in four-layer round torte) may be used between and on top of eight layers, of course, if desired.

The Way of the Worry-Free
There's the high road and the low road — many are the lanes that lead from here to there.
The anxious road. The fretful road. The hazardous road — the rough and the smooth, the swift and the adventurous.
And there are those who think of all of these when they plan to go from here to there.
Ask the venturer who leaves his car behind why he rides with Canadian National Railways. Invariably you will find his reason in these half-dozen simple words — it's the way of the worry-free.
Luxury, restfulness. Quiet and roomy comfort. The courteous, the gracious air — all of these are there.
But beyond these is assurance.
It is this, contrasted with the teeming and relentless traffic of today's highways, that is making a growing number of motorists say — "I take it easier — I take the train".
—take it easier—take the train

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Some modern misers will tell you they are not raising Junior to become a soldier, sailor, cook or circus ringtabout. Some of them prefer the professions for the family pride, others wouldn't mind seeing him a major league baseball star or a National Hockey League phenom, while others are undecided.

A lot of them would throw up their hands in horror if professional wrestling was mentioned as a career for young Brighteyes—but it ain't so bad, amigos, it ain't so bad, when you reckon up the annual loot.

Many of the play-for-pay pachyderms pick up annual moneybags in five figures. The hours are good, you see the country through the front window of a convertible, instead of a porthole, meals are regular, and after all, who cares if you're the "bad guy" or the hero. The pay is just as good.

Take "Killer" Wladek Kowalski, for example. The "Killer" is not a stranger to Belleville fandom, albeit would cheerfully see him strung up feet-first from the handiest light standard.

Rated one of the top six grapplers in the world, the Killer claims he travels over 100,000 miles a year to keep his mat-mayhem dates. Sometimes he gets only three hours' sleep in two nights.

No matter where he goes, there's no red carpet treatment for the Killer. They hate him everywhere—but he in turn loves their money.

"They hate me," he says. "Everywhere I go they throw rocks, chairs and rotten fruit. I've been burned by lighted cigarets, temporarily blinded by peanutshooters and struck in the chest by beer cans and pointed staples. Now I'm even receiving the odd bomb threat."

But the Killer admits he may become a trifle overaggressive in his ring tactics. "But," he asks, "is that any reason why the crowds should treat me like garbage? I think wrestlers conduct themselves more intelligently than the fans."

The Killer has a gentle little aggressive weapon called the knee-drop. He leaps in the air over a prostrate opponent and "crunches" down his knee on any exposed part of the foeman's anatomy.

Score to date, dozens of opponents winding up in hospital beds; Tarzan Zorra, a cracked collarbone; Edouard Carpentier, torn knee ligaments, and the prize package, Whipper Billy Watson when Yukon Eric parked company with an ear after the Killer knee-drop treatment.

But the Killer goes on his money-making way. For eight of his twelve years in the ring he has been a top attraction. He packs away in the bank $50,000 annually.

The Killer, a bachelor, lives in Montreal, was born in Windsor of Polish parents. He is a strict vegetarian and has one hobby, photography.

Says he hasn't eaten meat, flesh or fowl for the past eight years. Just vegetables, salads and cream Italian foods. He told a Montreal interviewer that he has several hyperbolic juice machines in his apartment—one each for carrots, oranges, spinach, apples.

"I'm proud of my body," he said. "I try to keep it perfect. I have never smoked. I do not drink outside of the ring, do not associate with other wrestlers."

Kowalski's apartment holds other things than juice machines. The walls are pink, the carpet gold. The sofa is white and in the centre of this colorful scene there is a huge purple chair.

He really loves the chair because purple has always been his favorite color. Says he would wear a purple suit if people would not call him an oddball or a wrestler with a gimmick.

Being chosen "Villain of the Year" by an American magazine did not impress Kowalski. He is always getting trophies or plaques for something or other, he says. But he gives them away—usually to kids—who ask him for autographs.

"You should see them when I do," he added. "You would think I had given them a million bucks.

Four-Year White Sox Quest Ends With Quarry in Bag

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—One of the most persistent attempts to land a player in recent baseball history ended Monday when Chicago White Sox pried loose Roy Sievers from Washington Senators.

The Sox had been after him for four years, finally getting the 33-year-old slugger for $150,000 cash and two players—Earl Battey, a fine defensive catcher, and Don Mincher, 21, promising first baseman who triggered 22 homers and 92 RBI last year with the Charleston, S.C. in the Sally League.

"Sievers will be a great insurance policy for us," said Sox manager Al Lopez. "He can spell Ted Kluszewski at first base or Minnie Minoso in left field. And when he's not doing that he can pinch hit."

Todd he was moving to Chicago, Sievers said he regrets leaving Washington where, he said, he had always been treated fairly.

But, Sievers added, "I've never had a chance to play with a team that had a crack at winning the pennant. I guess I don't have too many years left to play and I'm excited for the opportunity to break at some world series money."

SLOWED BY INJURIES

Sievers was injured much of last year, but managed to hit 21 homers and drive in 63 runs. In his seasons with the Senators, he collected 180 homers and averaged 96 RBI.

One of the many rejected offers the Sox made for him was last June when president Bill Veeck persuaded a five - player package and $250,000 for Sievers Cleveland Indians pitcher Russ Kemmerer.

Last week president Cal Griffith of the Senators offered to part with Sievers in an even trade for Battey and utility infielder Sammy Esposito. Lopez was reluctant to let go of Esposito, who can fill in at third, short or second.

HEADS FOR KENTUCKY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Windfields Farm's Victoria Park, who finished third behind Bally Ache and Venetian Way in Saturday's $126,500 Florida Derby, left by trailer Monday for Keeneland Race Track in Kentucky.

Victoria Park, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto and trained by H. A. Luro, defeated Bally Ache in an earlier stake at Hialeah and is nominated for the triple crown events — Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes. He earned $10,000 for his third-place in Gulfstream Park's Florida Derby.

Leonard Fruchtman of Toledo, Ohio, owner of Bally Ache, said the colt will fly to Churchill Downs for workouts and return for the Kentucky Derby May 7.

Back-Room Boys Rate Canadiens 5-1 Favorites

Imlach Retires as "Swami," Lone Quote 'Will Be There'; Blake Sees Tough Series

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Punch Imlach has too many worries these pre-Stanley Cup final days to waste any of his waking hours about gambling odds on the outcome of the best-of-seven series. The bookmakers here consider Leafs, sniffing ducks for the defending champion Montreal Canadiens.

"That's pretty foolish," commented Imlach Monday when told the betters had established Canadiens 5-4 favorites. "But if they want to be foolish, let 'em go ahead. Anyway, I don't pay any attention to the gamblers and" cut hockey."

Punch has also apparently retired as the swami of the National Hockey League coaching ranks. Fans will recall that last year he chalked Leafs to take Canadiens in six games in the final and then watched coach Toe Blake's powerhouse squad carve up the Leafs in five.

"We'll be there, was the only prediction Imlach cared to make about the series starting Thursday night at Montreal Forum.

PRAISES NETMINDER

This was a most unusual turn of events. It may be attributed to the just-concluded semi-final with Detroit Red Wings. Punch conceded Wings took two easy and may have taken it all except for the sensational goaltending of Leafs Johnny Bower.

The Leafs didn't waste any time mentioning their foes Canadiens. They were on Maple Leaf Gardens ice for an hour's drill and practice session until the Leafs leave for Montreal Wednesday night.

Montreal rolled over the opposition in the 70-game schedule, followed Leafs only three victories in 14 Leafs-Canadiens meetings and disposed- of Chicago Black Hawks in four straight in the semi-final.

Leafs masterminds, and the players, are mum today about the Thursday series opening. Ordinarily, the first game would be scheduled for tonight but Toronto, with the consent of Canadiens and president Clarence Campbell, got the two-day delay.

WILL HELP

"The four-day layoff is in our favor," Imlach said. "There's a natural letdown by the players after winning a series like the one we've just been through with Detroit. We'll be better again Thursday and that will make for a much better game.

"After all, that's what the fans want, a good game."

The layoff may also eliminated the possibility of a Saturday night game in Toronto, invariably a box-office sellout. The first two games will be played at Montreal Thursday and Saturday with the next pair at Toronto the following Tuesday and Thursday.

A fifth game, if necessary, will be at Montreal April 16, the sixth at Toronto April 19 and the seventh in Montreal two nights later.

Leafs came out of the Detroit series in remarkably good shape.

"There were a few bruises left over from Detroit but a few days of rest will take care of those," Imlach said.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, defending Stanley Cup champions, will be heavy favorites to eliminate Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League semi-finals, which start Thursday night at Montreal Forum.

Leafs, who finished fourth in the regular season, have been installed 5-4 favorites to win the best-of-seven series

Blowing Whistle on Canadian Hockey Talent U.S. Coaches Hope to Even Up Competition

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Some United States collegiate hockey coaches want to curb the whistling on imported Canadian talent, suspecting that Canuck stars are officials where amateur status is concerned.

They would like to see Canadians who have played in leagues where salaries are paid barred from U.S. collegiate hockey because they feel the Canucks provide unfair competition for American youths just entering the sport.

The recent U.S. collegiate hockey final was virtually an all-Canada affair — surprising nobody — and came at a time of particular interest in the sport following the American victory at the Olympic winter Games in Squaw Valley, Calif.

The American College Hockey Coaches Association met just before the final in Boston and reconvended by a 13-to-6 vote that Canadians who have played in leagues with salary regulations be barred from U.S. collegiate hockey.

NEEDS NCAA APPROVAL

Nothing immediate is expected because the recommendation must be considered by a rules committee and eventually would need approval by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, body in which hockey ranks far below such sports as football.

On the basis of interviews, with sports figures, this is the situation as it can be summarized today:

1. The coaches have no wish to discriminate against Canadians as such but they feel that youths who in Canada have played, for instance, Junior A hockey, registered by the National Hockey League, provide unfair competition for American boys just out of high school.

Some U.S. coaches believe Canadian educationists — particularly at the high school level — have filtered hockey to get-out of their hands, and into the hands of the professional leagues. That, they believe, has resulted in a narrowing of the sport and in one case reason for the Canadian defeat at Squaw Valley.

"It would be nice if we could give the game back to the amateurs," said one coach. "After a very exceptional 1st can play 70 games of hockey—they go to Junior A—and keep up with his scholastic work."

2. The coaches believe a "protected" sport here would speed the development of the game which is becoming increasingly popular in the U.S. It would build stronger U.S. Olympic teams, although probably not in time for the next games at Innsbruck, Austria, in 1964. It would also pave for fuller hockey while arts developed.

3. East-West rivalry plays a part. The western U.S. colleges, with many Canadians on their teams, have won the NCAA hockey championship in 11 out of 13 seasons in competition with eastern college.

ONE FROM U.S.

University of Denver Pioneers had only one American-born goalie who didn't dress—on the roster March 19 when they won the NCAA championship by a 6-5 win with a 5-3 victory over Michigan Tech, which had only two Canadian fleans.

Of the eastern representatives in the tournament, St. Lawrence University had seven Canadians on its 18-man roster while Boston University had only three.

These men represented the best in U.S. college hockey—the Western Big Seven, embracing Denver, Colorado, Minnesota, Michigan Tech, Michigan State and North Dakota and the Big Four eastern Conference, including the six-team Ivy League and New York state teams.

The proposal for a check on Canadian players arose during a committee meeting attended by Yale coach Murray Murdoch, Minnesota's John Mariucci, Brown's Jim Fullerton, St. Lawrence's George Menard and Denver's Murray Armstrong. It had been brewing for months.

The full-scale vote came at the tail-end of the main meeting when attendance was low. The proposal was opposed by Armstrong, a former NHL performer with New York and Detroit, along with the coaches of North Dakota, Michigan Tech and Michigan State. New York's Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute was the only eastern college voting with the West.

FEEL NOT SPECIFIC

While the NCAA already has action against pro players of any kind, some coaches feel they aren't specific enough. The proposed addition to the constitution would remove the necessity of proving that a player had received money — he would need only to have played in a league handling player salaries to be ineligible.

The difficulty is that no one has a copyright on the word "amateur" and it has come to mean practically anything," said Murdoch, who played with University of Manitoba when it won the Canadian Junior championship in 1923 and later became the famed "iron man" of New York Rangers. He said there now are only three junior teams in Winnipeg, compared with 20 in his day.

It's estimated that 125 Canadian youths are playing hockey in U.S. colleges and—while details aren't available here—the rate of scholarships for hockey is considered higher in the western colleges than in the east.

The coaches admit that a drop-out in Canadian players would take slip out of the game and cause a loss in attendance, but they feel it would be recaptured in time.

BETTER THAN AHL

As an indication of interest, there are some 150 junior hockey teams in Minnesota alone, and attendance reached nearly 8,000—per more than most games in the American Hockey League — in high school finals in Minneapolis.

The coaches say they have no inferiority complex about tackling Canadian colleges, where players are straight from high school without professional training. Yale, which ended third in the Ivy League, lost by only one goal against University of Moncton, real last season, but suffered a 16-goal barrage at the hands of North Dakota.

Denver not only won the NCAA title at Boston but earlier defeated the U.S. olympic champions 7-5 and tied Russia 3-3 in exhibition games.

In the NCAA title game, the Michigan team included:

George Cucullick, Barrie, Ont.; Bill Rowe, Kirkland Lake, Ont.; Elov Seger, Fort Francis, Ont.; Dan Farrell, Hamilton; Gerald Sullivan, Timmins, Ont.; Stan Wojcik, Kitchener, Ont., and Elov Seger and Dave Cowan of Port Arthur.

Boxer Advised To Quit Ring

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) Bob Speight, 33, New Brunswick lightweight champion, has been advised by doctors in Pittsburgh to give up boxing because of a concussion he suffered in a March 29 bout against Chuck Taylor.

"The doctors told me another crack on the head could be fatal," Speight said today. "And I'm out of the game while I still have my sense."

Speight was knocked out in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Pittsburgh.

Senators Think

Throneberry Will Fill Spot Vacated by Sievers Trade

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington's fearsome four-some minus one, shopping around for a new partner to aid in the war against organized pitching, today began checking the credentials of Pete Throneberry of Memphis.

Throneberry coincided his torrid hitting along major league baseball's exhibition trail Monday, driving in the winning run with a seventh inning single as the Senators edged Kansas City 3-2 in the only game played.

With slugger Roy Sievers traded to Chicago White Sox for catcher Earl Battey, first baseman Don Mincher and $100,000, Throneberry may be just the man to fill the displaced ranks. The 28-year-old Tennessean who has kicked around the American Association for a couple of years, Boston in 1952. Throneberry batted .300 in 30 games in his last season and compiled a .251 batting average in 117 games. The outfielder-first baseman hit 10 home runs and accounted for 47 runs batted in.

SOME DIFFERENCE

Now he's the sensation of the Senators' training camp with his .462 batting average, and has been outshining fearsome holdovers Harmon Killebrew, Jim Lemon and Bob Allison.

Killebrew (.286), Lemon (.333), Allison (.30) and Sievers (.21) slugged 126 home runs during the 1959 campaign, a little more power from Throneberry could make up for the departure of Sievers.

While Throneberry drove home the clincher against the A's, Killebrew and Lemon started the ball rolling with their 9th and seventh victory in 20 games by driving home two runs in the first inning with sacrifice flies.

The A's tied it in the second when Bob Cerv homered — his fourth of the spring—with a man on. Then, in the seventh, Lennie Green singled, advanced on a passed ball and came around on Throneberry's clutch hit.

WORK ON LINEUPS

Meanwhile Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson and Charlie Grimm, field boss of Chicago Cubs, took advantage of the open date to get their starting lineups in shape for the National League's opening program a week from today.

Grimm named rookies Sammy Drake and Jim Johnson to his probable starting lineup at third base and right field, respectively. Johnson hails from Burlington, Iowa and .303 at San Antonio last season. Johnson is a 6-foot, 6-incher, Pa., and .327 for San Antonio during the 1959 campaign.

Other clubs continued paring their rosters to get down to the required limit. The only surprise came from San Francisco Giants, who announced the waivers on infielder Danny O'Connell, a 10-year major league veteran.

'Jolly Jawn' Has Faith In Red Wings

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP)— Jack Adams settled back comfortably in his Olympia Stadium office and a smile creased his face.

"We've had a lot of championships," said the general manager of Detroit Red Wings, pointing around the room to pictures of some of the team's great hockey teams of the past. "But you know I got a real big kick out of our team this year. We didn't win anything, but we turned a lot of guys into men.

"They wrote us off—a lot of them did, anyway. We went down the ladder—from first, to third and then to last. We took a lot of abuse—I did and the players did too. I said when we hit bottom that we'd be back. I told them not to give up on us.

"I hope they haven't, because we're on our way. Yes sir, I'm proud of these kids this year. They gave 100 per cent. The road up ahead is quite a bit brighter."

MAINE COMEBACK

Fourth place in a six-team league may not seem like much of an accomplishment, but it's quite an improvement over the 1958-59 campaign when the Wings finished last for first time since entering the National League in 1926.

Adams, who predicted a few seasons ago that Montreal Canadiens couldn't dominate the league for a while, continued:

"The Montreal dynasty is ending. Someone will catch those Canadiens and I think it might be us. We need a couple more good hockey players to do it."

Detroit players dropped around the offices Monday, saying goodbye and picking up travel money to go to their scattered homes.

"I'm proud of all of them and I tell them so," said Adams. "I had some pleasant surprises this year. Especially Larry Olver and Pete Goegan—and a couple of disappointments. We thought Len Lunde would score 15 or 16 goals and he scored only six. But he started to play well near the end of the season. We still have great plans for him.

"Oliver should get the rookie-of-the-year award. He missed 15 games and still scored 20 goals—that's like hitting .300 in baseball, you know."

Giants, Bears To Play In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Three Toronto business men said Monday night they have arranged for an exhibition football game here Monday, August 15, between New York Giants and Chicago Bears of the National Football League. Tickets are guaranteed each team $25,000 or 33½ per cent of the gate.

The game will be played at the University of Toronto's Varsity Stadium.

The three promoters who have formed an organization called Exhibition Football Enterprises are Sol Hart, a furrier, Michael Gerry, sales executive, and Jack Churchill, veteran waiter at the Royal York Hotel.

Mr. Carroll, their spokesman, said "We have an option for next year with plans for expansion eventually leading to an NFL franchise for Toronto."

He said contracts between the NFL and Varsity Stadium have been signed calling for a guarantee of $151,000.

He said the stadium seating would amount to about 20,000, Ontario hospital tax could total another 13,000 and the NFL headquarters would get two per cent of the gate after taxes.

They negotiated with John Mara, president of the Giants, beginning last December. Contracts were signed last week.

TRAINER REINSTATED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Trainer Jack Phillips, suspended after procaine was found in body samples of one of his horses, was reinstated Monday by the California Horse Racing Board. Phillips testified he gave the horse Sights an injection about 24 hours before the Feb. 25 race because the horse was coughing.

U.S. Names Davis Cuppers

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—A 14-man United States Davis Cup tennis squad named Monday includes two members of the 1959 challenge round team.

Back for that team are that lost the cup to Australia are Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio, and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, Mo. Veterans Tom Brown 37, of San Francisco and Bernard Bartzen, 32, of Dallas, Tex., were also named to the squad.

Other members: John Cranston, San Marino, Calif.; Chris Crawford, Pickrond, Calif.; Donald Dell, Bethesda, MD.; Jon A. Douglas, former Stanford quarter-back from Santa Monica, Calif.; Myron J. Franks, Los Angeles; Jack Frost, Monterey, Calif.; Ronald E. Holmberg, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Clinton Mayne, Berkeley, Calif., Charles McKinley, St. Louis, Mo., and Whitney Reed, Alameda, Calif.

Rex Harrison in Hollywood After an Absence of 6 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP — A melflower Rex Harrison is here for his first Hollywood movie in six years.

Harrison was sometimes the centre of storms in his previous film-town tenancy. His habit of dcing and saying what he pleased rankled the Hollywood powers.

But the town has changed, and so, apparently, has Harrison. Hollywood has seen the passing of the big studio bosses. And the actor has undergone the triumph of his success in the Broadway musical My Fair Lady and the tragedy of the loss of his wife Kay Kendall.

DORIS TO COSTAR

He's back to co-star with Doris Day in a mystery-comedy, Midnight Lace. Says he: "Hollywood seems much quieter now. There seem to be no big parties any more, no real colony at all. But I like it here. I have pleasant memories of Hollywood—on the whole."

Three of Harrison's years away from here were spent as the punctilious Professor Higgins in My Fair Lady.

He played the role two years on Broadway in New York, a year in London. He admitted the reviews were not as glowing in England, though business was smash.

"The critics seemed to have a chip on their shoulders in London," he commented. "There was perhaps a resentment over wailing so long for the show. And it's hard for any show to live up to such an advance buildup.

"But also, the quality of dramatic criticism is not as high in London as it is in New York. The New York critics seem to realize their responsibility. With two or three exceptions, the London papers are more interested in such things as what the audience wore than in how good the play was."

His kind words for the New York critics are symbolic of the mellower Harrison. Recently they panned The Fighting Cock, in which he starred. The French adaptation lasted two months.

"Perhaps it was unsuited to American audiences," Harrison said. "It's very difficult to adapt a French play to America.

"In Paris, audiences are perfectly willing to sit and listen to a conversational exchange of ideas. In London, they will expect ideas, but demand a bit more action. In New York, they demand plot and the audience won't sit still."

"Little Train" Turns Pro, Signs Contract With Larks

MONTREAL (CP) — Lionel Conacher, Jr., son of Canada's late "Big Train" of sports fame, has signed a contract with Montreal Alouettes, the Big Four Football League club announced Monday.

Conacher started last season with University of Western Ontario of the Senior Intercollegiate League, running from a twinfullback offence with Meco Pollitani.

The Alouettes signed Pollitani earlier.

The announcement of Conacher's signing was made in Toronto, via Montreal. Alouettes' head coach Mors, owner Ted Workman, and Conacher spoke to an assembly of Montreal newspapermen over a two-way telephone hookup with the Toronto home where Conacher was signed.

Bad weather had washed out plans to fly Conacher here for the signing.

Conacher carried the ball for 1,106 of the 2,213 yards Western gained on the ground last year. He and Pollitani carried the ball 50 per cent of the time it went on the ground.

Conacher, 24, is the son of the Lionel (Big Train) Conacher, who was a member of Parliament, ace outstanding football player at Toronto, a National Hockey League star, and the athlete of the half-century in a Canadian Press poll in 1950.

He died of a heart attack while playing baseball in an annual game between Commons members of the Ottawa Press Gallery.

Lionel, Jr., said he was willing to play anywhere in the east, and that he had business opportunities in Montreal.

He is to be graduated in June from the Western School of Business Administration.

Although he weighs a hefty 202 pounds and stands six feet two inches, Conacher is known as a deceptive and fast runner, as well as a power runner and blocker.

Chatham, Rouyn Open Series At Noranda

TORONTO (CP) — Chatham Maroons and Rouyn-Noranda Alouettes open their best-of-five Eastern Canada Allan Cup semifinal at Noranda, Que., tonight, it was announced here Monday.

The second game also will be played at Noranda Wednesday and the third at Chatham Friday.

The fourth and fifth games, if necessary, will be played at Chatham Saturday and Monday.

At Noranda ,meanwhile, manager Maxie Silverman of Sudbury Combines, who lost the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior final to Rouyn-Noranda Monday sent a protest to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Silverman said the Als should not have allowed any of the players here from his own league. The ruling was made before Sudbury had an entry, said Silverman, and it was only done to strengthen the NOHA winner for the series against the Ontario Hockey Association.

Sudbury lost the best-of-five series in four games.

Lindsay Drubs Picton Juniors By 8-4 Score

By RON SIVEL

PICTON — The Picton Merchants were handed a stunning 8 to 4 setback in the third game of their best-of-five Junior "C" series with Lindsay on Friday night in Lindsay. The over-confident Picton squad gave their travelling fans little to be joyful over as they came up with an exhibition of dreary hockey and were a well beaten club over the three period battle.

The Picton squad was lucky to end the first period with a 1-1 count on the scoreboard with Pendleton keeping them in the game on some brilliant goaltending. They stumbled through the middle period to end up on the wrong end of a 5 to 2 count and fell completely apart in the last period while Lindsay outscoring them by a 3-3 count.

The brilliant collection of bruising Juniors came up with a spark-plug game to outplay and outskate the tired looking Picton crew.

Picton tallied the first goal at 7.42 with Proctor tipping in Dench's brilliant shot. The last Presley evened it at 11.31 as he shook himself loose to race in, block Sid Keyes' shot and hit the short side with a bullet drive.

Lindsay scored twice on the crew in the second with McLean, Jackett, Raby and Strasbourger scoring. Simpson replied for lone Picton goal.

The Lindsay squad saw the Lindsayites keep the pressure on as they played a close checking game to force the Picton crew in check. Wainman, Pierson and Strasbourger triggered Lindsay's three convincers with Bryant and Proctor beating a brilliant Jackett who starred all night between the Lindsay pipes.

Pendleton picked up four helpers, Bowie 3 brace, with singles going to Jackett, Presley, Strasbourger and McLean. For Picton, Bryant added two assists to his one goal, with Proctor, Denard, Weese and Webb garnering one each.

A total of 25 penalties were handed out by Refs. Jack Shropshire and Bob Simcoe with Lindsay earning 14 of them with Raby picking up a misconduct and McLean a major for fighting with Picton's Davidson, who also sat it out for five minutes. Lindsay outshot Picton by a 41 to 37 margin and were full value for their win. The fourth game will be played in Picton on Thursday night with the fifth if necessary in Lindsay on Saturday night.

Emery Wins Over Devlin

MONTREAL (CP) — Burke Emery of Shawinigan Falls, a sharpening up for his shot at the Canadian light heavyweight title, Monday night scored a fourth round technical knockout over Bobby Devlin of Tulsa, Okla., in a scheduled 10-rounder at Mont St. Louis Gymnasium.

Emery, 170½ pounds, floored Devlin, 165, three times before referee stopped the bout at 1:32.

It was Emery's first bout since he was stricken with pneumonia on a tour of Britain 11 months ago.

At the Belle

Romance, Action and Adventure in New 2-Feature Show.

There's blazing action and excitement in, "The Abductors", a terrific tale of men from the locked files of the United States Secret Service. The theme revealed for the first time, and is showing tonight for the last times on the Panoramic screen of the Belle Theatre.

Victor McLaglen as a powerful money-mad ex-convict and George MacReady as a sinister sadist with a plot so staggering you will have to see, "The Abductors" at the Belle Theatre to believe it. Fay Spain and Carl Thayler, are the young lovers in the unusually interesting story.

JEALOUSY THEME OF STORY

Jealousy is a marvelous theme for a motion picture. And it is now used in the DeLuxe Color film, "3 Murderesses", Twentieth Century Fox Film-Noir comedy, the worthy companion Feature, showing tonight for the last times at the Belle.

"3 Murderesses", fun-filled Color Feature, proves love is a game that everyone can play. The trick is to know when it's fun and when serious, which is admittedly tion and emotions change constantly.

In any case though, the human scenery is colorful and magnificent, a face and caress for each case.

Academy Awards Show Ran Almost 20 Minutes Overtime

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—In spite of all its years of experience awarding Oscars in front of television cameras, the mighty motion picture industry hasn't yet figured out how to turn a private evening into a sharp and shapely program.

Monday night's Academy Awards show ran almost 20 minutes overtime. There were frequent arid stretches for the home viewers when the behind - the - scenes folk were being lighthanded their statues or making those proper disclaimers and listing "all those others who made this possible." Many a joke misfired, and some didn't fire at all. If so, the Oscars have something all the other awards, including the TV Emmys, lack. Maybe it's years, maybe it's the prestige of all those stars on the stage and in the audience.

Bob Hope is an able master of ceremonies. He had the traffic on stage under control at all times and a handy supply of appropriate wisecracks. Warmest applause of the evening came when he was given a special Jean Hersholt humanitarian award.

"I don't know what to say," said Hope. "I'd like to have writers for this type of work."

iScreen credits at the program's end listed seven writers for his material.

The awards themselves were preceded by a half-hour program showing some of the stars dining in a Hollywood restaurant. It was a dull and awkward little interlude reminiscent of the old Stork Club show of early TV.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: Although there seem to be many delays and even practical interests and concerns are concerned, nevertheless, by a smile and thinking it and using your creative ability to make comprehensive plans for the future, this can be a excellent day and night. Be sure you do have fun, but don't end much for it.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Spend the day working out plans for the future constructively and avoid publicity and gossip. Good time to come to better understanding with someone who work with you as well as family ties and friends.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Be certain that your thorough today with any commitments or obligations you have incurred. Remain steadfast to your resolutions and do not allow to run off to some new adventure. Impress others with the strength of character.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Conferences, shopping, regular work can go off very efficiently for you today. But be certain you are not jealous of a good comrade, as you might be apt to influence such an emotion quite involuntarily. Be big and get big.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Rather than listen to the depressive forebodings of an associate, get busy putting your ideas across and begin an upturn in all of your affairs. Positive thinking at this time can save the greatest enterprises.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Dress in nicest taste today and impress others with your truly great ideas. Make constructive plans for the future. Come through with commitments now. Avoid that co-worker with a chip on his or her shoulder.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Don't go off on any tangent, or fritter away time, since much has to be handled that is of prime and moment. P.M. give a helping hand to those who are truly in need and come to you for help.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Step out early today and ally yourself with those individuals who can be very helpful to you right now and in the future. You can also enjoy yourself at the same time. Be cheerful.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) You may not be thinking very straight or optimistically today. It is best you consult some expert and get pointers that will help you to increase good will and have an abundance and to spare inside.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) This can be a day when monetary affairs become rather disturbing to you. Be conscientious, however, and adopt the methods of those who have had wider experience than you. Start an upswing now.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Instead of following own ideas, it would be wise now to get the advice of experts before entering into that venture that interests you. P.M. be most devoted and kind to one closest to your heart.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can solve all of your problems best today by following a plan proposed by a good partner who is truly interested in your welfare. Raise your level of consciousness so that you can realize greater success in the future.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Here is one of those days when nearly everyone around you is depressed and apt to throw cold water on your ideas. Do not permit this. Get surroundings in order and diligently go about own affairs and work.

If your child is born today . . . The fine child born today can go far in the business or artistic world, provided you early give the right teachings, afford the best environment possible instead of dwelling on what is neglect the religious training that is of prime importance in life of all, and particularly here. Be small, pety and stifling. Don't Good chart for public life, undertakings of real breadth.

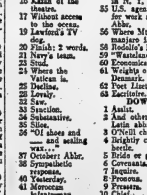
Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance that in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.



And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among those sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Hypodermics or Preparation H. Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

FLYING MINISTER — Rev. Carl Major, an Anglican minister at St. Mary's Harbor, Nfld., wanted to learn to fly so he could better serve the more than 25 isolated communities in his 250-mile-long parish along the Labrador coast. He took lessons at Toronto's Island Airport and passed his tests in ten days. He is shown here in the cockpit of his training plane. (CP Photo).

Labrador Anglican Minister Learns to Fly in Two Weeks

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Carl Major, 34-year-old Anglican minister from Labrador, walked into the office of Central Airways here and told the manager he had just two weeks to learn to fly.

After 10 days — 12 hours — of training he was told he had made the grade.

"Nobody else has ever passed this quickly here," said Bob Wong, the manager, at the airport on the island in Toronto harbor where Rev. Major took his instruction.

The reason for his haste was that he wanted to get his pilot's licence as quickly as possible, then join more time to short-around for an aircraft with which to travel about his parish stretching 250 miles along the Labrador coast on both sides of his Mary's Harbor base.

BROAD PARISH

The broad area he serves and the inadequate transportation facilities were what prompted him to decide to become a pilot.
He summer he used to travel by boat and during the last winter used a dogsled with seven huskies.

It was a slow method of getting about for a man who had grown up near Harmon Field,
Nfld., U.S. air base at Stephenville,
Nfld.

He let church officials in St.
Mary's, Nfld., know his feelings and they gave him permission to investigate costs of buying a plane.

"I had always been interested in flying," Mr. Major said, "and when I checked into it, it seemed that the best way to reach the areas was to use a light, cheaply operated plane with pontoons in summer and skis in winter.

There were many flying schools closer to home but their 1,300-mile trip to Toronto seemed worthwhile because of the reputation of the Toronto school.

The central charge in Mr.
Major's third assignment. He had a parish at Fortune Bay,
Nfld., just after ordination in 1958 and next served in Jails and Reformatorials in St. John's as institutional chaplain.

ONTARIO WASTING

The minister was rapped for lack of direction in housing and giving him more time to shortcuts in having four public relations officers in the department.

"They would need a dozen PR officers to cancel out the impression the minister makes," snapped CCF Leader Donald MacDonald.

ASKS DALEY RESIGN

Mr. MacDonald called for the resignation of Labor Minister
Daley during debate of the Toronto area Hogg's Hollow sewer tunnel tragedy.

A coroner's jury ruled Saturday that failure to follow regulations governing work under compressed air was one of the reasons for the death of five immigrant workers March 17.

Final responsibility for enforcing the "inadequate" regulations rested with the labor department, said Mr. MacDonald.

"There is no alternative but for the minister to resign a department whose responsibility he has so lived up to."

Kenneth Bryden (CCF—Toronto Dovercourt) said five of the jury recommendations of the coroner's jury were aimed at the labor department. A select committee of the legislature should be set up, he said, to investigate the department.

BUDGET BREAKDOWN — Personal income tax will yield the federal government about 20 cents of every revenue dollar for the 1960-61 fiscal year, about the same proportion as last year.

The stand-pat budget presented to Parliament Thursday by Finance Minister Fleming showed personal income tax would account for an estimated $1,750,000,000 and corporate taxes would bring in $1,340,000,000.

Graph gives breakdown of expenditure and revenue dollar for major items. The expenditure portion is based on estimates tabled in the Commons early in February. (CP Newsmap.)

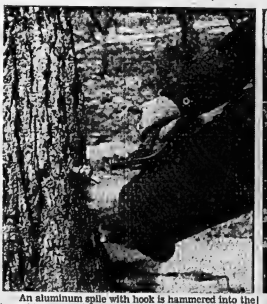
Annual Ritual in the Woods

CANADA



These children are repeating a ritual that was popular long before the white man landed on the banks of the St. Lawrence. The Indians taught the first settlers how to make maple sugar and syrup. Each spring gay "sugar bush parties" are held in Eastern Canada.

The sugar bush party invites the cooperation of visitors, and the younger generation assists in gathering the sap in sanitary polythene or stainless steel buckets. A good tree will produce up to 40 gallons of sap during the short sugar season.

Here during an excursion to the bush with her class, a teacher explains that sap contains 2% sugar and that it takes between 35 and 40 gallons of sap to make one gallon of Maple Syrup. The sap taken does not harm the tree, because less than one tenth of the supply is gathered, and can easily be spared. The sap does not run steadily, but in spurts which last from three to four days to as many weeks depending upon the season. The Eastern Townships of Quebec produce the bulk of Canada's Maple products, with Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario contributing to the more than two million gallons of syrup marketed annually.

African Police Plan To Continue Beating 'Incites'

Will Not Rest Until Intimidation Stopped

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—South Africa's police are determined to suppress their campaign to stamp out what they call Negro "incidents and intimidators" whom the Nationalist government blames for continuing bloody racial strife.

This was declared by the assistant commissioner of national police, Brig. J. J. Loots, at the administrative capital of Pretoria in a statement to the Johannesburg morning English-language paper, the Rand Daily Mail.

His echoed the arguments of his chief, Minister Minister Francois Erasmus, who has alleged in Parliament that Negro agitators are waging an "unprecedented reign of terror against their own upholding people" to keep them from returning to work and otherwise fight the government's segregation policies.

BROUGHT ON CLASHES

Police made against these alleged intimidators brought on Tuesday's clashes in Vanderbijlpark, a Negro settlement near Capetown.

Elis said: "Intimidation and incitement are serious offences against the safe observance of regulations. Police will act swiftly against the culprits wherever they are found. We warn these people we will not rest until we have rooted them all out."

Another statement of the Nationalist government's determination to stick by its apartheid policy came from the minister of Bantu administration and development, H.D. de Wet Nel, in a speech Tuesday night. He declared "South Africa's present racial policy is the right one, and it will continue to be followed by the government."

(The Nationalists received support from a leading British industrialist, Reuters news agency reported Tuesday night. It quoted Viscount Boyd-Orr, chairman of the United Kingdom cotton board, as saying after a personal campaign in Britain against South Africa grain "is objectable from any every point of view."

(Britain was South Africa's best customer in 1959, with 30 per cent of Britain's fish-bait market. And, Reed Lord Archdale, an leader in his right senses would provoke one of his best customers.)

SEEK SOLUTION

Political, church and some business leaders are putting pressure on the Nationalists to negotiate and seek a solution to the racial crisis through negotiations with responsible Negro leaders, but government officials show no sign of heeding the pleas.

Instead, they have pressed for a police crackdown on the Negro work boycott and have hailed the Senate approval of legislation giving the government power to ban the two leading Negro political organizations — the Pan-Africanist Congress and the more-moderate African National Congress. The ban bill, approved earlier by the House of Assembly, passed the Senate Tuesday night.

Calls for a softening of the government's tough racial policy came Tuesday night from Sir E. Mitchell, leader of the opposition United party in the Natal provincial the presidents of the Port Elizabeth and Pretoria Chambers of Commerce and 14 agriculture chambers in Cape Province.

Mitchell declared Negroes should be allowed to own property, elect their own representatives to Parliament and no longer have to carry identity passes.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Temperatures this morning ranged from near zero and clear skies in Northern Ontario to the mid- and a few snowflurries in Southern Ontario. Temperatures moving rapidly southeastward from Northern Manitoba to areas Central Ontario Thursday. It will bring increasing cloudiness in Southern Ontario today with occasional snowflurries tonight and Thursday. A few snowflurries will persist in Southern Ontario this morning but skies will clear this afternoon as a high-pressure area crosses the region. Partly cloudy conditions with slightly warmer temperatures are forecast for Southern Ontario tonight and Thursday.

DURBAN, South Africa (Reuters)—A strong show of heavily armed police, supported by civilian reserve units and armored vehicles, took place in Negro hostel near here at dawn today.

Police said the hostel, adjoining the Lamontville African township, about 10 miles from here, had been in the hands of "agitators and intimidators" since Monday night, when white officials left.

More than 300 arrests were made in the swoop on the hostel.

The buildings, enclosed by a mile-long fence, were surrounded before dawn and those inside were told that a Negro hostel near here at dawn today.

The Negroes surrendered without a fight. Police said they confiscated thousands of clubs, axes, picks and other weapons inside the hostel.

All-Male Jury Acquits Accused Of Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP) — An all-male jury of 12 men acquitted Percy Gray Fournier of manslaughter in the stabbing death of Stanley Coulson, said to have been his wife's lover. He was originally charged with murder.

The jury as told the stabbing occurred after the 31-year-old postal clerk from Quebec returned home to find his wife packing to go and Mr. Coulson. She said she was taking her two-year-old daughter.

Defence counsel David C. Humphrey argued that Fournier, who was well respected on his family, believed he was acting in self defence.

Coulson, 36, formally of Worthing, England, died beside his wife in bed, outside the family home. He had 12 wounds in his body from a 10-inch kitchen knife.

Fournier and his attractive wife, Lorraine, 27, a former resident of Coulson Lake, Que., broke into tears as they heard the verdict. Fournier had been in custody since the stabbing Jan. 2.

Fournier, a slightly-built man, testified in his own defence, saying he swung at Coulson with his fist: "I said I was going to get you. It might as well be now."

He said Coulson thought he was going for a gun when he left the room.

An alleged statement to police, filed as evidence, quoted Fournier as saying: "I knew he went blank, I went after him with a knife and got him."

Testimony was that Mrs. Fournier had gone to Coulson Lake, who once roomed with the Fournliers, when her husband was working in the provincial election Quebec. It was also testified that Mrs. Fournier went to work in line with Coulson for five days in an apartment.

15,000 JOBLESS NEED HELP SAYS WINDSOR GROUP

Like Elliot Lake on Smaller Scale Claim

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario has a do-it-now project to maintain employment in off-season months so "do it now," the opposition demanded Tuesday night during debate of the $53,000,000 estimates of the department of public works.

Three Liberal members, all from the Windsor area, said the department should construct more government buildings in the border city, which has some 15,000 unemployed.

"It's an emergency situation," said Maurice Belanger (L—Windsor Sandwich). "It's like Elliot Lake on a smaller scale."

Bernard Newman (L—Windsor Walkerville) said the public works department should get started on a teacher's college and a tourist information centre, as already promised to the city. This would alleviate some of the unemployment, which affects about 10,000 people.

REASONS SPEAKS

Arthur Reaume (L — Essex North) charged that last June prior to the provincial election Public Works Minister Connell announced the construction of a government building in Windsor.

"You can take it out on me, but don't take it out on the rest of the city for electing three Liberals," he said.

Premier Frost said the public works department has in its estimates plans for a bridge in Windsor — a new institute of technology, a

West German Scientist Comment Chance of Space Travel Is Remote

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A German who was prominent in Nazi rocket experiments declared today that the possibility of space travel by rocketing into outer space is "practically zero."

Part of the criticism is directed at Wernher von Braun, a former countryman who built rockets for the Germans during the latter years of the United States.

Dr. Rudolf Kuehn, a Munich physicist, commented on Wernher von Braun in connection with manned space flights.

Kuehn said rockets still are far too unsafe for manned space flights, basing his views to a large extent on the opinions of fellow scientists who have worked on rocket projects in Russia and the U.S.

Among the scientists are Dr. Wolf Trommsdorf, who spent six years on Soviet projects, and Robert Lusser, who worked 10 years on U.S. government projects.

"Our criticism," Kuehn said in an interview, "is directed not just against von Braun, but at all other scientists—including some on the Russian side—who take irresponsible statements."

Kuehn and his colleagues argue that rockets may always remain far too unsafe to permit putting human beings in them.

Lusser put his criticism into a report published by the Society for Aeronautical Sciences. He said in part:

"For an unmanned space and moon rocket for scientific purposes a reliability of 50 per cent might be quite sufficient . . . in the case of manned space craft, however, a reliability of 50 per cent, implying the loss of half of all that crews, would be quite unbearable on ethical grounds.

"But the possibility of return of the crews would be 1,000,000 times less. A trip to the moon or to Mars would normally end with the loss of the space craft and the death of the crew."

40,000 Acres Saskatchewan Farmlands Said Under Water

By The Canadian Press

A flood threat eased in Southern Ontario and Western Quebec on Tuesday but heavy rain caused minor flooding in parts of the Maritimes and 40,000 acres of Saskatchewan farmland were estimated to be under water.

Cold weather cut down flooding in Southern Ontario and in the Montreal area.

Many low-lying areas were hit by water near Brantford as the flood crest on the Grand River passed through and communities downstream prepared to receive the crest today.

Tractors and other heavy equipment were rushed to the Montreal suburb of Riviere des Prairies as the river drainage channels and let waters up to three feet deep run off.

In St. George's, Que., 50 miles southeast of Quebec City, the Chaudiere River was reported to have overflowed its banks and flooded 20 homes in the southwestern part of the province were reported two feet above normal levels.

Spring thaws on the prairies turned loose runoff waters but only the southeast section of Saskatchewan reported flooding. Near Weyburn, 80 miles

CHICAGO (AP) — The turbulent Mississippi and Missouri rivers continued their relentless pounding against soggy and weakened levees in the midwest Tuesday and States flood belt today, threatening new overflows.

Swollen rivers and streams caused trouble along new fronts in New England and New York state—but the situation did not appear serious. However, the most serious flood in 20 years was forecast along the Connecticut River in New England.

The major flood fighting was along the Mississippi and Missouri in Illinois and Missouri.

The most immediate critical area today was along the 50-mile stretch of the Mississippi from Niota, Ill., across from Fort Madison, Iowa, to Quincy, Ill.

Sluiceway gates closed and civil defence workers in the fight to hold the levees in Niota. They piled thousands of sandbags atop the levee south of the small community.

DRIVEN FROM HOMES

Thousands of acres have been flooded and hundreds of families evacuated from their homes in Illinois and Missouri in the last week.

In the eastern flood zones, hundreds of persons were evacuated in scattered parts of New York state and New England.

Despite Religious Issue Sen. Kennedy Wins Primary

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Senator John F. Kennedy has bundled one other high barrier in his drive for the Democratic presidential nomination by winning the Wisconsin primary election in a head-on collision with one of his principal rivals.

Immediately, the Massachusetts senator said the election proved his "out-polling power with non-Catholics, farmers, and the labor unions.

Kennedy defeated Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota in six of Wisconsin's 10 congressional districts and all 30 counties for the total popular vote.

Vice-President Richard Nixon, running unopposed in the Republican primary, trailed both Kennedy and Humphrey in the popular vote.

With 3,120 of the state's 2,949 polls reported, the totals stood: Kennedy 407,217; Humphrey 327,-830; Nixon 322,857. This gave Kennedy 53.4 per cent of the vote cast in the Democratic primary.

Even before the final count was in, the vote broke the previous record, set in 1952, of 1,018,149.

Coming on the heels of his spectacular sweep in New Hampshire last month, this was Kennedy's second straight victory in an important presidential primary.

But because of the varying rules of these preliminary contests, his opponents—as well as Nixon, the Republicans' already-entrenched candidate — have not yet conceded defeat in the race for the presidential nomination in the future political manoeuvrings.

Humphrey said the election caused him no pain.

"I suppose numerically I'm the defeated candidate," he said, "but I'm defeated I certainly don't hurt. In light of the predictions made, we have every reason to believe we did well."

The vote for Nixon also was open to interpretation. He had no opposition to stir his own party vote. Democrats by did not campaign in Wisconsin.

Kennedy minimized the part that his religion—he is a Roman Catholic—on his victory. He said: "I believe the people had pretty much made up their minds before the religious issue came up."

The size of the "cross over" ballots, which Wisconsin registered Republican voters may vote for Democratic candidates and vice versa—will never be known. Wisconsin is one of the few states where party choices are not confined to separate polls.

In Sheboygan, where Catholic voters constitute 22 per cent of the total, Kennedy had 55.3 per cent of the vote. He took 44.3 per cent in Madison, which has 22-per-cent Catholics, and 48.3 per cent in the Lacrosse area where the Catholic vote is 23 per cent.

ECONOMIC WOES OF MARITIMES AIRED IN HOUSE

Claim Civil Servants Get Only 'Half Loaf'

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of the more durable issues on Parliament Hill—economic troubles of the Atlantic provinces and the government's treatment of federal civil servants—received a good warming over in the Commons Tuesday.

Both of the many-faceted subjects were dealt with by a number of speakers as debate on Finance Minister Fleming's budget ground through its second day. The debate has six more days to run.

Two New Brunswick members, Herve J. Michaud (L—Kent) and J. Chester MacNaughton (PC—York-Sunbury), plumped for support of the proposed Chignecto canal and Northumberland Strait causeway, suggesting that these projects would inject new life into the Maritimes economy.

MacNaughton also suggested that the government create a ministry of Atlantic affairs, along the lines of the ministry of northern affairs. .

TENSED EMERGENCY

Mr. Michaud said Canadians must realize that the state of the Maritimes economy represents a national emergency. Wealthier sections must take responsibility for helping solve the problems of less-wealthy areas. If that meant higher tax burdens, so Canadians should complain.

The government's decision to grant salary increases totalling $15,000,000 to 30,000 civil servants earned it a "half-loaf" rating during the debate.

Gordon Badanai (L—Port William) said that after the "brush-

Suggest Germany Keep Defences In NATO Lands

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence chiefs of the North Atlantic alliance are looking for space to develop restrict itself to the NATO area and looking for space to build logistic facilities, Defence Minister Pearkes said Tuesday.

Pearkes told the commons on talks the ministers had in Paris last week. He said Mr. Mr. Pearkes said the question of military support facilities for West Germany was raised by the chief of Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme allied commander in Europe.

matter would be examined by NATO authorities in full co-operation with West Germany.

Mr. Pearkes said the defence ministers had better co-operation of production facilities and standardization of equipment in the NATO armaments committee. It was hoped progress would be made in standardization of ammunition.

"The item is of special interest to Canada," Mr. Pearkes said, "I expect that several of our country's projects will be based upon and of course Canada would benefit if it got some of the work. We are generally acceptable for use within the alliance."

From Refugee Camp to Luxury's Lap Fails to Excite Janitor's Daughter

HAMILTON (CP) — The immigrant janitor's daughter—who is going to marry the millionaire's son doesn't see anything to get excited about.

Latvian - born Inolde Silkovskis is in love, she's going to be married and that's really all there is to know.

But it's a long way from a post-war refugee camp in Germany to admission into the aristocracy of United States wealth.

Inolde, blonde and 26, takes Harvard Law School Wisconsin graduates Hayes C. Lamont, 26, son of Hayes Lamont Jr. of New York and grandson of the Thomas W. Lamont who was a top executive in the J. P. Morgan financial empire.

Her 59-year-old father a janitor brought her to Canada in 1953 after wartime and post-war tribulations in assorted countries. Janitor is an old folks' home here.

Miss Silkovskis shrugs off the bridging of that gap between the families.

"My fiance does not pay much attention to money or society," he is an interesting person."

Gen. De Gaulle Shatters Image Of Icy Patrician

Le Grand Charles Gay, Leaving Britons Gasping

LONDON (AP) — Charles de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan met today and ranged over various world issues expected to arise at next month's Big Four summit conference.

Officials said de Gaulle and Macmillan arranged to exchange views on their recent pre-summit meetings.

Only last weekend de Gaulle met with Premier Khrushchev in Paris and conducted a point-by-point survey of the causes of East-West tension.Macmillan returned last week from a round of talks with President Eisenhower.

$56,800 Worth Paintings Taken At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Art thieves stashed $56,800 worth of paintings from their frames at the Hamilton Art Gallery Tuesday night.

Eleven paintings by Canadian and foreign artists were stolen. Another was slashed down the middle and left in the gallery.

Two of the paintings were valued at $12,000 each. One was worth $10,000, another valued at value from $800 to $5,000.

Police said the thieves broke through a bottom panel in a rear door of the gallery building. A burglar alarm didn't sound.

The alarm, gallery officials said, would only have worried if the door had been forced open. Police said the paintings, eight oils on canvas, three oils on wood and one pastel, were slashed from their frames by a razor blade.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

LT.-COL. H. E. PENSE WILL BE SPEAKER AT LEGION DINNER

The members of the Canadian Legion are preparing for their annual Military Night dinner on Saturday night, to be held at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street. This is an evening that is eagerly looked forward to, especially by the members of the Legion. Although the ranks of the First World War veterans are thinning at a rapid rate, there are still a morning river current to turn out for this night to renew old acquaintances and hold a hail-fest of days gone by.

Lieut.-Col. H. E. Pense, DSO, and former commander of the famous 21st Battalion will be the speaker for the evening, while Leroy Madden, a member of that Battalion, will be the chairman of the evening. The tickets are now available and can be secured from any member of the Legion. Come early and avoid the rush. There will be a social evening following the address and program.

PROPER CLOTHING SUBJECT OF TALK

Members of the Wallbridge 4-H "Sandsiders" held their regular meeting meeting Monday evening with nine members present.

Topic for the evening was proper clothing, care of the body and good nutrition. Members are to keep a food selection score sheet each day for the coming month. The next meeting is being held at the Wallbridge Junior School on April 5th.

INVITATIONS MAILED

LONDON (AP)—Invitations to Princess Margaret's wedding on May 8 in Westminster Abbey go in the mail today—nearly 2,000 of them. A handful are certain they will be invited, but most of the guests just have to sweat it out.

Sea Cadet Thrown in River, Police Quiz Three Youths

Assaulted by three youths as he was on his way home from attending a Sea Cadet parade on Bleecker St., Clifford Rouse, 15, of Mountain View, had a narrow escape from drowning last night when he was thrown into the Moira River immediately south of the Lower Bridge.

The dazed youth was saved from being swept downstream in the fast flowing river current when he was washed against an earthen ramp left following a river-clean up program last autumn and managed to make his way to the safety of the river bank.

There the drenched youth was spotted by two Prince Edward County young men driving past in their car. They took the youth to the nearby Checker Taxicab station.

Police were notified and this morning three local youths were being questioned at the police station.

The incident was said to have taken place near the rear of the Tyrconn Star office at the corner of Bridge and Coleman St., where the youth was jumped by the three assailants.

"It's lucky the earthen ramp was still in the river, or else the youth might have been swept down the river and under the bridge," stated Police Inspector J. B. McLaughlin.

The water is close to four feet deep just below the Lower Bridge and swelled by the spring runoff, the current is sweeping along in a torrent.

Swerves Vehicle To Avoid Hitting Man on Road

Roy Rickard, 16, of 225 Foster Ave., escaped injury Tuesday evening when the car which he was driving left the highway and top on West Dundas St. after he swerved his vehicle to avoid striking a man on the road.

Damage to the 1950 model car was estimated at $1,200 as it went into the ditch and rolled onto its top near the Belleville College playing field.

Police said the Rickard youth was westbound at the time of the accident.

The youth told police that he was forced to swerve the car to avoid striking the man who was standing on the roadway.

Coin Changing Machine Taken From Automat

A coin changing machine at the automatic coin wash on East Moira Street was ripped from its fastenings some time last night and was found this morning on the end concession of Thurlow township minus its money contents. The value of the wrecked coin machine was said to be about $200.

The automatic coin wash concession is open 24 hours per day and is completely unattended. The change-making machine, which automatically gives out dimes and nickels for a 25-cent piece, was apparently ripped out when no other customers were around.

Hear Talk On Religion In Schools

"Should Religion Be Taught in Our Public Schools" was the subject of a thought-provoking talk delivered to Initiation from the Quinte district last Sunday. The speaker was Mrs. Doris E. Hall of Toronto, president and founder of the Ethical Education Association, and a recent panelist on the CBC TV production "Fighting Words".

"Religious education of children is a necessary and beneficial affair," she said, "better done at home and at church where there are people qualified and interested in instructing the child, than in our public schools. The present system of half an hour per week per class of religious instruction in the classroom should be deleted from the timetable.

Religion in the school heresy," Mrs. Hall declared, "is sectarian; and reflects the religious views of the majority, who are able to use the public resources of the state to instill their own religious views, sometimes to the unavoidable becomes colored by the religious beliefs of the teacher.

Parents should not be willing to accept people of another faith to teach religion in case they might influence their own children, their efforts at home, nor should parents be forced to pay money in the form of support of what, to them, is religious error.

As the Hon. George Brown, father of Confederation, said, in 1858: "It is utterly impossible for a state to teach religious truth as the basis of morals, and for the truth . . . . . between man and his God, and the whole duty of the State is to secure everyone in the peaceful observance of it. Anything else leads to persecution and injustice."

EXCERPTS READ

Several excerpts from the "Teachers Guides" to religious education were read out by Mrs. Dodds, which showed clearly that the thoughts put to the children in the name of religion were grossly unscientific false, distorted, frightening and offensive, rendering religiously biased, and could readily promote discord and intolerance among children.

If religion is to be taught in the schools at all, then let all religions be taught, objectively, and let our children develop a truly broad and fundamental understanding of the universal search for the spirit of being.

WISHFUL THINKING CLAIM

Many insist that the failure to teach religion in the public schools will contribute to decline in religious and moral thinking, for it disregards the fact that religion in the public schools was only introduced in 1944, and, if anything, delinquency is a greater problem now than before. Research has shown that a child's conduct is governed by his native intelligence, social and economic background, his associates, and the co-operative sympathetic attitude of his parents and teachers.

Mrs. Dodds reviewed the aims of the Ethical Education Association, which included the promotion of religious and racial understanding and support of research into the most effective ways of teaching moral and ethical values, in public schools. She offered to assist adults interested in establishing a local branch group of the Association.

CUT AID BUDGET

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee formally carved $136,500,000 of economic aid out of President Eisenhower's $1,175,000,000 foreign aid program Tuesday—a comparatively light cut.

JOHN RAYMOND MIKEL
Toronto—Frankford

John Raymond Mikel, a former resident of Frankford and Murray Township, died suddenly at his home, 30 Hillcrest Road, Toronto, on Tuesday afternoon. He was born in Murray township 87 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hope Mikel. He lived in Frankford for the past ten years. He formerly lived in Murray township and then in Frankford, from where he moved to Toronto.

He was educated in his native township and was engaged in office worker with the Perfect Circle Piston Ring Company for some years.

He was an adherent of the United Church and is survived by three brothers, Thomas Mikel of Concession, Forest Mikel of Hamilton, Lorne Mikel of Murray township, and two sisters, Mrs. Harry Bowen of Belleville, Fred Meyers of Sidney township. No service.

Resting at the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

BENJAMIN E. HAGERMAN

STIRLING — The funeral of Benjamin Elijah Hagerman of Harold R.R. 1, was held at the Duffin Funeral Home on Saturday afternoon, with his pastor, Rev. Wm. Hicks, officiating.

The bearers were Messrs. Mowat Sine, John B. Hagerman, Ralph Hagerman, Eldridge Hagerman, Stanley Thompson and Thomas Clemens.

The entombment was in Stirling Cemetery vault.

JOHN ARTHUR WOOD

The funeral of John Arthur Wood, held from his late residence to Beulah United Church on Sunday afternoon, was largely attended.

The service was conducted by Rev. Harold Stobbart, who paid tribute to Mr. Wood's faithful service in the church and community, and also spoke words of comfort to the family of the bereaved. Mr. Stobbart spoke from the Text II Timothy 4:6-8.

Rev. John Garrett played the family of friend of Marmora assisted in the service and sang three hymns. Mr. Wood's strong Christian witness.

During the service Mr. Frank Palmer of Bannockburn sang, "Beyond The Sunset" and the choir used were "Abide With Me" and "Unto The Hills".

Interment was made at White Lake Cemetery. Bearers were Earl Mitchell, Norman Armstrong, Stanley Prest, Goldie McTurvy, John Stephens, Samuel Wright.

In the passing of John Arthur Wood Marmora has lost a fine citizen. He was a loyal friend and a good neighbor.

He was the son of John George Wood and Margaret Vance, and all his life was spent on the farm, established by his grandfather and which is now owned by his son Ernest. He was a great lover of horses and his Oakwood farm has often been the scene of happy family and community gatherings.

Possessing strong common sense and good judgment, he gave his services to be much sought after by the community in which he lived and for a number of years repeatedly filled many offices of trust. For a number of years he was S. S. Supt. of Beulah United, served on the Board of Management, Cemetery Committee and at death was honorary elder.

He also served as secretary of Ivanhoe Public Library, secretary-treasurer of Ivanhoe Cheese and Butter Co.

Mr. Wood possessed a remarkable memory, a genial disposition and a keen sense of humor, and will therefore be missed from his place among them.

He bore his long illness with patient fortitude. Though he has gone from our midst, the influence of his exemplary life will be long felt. The sympathy of this community is extended to his sorrowing family.

Half of 'Y' Pledge Raised

The Belleville YMCA is currently carrying out the second half of their "Buildings For Brotherhood" campaign, a project undertaken by the World Service committee. Last year $1,300 was raised towards a pledge of $3,800 by the local "Y" over a two-year period. The target for this year is another $1,900.

The "Buildings For Brotherhood" project is being carried on by the YMCA's in Canada and the United States and is a program of assistance to people in underdeveloped and underprivileged countries to build YMCA building, schools, etc., once the citizens of the foreign community concerned have paid for the land to be used and raised anywhere from 30 to 70 per cent of the money needed to complete their project.

It is through this assistance that many communities in foreign lands are being provided with much needed social and educational facilities they have ever had.

WCB Chairman Is Absolved Of Conflict

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's labor committee today absolved Eugene Spartow, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation board, of an alleged conflict of interest in the board's dealings with Business and Economics Services Limited.

The committee, chairman of the 33-man committee opposed the report, condemned the Belleville Province (PC—Toronto York West), committee chairman.

Mr. Spartow and MacDonald said the evidence showed that no improvements had been made financially from the business deal between the board and company. He was there in no way a conflict of interest.

However, there was a definite appearance of a conflict of interest between the two concerns, he said.

Mr. MacDonald was referring to the evidence of Spartow in May, 1957, to the widow of Herbert A. Daly, founder of Business and Economic Services. At the time of the marriage the firm was in financial difficulty. The board in organizing and training staff.

Mr. MacDonald said he could not approve of the report because there was no evidence of a conflict of interest between a board member and the company. When this became apparent, he is to have been broken its contract with the firm "post haste."

Mr. MacDonald agreed that the men serving on the board were "men of integrity", as to their work and actions" in the House in consideration of labors.

The inquiry arose when Mr. MacDonald read a Toronto newspaper column by Pierre Berton in the House. The column charged an alleged conflict of interest in the board's business dealings.

The committee's report will be submitted to the legislature today.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Investors showed confidence in the stock market this morning although trading was light. Industrials shot ahead by more than two points on leaders.

The 11 a.m. volume was 380,000 compared to the 336,000 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

U.S. Ford helped to boost industrials with a gain of 3½ at 70½. Algoma Steel was stronger up ⅛ at 35½, with Aluminium Ltd., Argus Corporation and Bank of Montreal all up ¼ at 30¾, 28¾ and 50½.

Noranda led mining stocks higher, up ½ at 41, with Hudson Bay and Mining Corporation of Canada both up ¼ at 45¾ and 11¼. Dome was off ⅛ at 30½. Steep Rock Iron Mines was the only senior uranium affected, down 15 cents at 12.25.

Western Canada Industrials took the market down.

Pound sterling $2.80 5-16, up ½.

Argue Requests Canada Grant Africans Asylum

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was asked Tuesday to consider granting political asylum to Africans who are fugitives from South Africa.

External Affairs Minister Green was non-committal in reply to Hazen Argue, CCF House leader. Mr. Argue also asked in the Commons whether Canada would contribute medical supplies to a native hospital in South Africa where wounded Negroes were being treated and where medical supplies were short.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said no report had been received on such a situation.

Boy Go-Cart Driver's Arrest Causes Flurry

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Charles Hilscot of suburban Leaside today demanded that police explain the arrest of a nine-year-old boy who his parents said has been charged with driving a home-driven go-cart in a school yard without a licence.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Peter Oliver, was arrested on Sunday and taken to the police station.

Police admitted that the boy and his go-cart were taken to the station but they denied that he had been any thought of laying charges either against him or his parents.

Mrs. Oliver said that after his arrest, a police constable brought him home and said:

"We're charging your boy for driving without a licence."

Mrs. Oliver said when she replied that her boy is "not even old enough to have a licence," the constable told her:

"You are being charged for allowing him on the street. You know these things are illegal."

WANTS QUASHED

Mayor Hiscott, who called the affair "ridiculous", said he wants all the charges quashed.

He added:

"I have grave doubts about the right of the police to whisk this little boy away . . . to pick him up without notifying his parents. Every citizen has a right to expect human decency from public servants."

He said if the police and traffic authorities had placed their objections to go-carts before Leaside (council) and other safety councils, this incident could have been avoided."

District Chief Andrew Hamilton said the go-cart was taken to the station "because the constable was unable to do a thing else thoroughly to the sergeant quickly and it was decided the sergeant should have a look at it."

Trade Talks Move to Moscow

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations on a Canada-Russia trade agreement have moved to Moscow from Ottawa. Trade Minister Churchill informed the Commons Tuesday.

He said in a reply to Opposition Leader Pearson that he still hopes an agreement to renew the ones which existed in February, 1956, will be signed soon. A Canadian delegation was in Moscow continuing the negotiations.

Trenton Group Given Charter By Wm. Kirk

TRENTON/— At Wednesday night's meeting of the Trenton and District Association for Retarded Children, William R. Kirk, executive director for the association at provincial level, presented the charter for the Trenton group to the president, Mrs. E. Bonner.

Mr. Kirk complimented the local association for its accomplishments since the forming of the group in November. He said that this was a moment of significance in the life of the Trenton association, and that the charter confirmed the necessity of all members of the group working together towards the aims and objects of the Ontario association.

The speaker said there were 45 local associations in Ontario. The Ontario Association for Retarded Children was started 13 years ago. Now it has become a potent force for the welfare of the handicapped child and has gained the respect of other associations in the province.

Mr. Kirk said the Ontario association was pressing the provincial government for greater grants and increased support. A brief before the government at this time deals with a need for increased hospital-school accommodation for retarded children. The association feels that where possible, the child should be kept in the warmth and security of his own home, but in special cases, this is impossible.

Mr. Kirk spoke of his own work at the Ontario headquarters of the association. He said that much of his time was given over to paper work in connection with local associations. Also, Mr. Kirk said, he must visit local groups at special times, and part of his time is spent in public relations work for the association.

The speaker asked members of the Trenton association to take the newly formed Campbellford association "under its wing". He said there was a great need for this work in the Quinte area.

He spoke about the educational conference in Kitchener on Saturday. John Wauters, teacher at the Trenton school for retarded children, Mrs. "Bobbie" Reid, Mrs. Margo Scott and Mrs. E. Campbell from Trenton, attended the conference with Mrs. L. Gibson from the Belleville group.

Guest speaker at the conference was Dr. Ignacy Goldberg, associate professor of education and assistant director of the special education program at Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York. Dr. Goldberg spoke on recent progress in the field of research into the education of retarded children.

Mrs. Kirk was introduced by program chairman Robt. Smith-Ayre and thanked by the president.

Nelson Salter reported that the local association would sponsor two more games nights at the Knights of Columbus hall before Easter.

Mrs. Reid announced that the school would be moved to the room at the North Trenton school on April 21. The children will commence lessons in their new classroom on April 25. She said there was a need for cupboards, shelves, tables and chairs for the new room.

Mrs. E. Campbell, assistant teacher at the Trenton school, had room rubber stepping bags, leather belts and cases for eyeglasses, made by the children in the school, for sale. Several members took advantage of the opportunity to buy these well-made, colorful articles.

Following the meeting lunch was served.

Legion Women Accept Six New Members

TRENTON — The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Trenton Legion Branch was held Monday night in the Legion Hall.

In the absence of the president, Ruth Clarke, first vice-president Ruth Carter was in charge of the meeting.

New members Elizabeth Dunfield, Eleanor Barker, Jean Poole, Agnes Harvey, Thelma Simmons and Marjorie Martin were received into membership by the vice-president, assisted by the sergeant-at-arms, Jean Gerry.

Application for membership were read by Ruth Carter.

Flowers were given by Jean Brown, Joan LeClair and Mary Poole.

Following the meeting members enjoyed a lunch prepared by Jean Smith and her committee of Jean Berry, Ida Green, Margerite Carr and Mrs. Neal.

Speaks to Group

TRENTON — Mrs. Britton Cooper of Toronto, president of the Anglican Church Women's Association at national level, Monday addressed about 150 persons from Belleville, Kingston and Trenton at a special meeting in Canterbury Hall.

Mrs. Oster told of her experiences in Japan last year where she attended the dedication and laying of the cornerstone of a new cathedral.

RCAF Women's Aux. Will Hold Tea May 14th

TRENTON — The RCAF Women's Auxiliary met in the Trenton school auditorium Monday night.

It was announced that the social welfare convener, Elaine Evans, had resigned and that the nominating committee was appealing for volunteers to undertake her work.

Gwen Bayliss read the Opportunity Shop report. Used clothing is needed.

Doris Pound read the Arts and Crafts report. Plans are being made final for the May 14 tea.

Chris Scott, tea convener, asked for donations of 30 cents in lieu of the members preparing sandwiches for the tea. Donations may be brought to the next meeting or contact Mrs. Scott at 10A Broadner Blvd.

BRING DONATIONS

Jean Sanford asked that donations for the Samarian's Cupboard at the hospital be brought to the next meeting.

Jean Causey, chairman of sports and means, reported that the cook book would be on sale by April 30. She asked for word - of - mouth advertising.

Elma Saunders reported that the games night was very successful. The next games night will be held April 19 at RCD Recreation Hall.

Etta Cuff reported that on March 17, 247 immunizations were given at the clinic at Broadner school, 140 being polio immunization shots. The next clinic will be held April 28.

Emily Beaton, nominating committee convener, announced that three new members had been appointed to the committee by the executive. The new convener will be Ruth Sarty and the other two members are Peggy Brown and Lorraine Proctor.

These additional members will be elected from the floor at the next meeting. W.A. members will conduct a door-to-door canvass in Middleton Park, April 26, to raise money for the Quinte Area Girl Guides' cookie and candy sale.

Following the meeting the members were instructed in square dancing by Fred Wiseman, director of the Trenton Recreation Commission.

The members enjoyed a lunch, convened by Carol Frederick and her committee.

Germans Are Blind

"The extent to which former Nazis have risen to positions of power and influence in West Germany is enough to chill the blood," declared The Toronto Telegram in a recent editorial.

The Telegram based its remarks on reports from Gordon Donaldson, "a veteran of British intelligence in postwar Germany," whom it sent to the Reich to present to its readers an accurate picture of events there.

It seems to us, though, that one of the most significant pronouncements of recent months required no intelligence experts to unearth. This was the suggestion, by a West Germany official, that Sudeten German refugees should be permitted to return to their former homes in Czechoslovakia.

We are aware that, on humanitarian grounds, a strong case might be made for this contention. But surely no person with any comprehension of practical politics would consider such a development possible. Even if, on this side of the Atlantic, the memory of Hitler's tirades against the Czechs and his claim that the Sudeten Germans should be included in the Fatherland has grown dim, do we really believe that the Czechoslovakians have forgotten?

The most important political fact in Europe, or at least in the eastern part of that continent, is that in many of the satellite lands the German is today still more hated and more feared than the Russian. The sports editor of this newspaper, George Carver, had this fact forcibly driven home when he covered the world hockey championships in Czechoslovakia a year ago. All too often it would seem that Western diplomats either overlook or deliberately disregard this fact. To argue that there is no real danger to these states from today's Germany does not alter the situation one iota. The Czechs and the Poles, in particular, fear Germany. The German who, under these circumstances, would suggest that the Sudeten Germans should be returned to their former homes is but sowing the seeds of discord.

This alone, altogether aside from "the re-emergence of Nazis vested with power and influence" to which the Telegram refers, is ample proof of the accuracy of that paper's conclusion that "West Germany is not only blind to the sensibilities of those who fought the Nazis but devoid of a deep sense of Nazi Germany's guilt."

World Health Week

In a world in which, whenever two or three gather together, they form an organization and request the nearest mayor to proclaim a "week," there is a startling moderation in the demands of the World Health Organization. It merely asks that we set aside one day to do it honor or, more correctly, to further recognition of its multiple problems.

There is added significance, we think, in the fact that the theme of World Health Day this year should have little direct interest for Canadians. "Malaria Eradication—A World Challenge" is the slogan we are asked to keep in mind on World Health Day, tomorrow, April 7. That, of all world health problems, this should be considered so important as to be the only one singled out in the one day devoted to promoting the aims of the WHO should impress Canadians with the fact that other lands may face many problems to which Canadians, fortunately, are strangers.

Malaria, writes Dr. M. G. Candau, director-general of WHO, "remains in 1960 a constant threat to more than a thousand million human beings." Where it is prevalent, it is held responsible for 10 to 15 per cent of infant mortality. Its range is extensive. Anti-malarial operations are at present proceeding in 92 countries and territories and there are still 56 countries where no effort has yet been made to stamp out this scourge. Even in those lands where malaria is practically unknown, it takes a toll, putting a "tax" on all those who use products from a malarious land, says WHO. So, if you drink coffee, eat bananas or like chocolates, the Anopheles mosquito is putting its bite on you, too.

Letter To The Editor

Supports Ald. Whalen On City Bus Problem

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have read with interest the letters to the editor about the bus business.

I have also read your own editorial "The Right Decision" in which you support the decision of City Council in getting into the bus business. You are entitled to your opinion, as is every one else, but the great advantage you have with your opinion is that you can express it in editorial form and no one else has the equal power to contradict. The force of your own editorial could be equalled by a mere "letter to the editor," so many people feel, and perhaps rightly so, that letters to the editor come from over-zealous crackpots.

The Ontario Intelligencer is very good to allow me, I would guess that, if you had a competitor, editorially written by that competitor would not be in agreement with yours. However, not having the good luck to be myself, I would be inclined to misinterpret even more the over-all presentation.

I have noticed that the last three letters to the editor and even a program over our local radio station have strongly criticized the sole opponent to the city going into the bus business right away. I thought Ald. Whalen had a good point in suggesting a one-year trial period without buses. Then we could always get into the bus business with new equipment and not be saddled with what is past.

I recall one letter to the editor not terribly long ago that condemned Ald. Whalen and said, "who is he it all going to end?" We might well think this when the tax bill is presented.

The people who are now criticizing Ald. Whalen must be talking to themselves, or to a very remote audience, as the travels I have heard nothing but support for the idea and as many have said, "Well, at least he has the courage to have an opinion of his own."

We have a council this year that is horribly in accord on everything — I don't think this is a healthy sign.

Thank you,
"Now I feel better."

Teacher Had No Authority

Chicago News

A Chicago teacher, Mrs. Marie Thomas, lost her job because she was unable to maintain discipline in her classrooms. Her trial before a school board committee may, however, have brought some unforeseen help to teachers.

Mrs. Thomas' story was one of frustration. She said she was not permitted to use a paddle, assign extra work, take away privileges or send pupils to her school, or give failing grades to her slow learners. She asserted further, that her superiors did not help her with her problems.

Experienced teachers tell us that the case of Mrs. Thomas is keeping order is an air of success. Actually, it is an illusion. It is possible to maintain such an air even where there is no discipline. It is possible to more authority than parents, but the result of them sometimes have to give the dear little one a whack to remind him who is the boss temporarily.

The school board members who heard Mrs. Thomas' case seemed astonished at her reticence to lay hands on the wayward girl in her custody with unruly pupils.

It sounds to us as if Mrs. Thomas' rules need to be remodified. There must be something that a very good teacher can do to protect herself and her job.

Thank Reds For Cashmere

Sherbrooke Record

Like the sweaters the girls are wearing these days, men's ties may soon be made the Russians if you find them eye-filling and pocket-emptying.

Cashmere wool is Russian-controlled since it comes from the Gobian Desert of Mongolia through Siberia.

And it takes a year's supply of wool from a goat on a special mountain goat to make one lady's sweater.

According to one of the world's leading manufacturers of the cashmere handlerwear, women of all ages are wearing more and more sweaters all the time.

It all adds up to a lot of East-West exchanges, of exactly the kind the world's leaders have been talking about, perhaps, but of the kind red-blooded males are bound to approve.

Our Affairs Are Relative To Time

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every new role in life requires a new sense of timing. And I feel sorrier for those persons who cannot easily make such adjustments. For "time" is not only relative to the Einstinian sense, it is relative to all the ordinary affairs of mankind.

I was thinking of this Sunday afternoon, when I was lazily sitting for a few hours. The children wanted to go out and play in the snow, so I dressed them — sweaters, leggings, overshoes, hooded jackets, scarves and mittens.

It took me nearly a half-hour to complete this arduous process — and in 10 minutes they were back in the house again, complaining of the cold. The whole process then had to be reversed.

Contrariwise, the day before I took them out sledding in the morning, and back in after lunch. I stood on the hill and watched their frolicking in the cold, while they tumbled in the snow. I practically had to lasso them to get them home again.

"Time" with children is very different from time without them. Unless we understand this, we are bound to make a lot of unnecessary mistakes.

I will either go crazy or drive the children crazy. That is the fact of the present; past and future mean nothing to them.

Parental responsibility, requires an exquisite sense of timing. At a single moment, the relative is torn by own needs and demands; as a married partner, he has to be careful not to be selfish, but as a parent, the husband may be an hour late getting home, and if he is, he grows cold; the wife may be an hour late creating for a party, and if she is, she grows red under the collar.

Time does not belong to us alone; we share it with those we love, those we hate, those we play with. It is an elastic concept: we must, as we grow older, be more aware of it if for someone else's sake. And it can also be a tyrant, if we fail to attune ourselves to it.

Each era of human activity has its own specific tempo. This tempo must be respected, if any harmony is to exist. We must play the "Minute Waltz" in 30 seconds and ride a horse in a minute — but most of us keep trying.

Need Truth About Drugs

Edmonton Journal

The "ethical" drug manufacturers claim that drugs prescribed by doctors by generic name are not so safe and pure as branded drugs. Surely it is a simple matter for the government either to verify or disprove this claim. If it is not the pharmacy faculties of Canadian universities should be busy testing both branded and unbranded drugs. If the Federal food and drug department is inadequate?

It is a legitimate function of government to prevent the public from being misled, deceived or even defrauded. Drug firms can with certainty that any exploitation of the sick is not taking place in drug prices. Under our free enterprise system, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are normally free to set any price they wish for any product. However, the glare of publicity is the best disinfectant against abuses. It is surely time for the government to tell the public what it has found out about drug prices and profits in Canada.

The PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In this part of the world, there is one motor-vehicle to every three point one people, taking only passenger vehicles, there is one car to every three point eight persons. In other words, we can now get into nearly every population into our cars, since most cars seat four or five persons more.

Very well. Then who the Sam Hill are all these thousands, tens of thousands, we see swarming and jamming cubic buses, street cars and subway trains every morning, noon and night?

I refer, of course, to the cities. Each city will have to figure out for itself the relation between its population and its motor cars. Each city will soon discover that the country is a nice place in which to live, insofar as the motor age is concerned. Maybe it is the villages of Canada that have the best motor-vehicle communities in this second half of the 20th century. Could be.

It is hardly likely that these threshing, straddling, squirming masses will be seen in the morning and evening, are the result of anyone can find a job near home. Surely no wives could be found to shuttle around in their car all day and condemn their poor husbands to the indignity of being squashed limp in the public transport.

The fact probably is that cities have very few motor cars in proportion to population. What we imagine we see clogging the traffic streets each morning and evening, therefore, is largely an illusion.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

FATIGUE TENSION OFTEN CAUSES ACHES, PAINS

Dear Dr. Molner: I believe this is common among working people. I would like to ask you about fatigue tension.

"I have a tightness or drawing in the top of my stomach, that seems to grow out toward my heart at the end of the day. Sometimes it is more severe than at others — and I am a tired man".

I'm not sure that this is more common among "working people" than it is among people who have to be active — and hence spend too much time worrying about themselves.

But let's just talk about hard workers. Such a condition has different terms meaning much the same thing: "fatigue tension", or "anxiety", or "nervous exhaustion", and so on.

A working woman, trying to hold a job and also keep house and help support a family, is up against no small task.

This requires extra effort — getting the washing done, or the whole house cleaned, or many other chores — when your entire system, including your nerves, would rather be resting using a weekend to toll rather than to rest or have some recreation.

Some people are good organizers and get the most out of a schedule very efficiently. Usually, however, such persistent efficiency is a driving force. The work gets ahead of us. Result: tension.

Tension can manifest itself variously. Gas headaches, tightness of muscles, stomach upset, oh, a lot of ways.

It can be benefited by poor nutrition or irregular attention to be careful to eat a balanced diet. Don't skip breakfast or lunch either. That decreases efficiency and piles more tension together come faster.

Worry — worry over one's health, or worry over the job, saps our strength. Most of these things we can do little about, if you can. A checkup by your doctor often puts your mind at ease. How depends just by assuring you that nothing is physically wrong, and you can stop burning up nervous energy in wondering whether perhaps something is amiss. A tense, aching neck and shoulders may relax when you reduce your burden of worry.

A doctor is singularly able to know people in many walks of life. Believe it or not, some of the people we think we envy also have their battles with fatigue and tension. It's human nature to think that we have the biggest problem. We all need encouragement and labor to cope with.

If you can take a vacation, get more rest, do things that are fun, that's fine. It's a way to relax tension. Most of us can't do that. But we may be able to change how, or get a little more sleep, or perhaps work like blazes for few days and then arbitrarily relax for an evening or a weekend.

Or — and this may be the hardest thing to do — sometimes we can sit down and talk to ourselves like a Dutch uncle. Tell ourselves that we can do only so much, and we'd better decide which things need to be done or left undone, and which are really essential. Do the essential things: ignore the non-essential and don't worry about it. That last I profess conscience nag you because you don't do them.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way that liver spots can be removed from one's face by electrolysis? Will it leave scars?

ROCK BOTTOM

Ground work is everything. Therefore it is the most useful and lasting. You can nearly always judge the character of a building from the foundation preparations. The skyscrapers must rest upon bed rock.

The set characteristics of the child are usually the ones found in the grown man or woman. How important then that we take ground in character building!

With the right start in your life ideals built upon solid ground, you can have an individual, with the determination and action that is sure to stamp your every worthy purpose with a fine nobility.

Standing upon firm footing, you can have the courage that goes to those who are sure. Solid ground inspires. No wobbling ever stood there for long. Every-body knows high where to look for the man who can be trusted from you — on solid ground. You respect those who stand by their principles, crystallized, mean you; but you gather together whole groups of ideas for which you stand sponsor and champion. Instinctively the world looks to the man or woman whose footing is clean and sound.

How important have to walk around a man and ask people questions about him when you can know by the things that hold him up. You can walk right up to him, call him by name and greet him immediately to business. You trust him. You look him in the eye. He is.

What a latitude for work and service there is for the one whose very attitude of mind and, therefore, of suggest rock bottom— solid ground!

Children Like 'Alice'

Brantford Expositor

From Vancouver, Mr. Henry C. Campbell, chief librarian of the Vancouver Public Library, says that way as representative of the United Nations Society of Canada to the United Nations Social and Cultural Organization Conference in Canada, has re-stated something he already knew and which we were almost sure of.

Children, he informs us, prefer Lewis Carroll's "Alice" to any of the other classics. Many of parents and publishers to the contrary, Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking-Glass".

If we might be permitted a slight amendment, we don't think children prefer Alice to all this matter; they are just discriminating. Much of the modern stuff that is called "Alice" and a number of old-timers, Aesop's Fables for that old. Lewis Carroll, whose real name was Rev. Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, died over 70 years ago, and the real Alice married and died.

This does not mean that "modern books aren't good, but that the old ones are. Reading to a local book store, the fare otherwise is Hyrnia's reader's Digest and, indeed, much more attractively done than what we children were handed when we were kids.

Still, the favorites, old or new, last, as Mr. Campbell is saying.

While we have known children who were terrified by "Alice," the Gryphon, the Mock Turtle, the Queen with her off-with-their-heads cry, most of our young friends (like our-selves when we were young, long ago) glory in the yarn. That is just the way reverend whimsical and mathematical author intended.

We have, incidentally, of a general who carried his Wonderland" with him all through two wars in place of some more religious or erudite work.

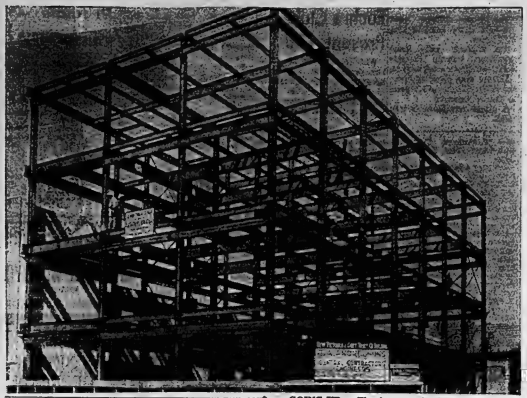
FATAL MALADY

In a certain community there was a church which was paralyzed by most of the population as being particularly godless. One of the wags of the community set the whole town in gaffawing when he declared that the only time the word "God" had ever been uttered in this church was one day when the janitor fell downstairs and broke his leg.



About the most useless thing in the world is a godless church. Fortunately they are very rare. RCAF Performs Variety of Jobs With 24 Aircraft

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF now has so many jobs to perform that it is flying 24 different types of aircraft.

In the next couple of years, it will get at least four new types and hopes to get a fifth — the American twin-engine, twin-seat F-101 Voodoo jet interceptor for Canadian air defence.

For its various roles—air defence, transport, Arctic supply, anti-submarine patrol, reconnaissance, search and rescue, and training—the RCAF has fewer than 5,000 aircraw. Total number of aircraft in the RCAF inventory is classified information but it is probably about 1,000.

The four new types of planes to go into service in the next two years are: the single - engine, single-seat supersonic CF-104 jet strike-reconnaissance plane for the air division in Europe; the four-engine CL-44 heavy transport; the twin-engine Albatross plane for search and rescue; and the four-engine turbo-prop Lockheed Hercules C-130B bulk cargo plane.

The RCAF has four subsonic jet planes: the twin-engine, twin-seat CF - 100 interceptor; the single-engine, single-place Sabre day fighter; the single - engine, twin-seat T-33 trainer; and the four-engine Comet jetliner.

Thirteen of the RCAF's 23 squadrons are equipped with the CF-100 and eight with the Sabre.

Jos. Gerald Lafferty Unfit To Stand Trial for Murder Of Cousin at Carrying Place

COBOURG — An Ontario Supreme Court jury found 36-year-old Joseph Gerald Lafferty of Carrying Place and Oshawa insane and unfit to stand trial for the slaying of his cousin, Thomas Fitzgerald (Jerry) Lafferty of Belleville last Dec. 30.

The decision had no bearing on Lafferty's guilt or innocence and did not take into consideration whether or not he was sane when he allegedly killed his cousin.

Mr. Justice James F. Connolly concurred in the jury's finding that Lafferty was unfit to stand trial for murder because he was unable to understand the nature of the evidence.

SEEMS BEWILDERED

Crown Attorney Harry R. Deyman called Edward Albert Mottershead, governor of the United Counties jail, who said he had discussed the murder charge with the accused, at his request, but that Lafferty never seemed sure of what was going on, or why he was in jail. He said Lafferty was bewildered and under the impression he was in custody for something that had not happened. He asked the governor: "I didn't hurt anyone, did I?"

Lafferty, said the governor, said he knew the deceased was not dead, because he saw him get up and go away. He wondered if the deceased would be at the trial.

DESPONDENT MAN

Mr. Mottershead said Lafferty had periods of deep despondence, and on one occasion had buried his meal against the bars of his cell, and had often refused to eat or talk. "He never seemed quite right," said the governor.

He said he thought Lafferty was sincere in his beliefs and bewilderment. He added that Lafferty often stood facing the wall, tearing newspapers into long shreds, and rolling the paper into a ball. At times, he became violent.

Mr. Mottershead said that on one occasion, a prisoner in the same cell as Lafferty slipped a note to a guard, which read "Get me out of here, he is going to kill me". Lafferty had grabbed the prisoner by the throat, thrown him across a table and threatened to strangle him with a towel. The jail governor took the prisoner from Lafferty's cell, whereupon the prisoner collapsed from fright "He was scared to death", said the governor. Later, Lafferty would not talk about the incident.

PSYCHIATRIST TESTIFIES

Dr. Theodore A. Sweet, a psychiatrist for the past 26 years, and now acting superintendent of the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, said he interviewed Lafferty twice, and while he thought the accused might not be legally insane following the first interview, he was convinced the man was insane following the second interview.

Dr. Sweet said he asked Lafferty how he felt about killing his cousin, to which he testified, Lafferty replied, "Much better", then added, "If I'd got my mother, I'd be 100 percent happy". Dr. Sweet said the accused was in worse mental condition now than he was at the time of the murder, and that his condition would get steadily worse.

Dr. Sweet said Lafferty suffered from a prosecution complex, and had built up a hatred for his mother based on imagined happenings.

The doctor referred to Lafferty as a paranoiac schizophrenic, living in a world of fantasy, trusting no one and believing the world was against him. "These people often turn against the ones they love most", said the doctor.

EXPERTS DIFFER

Another crown witness, Dr. Godfrey Kaczanowski, a practising psychiatrist, said:

"There was no evidence of mental illness, no mental disturbance, no hallucinations or illusions or impairment of memory.

He is normal mentally, has normal intelligence, and is fit to stand trial".

Questioned by Mr. Justice Connolly, Dr. Kaczanowski admitted that Lafferty had apparently never learned to abide by or submit to rules of society, that he cared only for himself, was self centred and reacted to anything he disliked quickly and violently.

The doctor said Lafferty thought his mother was unbalanced because of the way she acted, but he would not say Lafferty was suffering from paranoia or schizophrenia.

DEFENCE WITNESS

The first defence witness, Dr. LeRoy Hall, a general practitioner who had spent 18 months studying psychiatry, testified to attending the scene of an accident in August, 1956, and finding Lafferty lying in a ditch beside his wrecked car near Demorestville. Lafferty was conscious but had been unconscious previously.

He saw Lafferty again in October 1956, when Lafferty was sent to him for examination by his employer. The employer felt Lafferty was acting strangely and that some of his fellow employees were nervous of him. Dr. Hall could not get anywhere by talking to Lafferty, and said he showed definite signs of schizophrenia. He made arrangements to have Lafferty see a psychiatrist.

Dr. G. D. Scott, director of the psychotherapy hospital, Kingston, said he believed Lafferty was in poor mental health and was a schizophrenic.

Dr. Kenneth G. Gray, senior psychiatric lecturer at the University of Toronto, said his tests revealed definite symptoms of mental illness and that Lafferty had many bizarre illusions.

Phillip W. Haennell, superintendent of the aggregate department of the firm for whom Lafferty worked, said he finally had to have Lafferty taken off the job because the firm was concerned about Lafferty's safety and the other employees were afraid for their safety when he was around. He said Lafferty did not have his mind on the job, and acted strangely on many occasions. He said he tried to straighten him out, referring to Lafferty, but could not make any impression on the man.

Mrs. Lafferty was called to the stand by defence counsel John Corkery, but she said she did not wish to testify in her husband's defence and did not want to become involved in the case. She was released from testifying.

Lafferty's mother, Geraldine, told of many instances in which Lafferty had broken windows, and mirrors in the home, and had once thrown a puppy across the room, nearly killing it. "And he just loved dogs," she said. She also said Lafferty turned on his brother. She said she talked to Lafferty in the jail, and he asked her if Buster would be going to trial. "Buster" is a nickname by which the dead man, Thomas Fitzgerald Lafferty was known.

At the conclusion of the trial, Mr. Justice Connolly told the jury he concurred in their verdict, and told Lafferty he would be kept in custody "to await the pleasure of the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario."

Test Program Report Heard At P.T.O. Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — Members of the Parent-Teacher Organization, of Campbellford, heard a preliminary report on a testing program now being carried out at the school, when the meeting was held last evening last Thursday. Principal E. E. Darling said the program was set up by the Department of Education in 1956 and 90 percent of students complete grade 13, although about 33 percent are expected to have the ability to do so. The tests are being conducted in Campbellford by Miss Olive Clarke.

Sidney Hopping, president of the PTO was asked to report on the meeting of executives at the last meeting of the High School Area Board. Mr. Hopping said he attended the meeting along with Dr. W. W. Baker for the purpose of getting information the board a better understanding of the board's problems, and a general knowledge of the qualifications of the teaching staff. He said the board went over the financial statement and the estimates, and the estimates of the previous meeting and a school inspector's report was not read. He said the board decided to go ahead with the addition as pitched and the visitors were asked to leave.

CIVIC RIGHTS

Vice-president H. L. Macmillan reported that at an executive meeting, it was passed unanimously that the secretary of the PTO contact the Department of Municipal Affairs and the Department of Education to learn the civic rights of taxpayers in sending meetings, and also learn the proper methods of conducting meetings.

Representatives of Warkworth Home and School Association attended the meeting. Mr. Macmillan pointed out the importance of representatives attending board meetings, not to criticize, but in order to better understand the board's problems and to assist the board wherever possible.

The chairman of the management committee of the school board, who attended the meeting along with several board members, extended an invitation to the members of the PTO to attend board meetings. A motion was passed at the meeting accepting the invitation.

Mr. S. G. H. Robinson, general secretary of the Ontario Teachers' Federation, was the guest speaker. He gave an impressive resume of what the federation's and the province's school teachers are doing to improve the standard of education in Ontario. In September this year, 1,000 new teachers will be required, but only 400 students are now attending the Ontario College of Education. He said the Federation spent about $25,000 in a program to interest students in the teaching profession. He said his organization provides training for new and inexperienced teachers, sets up summer courses, arranges teacher exchanges, provides speakers for educational organizations, and puts out a publication called "The Bulletin," which is acknowledged as the best publication of its kind in North America.

Mr. Robinson stressed the importance of teaching the student to approach all phenomena with scepticism, giving as an example the pressure of advertising and speeches by politicians who seek to dominate through dictatorship or plain promises.

The speaker was thanked by Mr W. Keenan. The Junior Glee Club provided musical numbers during the program, under the direction of Miss M. Sedgwick.

BORN IN COURT

CHICAGO (AP) — A teen-age expectant mother, in court awaiting arraignment of her husband on burglary charges, gave birth to a three pound, 6 ounce daughter Monday in a jury room. Mrs. Rita Zakes, 17, felt the first labor pains when she was in the criminal courts building for arraignment of her husband Frank, 20, an unemployed machinist. The husband was remanded.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

The Girl Guides and Brownies of the district of Belleville West are completing a busy and happy winter season and looking forward to the warmer spring weather with will afford more opportunity for hikes and other outdoor activities. A busy Leaders' meeting provided a pleasant evening during which Captain Mrs. Gudgin showed the Spring Brownie Revel for the district, and the Guide Guidera learned a great deal about a compass and its use, under the efficient teaching of Miss W. Huffman, captain of the G.S.D. Company. We hope to see a spring bipassoming of First Class badges on many Guiders' uniforms.

We have been very pleased to welcome Rowaks and Guides were so active during the Christmas season in helping others, rather than thinking of themselves. At least two companies packed wonderful boxes of food, clothing and toys for needy families. One Brownie-a-pack made clown dolls for retarted babies, another pack made paper stockings and filled them for the children in whose classroom they hold their weekly meetings, and many other good deeds were unobtrusively done throughout the district.

Thinking more seasonally than camping, we are gratified to have had the captain of company 7, Mr. A. H. Sleeman, chosen as camp representative for the Belleville division.

It is planned that Mrs. Steenburg will visit each company in the district to give camping information and demonstrations, and we know that her enthusiasm for help will give quite an impetus to camping in then district.

Pack 2—Brown Owl Mrs. G. Watkin, Tawny Owls Mrs. Miles and Mrs. Craighead.

These Brownies have been busy learning and pcsaing tests. Since the Twenties have been enrolled they are very enthusiastic about earning their Golden Bar. The following girls received their bars at a ceremony attended by their mothers—Barbara Belsey, Nancy Bolderson, Jean Lynch-Staunton, Mills. Martha McCulloch. The pack said goodbye to their Fairy Sister, Margaret Wood, who has moved to Washington, Virginia, USA. For their Thinking Day celebration the Brownies had a brown-iced cake topped with a globe and decorated with four yellow candles representing the east, south, east and west. Each Sixer lit one of the candles and then the Brownies for six gave the names of the countries of the world (or part of the globe represented) in which there are Brownies. Ann Wright read a story about Brownies, and the ladder game which so many gave enjoy, was adapted for the day to include the names by which Brownies in other countries are known. The Fairy Gold for the day was made-a-round for the World Friendship fund. Pack two have also made a wonderful donation of $25 to the Canadian Headquarters Building Fund.

Pack 4, Brown Owl Mrs. G. Bongard, Tawny Owl Mrs. E. Jones.

This is a very busy happy Pack, and at the following girls have been enrolled: Aleusha Belcourt, June Bennett, Caroline Bey, Linda Cannon, Jo Ann Genereux, Linda Keech, Donna Lemmon, Mary Jane Smith or Sandra Stevenson, Jane Goslin, and Debbie Milbourn. Golden Bars have been earned by Cella Bongard, Brenda Bowers, Brenda Doyle, Bonnie Eves, Gwendolyn Jones, Brenda Poole, Jillian Roulen, Sheryl Talbot, Mary Wilson, Cheryl Woodcox, Jennifer Davis, and Jennifer Perrott. A third-year service star was presented to Mary Lee Dutcher, and first year stars to Gwen Jones, Jeanne Murrish and Jennifer Davis. Jillian Roulet has earned her knitter's badge. For Thinking Day the Pack learned about Brownies in other countries by cutting out the uniforms for different countries, and then modelling them. At this time, on the Brownie Doll. They also had candlelit suppers to remember the Brownies all over the world, and of the birthday of Baden-Powell. They arranged pennies around outlines of the six emblems as their contribution to the World Friendship Fund. Pack 4 worked very hard at selling cards, and thus were able to present $1.50 for each Brownie to the Building Fund for the new Canadian Headquarters. Each Brownie signed her own name to the card on which went along with the gift.

Pack 16 — Brown Owl, Mrs. Sinker; Tawny Owl, Mrs. Green.

Pack 16 is very happy to have Mrs. Morry coming each week now to help out, and her interest is much appreciated by the leaders as well. The Brownies had a special Thinking Day program, during which each Brownie lit a candle and thought of Brownies in another country, after which each Brownie was enjoyed a piece of birthday cake. Unfortunately Brown Owl was away that day, but the secretary that day, but she was not forgotten, for the Brownies unanimously decided to send some of the cake home to her. District Commissioner Mrs. Gudgin was happy to join the Brownies for their Investiture ceremony at the Tweenies. Girls who have become Brownies in Pack 16 recently are Wendy Twining, Suzanne Hopwood-Jones, Bonnie Noyes, Pamela Twining and Diane Wheeler.

1st. Avondale Pack — Brown Owl Mrs. Ineson; Tawny Owl Mrs. Dowdell.

The 1st Avondale Pack also had a Jubilee Thinking Day, complete with a birthday cake on a specially decorated table, and a set of Jubilee pictures to look at. Diane Watson was enrolled as a Brownie. Five-year service stars were presented to Lynne Hall, Jennifer Wright and Diane, a Golden Bar to Jane Fralick. Toymaker badges were earned by Barbara Craig, Patsy McMullen, Suzanne Lowther, Judy Carlisle, Beth Martin, Helen Craig, Elinor Lafferty, Marilyn Brown and Doris Keelin have been awarded Company Leaders. Lynda Wager is acting as Patrol Leader of the Gold Patrol. Second class badges were presented to Judy Day, Trina Stoutenburg, Erica Featherstone, Diane Lintott, Carol Lintott, Cheryl Deline Kathleen Cleary, Carolyn Bailey and Susan King. On February 16th at a night ceremony, the following Guides were invested as Patrol Leaders; Karen Belsey, Judy Day, Erica Featherstone, Carol Lintott, Meryl Wright, Cheryl Deline, Lynda Wager, of which time their mothers, and one father were present. This is the first Guide Company meeting.

On March 1 Company 7 held its annual Father and Daughter Coffee Party, with twenty-one fathers present, and the following guests — Mrs. D. G. Diamond, Mrs. R. C. Dier, Mrs. Harold E. Smith, Mrs. H. W. Hunter, Mrs. W. McCormick, Mrs. L. Yates, Mrs. G. Watkin, Mrs. R. Settle, the Rev. and Mrs. H. Sleeman, Mrs. Ralph Mott, Mrs. McQuaid, Helen Addy and Beverley Bonter. Twelve Guides tried their Hostess badges at this time, and varied program put on by these guides made for a most happy evening. There are at Present 34 Guides in Company 7. Guides are now working on their Religion and Life badges, fifteen on their Fire Brigade Badge, thirteen on First Class, and twenty-one on Second Class.

1st Avondale Company — Captain Mrs. Harsden; Lieutenant Mrs. Locklin.

The 1st Avondale Company celebrated Jubilee Year with a birthday to which they welcomed their District Commissioner, and the mothers of the Guides. The following Guides were invested: Hazel Locklin, Sonya McLaughlin and June Howe. Bongard, Brenda Bowers, Brenda Doyle, Bonnie Eves, Gwendolyn Jones, Brenda Poole, Jillian Roulen, Sheryl Talbot, Mary Wilson, Cheryl Woodcox, Jennifer Davis, and Jennifer Perrott. A third-year service star was presented to Mary Lee Dutcher, and first year stars to Gwen Jones, Jeanne Murrish and Jennifer Davis. Jillian Roulet has earned her knitter's badge. For Thinking Day the Pack learned about Brownies in other countries by cutting out the uniforms for different countries, and then modelling them. At this time, on the Brownie Doll. Pack 4 worked very hard at selling cards, and thus were able to present $1.50 for each Brownie to the Building Fund for the new Canadian Headquarters. Each Brownie signed her own name to the card on which went along with the gift.

Company 6 O.S.D. — Captain

Company 7 — Captain Mrs. Steenburg, Lieutenant Mrs. Kosalko.

Co. 7 has had a busy season—and the following girls have been awarded badges: Marilyn Bullock, Janice Whitmarsh, Cheryl Thompson, Diane Craig, Patsy McMullen, Suzanne Lowther, Judy Carlisle, Beth Martin, Helen Craig, Elinor Lafferty, Marilyn Brown and Doris Keelin have been awarded Company Leaders. Lynda Wager is acting as Patrol Leader of the Gold Patrol. Second class badges were presented to Judy Day, Trina Stoutenburg, Erica Featherstone, Diane Lintott, Carol Lintott, Cheryl Deline Kathleen Cleary, Carolyn Bailey and Susan King. On February 16th at a night ceremony, the following Guides were invested as Patrol Leaders; Karen Belsey, Judy Day, Erica Featherstone, Carol Lintott, Meryl Wright, Cheryl Deline, Lynda Wager, of which time their mothers, and one father were present. Guides are now working on their Religion and Life badges, fifteen on their Fire Brigade Badge, thirteen on First Class, and twenty-one on Second Class.

1st Avondale Company — Captain Mrs. Harsden; Lieutenant Mrs. Locklin.

The 1st Avondale Company celebrated Jubilee Year with a birthday to which they welcomed their District Commissioner, and the mothers of the Guides. The following Guides were invested: Hazel Locklin, Sonya McLaughlin and June Howe. Mrs. Gudgin was also a welcome guest. For their Thinking Day meeting each patrol represented a different country, and the girls told about the pattern, name and law and promise of that particular country in which it differs from our own. Games and songs of other countries were played at the meeting around a globe for the World Friendship Fund, and a talk on the Girl Guides of the Rev. Miss While, made for a most enjoyable evening. The Secretary was a welcome guest on a recent evening, to demonstrate camping techniques, and answer any questions about camp. The 1st Avondale Company has been pleased to welcome Patty Keelin, who has been a Brownie in the Avondale Pack, as its newest recruit.

1st Carmel Company — Captain Mrs. Howes.

The 1st Carmel Company has been most fortunate in having Mr. Harry Morton instruct them in the compass, and due to his patient and expert instruction will shortly have all the girls expert with map and compass in their minds. They have also had lessons on one occasion to Guides from several other Companies in the Division for an evening of singing, when the girls, under the enthusiastic instruction of Mrs. Howes, practised for their contribution of music to the Area Guiders' dinner. A special vote of thanks goes to Linda Dawson who provided the music.

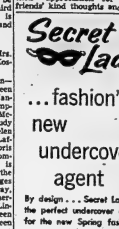
MELROSE M. B.

The Melrose Mission Band was held at the home of Mrs. W. Embury.



The children sang some hymns, and took up the collection which amounted to $1.04.

Prayers were given by Susan and Ingrid Leeland and a poem by Shirley Osborne.

A plaque was made to take home.

Miss W. Huffman, Lieutenants Miss Munro, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Gudgin.

Company 6 has handsome new flags, the work of the Guides themselves, of which they are rightly proud. The Guides also made Patrol flags for the new O.S.D. Scout Troop, and as a fundraiser the Guides invited them to a party which the boys themselves arranged. The two groups formed a large horseshoe in which the Scout P.L.'s were invested, and there were games, a lunch which had been prepared by the boys, and best of all, the Guides' pockets were filled and washed up! District Commissioner Mrs. Gudgin was present at a recent Company meeting, and found the Guides busy on different forms of handicraft. One group was making scrapbooks, another learning how the different birds to be seen in the area, and a third group a Guide Quilt Guide is learning about the Religion and Life emblem.

Swamp College Euchre Club Presents Gift

WELLINGTON — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Upton entertained the Swamp College Euchre Club on Tuesday evening at the Lake Shore Road on Thursday evening. Five tables of euchre were in play.

At the end of the games the hostess presented prizes to the following: ladies, Mrs. Norman Allison; men, Mr. Wellington Norman Allison and George Bailey.

Refreshments were served by hostess, assisted by the food committee for the evening.

The highlight of the lunch was when the hostess brought in a lovely ice cream cake decorated with "Congratulations on Your 45th Anniversary." This was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey, who were celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary that day.

Another surprise for them was when Mr. Clifford McFaul presented them with a pot of beautiful mauve mums on behalf of the euchre club.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey voiced their appreciation to the host friends' kind thoughts and gifts.

Club Activities

QUINTE 4-H CLUB

The sixth meeting of the Quinte Health Patrol was held on April 4 at the home of the assistant leader, Mrs. Wilfred Lazariuk. The meeting was opened by the president, Mary Clapp. The minutes were given by Douglas Zaluski and the treasurer, June Dafoe, gave her report.

The roll call, "One Accident Hazard In My Home," was answered by each member.

The next meeting will be on April 11.

The topics discussed were: "Nutrition for Good Health" and "Food Guide for Health." Mrs. family of Harold; Mrs. Allen Sauve, explained how to fill in the food score for the week. A skit on hazards in the home was given by Linda Jones, Marlene Mitchell, Mary Clapp and Jane Thomson.

A small gift was presented to Mrs. Sauve by June Dafoe, on behalf of the girls, as Mrs. Sauve is leaving Prince Edward County to take up duties in Quebec.

The home assignments were given and the meeting was closed. The leaders served delicious refreshments.

Fete Couple On Tenth Anniversary

Leathercraft Group Enjoys Final Meeting

Members and guests of the Odette Chapman Club held an enjoyable evening last night at the home of Mrs. Charles Ling, 149 West Bridge Street, to close out the group's activities for this term.

Various items of leathercraft, such as purses in all shapes and colors, ladies and men's secretaries, key chains, wallets, and ladies' and men's gloves, were made and on display. The group meets once a week from fall until Easter time.

The group enjoyed colored pictures shown by Miss Mary Thain of the Queen's visit last summer to Port Hope and Toronto, and included scenes of the church where the Queen worshipped; the minister, and appointments, scenes of various parts of Toronto, the beautiful decorations for this momentous occasion, and a "tour" of the Allen Gardens, Toronto's showplace of flowers.

Miss Thain also took her audience on a "pictorial trip" through the beautiful New England States which she toured recently.

Piano solos were played by Mrs. Ling's grandsons, Steven and Roger. Steven Ling played a solo by Mozart, and Roger played a waltz by Chopin. Mrs. Ling Sr., teamed up with her grandson Roger, for a piano duet.

A lovely gift was presented to Mrs. Ling by Miss Loretta Mac-Dougall on behalf of the class.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening by Mrs. Cecil Ling, Mrs. James Ling and Mrs. George Ling.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

orff you are going shopping sl- rious any day in this ... You might be well advised to take an umbrella along. This is just common sense when show- We come along at any time. However, today's umbrellas are a far cry from what they were 10 or 15 years ago. They are more and more an essential part of a fashion wardrobe, not just something to be dragged along in case of rain.

A few years ago umbrellas were brown, black or navy in long, short or fat styles. Today they are colorful, elegant and practical. Colors range from the most vivid, fluorescent shades to black. Prints are a big favorite and often match the raincoat of the wearer or else are chosen to key with her basic wardrobe colors.

Fabrics are fine and the Canadian man-made fibres are the ones most used. The fabrics are lightweight, sturdy and water repelling with nylon and acetate all closely woven taffeta weaves being the two main fibres used.

Handles, too, are lighter and brighter and receive lots of styling attention. Even the collapsibles or fold away styles have shown improved styling. Of many new shapes introduced over the years, some win favor and become basic fashion and others are short lived. Recently a square-shaped umbrella was introduced for the second time. A similar style launched a few years ago did not catch on, but the latest one features several improvements.

One novel and short-lived design was an oolong shape to protect two people; another had a see-through window. The latter is being revived this year in Canada but this time the clear plastic window is a real improvement. The pagoda shape and the slim umbrella are styles which have become classic favorites.

We return with a few final words on the subject of shoes which we mentioned last week. We heard two different young women say that they were so glad to be able to get decent looking low-heeled shoes again. Here are just a few hints from the ever-all bounty section on this question. Remember that the most graceful carriage is of women wearing low heels. All shoes are trending gliding strides, easy posture and graceful balance in walking. Do not stand with too much weight on your heels. The most common mistakes women make when walking or standing in low heels is that they are riding back on the heels when walking and leaning too heavily on one leg while standing.

It is interesting to note that the psychiatrists have come into the controversy and have studied the low heel's significant psychological effects on the wearer. Among the most important they announce is the uncomfortable feeling of masculinity that the wearer feels. However, despite subconscious motivations and conflicts, the smartly dressed woman will still find more low heels in her wardrobe.

"I'm on it for a few days." "Oh, you should try it for a week at least." "I'm alternating." "I use it for just one meal a day." These are snatches of conversation that you are bound to hear wafted on the air these days. To those interested in diet, we would like to quote from the research on space travel being carried on.

"An interesting implication regarding feeding on interstellar travel is found in the expansion of time, and consequently of space . . . predicted by Einstein in 1904 . . . This slowing of time in fast moving systems, differs to reduce the apparent time, and hence, the amount of food required, for travel to distant stars, when speeds approaching the speed of light can be attained.

"Assuming a speed just one ten - millionth of one per cent below the speed of light, George Canow calculated that the space traveler will require only one dinner for each 2,570 dinners eaten on his earth-bound friend. At this rate, he points out, one could make a round-trip to one of the planets of Sirius, which is at a distance of nine light years from our sun, and be required to take only a box lunch as a full food supply for the trip."

How about that!

St. Joseph's P.A. Society Elects Officers

St. Joseph's Parish Altar Society at's recent meeting re- elected for a further one-year term the following executive:

President, Mrs. M. Fanning; vice-president, Mrs. O.Sarubbo; secretary, Mrs. M. McKenna; treasurer, Mrs. K. Hopkins.

A most successful "Telephone Bridge and Euchre" was held recently and the following were the lucky winners of nice prizes:

Euchre—men, Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Moore, F. MacDonell. Ladies, F. Brunette, C. Jury, K. Hopkins. Hidden score prize, S. Moore.

Bridge—men, Mac White, W. J. Ryan, A. McCallum. Ladies, M. Carr-Brainf, E. Tunasel, A. Griffin. Hidden score prize, E. Wonders.

Plans are being made now for further activities which will promise another most successful year.

ST. MARGARET'S EVENING GUILD

St. Margaret's Evening Guild opened its meeting Monday evening with the Lord's Prayer.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. R. McKnight, and approved.

It was decided to change the date of the next meeting to the last Monday in April when an auction sale will be held by Mrs. R. Nurse's group.

A work meeting followed, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Nurse and her group.

New Angles on Old Favorites

by Mary Moore

It is excusable, I hope, for me to want to cook fancy instead of plain.

Naturally I want to hear she and she when my family and friends taste the results of my labors.

But the regular routine of family cooking and budget allowance just will not countenance exotic cooking every meal every day.

One of my wise counsellors says "What I want Mary, is a new angle on an old favorite."

So following this sage advice I prepared dinner last night. The little changes are not sensational, but they result in an attractive dinner. My family licked the platter clean. It was simply meat balls in chicken gravy served around noodles, with almonds and poppy seeds through them.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY
(Gawia)

Mushroom Consomme; Glazed Picnic Shoulder; Candied Carrots; Broccoli; Strawberry Ice Cream; Warm Plain Cake; Coffee.

MEAT BALLS IN CHICKEN GRAVY:

(To serve 4).

1 lb. ground stewing beef (or hamburg meat), 1 egg, shake of garlic salt, 1-4 teaspoon celery salt, 1-2 teaspoon green onion flakes or 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 tablespoon "hot" catsup, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons instant potato powder.

Mix all ingredients well and shape mixture into 12 balls. Brown in 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, turning frequently for about 5 minutes. Add one 10-oz. can chicken gravy and simmer 15 minutes. Meanwhile boil half of a package of noodles in plenty of unsalted (chicken gravy imparts enough salt to total dish) water until tender. Drain through sieve. Return to saucepan and add 1 or 2 tablespoons butter or margarine and 3 or 3 tablespoons chopped almonds and if desired, 1 tablespoon poppy seeds. Heat through over low heat, very gently stirring. Serve in centre of pretested platter; arrange meat balls in border around noodles and pour chicken gravy over meat balls.

I served this with fresh frozen green peas; relish tray with carrot and celery sticks, sliced tomatoes, green pepper strips and cucumber slices. For dessert we had shredded fresh pineapple with sliced fruit bread.

NOTE:

The fruit bread was made from Brisbois dough which will appear here tomorrow.

NOTE:

If desired, one-half can of tomato soup may be diluted with one-half can water and poured over meat balls for the simmering period, instead of canned chicken gravy.

SPECIAL NEWS NOTE:

About the time you are reading this column I will be alighting from the K L M plane at London Skyport in England for a visit with Marianne and her family for Easter and the month of April. I would be grateful if our readers would stop writing to me until the beginning of May. However, all readers' letters on hand or in transit will be answered by me. Thank you.

Secretary to Head of Real Estate and Insurance Firm Covers Variety of Tasks

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—It's 1,000 miles from the rooftop of the Hotel Vancouver to the one-room country school near Pathlow, Sask. but on a cold winter night radio reception sometimes carries the dance music all that way.

That's why Joyce Battershill came to Vancouver, where she has become a prominent—and attractive—figure in real estate circles.

Her title as secretary to the head of a real estate and insurance firm covers a wide variety of tasks.

In a typical day she might advise a builder on a blueprint change to make a house more livable and easier to sell, convince a house buyer that he has just purchased an ideal home, and entice new prospects with radio commercials that she herself has written and recorded. In between there might be time to take letters from the boss.

TRAINED TEACHER

Mrs. Battershill was born Joyce Olsen 29 years ago at Pathlow, 30 miles from Prince in northeast Saskatchewan. After finishing high school she took teacher training at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

For three years she taught in the one-room country school—with grades from 1 to XII—outside her home town.

Then one cold evening she picked up a Vancouver broadcast on her radio and heard of dancing on the hotel rooftop in a balmy 65 degrees.

"It was 40 below and there I was imagining these people dancing right outside on the roof," she recalled. "I decided right then I was going to see Vancouver."

She came here about eight years ago and decided to stay, going to her training a business course and then spending four years in the offices of a mortgage company.

Three years ago she became secretary to W. R. Baker, whose firm, Baker and Russell Limited, was just about to launch the $35,000,000 Glenayre subdivision in suburban Port Moody.

MANY TALENTS

Today she has a good working knowledge of subdivision designing and can help in planning the sewage, electricity, gas and other services. She reads and adjusts blueprints advises builders on where to find mortgage money writes the advertising to sell their houses and handles much of the purchaser's paper work—mortgage applications, insurance transfer and so on.

Mrs. Battershill checks every blueprint before construction starts and she catches things she says a man would never notice. One plan had no kitchen door to the outside. Just like a man, she said. "Imagine taking garbage from the kitchen through the dining room."

The teaching in Pathlow was a terrific background for learning how to deal with people," she said. "And then it's easy to do a good job if you like what you're doing."

Mrs. Battershill, whose husband, John, is office manager for an engineering - surveying company, enjoys her work and said she plans to continue her career.

"I just can't see myself sitting at home knitting and crocheting," she said. "Not yet anyway."

HOSPITAL STAFFS

Twenty per cent of the 131,900 full-time employees of public hospitals in Canada in 1958 were graduate nurses.

REAL ESTATE EXPERT — Mrs. Joyce Battershill, country school teacher turned real estate expert, checks housing blueprint in the Vancouver real estate office where she is secretary to the head of the firm. In eight years in the field Mrs. Battershill, 29, has gained a knowledge of housing design, mortgage financing and real estate advertising. Checking every plan before construction, she says she catches things a man wouldn't notice, such as the absence of an outside kitchen door. (CP Photo).

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO BE A GOOD ESCORT?

When attending a dance, I was rather shocked to watch the actions of a young man whom I know. He was guilty of a rudeness of which I would not have thought him capable. Since it is a breach of manners that one sees too frequently, I feel I must comment on it.

The young man came to the club, escorting a young lady, a newcomer in town who knew no one. They joined a group of young people, all friends of the boy but total strangers to the girl. He chatted for a moment with members of the group, making no effort whatsoever to introduce anyone. Naturally she stood aside, consumed with embarrassment. When the music started, the young man was talking with one of the girls in the crowd and — without thinking, I hope — he danced off with this girl, leaving the young lady he had brought standing alone. Fortunately an older man standing nearby saw what had happened, introduced himself to the young lady and asked her to dance.

In the first place, a girl's escort should make it his business to introduce her promptly to everyone they meet. (Too often a young man will introduce her to some of the girls but intentionally neglect to introduce her to the men!) Furthermore, he should never leave her, under any circumstance, while he is sure she has a partner. He should dance the first and last dance with her, and make every effort in the interim to see that she has a good time, particularly when his "date" is a stranger in town.

It is well for a man to remember that when a young girl honors him by accepting an invitation, his entire time and attention belongs to her. He can only be branded as a boor if his actions are otherwise.

Personal reminder: If you cannot provide her with partners, it is unforgivable to leave her stranded. Nothing will ruin your social standing more quickly than to be discourteous to the girl whom you escort. Your lack of manners will be talked about, and you may be left wondering why your popularity ratings and your invitations have reached a mighty low ebb!

Question: I am anticipating a visit to the hospital in the near future and would like to know if I have to acknowledge all visits, flowers, other gifts and cards with thank-you notes.

Answer: It is not necessary to acknowledge by note flowers, or gifts that are brought personally. If sent to the hospital, a note acknowledging their receipt, as soon as you are well enough, is the gracious thing to do. Your note paper is perfectly acceptable. Do not use a "thank you" card.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Norman Carlson got a long-distance telephone call from a woman she had known for 20 years, but whose voice she had never heard. The caller was her pen pal in New Zealand, Mrs. George McLean.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

F Edna M. — I get no help or companionship from my husband.

Michael M. — Women today are spoiled.

Edna M. — I'm so miserable I just don't know what to do. I've been married 10 years and expect a fourth child soon and I just have no help, sympathy or companionship from my husband.

Mike puts in a lot of overtime, but I feel I could do with less money and a little more help in the house. When he comes in from work, he eats, changes his clothes and runs out to the tavern to be with the "boys." He isn't a drunkard, he just drinks beer. But he doesn't get in until all hours.

The only change in this routine is when he falls asleep on the couch. The kids don't know their dad and he doesn't know them. He has never helped give one of the kids a bath like other fathers, has never told them a story or watched TV with them.

Michael M. — I work hard for my family and I feel I'm entitled to some relaxation at the end of a day. I know plenty of guys who spend all their money on liquor, the horses or women. I don't do anything like that. My whole income goes to Edna — except for my car fare and beer money.

When I get home, the kids are all squalling and Edna is yelling, and it's regular nuthouse. If I didn't get out I'd go off my rocker. Edna is constantly complaining about something or other and yelling at me.

I can't see where Edna has any kick coming. My mother raised a family of eight and half the time Dad was on the road. Sometimes we didn't see him for months. I never heard one word of complaint out of my mother. Women today are spoiled.

The Council: We doubt very much whether times have changed as much as some people think. We suspect there always were selfish and unselfish men and women, and the selfish ones always found arguments to justify their behavior.

Possibly Michael's father had to be on the road to earn a living and his mother accepted this situation. Possibly his mother was the kind who bottled up her unhappiness and hurt. Probably Michael never even bothered to notice that his mother was unhappy and that she would have liked a little companionship, rest and relaxation.

We do think, however, that most men today have been educated to understand that they will be happier if their wives are happier, and they have learned that women need more than babies and pots and pans to keep them happy. It is Michael's misfortune that he hasn't learned these facts.

If there were a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Wives, they'd find a good case here. But there is no such thing. We can only ask Michael to open his eyes and look at the simple fact that his wife is becoming physically and emotionally drained by the life she is living. Michael seems pleased with himself that he isn't a drunkard, gambler or wife-beater, but we place him only a notch or two above that level.

Aside from this, Michael is cheating his children and himself. He knows nothing of the rich pleasures of fatherhood, and his children will never know the many things that can only be learned from a father. But of course, Mike prefers to be a boy among "the boys."

Income Tax Officials Received Report in '58 About High Living Of Toll Collectors on Bridge

OTTAWA (CP)—Rumors that Montreal toll-bridge employees were living beyond their apparent means were reported to income tax officials in Montreal in 1958, a National Harbors Board witness testified Tuesday.

Reports that two toll collectors owned a luxury hunting lodge in the Laurentians and that another flew an airplane were passed on to the national revenue department, said Port Manager Guy Beaudet. He also had information the officials about cars driven by some toll collectors.

He was continuing testimony before the Commons railways committee studying operation of the Jacques Cartier Toll Bridge in Montreal.

Six former toll collectors were arrested this week on charges of theft and breach of trust. They were among eight dismissed in 1958 and reinstated on the basis of an arbitration report whose meaning is a subject of controversary between the author and the board.

The committee, which resumes sittings Thursday, has skirted any reference to individuals involved in any RCMP investigation. A Commons judge, chairman Gordon Fraser (PC—Peterborough) cautioned committee on names of toll collectors contained in documents filed by the harbors board.

The Montreal bridge, run by the harbors board, was operated with the province and Montreal, replaced its toll collectors last September with an automatic system. Bridge revenues jumped.

Mr. Beaudet told the committee earlier that two armed men threatened harm to him and his family last August unless he stopped the installation of the automatic collecting machines.

Some toll collectors also were threatened and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny told reporters that he was threatened by telephone on numerous occasions last year.

Mr. Sevigny said the threats stopped when he was named a cabinet minister.

Filed with the committee were more documents detailing bridge operations and the record of checks maintained to keep an eye on toll collectors. The CNR police made a full investigation in 1958 after both the CNR and RCMP moved in last year.

Mr. Beaudet described again how investigators in cars checked up on the regulation requiring toll collectors to hand out receipts for cash fares. He agreed that three of the last checks showed more of the collectors scrutinized had complied with all regulations.

He said there were two cases "where discrepancies had occurred between the time the money was picked up at the bridge and when it arrived at the Montreal office of the treasury. There were small—not exceeding $2—but he had been shown how it was possible to work bills out of the locked bags used to handle the money. That had been rectified.

CONFEDERATION BUILDING — The new home of the Newfoundland legislature is a T-shaped building topped by an observation tower with a perpetual light commemorating the 1949 confederation with Canada. Premier Smallwood estimates the 11-storey, $8,000,000 Confederation Building will save $200,000 a year by bringing scattered government departments under one roof. Included in the building are: a cafeteria, auditorium, bank branch, telegraph office and travel agency. (CP Photo).

Newly-Appointed Maritime CBC Director Will Sponsor Shows to Promote Unity

By JOE DUPUIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The 11-storey, $8,000,000 Confederation Building, a long-time dream of Premier Smallwood, opens for business this month.

The T-shaped building will bring under one roof about 2,000 civil servants now scattered throughout the city. It is also the new home of the Newfoundland legislature.

Works Minister J. R. Chalker called the building "a monument to the premier's endeavors in the province," but Mr. Smallwood described it as a "monument to Confederation."

A feature of the building, situated on a 100-acre site overlooking St. John's, is an observation tower with a perpetual light commemorating Newfoundland's 1949 union with Canada.

MONEY SAVER

The premier says the new building will save the government $200,000 annually in cleaning, light, telephone, heating and other expenses now amounting to nearly $400,000.

A giant switchboard links 1,200 telephones.

A unique financing scheme will enable the province to pay for the building in 25 years at the rate of $700,000 annually for a total of $17,500,000.

The building was constructed by the Whitney-Hanson Company, a Canadian-U.S. firm. The government will buy it back with funds from its current account which means the amount won't be added to the bonded public debt.

Already Known Canada Leads In Atomic Power

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — It has been known for some time that Canada will produce economically competitive nuclear power about three years earlier than the United States, an official of Canadian General Electric's civilian atomic power department said Tuesday.

M. C. Thurling, manager of the department's manufacturing section, was commenting on a statement made in New York Monday by Dr. L. S. Bate of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited.

Dr. Bate told a press conference Canada's Candu reactor at Douglas Point on Lake Huron was expected to produce 200,000 kilowatts of electricity by 1965 at about the cost required to run a coal-operation station.

No Bodies Found In Wreckage of Plane Raised

PORT STANLEY (CP) — The fishing tug Noskes-J was successful Tuesday in its second attempt to raise the wreckage of a U.S. Navy Pigeon Cutsaths aircraft with four men aboard.

The single-engined plane bound for Detroit from Buffalo April 3 crashed in about 23 feet of water half a mile from Port Talbot.

The four men, believed to have died in the crash are: Bernard Grosley, 45, pilot of the plane; James Bramlett, both of Detroit, and Stanley Stecko and Walter Morsvchik, both of Warren, near Detroit. No bodies were found in the wreckage and dragging operations will continue today, said provincial police at St. Thomas.

The search was delayed because Detroit airport had no timsaid arrival time. The first day of searching was called off because of bad weather.

HEARD FLASH

"Three RCAF planes, a U.S. helicopter and four fishing tugs started the search after Port Talbot resident reported hearing an aircraft overhead shortly before a "loud splash" near the shoreline. The only other RCAF amphibious Canso sighted an oil slick. The site was marked with buoys.

Grappling hooks were unsuccessful in raising the plane, said Capt. Lew Grayling of the Noskes-J. Veteran Port Stanley diver Tom Gilbert went down to the wreckage with a wire rope sling and placed it around the cabin section. Positive identification was made when the plane was hauled to the surface with part of the registration number "6C" appearing. The missing aircraft's number was 9811J.

PRAGUE (Reuters)—Czechoslovakia's minister of health, Josef Plojhar, has received Dr. J. W. Ferguson, director of the Connaught Laboratories in Toronto, the Czech news agency Ceteka reported. Ferguson is on a visit here.

Labor Minister Says Land Purchased Declared Surplus By Niagara Parks Commission

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Labor Minister Daley said Tuesday 40 acres of land he purchased for a farm and summer home near Niagara-on-the-Lake had been declared surplus by the Niagara Parks Commission.

He told the legislature's committee on privileges and elections that he bought the land from a third party and got a "hooking" on the price.

The committee, set up to investigate possible irregularities in the sale, met again Thursday.

Mr. Daley said he was first elected in 1943, appointed minister in 1944 and named chairman of the commission the same year.

The commission, in charge of 35 miles of parkways along the Niagara River, had first brought the Brodie farm along with the other property for park expansion in May, 1943, for $17,000.

The commission took what land it needed for riverfront park and then sold the rest to industrialist Arthur Schmon, highest of two bidders, for $8,400.

Mr. Daley told a reporter outside the committee that there were two offers but "no tenders were called".

"It was common knowledge the land was for sale", Mr. Daley said. "The commission decided the price was fair. It was a cash offer".

He said he recalled only that the other man came from Niagara-on-the-Lake and that his name was Usher.

Mr. Daley said in the committee he bought the property from Mr. Schmon in 1948 after bringing him down from $15,900 to $12,000, plus $4,000 for machinery and other equipment.

Opposition members implied earlier that Mr. Daley had used his position to acquire the 40 acres by first selling it to Mr. Schmon and then buying it from him. But Mr. Daley said it wasn't a fixed deal. We had quite a discussion as to the price". A proof that Mr. Schmon intended developing the land for his own use, he had spent $7,000 for drainage tile and made arrangements to pay another $7,000 to have it installed. Mr. Daley refused to buy the tile when he took over the property and Mr. Schmon took it away.

Mr. Daley had to pay $200 an acre to Mr. Schmon who had bought the property for $200 an acre.

"Knowing what Schmon paid, I felt that I was getting a bonking, but I was glad that I managed to bicker him down $900."

Under questioning by Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, he said he would swear under oath that he had expressed no interest in the land before Mr. Schmon purchased it.

Kenneth Bryden CCF-Toronto Woodbine tried to question the minister on whether gardeners of the Niagara Parks Commission worked on his farm.

Committee Chairman Leslie Rowntree PC — Toronto York West said the question did not concern the terms of reference of the committee. The committee had been instructed only to look into the sale of the land.

South African Police Take Blasting From British Press

LONDON (Reuters) — London newspapers under bold, black headlines today blasted South African police for using "provocation," "brutality" and "intimidation" against Africans.

The papers united in editorials on South Africa to abandon its segregation policies.

Typical front-page headlines:

"Stop the Beatings," Daily Herald (Labor); "Six Hours of Terror," Daily Mirror (pro-Labor); "Terror of the Sjambok (whip)" Cuts," Daily Sketch (Conservative).

The Times, independent, asks how South African Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd and "his faithful backwoodsmen" could be "so mad as to think that they can cow a proud, fighting race into subjection."

"Will nothing teach them that the world has left the 19th century behind?" it asks.

Conservative paper Daily Telegraph says that "what is apparent about the new twist to South African racialism is that, unlike apartheid legislation, which had no chance of working, unlimited terrorism may well succeed, at least temporarily."

"But the price Dr. Verwoerd will have to pay is final, irrevocable and explicit adoption of the rule of force and force alone, which means in effect declaration of civil war."

The Liberal paper News Chronicle says that "if South Africa's membership of the Commonwealth is used to shield her from the disgust of the British government and people, there will be a growing demand for her expulsion."

Roberts to Ask For $40,000 for Alcoholic Study

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Roberts accepted Tuesday the recommendations of a special committee on chronic drunkenness offenders and said he would ask the treasury for $40,000 to get the pilot research program in operation.

The report, compiled by the Alcoholism Research Foundation and its medical advisory board, recommended:

That at least 500 chronic drunkenness offenders, while serving jail sentences, receive complete medical, psychological and social examination;

That the cases be selected from a Toronto court dealing with drunken offenders who have received or elected a prison term for a third or subsequent offence;

That the cases be taken when required from the jail to an examination centre to be examined by a clinical team of doctors, psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers, then be returned daily to the jail;

That the study be as simple as possible for the first 6-12 months, until sufficient information is gathered to indicate the future course of a program for the treatment of the regular alcoholic.

Mr. Roberts said if the study is a success it might be feasible to repeat it in other centres.

The three-part program would include a physical examination, with special emphasis on the search for evidence of organic complications and handicaps contributing to the patient's behavior; a psychological study to include IQ measurements and a search for severe mental abnormalities, and a social study to include the documentation of relationships with family, school, work and the patient's drinking history.

H. David Archibald, executive director of the foundation, said the study would provide a basis for future government legislation and provision of suitable institutions for the treatment of alcoholics, and guidance for magistrates who have to make decisions within the framework of the law.

He said the clinical group could be employed early this year—at an annual cost of $85,000—and the pilot project could get under way this fall. Total budget requirements would total $85,500 a year.

Crown Attorney Alex Hall of Oshawa criticized the "militant propaganda of prohibitionists" who distribute literature among school children. This phase of education should be under the jurisdiction of the department of education, he said.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Where is Maurice Richard, the flaming Rocket, the greatest goal scorer of them all and the sullen, frowning player who has lifted fans out of their seats in every National Hockey League arena?

It's a question that every red-blooded Montreal Canadiens' supporter would answer with a punch in the teeth. But it is one that fans in Canada probably are asking following Canadiens' four-game sweep of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final Chicago Black Hawks.

Well, where is he?

The captain of the defending cup champions didn't score a goal in the series. He received only one assist and that was on the last goal of the final game, a second-period counter by Dickie Moore that killed off any hopes Chicago had of extending the playoffs. And he didn't receive a penalty.

NEW ROCKET

Supporters, and even critics, who have watched or heard about the great Richard since he first entered the NHL in the 1942-43 season, must face up to it. A new Maurice Richard showed up in the semi-finals.

He played a lot of defensive hockey and did a thorough job of shackling Bobby Hull, the big gun of the Hawks who won the scoring title this season and who, at 21, is 11 years younger than the black-browed Maurice. Hull played in three games and was limited to one goal.

Richard hecklers have been saying over the years that the fiery Rocket was a one-way star; that he had "feeders" on his line. They forgot to mention that he was the target of every clutch-and-hold artist in the league and of others who goaded him into costly penalties.

STILL A THREAT

There are at least another four games before this year's cup winner is decided and it wouldn't pay for anyone to figure that the Rocket will be just another name on the Canadien lineup. Sports editor Andy O'Brien of Weekend Magazine has been a close observer of Richard for years and he says:

"I have never known his equal when it comes to rising 'for the big one.' He never lets you down."

He has scored 81 goals and assisted on another 65 for a record 146-point total in 15 playoff seasons and has broken up many of these thrillers.

One of his most important playoff goals was scored in the second period of the 1956 finals against Detroit Red Wings when he posted the series winner. And in 1953 he set up Elmer Lach who notched the series winner over Boston Bruins at 1:56 of the first overtime period.

Keep an eye on Richard this week and next. He is overdue.

Trophy Named After Late Tom Foley

OTTAWA, (CP)—The Eastern Professional Hockey League's first champion will receive the Tom Foley Memorial Trophy.

The trophy is in memory of the Ottawa hockey and football sportscaster killed in a traffic accident March 17 in Toronto.

A league announcement said that the trophy, originally named the President's Trophy, was renamed on the suggestion of Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens.

Key Moves Should Result In Flag for Frisco Giants

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—A pennant should fly over San Francisco's new Candlestick Park next October because of key moves the Giants made during the off season to bolster their pitching and tighten their infield.

The addition of Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes, a southpaw starter and a righthanded relief man, plus the acquisition of second baseman Don Blasingame figure to give the Giants what they lacked last year when they blew the pennant in the last 10 days.

Billy Rigney's five-man staff ran out of gas in the stretch with Sam Jones trying to start and relieve. The latter stopped hitting. The club lost seven of its last eight. Instead of worrying about the problems of playing a world series in a ball park that was not completed, they settled for third place while Los Angeles and Milwaukee tangled in a pennant playoff.

THREE-WAY FIGHT

Milwaukee is given the best chance of beating the Giants in this book with the Dodgers making it a three-way fight. Powerful Cincinnati with added pitching from Cal McLish and Bill Henry has an outside chance.

Here's the way it looks from here:

1. San Francisco
2. Milwaukee
3. Los Angeles
4. Cincinnati
5. Pittsburgh
6. St. Louis
7. Chicago
8. Philadelphia

The Giants, of course, still have problems. Their defence still lacks finesse with Willie McCovey on first base and first baseman Orlando Cepeda in left field. It remains to be seen whether Loes will be the answer to Rigney's bullpen problems.

Sam Jones, Johnny Antonelli Mike McCormick, Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell form a solid line of five starters with Stu Miller for spot duty.

Chuck Dressen, new Milwaukee manager, plans to give Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette more rest between starts.

FINE COMEBACK

Red Schoendienst has been making a fine comeback in spring training after missing almost an entire year due to his bout with tuberculosis.

The Braves have solid power in Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron, Joe Adcock and Del Crandall, plus a question mark in Wes Covington who was hampered last year by a series of injuries.

How can you put the world champions in third place? The Dodgers could dominate the league—but I might be asking too much of manager Walt Alston to make the right moves every time as he did last summer and fall.

Alston must make his run with experienced men like Gil Hodges, Duke Snider and Wally Moon. Don Drysdale appears headed for a sensational year and Johnny Podres is in great form. Much depends on Larry Sherry and the comeback of relief man Ed Roebuck.

Cincinnati has the power to scare you. Frank Robinson, Gus Bell, Vada Pinson and Ed Bailey can hit the home runs.

Connie Mack Kinsman Joins Pro Club

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — The famed name of McGillicuddy is back in baseball.

Donald McGillicuddy, 21, great-great nephew of the late Connie Mack, has been signed by Springfield Giants, a Massachusetts farm club of San Francisco Giants in the Class A Eastern League.

McGillicuddy, a first baseman, is to be discharged from the Marines April 15.

Young Mack, 6'3 he will undoubtedly come to be known, stands six feet, one inch and weighs 175 pounds.

Amherst Beats Hull Again

HULL, Que. (CP) — Amherst Ramblers romped to a five-goal first-period lead here Tuesday night then hung on to eke out an 8-7 victory over Hull Legionnaires in the second game of their Allan Cup quarter-final series.

It was the second straight win for the Maritime senior hockey champions, who now have a chance to wrap up the best-of-five series in the third game here tonight. Ramblers won the opening game Sunday 8-2.

Doug Howatt, Dick Van Solck and Dave Kiley scored twice for Ramblers, with Ron Gaudget and Maurice Lamirande adding singletons.

Bernie Limoges and veteran Leo Gravelle were the big guns for Hull, each coming up with a three-goal effort. Gil Chouinard got the other.

Amherst's goaler - coach Jack Monette turned in an outstanding game. He made 27 saves, many of them from close range, compared with 28 by Roger Fortin.

Snead Knew Win Was Illegal So He Three-Putted for Loss

NEW YORK (AP)—Sam Snead was caught in a dilemma so he threw a golf match which, according to the rules, had already lost.

This strange incident in the career of the drawling West Virginian was related Tuesday by Harold Weissman, sports columnist of the New York Mirror, and he quotes Snead himself as authority.

Snead, Weissman says, was playing in Bermuda last December as part of a filmed television series. Sam did not identify his opponent, but through deduction Weissman concluded it was young Mason Rudolph.

They came to the 15th hole of the Mid-Ocean course all square, Weissman relates, and lets Slammin' Sammy take it from there:

"The 15th was a par 5 and after hitting my drive I went into my bag for a spoon," Weissman quotes Snead. "As I reached for it, I noticed three wood clubs instead of the two I usually play along with a No. 1 iron. There was an extra driver in the set. That gave me 15 clubs, which is illegal.

"Woe! Now if I got me a dilemma, Cain't touch off a rhubarb by admitting it to the proctor. If I do that, I force the cameras to stop grinding and there's no TV show. Because under the rules I've got to forfeit the 15 holes we've played with the illegal number of clubs. Now I can't try to win the match either 'cause that's dishonest. So here's what I do:

GAVE IT BACK

"I four-putt the 16th to put my opponent one up. Then he gave it back to me on the 17th in spite of anything I could do that wouldn't be too obvious on the screen. Now I got to sweat out No. 18.

"I got a wedge to the green and deliberately hit it short enough so it wouldn't look funny when I took three putts to guarantee losing the hole and the match."

Weissman said when Snead's match with Rudolph was on TV last Sunday he checked Sam's story and found the description of the last three holes coincided with Sam's version.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The trout season opens officially Saturday on May 1 but government brass has decreed that when a season opens on a Monday, the boys can wet their first lines on the preceding Saturday.

As all good anglers should know, the size limit on speckled trout has been removed. Everything now is a "keeper" regardless of measurement.

The limit for speckled trout will be 15 to one day with an aggregate weight of not more than ten pounds, except in Kent, Middlesex and Norfolk counties where the limit will be ten in one day with an aggregate weight of not more than five pounds.

Several reasons are given for the removal of the size limit on trout. Because of the large natural mortality, it is felt that the fish should be harvested more liberally. Also in fishing for trout of a specific length, there is mutilation and less when fish which are not long enough to be "keepers", are returned to the water.

Furthermore the size and growth of trout very very considerably from lake to lake and stream to stream. Lifting of the size limit also is expected to simplify enforcement of the regulations.

Incidentally if you have a spear gun, and intend to use it, the government has one word to say, "Don't." It's "spin the lure boys."

The removal of the size limit on speckled trout, and remember, it concerns the speckles only, has been welcomed generally by anglers of this district.

And the most of them figure that ten pounds of speckled trout is not a bad haul for a day's warm loafing, provided you can get it.

However, Don MacKinnon, past president of the Belleville Fish and Game Association, and generally acknowledged by the fish in particular, to be one of the best trout outdoors in the district, has come up with an idea.

Don's suggestion should make for good cracker-barrel debate for the speckles-fishing fraternity from now until opening date.

Mr. MacKinnon says, and he coined the word, that "inchage" might work out better for the angler than "poundage."

He suggests that 150 inches of trout, the figure is for argument sake, would be better than ten pounds of the delectable dinner fare.

An angler, Don figures, without a set of scales could be the victim of circumstances. He could guess at the day's poundage, and be either caught short, or if caught "over" be subject to legal chastisement.

If "inchage" decided the daily limit, a six-inch rule tucked away in a handy pocket would be the solution.

Welsh, which varies, would be an important factor. The heavier the fish, the shorter the "inchage."

We contacted several trout fishermen and their opinions varied. Some claimed it would make no difference. Others favored the weight idea, some the "inchage."

Said one, "Give me ten trout measuring 15 inches, and weighing about a pound each, and I would be satisfied."

Another was of the opinion that given three or four four-pounders "and t'hell with the length or girth" and he would be satisfied to call it a day. The question is who's going to hook three or four four-pounders in a day.

"The government regulations have been pretty good," said a veteran of the trout streams. "I am willing to abide by whatever the brass says."

"Inches or pounds, it makes no difference. How many anglers go out and get their quota day after day. You name 'em and I'll tell 'em to change their brand!"

"I'd be satisfied with five or six fair-sized fish a day for myself. But how many can go out and get that many?"

Anyway it is a good point for argument. And being an angler who wouldn't know a carp from a whale unless introduced, this department would welcome opinions on the subject.

BOOSTER PARTY

The McFarlands Booster Club winds up their 1959-60 season on Friday night in a special whirl at the Knights of Columbus hall with the fiesta-frolic starting at nine o'clock. Mayor H. J. McFarland and Mrs. McFarland of Picton have been invited, as have the Mims and their wives. Proxy Jim Matthews and his executive have arranged a fine "going-out" party and each and every Booster should be on hand for the fun. A nominal admission price will be charged and Booster members must show their club cards.

Two presentations are planned. One a special schnozzle guard for the president, to protect his nasal appendage from wire-cast friction. The other a pair of tonal covers which fit like contact lenses, and which could convert the "Senator" from a bathroom baritone to a mezzo-soprano.

HULL PARTY TONIGHT

Then there's the big "Social Evening" down Ox Folks way tonight where the "Bobby Hull Night" executives is tossing a fun-filled party. The "big do" takes place in the Cement Company cafeteria and a grand program has been arranged by Chairman Earle Anderson. Bobby Strahan and their fellow workers. Looks like a big night—and everybody is invited.

"Series Will Go Seven Games And We'll Win" Says King; Heard That Before, Says Toe

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—"I've gotta say the series will go the full seven games and we'll win. And if we don't, we've got no alibis because the guys are in good spirits and great shape.

"And I'll tell yeh something else, we'll come back here with this thing tied one to one."

The speaker was Francis Michael (King) Clancy, the irrepressible assistant general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs. The subject, of course, was the Leaf-Canadiens Stanley Cup final opening with the Montreal Forum Thursday night.

The second game will be played Saturday and the teams return to Toronto for the third and fourth at Maple Leaf Gardens next Tuesday and Thursday.

FAVORITE SUBJECT

The interview started out with talk about the resurgent strength of the teams' defence corps.

"I'd have to say that taking their five defencemen against our four and our goalie against theirs, that we are just as good as they are, and maybe even a shade better," Clancy said.

"If our forwards help our defencemen as Canadiens help theirs we'll be tough to beat. Those Canadien guys up front are terrific backcheckers. That makes it easier for the defencemen and, in turn, for Plante. It's as simple as that."

How could he explain the statement about an even break in the first two games at Montreal when Leafs won only one of seven at the Forum during the season?

"Well, that's just like those guys who say the odds are 5-to-1 on Canadiens for the series," King said.

GOOD RECORD

"We played some of our best games on the road this season and we've got the second-best record in the league in away-from - home games. Besides, things are a little different in the playoffs. You never start to tell what will happen and there have been a few upsets over the years."

Clancy was right about the Leafs' record. Montreal led the league with 17 victories, 14 losses and four tie games on the road this season while the Leaf record was 15-17-3.

Some of Clancy's confidence must have rubbed off on coach Punch Imlach.

On Monday, Imlach refused to predict the outcome of the series, saying only "We'll be there." Tuesday, after an hour's brainstorm, Punch came up with a different tune:

"We are ready to take the Stanley Cup," he said. "It's going to be one heckuva series but we'll fool the experts by winning."

WHAT'S WILKIE UP TO?

Picton Juniors Oust Lindsay, Meet Whitby

Picton Merchants won the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" championship by virtue of their 9-6 win over Lindsay in Picton, Monday night. They won the series three games to one.

Monday night's game gave 900 fans many thrills and a repeat crowd is expecting tomorrow, Thursday night, when Whitby comes to Picton for an 8.30 game. The second game is at Whitby Saturday night.

Whitby are central region champions and defeated Newmarket, the Junior "C" champions for two years past.

Petes, Juniors Clash Tonight In Key Game

The hour of decision has arrived for Belleville Lambert - Bollins.

Tonight at eight o'clock in Memorial Arena here the L-B squad will meet Peterborough Eaton Canucks in the sixth game of their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group finals. Belleville, trailing the best-of-seven series three games to two, must win or hang up the skates for the season.

The local club will have a couple of things going for them tonight in that ice home team has won every game of the series to date and neither club has won two in a row. Thus it is Belleville's turn to win and the team brass is confident that the boys can do just that.

Not given much of a chance prior to the beginning of the series, the Belleville club has given the Canucks all they want so far and with a break or two could be leading the series. Dropping the opener 8-3, the only lop-sided game of the series, Gravelle's crew came back to cop 4-1 and 7-5 decisions at home while losing 3-0 and 4-3 in the Liftlock City.

If Belleville can pull out that big victory tonight the seventh and deciding game of the set will be played in Peterborough, either Thursday or Saturday night, however the locals have tonight's game to worry about first.

The possibility of this being Lambert - Rollins' final home game of the year it is hoped that the largest crowd of the season will attend and cheer the club on to victory. After crowds of around 200 and 300 all season, 644 fans turned out for last Friday's game here and 600 for Monday's game in Peterborough. Incidentally, with the scheduling of the junior game here, the Industrial League finals tilt between Booth TV's and Williams Brothers, earlier scheduled for tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow (Thursday) at 8.00 p.m.

Will Swap Baseball Seats For Stamps

BALTIMORE, (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles are joining the trading stamp movement to boost attendance at their baseball games.

Lee MacPhail, Oriole president, announced Tuesday an agreement with a supermarket chain which will allow its customers to redeem its stamps for reserved baseball seats.

FISHERMEN!
here's the most revolutionary outboard motor ever—the SCOTT 7½!
same weight as a good-sized muskie, and built for easy handling—in or out of the water!

In sparkling white with red trim, this terrific new SCOTT 7½ is ★ only 30 inches high ★ weighs less than 40 lbs.
and is Only $295.00
$299.00 in B.C.
(suggested retail price)

This sensational new Scott is the greatest outboard ever built for fishermen. It's a revolutionary new design that can be tucked into a corner of your car trunk and carried to the boat by a ten-year-old! In fact, it's the only motor of this power that fits in the trunk of a small car. For extra convenience and protection, there's a handsome carrying case available.

CUTS THROUGH WEEDS!
This new twin-cylinder Scott is a fisherman's delight. Fast-starting and dependable, it cuts through weeds like a lawn mower. Vane-designed prop blades are backswept to toss weeds aside, shear through the rest.

When you're after the big ones in deep water, this new Scott throttles down to less than a mile an hour without sputtering, for hours of quiet trolling. And the big remote gas tank is the safest possible; it's non-pressurized.

REAL CONTROLS!
Scott's front-mounted gear shift puts real control at your fingertips . . . Forward, Reverse, and Neutral. You don't cut your motor to change direction, you never have to start in gear. If you fish right through the rain, Scott's exclusive Ball-a-matic keeps your boat dry—bails up to 390 gallons an hour!

COMPACT!
Ten inches shorter than older motors of the same power and as much as 20 pounds lighter, this new Scott is also the quietest you ever heard. It's right in the Scott tradition—every Scott outboard is jam-packed with engineering break-throughs that made outstanding value, every one of them, from the peppy little 3.6 to the mighty 60-horse Flying Scott.

Now at your Scott dealers, this terrific new 7½ proves all over again that for everything in outboard motoring—

SCOTT'S GOT IT!

Northern Stars Jolt Chatham With Opening 3-2 Setback

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—Rouyn-Noranda Aluminites took the opener of the best-of-five all-Ontario Senior A hockey finals Tuesday night, turning back Chatham Maroons 3-2.

The series, also an Allan Cup quarter - final, continues here tonight.

The Als were bolstered by six players from the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, the league they played in all winter.

Ted Power scored the winning goal for Maroons in the first period but Cliff Cassidy evened it up with less than two minutes left in the period.

Aluminite defenceman Joe Mc-Guire scored early in the second. Then George Aitken counted for Chatham.

At 9:36 of the third period Lyle Power, borrowed from Timmins Flyers, scored the winner.

Aluminites netminder Robitaille, who outshone Chatham's Cesare Maniago through the game, turned aside a strong Chatham bid in the final minutes.

Trenton Whips Lightfoots to Take Game Lead

Displaying superb ball handling and near-perfect shooting accuracy the Trenton Wilsons racked up 113 points to gain a 113-82 lopsided victory over the Belleville Lightfoots in the Bay of Quinte Basketball League finals.

The win gives the Trenton Wilsons a two-to-one lead in the best-of-five series for the loop championship.

Prior and Whitley turned in a tremendous 63 point night between them while five of their teammates shared in a 50-point effort.

For the Lightfoots, Smith and Rogers were the high scorers with 13 and 10 points respectively.

The fourth game in the series will be played at Moira Secondary School tonight beginning at 8:00 p.m.

BELLEVILLE LIGHTFOOTS 53 — Smith 13, Farnsworth 6, Deacon 4, Masters 3, Walmsley 9, Rogers 10, Reynolds 1, Sawage 2, Kingston 7.

TRENTON WILSONS 113 — T. Jeffery 6, Kouk 10, Crewe 11, Whitley 37, Prior 26, Williams 7, M. Jeffery 16.

New Baseball League's Fate Will Known April 27

NEW YORK, (AP)—The fate of the embryo Continental Baseball League will become known April 27.

That is the date the New York city board of estimate votes on whether or not to approve a $450,000 appropriation for plans and specifications on a new stadium in Flushing Meadow, which could be used by the New York entry.

Other cities with franchises are sitting tight awaiting the verdict. If it is favorable, they will go ahead with their own plans. If not, they'll forget the whole thing.

"If the board passes it, we're in business," Bill Shea, chairman of Mayor Wagner's baseball committee and the moving spirit behind the new league, said Tuesday. "If it doesn't, we're dead."

Shea said he has been around the country talking to prospective league investors and "everywhere the idea New York would have a big, modern, new ballpark

"When these people in turn, talked to their cities," he continued, "they sold their people on the idea that New York would have a new park.

"Consequently, they're waiting to follow our example. If we build, they'll build. If we don't, they won't."

Shea said he is optimistic that the board's action will be favorable.

LEAGUE MAY FAIL

REGINA (CP)—After several weeks of indecision, the Regina Senators have decided to withdraw from baseball this season and it is possible the proposed Western League will fail with them. President Con Marcotte said Tuesday the original plan was to include Edmonton, Lethbridge, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Regina and Saskatoon and any other setup did not look promising enough to warrant a try.

Junior Player Has Fractured Cheek-Bone

Dennis Kerrulish, hard-skating right winger for Belleville Lancabert-Bollins Junior "B's", suffered a broken cheek-bone in Monday night's playoff game in Peterborough, it was learned yesterday.

Clipped accidently by either an elbow or stick, Kerrulish went off the ice but was not learned at the time. He was attended by a Peterborough doctor following the game and was told that the left cheek-bone is badly shattered.

A cast has been placed on the injury and Kerrulish wants to play in tonight's game here but Mr. A. E. Kerrulish, father of the boy, told this newspaper this morning that it is doubtful if Dennis will see any more action this season.

The injured player will be entering the hospital here either tomorrow or Friday to have the break set and reviewed.

It is expected that Dennis Hull, just recovering from a pulled leg muscle, will replace Kerrulish in the Lambert-Rollins lineup tonight.

TeePees Need Two Points To Win Title

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Toronto St. Michael's College Majors came from behind twice to tie St. Catharines Teepees to a 2-2 draw Tuesday night in the fifth game and second tie of their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A final.

The Toronto belt Teepees with six points, the Majors four. The first team to gain eight points wins the series. Teepees have won two games, St. Michael's one.

Sixth game of the set is in Toronto tonight and the seventh, if needed, in St. Catharines Friday.

The winner meets Brockville Canadiens in the Memorial Cup eastern finals.

Brandon Wheat Kings meet Edmonton Oil Kings tonight in the first game of the western best-of-seven final.

Stu Hadfield gave Teepees the lead with the only goal of the first period and Dave Gore tied it in the second. Hadfield scored again 35 seconds after the third period opened and Ken Kunda gave the Majors the tie 11 minutes later.

Teepees held a margin of 30-25 in shots on goal but were on top most of the game. They got goaltender Jerry Cheevers, back in action after suffering a broken cheekbone Sunday, a tough time.

'Quarry' Wins Canada Cement Bowling Title

The Quarry team has captured the playoff championship in the Canada Cement Bowling League with a five-game total of 5211, according to figures received here this morning.

Second in the final standings was the Crushers with 5066 followed by the Office with 4993 and Plant with 4911.

The high five-strings for the Quarry were turned in by Hamilton 1220, J. Elliott 1157, R. Sedore 1058, R. A. Payne 1050, P. Lott 1035, L. Maher 1022, J. Isetsy 1010 and J. Stewart 1007.

In the consolation division, the Lab took first place with a three-game total of 2105. They were followed by the Yard with 2911, the Packhouse with 2906 and the Utility with 2833.

IMPORT STARS

TORONTO (CP) — Soccer teams across Canada will spend no estimated $50,000 in the next couple months to import star foreign players for the various Canadian leagues, it was reported Tuesday. Most of the players will wind up in the National Soccer League which opens next month.

Amended Rules of Golf As Adopted by the RCGA

Following are the amended rules of golf as adopted by the Royal Canadian Golf Association adopted at its January 1st meeting.

The new rule books are now being printed and will be distributed to all member golf clubs and provincial golf secretaries before the end of the month.

Definition 7 — "Impingement" is defined as "anything used, worn or carried by or for the player except his ball in play."

Definition 12 — The "flagstick" is required to be "centred in the hole" and "circular in cross-section".

Definition 32 — The area of the teeing ground is more precisely defined.

Rule 11 — In stroke play no penalty may be imposed after the competition is closed unless wrong information has been given by the competitor.

Rule 18 — When a ball is in motion, a loose impediment shall not be removed.

Rule 22 — The rule has been recast in form. Provision has been made for withdrawing without penalty a ball dropped or placed either (a) in error either as to a question of fact or in the application of the Rules, or (b) in the wrong place, provided that the ball has not been played. It is also provided that a ball which, when dropped, rolls more than two club-lengths from the point of dropping may be re-dropped or, if necessary, placed. The requirement of re-dropping or placing of a ball which comes nearer the hole remains unchanged.

Rule 27 — It has been provided that when a player's ball is moved by an agency other than his side and the exact spot from which the ball was moved is known, the ball shall be replaced. When the exact spot is not known the ball shall, as in the past, be dropped.

Rule 34 — The player is compelled to elect finally before he plays a stroke whether or not to have the flagstick to be attended. Before he plays a stroke the player or his caddie may adjust the flagstick by placing it in its normal position in the centre of the hole and as nearly upright as possible.

Rule 35 — The player may repair damage to the putting green caused by the impact of a ball but he may not step on the damaged area. The ball may be lifted during repair. There is no penalty for moving a ball during the removal of a loose impediment. A ball lying on the putting green may be lifted and cleaned without penalty. The former general prohibition on the testing of the surface of the putting green has been removed but the player may not roll a ball or rub or scrape the surface.

The former stroke play penalty of two strokes for striking a fellow competitor's ball when both balls lie within 20 yards of the hole has been extended to apply to all cases when both lie on the putting green regardless of distance.

Rule 37 — The player may have only one caddie under penalty of disqualification.

If a competitor in stroke play refuses to comply with a Rule affecting the duties of a fellow-competitor, he shall be disqualified.

The use of artificial devices to gauge or measure distance or the slope of play is prohibited.

Rule 40 — In four-ball match play the side shall lose each hole in which either partner infringes Rule 5.

Giants Bolster Bat Power, Purchase Cubs' Dale Long

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Staff Writer

The pennant - conscious San Francisco Giants, steeped in front-line talent but weak on the bench, are doing their best to shore up their shortcomings.

Short on pinch - hitting power, the Giants bolstered their major weakness Tuesday with the purchase of power-hitter Dale Long from Chicago Cubs.

The Giants, beaten by St. Louis 9-3 Tuesday as their exhibition season finished 10-11, also have strengthened their bench with the trade that brought Jim Marshall from the Boston Red Sox in return for pitcher Al Worthington.

In another trade Tuesday, the Kansas City A's swapped pitcher Bob Grim to Cleveland for relief specialist Leo Kiely.

TEEN MAIN MONSTERS

The A's, meanwhile, boosted their spring record to 13-10 with a 13-5 victory over Milwaukee and the Indians defeated the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers 8-4.

In other games, New York defeated the Chicago White Sox 9-3, Detroit clubbed Baltimore 14-4, Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 6-5, Boston beat the Chicago Cubs 12-9 and Minnesota turned back Cincinnati 5-3 in a night game.

Daryl Spencer plagued his former San Francisco teammates, homering in the ninth for the Cards to break a 4-4 tie and ignite a five-run rally. Ellis Burton also homered for St. Louis while Jimmy Davenport, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey connected for the Giants.

Ray Herbert became the first Kansas City pitcher to hurl nine innings since 1955 in winning a grand slam homer in Kansas City's 13-hit attack. Pete Daley and Dick Williams backed Herbert with home runs and the Senators got a pair from Bob Allison.

DODGERS SWEETAKES

Vic Power and rookie Walt Bond each drove in two runs in Cleveland's nine-run splurge against Los Angeles as did Duke Snider and Johnny Roseboro, Ricky Colavito hit one for Cleveland.

The Yanks broke it open in the first inning with a four-run outburst, a pair scoring on Mickey Mantle's triple. Al Smith smashed his fifth homer in four games for the White Sox while Bob Richardson sustained a home run among his four hits for New York.

The Tigers scored 12 unearned runs in the first inning against Baltimore and that was enough for Jim Bunning, who gave up only two hits.

'Incident At A Corner' One Of Best of Startime Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)— Pair of expert story-lellers collaborated to make Tuesday night's Startime one of the NBC series' best efforts.

They were Charlotte Armstrong, who wrote Incident at a Corner, and Alfred Hitchcock, who directed it.

The story was simple and chilling: An elderly man whose job it guarding a school crossing gets fired after an anonymous note, warning that he should be kept away from young children, is found by the mother of a little girl.

It is a lie, of course, and the drama concerns efforts of the family to smoke out his accuser. The best parts of the show were perceptive character sketches: A neurotic mother, an arrogant banker and a frightened school principal who just want to avoid trouble. And, along with this, the drama demonstrated how easily a man's reputation can be jeopardized by any evil-wisher armed with just a pencil and piece of paper.

It was convincingly acted by a cast including Vera Miles, George Peppard, Paul Hartman and Leora Dana.

Alan Callou, author of tonight's How to Make a Killing, on CBS, is a writer whose own life would make most of the current crop of adventure shows seem as mild as milk-toast.

An Englishman, he started as an actor, turned intelligence officer during the war and was parachuted into Yugoslavia to serve with Tito's partisans. Later he was captured by the Italians while disguised as an Arab in Tunisia and negotiated two dramatic escapes—one from an Italian prison. He served as police commissioner in Ethiopia and then spent several years leading a touring Shakespearean troupe around Africa.

Recommended tonight:

Music for a Spring Night, ABC, 7:30-8:30, session with folk and ballad singers, including Tom Scott, Brook Peters and Stephen Douglas.

Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10—With guest Eve Arden.

Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11—How to Make a Killing, comedy drama with Eva Gabor and Claude Dauphin.

Americans Win Over Barons 4-1

ROCHESTER, N.Y (AP) — Rochester Americans kept their American Hockey League playoff hopes alive Tuesday night with a 4-1 victory over Cleveland Barons.

The Americans, who lost their first three games in the best-of-seven Calder Cup semi - final series, now have taken two in a row.

The sixth game is in Cleveland Saturday night, with the seventh, if necessary, here Sunday night.

Coffee, Caddies Come High In Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—"Santa Maria!" exclaimed Angel Miguel of Spain. "Six hundred pesetas for a caddy—I could hire a bag boy for a month with that in Madrid."

"And sixty-five cruzeiros for a cup of coffee," said Mario Gonzales of Brazil. "Ha, ha, I buy two pounds of the finest Brazilian coffee for that—two hundred cups, maybe."

In Spain, 600 pesetas amount to $10, the average per diem cost of a bag-toter in the Masters golf tournament here. Sixty-five cruzeiros—in the Brazilian exchange—is 40 cents, the price of a cup of coffee at the Augusta National Club house.

These two examples emphasize the economic strain—particularly on foreign invaders—of the Masters, the most luxurious golf tournament of them all.

"In Brazil, I get a caddy for 50 cents for 18 holes," said Gonzales, who has played all over the world. In Spain, Miguel pays his bag-toter 80 cents. Australians Bruce Crampton and Peter Toohey shelling out ($2.50) the British a pound they receive in South Africa's 7 shillings ($1.00).

Caddies at the Masters are not more expensive than in other U.S. tournaments—$5 a round with a $1 tip for ringing bells—but, just because this is the Masters, they expect a good tip at the end of the tournament, which makes it run to roughly $20 a week.

The Masters is a tournament with a flavor and character all its own. It hasn't the prestige of the big open championships but it's the gathering place of the game's great masters, past and present, and men make great sacrifices in an effort to win it.

Annis Stukus Wants Back Into Football

VANCOUVER (CP) — Annis Stukus says he will listen to any offer to get back into football—but not as a coach.

Stukus, former coach and now a football writer for the Vancouver Sun, was reported Tuesday to be a candidate for an executive position, possibly as general manager, with Edmonton Eskimos.

He said he has not been officially approached by Eskimos but "I'm always willing to listen."

Stukus coached Eskimos for several seasons after their entry into the Western Interprovincial Football Union in 1949 and later went to British Columbia Lions.

AT THE PARK — Lou Costello objects to the rock and roll gyrations of Bud Abbott, Ron Hargrave and Gigi Perreau, in the comedy "Dance With Me, Henry", opening Thursday at the Park Theatre. On the same program "Here Come the Marines", featuring Leo Gorcey, Hunts Hall and the Bowery Boys. A Three Stooges Comedy is also shown.

At the Belle

"Beloved Infidel", Stars Gregory Peck and Deborrah Kerr in Powerful Story

It will probably be years before the screen sees another love story as powerful as the one told by Sheilah Graham in her autobiographical book, "Beloved Infidel", now a CinemaScope, De Luxe Color film, starting Today at the Belle Theatre, produced by Jerry Wald for Twentieth Century-Fox.

While the book is Miss Graham's life story, it deals largely with her association with the late novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald.

The production has Gregory Peck in the starring role of Fitzgerald, Deborah Kerr as the Hollywood columnist, Sheilah Graham and Eddie Albert as a devoted friend of the pair.

Miss Graham's book deals not with the dynamic and popular novelist of the 30's, but the fading genius of a once great man in the late 30's and early 40's.

This is a dramatic story of two mature people deeply in love. Miss Graham who was engaged to a titled English nobleman when she met Fitzgerald, gave up everything to be near him.

Producer Jerry Wald has tried to stick as closely as possible to the original, shooting on actual locations of the events mentioned in the book and calling on the memories of all the people who knew the great author.

The old Garden of Allah, where Fitzgerald spent most of the time while in Hollywood was to be used as location for the filming, but plans were made to tear the building down. The owners, however, said they would allow Wald and King to use the building for location shots. However, Wald and King were afraid that if retakes were necessary the structure would no longer be standing.

First Indians, Now Italians Beef About Film Portrayals

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—First the Indians were on the warpath over how they are portrayed by Hollywood. Now it's the Italians.

Recently the chiefs of Oklahoma Indian tribes issued a complaint to Washington that the redskins are always getting the western worst of it on the television and movie screens.

Along came the Sons of Italy with a similar beef. The group's Grand Council of Pennsylvania blasted the broad use of the term "Mafia" in films and TV, especially The Untouchables series. An official was quoted in Variety: "If they are afraid to say 'Italian' or use Italian names for criminals, they say 'Mafia.' This is the same thing. By saying 'Mafia,' they are saying crime is controlled by Italian-Americans. This is a dastardly attack and it is not warranted."

The complaint gets support from a famous son of Italy, actor Ernest Borgnine. Yet he is the curious position of having to defend himself on the same score.

Borgnine told of receiving a letter of protest from a New York editor for his participation in a film about the beginnings of the Mafia in the United States, called Pay or Die.

HEROISM FOUGHT MAFIA

"I explained to him," said the actor, "that I was portraying an Italian - American whose very heroism almost stamped out the Mafia in this country.

"He was Joe Petrosino, a New York cop who was the first one to suspect there was a criminal hierarchy and he convinced the commission to create the Italian squad."

Borgnine's own reluctance to defame the place of his parents' birth may even have cost him $500,000. Reason: He turned down an offer to star in The Al Capone Story.

"I just couldn't do it," he said. "I've played plenty of villains in my day, but I could never portray a real-life person who I never had done so much evil and caused so many people tragedy."

There is another side to the argument. Hollywood has always got protests over how Indians, Italians, Jews, Scientists and lawyers are portrayed. It reached the point where the only safe villain was a white Protestant American—or a Russian. And Russians are risky as heavies these days.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Thursday, April 7, 1960

General Tendencies: The daytime brings some pretty dreary and-or delaying conditions unless you have made your plans very carefully and are prepared to accept changes without the speed with which they often occur. Be philosophical during the daytime. Then, tonight, you find you are sole to get a fresh new slant that is fine.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — It is imperative you follow every lead that applies to you today, P.M., make it a point to go out socially to those and that most attract you. Loosen up and be most gracious. Have fun. Expand.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Remain cheerful though you may receive a letter or telephone call that could be somewhat unnerving. P.M. invite guests into your home and have a most happy and delightful time. Have only those in who are most compatible.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — So many things seem to be piling up on you today that you become confused and believe you are unable to handle them properly. Plan your labors and also get in touch with some expert who can give you a hand or advise you wisely.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Do not antagonize that good associate though he, or she, may seem too precise and somewhat commanding. Just be certain you have all reports, statements, data ready and in good order, and all will go well. Co-operate for best results.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be very friendly today and in that way you can discuss your fine plans with the right people. Also, stick to own work religiously and avoid any fracas with fellow worker. If any argument starts, simply utter kind words. Have fun P.M. Go to Sept. 22.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — If you give in to that temptation to enjoy yourself at all cost, it will be most expensive and have dire results today. Labour diligently instead or consult with some authority so that you can advance in your career.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Don't start any arguments in a.m. with family ties. Then the evening is ideal for going out socially and being with persons whom you like. Combine business with pleasure.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — A day for being most careful on the highway or in motion anywhere. P.M. is then ideal for talking over current problems or new ventures with experts and getting the right slant on things. Begin an upswing now.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Set up a better bookkeeping system both in business and personal life. See where you can cut off corners and practise real economy. P.M. contact those who can be helpful in the future. Do important studying, research.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — Feeling rather depressed, you could make others about you quite miserable if you are not careful. Rise above this emotion and in Capricorn style, turn this into a most productive day. Confer with experts for any data you need.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Put your worries behind you today and confer with good partners who have some excellent ideas in mind. Come to a real understanding — then off to a good time at the pleasures you enjoy most. Be culturally-minded.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Avoid that conniving new friend who invites you so much that you could lose out on today's fine aspects. Co-workers can be very co-operative now and you should take advantage of this and have a very productive day. Work.

If your child is born today, the insisely sweet child born today can have an ideally happy life if early he, or she is taught to rise above those short periods of depression which are a part of every life. Your wise example and teaching that patience is a virtue which brings the greatest rewards will bring about a great deal of success in this chart. Training in spiritual Truths is the best means to accomplish this.

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE HELPS BREAK DOWN FATS

IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fats — actually breaks them down. It is an established fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fats are broken down and form a smooth, easy-flowing mix.

If in your digestive track, liver bile helps break down fats the same way. Many of the foods you eat reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty solids. Your golden liver bile helps break down these fats . . . for easier and more complete digestion.

Carter's Little Liver Pills' exclusive formula of vegetable ingredients regulates irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fats in your digestive tract.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, take Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Remember, Carter's not only relieves irregularity, but actually improves the flow of liver bile. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today!

SOUTH HERCHIMER

Brick 3-bedroom home, attractive lot with trees and shrubbery. Has all the usual features and full basement. It has received loving care and is in A-1 condition. Has been transferred. The mortgage is for $10,000 and low payments would be $80. Just call — we will show it to you.

ELIZABETH CRESCENT

3-bedroom brick with a big big kitchen with loads of cupboards. It is ultra-modern — has fireplace in living room. Has spacious living room, in the full basement there is a completely finished recreation room with a fuel-burning fireplace. Has a garage and is fenced in. Has many extras and is ready for a sending in your request. It has a carport — a paved drive. You would be wise to see it.

$1,000.

Just imagine — for just this much cash as the down payment we can put you in this lovely new bungalow with tiled bathroom, living room, a dining room — modern kitchen with cupboards — as well as a full basement with hot water heating system and garage. It's on the East Side. Why should you pay rent with such a deal as this?

new teacher's colleges and a new government building. "You'll also get a new tourist reception centre."

Mr. Connell said his department has already been asked for the teacher's college. Provincial Treasurer Allan Grossman works minister, said the treasury last week approved an addition to the Windsor Technical Institute.

MORE SUPPORT

Liberal Leader - Wintermeyer said Windsor needs some preferred treatment in regards to freight rates, which is one cause for industries relocating elsewhere.

"It could become a dormitory city," he explained, with United States citizens working in Detroit and living in Windsor to escape the long drive to Detroit suburbs.

"Give them more public works until the city can get on its feet again," he said.

Criticism of the public works department in Ivanhoe tenders was registered by CCF Leader Donald Macdonald, who charged the department was not a year in accepting the tender of a Quebec firm instead of giving the business to an Ontario company.

Mr. Connell said he would not deal exclusively with Ontario firms but would maintain a "buy Canadian" policy.

COULD STRAY WAR

"Restricting our work to provincial firms could start an economic civil war which could hurt industry. I for one do not intend any action on my part to tear at the noble fabric of Confederation."

He said his department was setting up $333,000 contract for supply and installation of laboratory equipment for the new building at the Ontario College of Agriculture Building, Guelph, to which the firm because it offered the best deal.

Mr. MacDonald said the Canadian Gladding Corporation Ltd. Company of Preston submitted a tender only $3,000 lower than the Quebec company. And the result of losing the business put about 100 men out of work.

REVEALS FIGURES

Mr. Connell said the department had received tenders totalling of $21,600,000 in new works, which were turned over to the appropriate departments. This year the department will undertake $22,500,000 in new projects, while $20,000,000 is carry - over work.

Earlier, the House concluded the debate on the speech from the throne—which took only six days. The speech outlined the policy of the government and detailed the program for the coming year.

Motions of non - confidence moved by the Liberal and CCF parties were quashed by the heavy Progressive Conservative majority. The vote was 85 to 24.

The Liberals had a nine-point motion attacking the government on its farm policy, labor provisions, education, tax sharing, housing and gas rates.

The CCF motion criticized the government for its stand on farm marketing, power, labor, resources and "political prestige."

Subcommittee Member Says Air Force Continuing Bomarc To Bail Out Manufacturer

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—A member of a congressional subcommittee has suggested that the U.S. Air Force wants to continue Bomarc missile production merely to "bail out" the manufacturer, Boeing Airplane Company of Seattle. The air force has denied the charge.

The transcript of testimony shows the exchange occurred March 24 when Gen. Thomas White, chief of the U.S. Air Force, presented the subcommittee with a revised continental air defence plan based on reduced production and use of Bomarc-A and Bomarc-B anti-aircraft missiles.

Representative Jamie L. Whitten, (Mississippi Democrat, said it is hard for him to decide how much of the new plan is based on military need and how much is based on pressure by the manufacturers.

White countered that he had been in uniform 40 years and has no political motives. He was convinced the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile would work.

VIEW ON FAILURES

On the point that the advanced Bomarc-B missile, of which Canada is to get two squadrons, had failed in its first seven flight tests, White said: "We have had failures with Bomarc just as we have had failures with every other one of these new systems. But they can be worked out and they will be worked out."

Whitten indicated he was not impressed with White's remarks.

"I still have not had one line of testimony about what has happened between last year and this year in Bomarc which might add any support to your belief," he said.

Whitten said the defence department realized it might have trouble with congress over the appropriations for the Bomarc program so it scaled back production "but kept enough on order to maintain appearance of defence and bail out Boeing."

SEEK CANADIAN VIEWS

Repeated questions about official Canadian views on the Bomarc show up in the transcript.

Congressmen asked how Canada is developing her Bomarc missile program; how costs for two Canadian squadrons are being shared by the U.S. and Canada and how dependent Canada is on Bomarc development for its own defences.

Gen. White stressed that the Canadian government is totally in favor of the Bomarc.

Some of the discussion on Canada was eliminated from the public transcript. Here are some excerpts that were made public:

Representative George Mahon of Texas: "Will Canada continue the use of the Bomarc missile?"

White: Yes, sir; they very much will so."

Representative Robert Sikes of Florida: "Did I understand you to say that Canada does want to use the Bomare in its defence program and is, in fact, preparing to do so?"

White: "That is correct."

Sikes asked details of progress on construction of sites for Bomarc missiles at North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que. Most of the pertinent parts of the answers were stricken from the public record.

White informed Sikes that Canada is dependent on the U.S. for research and development of the Bomarc.

Troops, Police Raid Negro Town; Passes Restored

Arrest 200 at Nyanga, Most Stubborn Township

CAPETOWN (CP)—Troops and police invaded the nearly-Negro township of Nyanga in force today, made widespread arrests and seized crude weapons.

About 200 persons were arrested in the township, one of the last strongholds of the campaign for more political rights.

Police bundled men and women into jeeps and trucks and took them to Philippi police station, about three miles away from Nyanga on the outskirts of Capetown.

At the station, a policeman beat prisoners with a length of rubber hose if they showed any sign of resistance while the long coil of City vehicles, Reuters news agency reported.

SEIZE WEAPONS

Raiding police seized sacks of knives and clubs after their dawn invasion of the community.

A graveyard quiet gripped the town as the last load of arrested Negroes moved out in a truck with wire mesh screens.

Troops carrying rifles with steel bayonets lined the roads and the edge of the town at intervals of about 50 yards as a drizzling rain fell.

Inside the town, groups of police moved about in heavily armored steel streets. Many carried riot clubs long staves shaped like axhandles.

Only a couple of women and some children were left behind carrying through the streets as the last load of arrested left.

A plane circled low overhead and a helicopter under an armored guard was parked on the town's playground.

SHOUT, SCREAM

Shouting African men and screaming women ran through the streets during the dawn raid.

Police armed with revolvers and truncheons went through every house in the town and searched shanties which serve as homes for the 25,000 inhabitants of the township.

A heavy truck-load was thrown around the native district as police and soldiers "invaded" the township in a search attempt to break a "stay at home" movement which has a strongly crippled South African industry.

Only about 615 workers out of a total population of 25,000 in the township reported to their jobs on Wednesday. Elsewhere, where there have been several clashes between Negroes and police in the last week, it has been cut off for the last three days.

Nyanga, one of the restricted nearby Langa Township were directed by Pretoria to take part in the massive operation in the township.

The move left the 25,000 residents of Langa free to move in and out of their township by day.

Ran Into Car

HAMILTON (CP) — Arthur Horsefall, 3, died of head injuries received when he was thrown 30 feet by a car. Police said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Horsefall, ran onto the road in the path of a car travelling the wrong way on a one-way street.

LABOR MINISTER FACING SECOND INQUIRY IN WEEK

Checking Purchase Of 40-Acre Farm

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley, target of opposition charges because of a land transaction, was to go before a House investigating committee again today.

The committee on privileges and elections, holding quasi-judicial hearings, is checking his purchase of a 40-acre farm near Bridgeport-de-Lake on land once owned by the Niagara Parks Commission.

Mr. Daley was appointed parks commission chairman in 1944, one year before the first election to the legislature.

No charges were levelled in his direction Wednesday night during one of the more hectic days of the session.

SEES PAYOFF

James Trotter L — Toronto Parkdale charged in the assignment with making a "political payoff" for his decision to build a teacher's college on St. Clair's arches instead of at Welland as originally planned.

He said the department acquired "about a man he described as a former campaign manager of Mr. Daley 16 acres of land near Lake Ontario for about $1,000 an acre. Land near Welland had been sold for about $1,000 an acre.

The St. Catharines area land was bought from Cecil Second, a former mayor of the Niagara Parks Commission, Mr. Trotter said. He claimed the land was worth some $50,000, a "political payoff".

Daley said the parks commissioner had never been his campaign manager.

Discussion on this issue was expected to resume today in the committee.

Earlier this week CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald asked for Mr. Daley's resignation in connection with the Toronto sewer tunnel fire that killed five men. The department of labor was responsible for safety inspection of such projects, said Mr. MacDonald.

The CCF Leader also touched off an earlier inquiry into the parks commission when he clashed with the commission being examined.

NAMES BANDIDO

Mines Minister Maloney Wednesday night accused Mr. MacDonald of trying to defend dirty, swill-pail, pig-pen tactics. He said the CCF leader's findings are made by a legislature committee. Mr. MacDonald would not approve of them.

Mr. Maloney was incensed by Mr. MacDonald's criticism of the report of the labor committee investigation into the contract between the Workmen's Compensation Board and Business and Economic Consultants. The contract he found Wednesday that the board, headed by Chairman Eugene Sparrow, had acted properly and in good faith.

The committee's report was adopted by the House, the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives joining forces against the CCF.

Mr. MacDonald made an unsuccessful last - ditch stand Wednesday night against the committee investigation into conflict of interest charges. The committee completed.

LOA NFB1363 ATTACKED

In other House action Wednesday, Liberal members urged that the government investigate operations at the Leaside Negro township of Nyanga in force today, made widespread arrests and seized crude weapons.

About 200 persons were arrested in the township, one of the last strongholds of the campaign for more political rights.

Police bundled men and women into jeeps and trucks and took them to Philippi police station, about three miles away from Nyanga on the outskirts of Capetown.

Hundreds Working on Levees As Old Man River Runs Wild

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of volunteers manned levees today and on the most critical section of the midwest United States flood belt today, hoping to hold back the muddy waters of the swollen Mississippi and Missouri rivers.

They fought to prevent the surging rivers from overflowing fertile farm lands and communities in Illinois and Missouri.

The flood fighters patched the water-ravaged earthen levees with thousands of sandbags. During the night floodlights searched for signs of possible weak spots.

Patrols of men, some wearing bright orange life jackets, carried aerial flares to ward off if they detected danger spots.

Officials said the major danger was that the tons of river water would spill through the dikes while seeping underneath and that may be weakened inside by the seepage.

The two big rivers have been on a rampage for a week. The worst danger spots are still confined to about 150 miles to the north and the same distance south.

Farmers, townsmen, civil defense workers and college students made up the hundreds of volunteers working on the levees.

The Missouri above St. Louis has eased, and is expected to crest at 22.5 feet Friday at St. Charles, Mo. That height would lap water near the top of several reinforced levees, but observers believe they will hold.

The Mississippi was estimated that 31,000 persons have been affected by the flood. More than 1,000,000 acres have been flooded and property damage is into millions of dollars.

Floods in sections of New Jersey, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania have caused evacuation of scores of families, but the rivers and streams are receding there now and no immediate serious overflows are indicated.

HIGHER TARIFF ASKED FOR BY FORMER MINISTER

For Industry Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—Advice of a former Progressive Conservative cabinet member to the present government: Make better use of Canada's "blue-chip" resources through less free trade and better tariff protection for home industries.

Hon. Earle Rowe (PC — Dufferin-Simcoe), who was minister without portfolio in the cabinet of R. B. Bennett, said Wednesday the present government has to steer away from the "smug complacency" the Liberals showed in trade matters. He spoke as the Commons budget debate ended its fourth day.

The Liberals said Canada had to buy finished products from outside—particularly the United States—to maintain markets for Canadian raw materials, said Mr. Rowe. But this was not so.

RUN WITHIN REASON

America as purchasers, and others, bought these materials only because they needed them.

The U.S. did not know, when Canada is looking desperately for markets for its products, that we buy more of it. The Liberal theory did not work.

Traditional Conservative policy is that the resources of the country should be developed wherever within the country, said Mr. Rowe.

"Let us not forget that . . . the Conservatives in Canada have always control is our own. It is one of the greatest markets in the world."

DEVELOP MORE JOBS

More emphasis on developing Canada's resources would help, he said. It increased employment and eventually "do more to solve the problem of markets for agricultural products in the long term than all the party prices and novel ideas that we have had presented as solutions to agricultural problems."

The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade should be declawed, Mr. Rowe suggested. Canada had been bound by the terms although it was a Liberal legacy of "doubtful free-trade ancestry."

If it was constricting Canada's industrial expansion it would be better if it were overhauled.

Green Declares Nuclear Test Ban Accord Imminent

France Will End Tests If Stockpiles Destroyed

LONDON (CP)—Gen. de Gaulle declared today that France will quit testing nuclear weapons—and write off its investment in them—if the other powers will agree on nuclear disarmament.

Speaking to a joint session of Parliament, the visiting French chief of state said peace can be attained only if "the general fear of sudden annihilation is first removed."

France, he said, "wishes above all for stocks of nuclear weapons to be destroyed, for installations where they are made used for different purposes, the rockets and the aircraft capable of carrying them, as well as the fixed or floating bases from which these vehicles of death can be launched to be placed under surveillance."

France would not say that per very happy to give up the tests and the original expenditure which she has undertaken in order to provide herself in her turn with the means possessed by others—as soon as these others have agreed to have them available."

GREATLY HONORED

As the windup of his three-day visit to Britain, de Gaulle's address preceded was accorded an honor without parallel since the war in being invited to address both House of Commons and the House of Lords.

Glancing down at his old wartime friend in the front benches, Churchill, de Gaulle recalled that he had not always seen eye to eye with British leaders during the war. But he said his visit to London attested to the French people are firm in their admiration and regard for the British people.

Coastal Waters Compromise Reached by Canada and U.S.

GENEVA (Reuters) — Canada and the United States have reached a compromise between their two plans for setting up a new limit on territorial waters and fishing zones, it was learned today.

The new plan calls for a six-mile territorial water limit and an additional six-mile fishing zone, which Canada and the United States have fished there for at least five years would be allowed to continue doing so for another ten years.

The new plan will be submitted jointly by Canada and the U.S. at Friday's session on the law of the sea.

Previously, Canada had proposed exclusive fishing rights for a six-mile limit and the United States had proposed a six-mile territorial water limit with a six-mile contiguous fishing zone in which both countries would have equal fishing rights.

The compromise contained in the 10-point proposal to be jointly adopted, the new proposal must receive the support of two-thirds of delegates sitting as committee and a two-thirds majority — or nine — in the session of the meeting.

Britain, which had supported the earlier American proposal, is expected to back the backing behind the compromise.

Canadian delegate George Drew and his chief adviser, Lester Pearson, will meet the 16-nation Canadian group offered their proposals to the conference.

Iceland urged that states developing their fishing to protect their livelihood should have preferential rights in areas adjacent to their territories.

Iceland told the 87 - country meeting that the fishing economy into force when it was necessary to limit the total catch to those adequate areas.

Misappropriation of Public Funds Charged by Liberal

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick legislature will be asked Monday to summon Frank Branch, auditor general, to the House for censure and instruction to pay monies "illegally and improperly appropriated to the use of the Conservative Party."

A notice of motion Wednesday by Liberal Opposition Leader Louis J. Robichaud stated that $8,000 in public funds was so appropriated by Premier Hugh John Flemming when he was a Progressive Conservative Party candidate before the provincial election of 1952.

Attached to the motion was a copy of a Supreme Court judgment handed down in that year before Mr. Somers resigned his seat. He and Wilfred Theriault, a Conservative candidate, were the action brought by Joseph Lepage, Liberal, for further payment for gravel sold under government contract.

"Theriault swears," said the judgment, "that he made a profit of $3,500 on the job, of which he paid $2,500 and paid $1,000 each to Somers for the party funds."

The judgment by Mr. Justice C. J. Carter awarded Lepage $591.26 in addition to an unpaid balance of $1,000.

With "an election coming up in 1952 the party was going on need of replenishment," the judgment said, Mr. Somers arranged to contract for Mr. Theriault to supply, haul and place the gravel, which was done. Mr. Somers and Mr. Lepage, who received payments of $200 and $100 between Jan. 1 and May 1, 1952.

"The defendant Theriault was an employee just like any other man," Mr. Justice Jones said in his judgment. "He knew very little about what was going on and nothing about the trade with the plaintiff. That does not absolve him from liability in my opinion."

Three Confessed Killers Given Life in Prison

DETROIT (CP)—The three confessed killers of a suburban Royal Oak car dealer were each sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday in the killing along with Mrs. Nelle Lassiter, 37, the car dealer's widow, and Gordon Watson, 44, his business partner.

The prosecution charges Mrs. Lassiter and Watson through Jones and Jones and Rashid to kill Arvin Lassiter April 6, 1953. The conspiracy trial is still several months off.

Paper Says Revolt Planned Against Castro

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says a revolution in Cuba is being planned by Dr. Carlos Prio Socarras, ousted former president of Fidel Castro, to overthrow Castro's government.

Former enemies have rallied together to plan the coup, says the Gazette, and an underground group has been organized within Cuba itself.

Gazette reporter Bill Banley was told of the plot in a three-hour interview with Dr. Socarras, who claimed an undisclosed number of men are under arms in the Escambray Mountains, and elsewhere in Central America.

Dr. Marquez, lawyer, economics professor, historian, and lawyer in the 1933 Cuban presidential election, said he believes violence may not be necessary to overthrow the Castro regime, but that the arrest of Castro's opponents have united under the banner Pueblo Libre (Free People).

Segregation in American Churches Christianity's Hurdle in Africa

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Graham says African Negroes until recently have not been overly sensitive that racial segregation exists in American churches—but they're quick to see when religion is used hand blow to the Christian cause.

This is among the major conclusions that the evangelist drew from his 10-week African tour which ended when he returned last week.

Outlining his impressions in an interview, he said the fores of Christianity are busy picturing it as a "white man's religion."

"This is Christianity's biggest stumbling block in Africa," he said—and the damage is only beginning.

The segregated churches and church institutions in America are becoming known to African leaders. They can't believe it. They can't understand it. They are astounded to hear that Christian institutions bar a man on the basis of color.

Dr. Graham, a southern Baptist minister who refuses to hold any meetings where segregation is required, said the African trip strengthened his conviction that Christianity must free itself of racial restrictions.

"Eventually the churches are going to have to drop. The clergy are further ahead on this matter than most people."

In Africa, more and more Christian leadership is being turned over to the Africans themselves.

"Nearly all Anglican bishops there are Africans. . . . The Catholic Church in naming an African cardinal made a wise move.

Jewel Auction For Charity Brings Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The jewels of a wealthy recluse who died in her Fifth Avenue home amid a profusion of dust, cats and old newspapers were auctioned off Wednesday for more than $1,000,000.

A single 28.75 - carat diamond ring sold for $157,500, a world record. The previous record auction price for a stone was the London last year when a 23.7-carat diamond brought $156,800.

Mrs. Hetty H. Tinkim, a hairdresser to the Tinkim roller bearing fortune, died last October leaving her jewelry collection to be auctioned off for charity.

The purchaser of the big ring was a New York jeweler, Sidney B. Gurfein.

Gen. de Gaulle To Pay 17-Hour Visit to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — French President Charles de Gaulle arrived to Canada by the Canadian government, will pay a whirlwind 17-hour visit to Toronto April 21-22.

Gen. de Gaulle and his wife arriving from Montreal, will be met at suburban Malton airport by Lieutenant-Governor Keiller Mackay and Mrs. Mackay, Premier Frost and Mrs. Frost.

The president and his wife will be guests of honor at a provincial government dinner that night. On Friday morning the party will visit city hall and after a short tour of the downtown area, will travel at speed back to the airport. The party will then fly directly to Washington.

Find 90 Per Cent of Nuclear Test Fallout Already Fallen to Ground

CLEVELAND (AP) — Long hush-hush studies by the United States Air Force have led to the announced finding that all but 10 to 15 per cent of the fallout from nuclear tests of the first five years now has fallen to the ground.

Clearly indicating that whatever radioactive hazard may exist in the stratosphere, it already held the die now is essentially cast, the report was prepared by the current president of the American Chemical Society.

The findings, developed principally from defence department studies of the stratosphere, are in sharp variance with recent estimates of some scientists.

Some estimates are that as much as one-third of all the radioactive debris from bomb tests conducted by the nuclear powers still remains in the stratosphere, and that the ground will not be on the earth will not be achieved until two to four years from now.

Disclosure of the new figures by Dr. Lauros G. McKinney, Kulp of Columbia University at a press conference preceding symposium on "radioactivity fallout in relation to foods."

The report said the new figures result from a government study—kept secret for more than two years—which mainly disclosed evidence that "there appears to be no hole in the stratosphere" through which radioactive debris can fall more quickly to the earth than previously estimated.

The "hole" is the stratosphere is the layer of the atmosphere that lies — between about 30,000 and 40,000 feet—below the stratosphere.

Researcher Ronald G. Menzel of the U.S. department of agriculture reported that recent findings show up to 30 per cent of the soil-absorbed strontium 90 derived from atomic explosions is "locked in with the soil" and is not available to plants which enter into man's food chain.

45 People Attend YMCA's Diving Classes

In the last few weeks, 45 people have been participating in an instruction course in skin and SCUBA diving conducted by the YMCA on Saturday afternoons. There are two courses — a five-week course in skin diving and a 10-week course in SCUBA diving.

The skin diving course covers all the necessary functions of the sport. To be a skin or a SCUBA diver, a person must naturally be an above average swimmer and have complete mastery of the basic equipment such as the proper use of the mask, snorkle and fins plus know the safety aspects of skin diving and necessary precautions. Over the years, the YMCA has been pre-eminent in promoting and teaching swimming and life-saving.

There are five half-hour lectures and a few movies and five 45-minute sessions in the pool for practical experience.

Seven members of the local class have passed their test and have received their skin diving certificates. They are Peter Tenbooge, Paul Robinson, Larry Hutchinson, Ken Hepburn, Bob Palmer, Keith Hubbard and Everett Robinson.

The SCUBA course, there are eight 30-minute lectures and films covering the use of the mask, fins snorkle and the use of the various types of SCUBA diving equipment, including wet and dry suits. More than 14 hours of practical training are owned by members taking the course. The lectures also cover the medical physics and chemistry of diving, the hazards and safety, and physiology and communications of underwater existence.

There are eight pool instruction lessons as well which cover the proper wearing of equipment, how to don it and don the equipment underwater and how to overcome most difficulties that might arise underwater.

It also covers the safety and rescue and a person one might get into trouble while swimming.

TEST TESTS

This course has two more weeks to go in which the members will be trying their written and pool tests for the divers awards, the only standardized award given in North America set up by the YMCA three years ago in the U.S. and adopted by the Canadian YMCA and the Underwater Club of Canada.

A new course in skin and SCUBA diving will be started at the end of the month and will be open to males and females over 16 years of age and will be split into adult and junior and girls and Beneville women have already signed up for the new course.

By way of a distinctive honor, Neal Hess, one of the originators of skin diving in the world, has awarded Ron Chapman, chief instructor for the Belleville YMCA, with the SCUBA instructor's certificate and he will be listed as number one "Skin Diver" magazine.

Upon completion of their senior YMCA life saving awards, four members of the instruction team at the YMCA will also be awarded their national SCUBA instructor's certificates. They are Ron Chapman, Peter Gander, Ben Crookwright and John McDowell.

Recovered Body

LENNAVE (CP) — Skin-divers Wednesday recovered the body of five-year-old Billy Kidd from the Rye River near this Barrie district town.

The discovery ended a three-day search. The boy is believed to have fallen into the river Sunday from an old wooden footwalk. The body was found one-quarter mile downstream.

Guides Seeking To Raise $3,800 For Camp Site

The Quinte Area Girl Guide and Brownie Association has purchased a 200-acre camp site located on Lake Ontario near Wesleyville in Prince Edward County, as a training camp. The shore-line provides 1,200 feet of clean sandy front. There is a grove of pines lying between the road and the lake, providing the ideal tent camping site. The 150 acres above the road are mainly farm land, having an orchard and small wooded areas. The buildings include a 10 - room house to be used for headquarters, training and Brownie Pack holidays, a large steel roofed barn for rainy day activities and three garages for storage purposes.

Total cost of the venture in the area is $20,000, shared on a per capita basis by each of the seven divisions; Peterborough, Kawartha, Northumberland, Hastings, Belleville, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington. Objective for the Belleville division with its 745 Guides and Brownies, is $3,800. Guide is responsible for this money through private subscriptions and from business, professional and organizations in this division. The Guides and Brownies are working towards raising further funds through their various projects.

The campaign is now underway and it is hoped to conclude the successful drive by April 15. Donors are requested to forward their cheques, made payable to Quinte Area Girl Guides and Brownie Camp, to either Mrs. R. Arnett, 32 Bleecker Street, or Mrs. D. Stewart, 311 Bridge Street, both of this city.

Girl Guiding has been going on in Belleville since 1922, Mrs. Brazonnbe had the honor of sight and courage to launch this great movement here. Over the years Girl Guides have never asked the public for financial assistance as camps have been held each year and the scouts always had to raise funds for a camp site. Ali Brown Owls, Tawney Owls, Guide Captains and Lieutenants, Ranger Leaders, Camp Commandants and Quartermasters give this work voluntarily for the children. This is the Jubilee Year of Guiding in Canada. The Belleville Division would like its birthday present to be its share of the camp cost.

Mr. H. H. Murray is chairman of the campaign.

Extensive Renovations Made To Lipson Front Street Store

Thirty years can make a difference, and in celebrating their thirtieth year of service to Belleville families the local Lipson store at 261 Front Street will be offering their customers the most complete shopping conveniences together with greatly enlarged premises. Following some eight weeks of renovations second floor facilities have been added to the existing main floor premises of the present location, which has been occupied since 1935.

Originally coming to Belleville in 1931 as general outfitters, the Lipson store has continually expanded their facilities and lines to best serve their customers. Initially the local branch occupied some 4,000 square feet of floor space. Today, with the present addition, there exists 15,000 square feet on which attractive lines of household furnishings, men's and boys' year and ladies' and teen-age fashions are displayed. There also is a separate furniture business in the basement level of the store.

Besides the handsome wood panelling, acoustic tile ceiling, and modern tiled floor, which covers the second floor shopper, there is also a new modern fluorescent lighting system, which gives the new floor a very bright and cheerful atmosphere. It is planned to extend these pleasant surroundings into the main floor after Easter now that the additional floor space is in use.

Also planned for the next few weeks is the installation of a complete air conditioning system for the comfort of local shoppers during the summer months ahead.

Topping off these plans and changes is the attractive new store front with its large windows and new sign.

WILL ENLARGE SECTIONS

On new second floor the customer will find teen-age and ladies' wearing apparel and fashions as well as household furnishings. The first or main floor will be used for an enlarged children's wear section, men's and boys' wear department, men's and boys' wear department up to size 14.

The Belleville branch of the Lipson's Stores Limited, which also have stores in Kingston, Brockville, Napanee, Trenton and Picton (where the head offices are located), is managed by John Grindrod, who has been with the firm for 26 years, manager of the Napanee branch for 12 years before coming to Belleville. He has a staff of Mr. Grindrod has some 35 employees who are ready to give their customers fast and friendly service.

Warrender's Dept. Criticized For Plight of Belleville

TORONTO (CP) — The municipal affairs department was criticized Wednesday night for not preventing the city of Belleville from getting into financial trouble by the Ontario municipal board.

Norman Dolder (L — Toronto York Centre) said the department knew in 1957 that Belleville was heading for trouble.

Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender said the department warned the city in 1958 and 1957 in a letter that "things were not as they should be."

But department officials in 1958 had not insisted on the letter being sent because "until it was too late."

"They really got in a mess and what did you do," snapped Ross Whicher (L—Bruce).

"We warned them on two occasions," said the minister.

"Why didn't you stop it."

"We can't hold a whip over them," said Mr. Warrender.

"I say in all fairness with my municipalities how far do we have to go after warning them?"

COUNCIL DIDN'T REPLY

Mr. Singer said that all the department did was send the letters and the council didn't reply to them.

Spring Cleaning Of City Streets Now Under Way

Spring cleaning is now underway with vim and vigor on the part of the Public Works Department of the city. An all-out effort is being made to complete the cleaning and oiling of city streets by the end of this month in order to qualify for the subsidy allowed by the Ontario Department of Highways. As much mechanical plant is being used as possible instead of hand sweeping in order to complete the project within the time limit. City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull said this morning that this technique may result in a fairly large quantity of dust for a short time but will, in the long run, result in a much better job being done. Work on the East Hill is expected to be completed by next week at which time the crews will start on the West Hill section.

Road maintenance meanwhile has dropped considerably on the asphalt streets with only minor maintenance being required from now on. The gravel roads, however, are still receiving constant attention from the graders and are getting new layers of crushed stone. Frost heaving, due to low overnight temperatures, is a factor of safety since it frequently nullifies the effects of grading operations of the previous day. It is expected that this type of operation will be over by the next two weeks when temperatures have increased.

SEWER CREWS BUSY

The sewer crews have been busy with the cleaning of storm and sanitary sewers following the heavy rains and thaw. They are also engaged in the pumping out of a number of low-lying areas in the city where water has collected.

The maintenance and repair of the city's sewer system is one which the department recently took on under contract, is now well underway, and is in its major stages. An average of 30 meters a week have been brought into the shop for inspection, repair and adjustment.

Another busy section of the Public Works department is the engineering branch which is currently engaged in the necessary preparations for local improvement by-laws for the current year. The primary engineering for any improvement has to be completed before presentation to Council and, if passed, is then forwarded to the Municipal Board for approval, which usually takes about two months.

City Hall Clock Needs Repairs To Strike Hours

"For the want of a nail the shoe was lost".

And so on goes the old public speaking reader which emphasized that small details are important.

But in the case of the city hall clock it is for the want of a pulley that the familiar "Big Ben" hasn't been ringing out the hours during the past month.

Assistant City Engineer Mark Heibhu, noted today that the pulley over which the chain controlling the bell-ringing mechanism is broken, has been removed for repairs. The pulley is expected to be replaced in a few days time.

In the meantime the not-so-reliable Westclox, the mighty-odd year old clock on the city hall tower, is merely showing, not ringing out, the hours.

Electrics Win Over Marksmen

The Northern Electric Handgun Club's "B" team trimmed the Belleville Marksmen's "B" group by the tune of 500 to 318 points in the Belleville Armories last evening.

This is the last exhibition shoot of the winter season. The two local clubs will be entering teams in the Bay of Quinte League beginning April 1st. It is also have teams entered from Picton and Trenton.

The outdoor range is located at Redneersville and will be used during the summer months for both practice and competition. The league will have 125 shooting members.

Board Makes Final Changes In Town Plan

TRENTON — At Wednesday night's meeting of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, Chairman W. A. L. McDonald and members Grant Goodhue, Ronald Hargreaves, and secretary O. W. Larry made final changes and modifications in the official plan. Also present at the meeting were town engineer Walter Murray and assistant engineer Arie Hoornweerd.

The corrected plan will be forwarded to Project Planners in Toronto, and returned to the board for presentation to town council for acceptance before it is presented to the Minister of Planning for approval.

Local commercial facilities were considered at length. Each "neighborhood" will have 1.2 acres set aside for this purpose. No specific sites have been selected on the plan, except where sites already exist. At present stores, drug stores and similar enterprises will be tolerated if built in residential areas unless one has need of them. Adequate buffering in the form of grass plots, curbs, etc., will be provided and the shops must be clear of any street right-of-way and set back from the street to allow the free movement of vehicles. Grouping of stores will be encouraged and adequate parking facilities must be provided.

In the general commercial area, tentative establishments, offices and residential facilities, if they are compatible to the surrounding commercial property, will be allowed. The residential section must be part of and incidental to the business with which it is connected.

Open spaces or "park area" must be free of buildings except those which are incidental or ancillary to recreational purposes. These areas include parks, baseball diamonds, golf courses, boys' club areas, armouries and community centres.

It was suggested that council should be asked to insist on a standardization of the construction of boat houses.

Council will also be asked to reduce non-conforming uses of land in certain zones. This could be achieved by the town buying or appropriating property.

HIGHWAY 33 UNCHANGED.

The board had not approved of the plan advanced by Project Planners for the route to be taken by Highway 33. The planners had proposed that the highway, entering the town from Prince Edward County, should run along Queen St., past St. Peter's Church and school, cross King and come out at Division St. The board pointed out that with two churches, a church hall and a school along this route, it would be evident. It was decided that the planners would be asked to allow the highway to follow the present route.

A long-range plan to convert the present CN. bridge into a bridge capable of supporting vehicular traffic, was approved by the board. This would remove congestion from the town bridge.

Frontage facility needs for the next 15 years were discussed at length. By 1965, the planners had estimated that the town's population would be 13,700 and by 1975, 17,500.

The plan stipulates that water and sewage services should be extended into areas set aside for sub-division projects prior to the construction of houses. The plan is divided into two stages. Eighty per cent of all "usable" land must have been used up before Stage 1 before Stage 2 may be started. Dr. McDonald was of the opinion that almost all land would be used before expansion was utilized also a topic of discussion.

Issue 6 Permits

TRENTON — Building Inspector William Anderson today said six building permits valued at $16,550 were issued in March. Total value of permits issued in March 1959 was $161,150.

Destroy House

TRENTON — Firemen today destroyed a town-owned house at 23 Water Street after council ordered its two tenants to leave. The house was condemned.

High School Remains on 'Pink List'

TRENTON — S. G. B. Robinson, secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation said Wednesday night in a telephone interview from Toronto that the Federation has not lifted the pink-listing of Trenton High School.

However, he said, the Federation may not have had sufficient time to consider the results of a meeting with the Board of Education.

The school was pink-listed more than a week ago because of a controversy between the principal and the Board of Education.

93 Wild Ducks Illegally Killed

BROCKVILLE (CP) — An Ontario government conservation officer said Wednesday night two Americans have been charged for illegal killing of 93 ducks on Robinson Island in the St. Lawrence River.

The island, 10 miles west of here, is on the Canadian side of the river. The ducks, part of a migrating flock, were killed Tuesday.

Lorne Irvine of Lansdown, the conservation officer, said the men were released on bond after a combined operation by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, the United States fish and wildlife branch and the New York State Conservation Authority.

Chamber Plans Easter Parade, Many Spectacles

TRENTON — A meeting of the directors of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce was held Wednesday night at the Trenton Country Club.

Present were the provisional president, Douglas Whitley, and directors Walter Wrightman, Ben Krouse, Don McPherson, Ian Darling and Peter Deduke.

Mr. Whitley reported he had been influenced town council had proposed that 2,000 copies of the Business and Professional Women's local brochure could be printed at the town's expense and the majority given to the chamber to distribute.

It was decided that the chamber's campaign for fees should coincide with Canadian Chamber of Commerce Week.

A letter to industrial heads in centres asking their products for route display boards, outlining their companies' products and processes of manufacture, was discussed. These display boards would be placed in store windows and would be instrumental in acquainting the public with the products of Trenton industries.

Mr. Whitley announced that plans for the Easter Parade were almost complete. The parade will leave the CNR station at 2 p.m. Easter Sunday and will follow along Dundas St., up Front St. to Bleigh, ending on the west side of the Quinte Hotel.

Judges will be located in front of the hotel. An assortment of prizes will be offered for the best dressed man, woman and RCAF band. It is expected that an RCAF band and a marching troupe of 15 majorettes from Peterborough will be among the attractions. There will be "surprise gifts for those on top" and bicycles built for two.

In a discussion about the relative benefits to be derived from membership in the Chamber, it was decided that although individual members could expect no personal gain from the organization, the Chamber would benefit directly or indirectly, and Trenton woman and child in Trenton.

SHEETS LEGION

Peter Dedeke reported that he had met with a Canadian Legion committee, concerned with conservation along the Trent waterway.

He said the committee had reported that the project would have to take in both the watershed of the Trent River, which would include the municipalities along the river from Campbellford to Trenton.

The Chamber could help by promoting a plan to include every service club in the area with an interest in the results of River Conservation Authority, and be necessary eligible for government grants.

Reforestation would have to be carried out on the hillsides along the waterway. There was a protracted discussion about the relative merits of a mapping of weed removal proposed by a former resident.

Mr. Whitley said he had been told by an air force officer that tests of water had been taken from the airport and that the air force officer opposite the sewage disposal plant at the airport and off the Glen Miller Road.

In the first two cases, the bacteriological count was much less than two per cent and in the case of the island water, a 2.0 per cent count had been obtained. He said that air force officials were pleased with the results, as in some parts of the world drinking water contains more than, two per cent bacteriological counts. Mr. Whitley also observed that the Trenton sewage treatment plant was probably instrumental in improving the water in the river.

Fall Session Of Legislature Almost Assured

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost gave almost definite assurance today that a fall session of the legislature when he told the house by way of tabling the government's legal department look into the interpretation of Ontario statutes in relation to private bills.

He said present laws might be interpreted as stating that private bills could only be introduced in the first session of any one year. "This might bar submitting a bill to the house at a fall sitting, he said. "If a fall sitting started in November, then perhaps bills could be introduced.

In any event, he said, provisions could be made for two sittings a year.

A Great Week for Culturists

This is an important week for the culturists in Belleville.

We are not at all happy with that sentence. We can imagine some lips curling in derision as the eyes above them reach that word "culturists." Our only defence for using it is that it is at least in the dictionary, which seems to be more than can be said for the word "culturally" which we almost used in a slightly different construction in our opening sentence. "Culturally" apparently has no status in the English language, although we feel sure we have seen it bandied about in high places. Such use perhaps explains one of the reasons why the use of the word "culture" and any of its legitimate derivatives is apt to be met with contempt these days. So often the people who talk most about being cultured are not, and so many of those who, either sadly or joyously, regard themselves as free of culture are steeped in it.

Culture like most words, has several meanings and one of these is "the concepts, habits, skills, arts, instruments, etc., of a given people in a given period," so that by this definition everything has culture and has a culture. But even the more restrictive definition of "refinement of thought, emotion, manners, taste, etc." will embrace as cultured people many who regard themselves as without the pale.

One of the influences which refine thought, emotion, manners and taste, two of the most powerful are music and literature.

This week sees the Belleville Community Concert Association campaigning for members for next season. It also sees the celebration, both in Canada and in the United States, of "Library Week."

It is, of course, possible to love music and never attend a concert, just as it is possible to love a woman and never kiss her, but it is a singularly unrewarding form of devotion.

There may be some who will maintain that this modern age the scientist has brought the concert hall into the living room, via television, radio or the hi-fi phonograph. It would be erroneous to overlook the contribution which the scientist has made to art in this realm. But much of the appeal of music is to the emotions and surely a truly emotional experience should be a shared experience. (We are aware that the appeal of much literature is to the emotions and that we do not customarily gather together to read great books, but that is one of the handicaps in this form of the arts and there is no reason why it should be voluntarily imposed on another art.) What we are trying to say (and saying badly) is that we firmly believe that those who enjoy good music enjoy it most when it is heard in the company of others and that the concert is the ideal method for this sharing of emotions, with the wellspring of these reactions, the musician himself, present in flesh and blood.

Library Week may be asked why our modern mania for organization should have been extended into a realm where gratification is most satisfactory if fitted to the mood of the moment. Why an Association to organize concerts far in advance? This is the penalty not of the times but of the place—Belleville. Too small a community to attract first-class musicians unless an audience—and a fee—are guaranteed and today there is no individual who wishes to attempt to make a living in the risky business of underwriting concerts in small centres. It has thus been found necessary to do it co-operatively. A community association is born. The community would be much poorer without such an organization as the Community Concert Association.

Surely we do not have to point out that the community would be even poorer without a public library. Of the making of books there may be no end, but of the reading of them there would be a pitiful scarcity were it not for the co-operative effort to make available, to men and women and children of all walks of life and every weight of purse, an imposing selection of the world's best literature. The theme of Library Week is "Read for Pleasure, Read for Profit, Read for Progress" and it is a good theme, and yet such is the wealth of books that we cannot help but feel the week's slogan could have been much better. Read for the power of knowledge, for the glimpses into the minds of men dead for centuries, for the tapping of unknown emotions, for the unexpected beauties of little words endowed with magic powers, for the dreams of tomorrow, for the understanding of others and for the key to yourself.

Anti-Church Drive in U.S.

New York Times

Two thousand years ago the Christian religion was considered so subversive that its founder was put to death and its followers driven underground. Times have changed since then, except in some of the Communist areas. Yet, as John Wicklein wrote in this paper, a bitter and ignorant attack is now being made on a Protestant organization, the National Council of Churches, on the ground that it is infiltrated by Communists and other Left-Wingers. The attack was brought out into the open when the Air Force withdrew, with apologies, a training manual which made just these charges.

If anyone will take the trouble to search the New Testament, or certain parts of the Old Testament, he will find that the prophets, including the Man of Nazareth, had indeed little reverence for rulers or the prosperous or worldly power, and had, on the other hand, a deep pity for the poor and the afflicted. All through the centuries the Christian church in all its phases and diversions has had a social as well as a religious message. Like other great religions, Judaism included, it has been repeatedly stirred by social reform movements.

It is time for a very long look again at those fantastic mentalities who attack what one of Mr. Nicolai's characters called "the free 'om of the pulpit." So far as they are anything beyond a moronic vacuum in these respects, they are really directed at all efforts to reconcile our society with the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. An intra-church struggle there should be, and is, but this dispute the general public outside the affected denominational groups can take part. We have a right, however, to object to any attempts to dominate the ministers of any religion. The symptoms of the present anti-clerical hysteria are unmistakable in their similarity to earlier discreditable incidents over any decades and even generations. They are cheaply silly and irreligious.

Find New Use For Flattops

St. John Telegraph-Journal

Britain has found a new use for her old aircraft carriers, and one being bought by commercial fishing interests as factory ships for process trawler catches at sea.

This will mean increased competition for the fish on the fishing grounds off her shores, says the Bulletin of the Fisheries Council. The publication quotes Fishing News editor as the purchase of two aircraft carriers and an old repair ship for such a venture.

The carriers are the Ocean and the Theseus, both 13,000 tons, and the repair ship the Ranpura, 16,000 tons. Equipment from the latter will be used in the conversion of the carriers and the hangar decks will be scrapped.

Helicopters will be used to transfer catches from trawlers to the mother ship. On each of which will make four 90-day voyages a year. On each voyage the mother ships the fish will be quick frozen and sold to distributors on a number of ports.

It is estimated that 50 trawlers will be required to service each carrier. Trawler owners realize that the plan is an excellent one, but fear it would allow their vessels to spend more time on the fishing grounds. The British Trawlers Federation had been kept informed and a committee had been set up to work with the parent company.

In addition to acting as factory ships, the carriers, each with a complement of 425, will act as servicing ships supplying the catching vessels with fuel, ice and other requirements. They will have what are described as "shore amenities" for the trawlermen.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 7th, 1940

A men's banquet under the auspices of the official board of Tabernacle United Church, was held last night. About 90 men were present. A minute of silence was observed in honor of the late Mr. J. E. Walmsley who had held office in this church for over sixty-five years. Community singing was led by Mr. J. Bannister with Mrs. Duff at the piano. Mr. Cecil Lent, chairman of the committee of trustees, was very happy in presiding over the meeting. Mr. A. D. Archibald introduced the guest speaker, Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, who needed no introduction to a Belleville audience. Mr. MacLaurin spoke on the problem of the unemployed youth of Canada. In three memorable word pictures he set forth the great need of our young men and also the great inspiration and hope for the future that lay in them.

Miss Helen Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Douglas, Ann Street, and a member of No. 2 Belleville Company, Girl Guides, brought honor to her troop and native city when announcement today from Ottawa brought news of the award of the Canadian Legion Shield, emblematic of the knitting championship of Girl Guide divisions in Ontario, to the young guide and her troop. The article which won the liginal honor for Miss Douglas was a beautifully knit pair of grey socks. The article was entered in competition in Kingston where it swept aside all opposition. Entered in Ottawa in the final contest, Miss Douglas' effort again won the approval of the judges and her troop was awarded the handsome shield, held last year by a London, Ont., troop. Miss Mary Roberts is the leader of No. 2 Company.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Buck of Bath are the guests of their son, Mr. Edwin Buck and Mrs. Buck, George Street.

Miss Stella Melchoir of this city spent yesterday in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Wright and daughter Marion have left for this city. Mr. and Mrs. A. Wright, Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly and Miss Aileen Kelly, of Moscow, will spend the week-end here with friends.

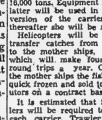
Mrs. D. Buyers and son Douglas are spending a few days with the parents of the former, Rev. J. McMullen and Mrs. McMullen.

40 YEARS AGO

April 7th, 1920

Mr. Arthur Reilly of Toronto is visiting relatives here.

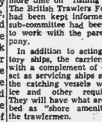
In view of the scarcity of house accommodation in Belleville, it should be a good investment to transform into comfortable flats much waste space in the upper stories of business blocks.



At a banquet which was held in Christ Church parish hall last evening, the mortgage was burned and the parish is now free of debt. The rector, Rural Dean Swayne, presided, and the Rev. Dr. Biagrave of Toronto, a former rector of the parish, was the guest of honor. To him fell the honor of burning the mortgage with the flame of a candle, the mortgage being held to the flame by the church wardens, Mr. O. E. Scott and Mr. H. A. Backus.

Belleville city councillors can gain everlasting glory by cutting out capital expenditures this year, let us quit spending for one year and devote attention to paying off old debts.

50 YEARS AGO



April 7th, 1910

Jack Johnson, the world's colored champion pugilist, arrived here last evening after six o'clock with his wife. He was met at the station by Pat Hinchliffe, the local sport impressario, and other local sport fans. The I.O.G.T. band met the party at the upper bridge and played them down to the hotel. The main street was crowded with people who were anxious to see the man who will battle for his title with Jeffries on July 4th next. The party received quite a warm reception and the celebrated "golden smile" of the colored champion was much in evidence. At the opera house in the evening, Johnson appeared as the star attraction in an athletic entertainment. Mr. William Carnew opened the proceedings with a neat speech after which Tom Flanigan of Toronto, the well-known sporting man, took over as master of ceremonies. At the conclusion of the entertainment a banquet was held at the Windsor Hotel at which Johnson was the guest of honor.

SOURIS, MAN.

In addition to being the name of a town in Manitoba, it is also a town in Prince Edward Island and a river which flows through Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The word is French and means "the mouse," in reference to the plagues of mice which infested the districts in former years.

Strictly Personal

What Is This "Trance" Bit?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Yesterday I heard of an advertising copywriter who was fired from his job — no doubt by having the button snipped off his gray flannel suit — for doing at his desk during working hours.

I couldn't sympathize with his plight — for he had to really be swept in the art of salesmanship, he surely could have persuaded his boss that he was not doing, but was in "creative trance."

He could have pointed to Coleridge, for instance, who would fall asleep while working at his desk; on awakening he would find that he had composed two or three hundred lines of excellent verse, in a state of trance, indeed, while writing his famous "Kubla Khan" which remained unfinished. Or because Coleridge's snooze was interrupted by a person on business from Porlock.!

Such varied men of genius as Descartes, Milton and Rossini used to stimulate their creative juices by lying down under piles of blankets to meditate. Schopenhauer once remarked that "My self is asleep when I do my most effective thinking, while my intellect is in a semi-trance." And Carlyle, explaining slumber, said, "The unconscious is the seat of the creative power, the conscious that of mere skill."

Sir Walter Scott, that prolific novelist, would often retire at night, have himself awakened at ten for breakfast — and the ideas for hours — and the ideas would promptly greet him the next morning. Alexander Woollcott, wise, Pascal used to lay paper and pencil by his bedside, and many nights he would awaken and start scribbling his famous "Pensees."

Tartini, the Italian musician, claimed to him in his dreams the one night dreamed an entire violin solo, "Devil's Trill," in an entirely different (and improved) version from that in which he had originally set it down. Coleridge, the brilliant Parisian mathematician, had the same experience with mathematical formulae.

Diogenes Laertes, the Greek historian, mentions a Stoic philosopher named Cleanthes who corrected philosophical treatises while sleep-walking, and Zwinger, the Swiss physician, was never at all.

But why go on? That copywriter deserved to be fired — not for doing at his desk, but for doing it during upon living in superiors the ancient, noble and highly creative tradition which he was following. How could he sell toothpaste or cigarets if he could not sell his own working habits?

Compare Two Pension Plans

Charlottetown Guardian

As noted in these columns recently, the Canada Pension Plan Mail called attention to disadvantages of the present old age security system as compared with the contributory system in operation in the United States. Perhaps it is a case of the grass always looking greener on the other side of the fence. In any case, the benefits under old age security in Canada payable to single persons or married couples compare favorably with those in the U.S., while the average amounts payable to married men and their wives is the U.S.*

Dr. Clark also points out that the average benefit is but a small percentage of average personal income in Canada being 10 per cent in the U.S. Finally, the percentage of the gross national product now paid out in old age benefits is almost exactly equal in the two countries.

The claim that there is no element of charity in the U.S. system, it further points out, is strictly contributory basis, seems also to be open to question. According to the chief actuary of the U.S. social security administration, however, if any, of the benefits beneficiaries have contributed an amount sufficient to purchase, on an actuarial equivalent basis, more than 10 percent of their benefits."

So who does pay? Present benefits apparently are being paid for by present contributors and by the benefit is largely forced upon future generations.

There is general agreement that the U.S. system has many advantages and that the Canadian old age pension plan could and should be improved. However, a change to a contributory basis is not the solution, and merely raises innumerable difficulties and inequities as shown in the Clark report.

This matter will doubtless receive a full airing in Parliament, and the more light that can be thrown upon it the better.

$127, but the average at the present time is $110 for a single person or $105 for a married couple. So a married couple in the U.S. get only $110 and would receive in Canada, in the middle of a similar period, the U.S. which is 30 percent higher.

I Quoted to this effect is Dr. Robert M. Clark's authoritative report to the government which states that "as of 1958, the benefits under old age security in Canada payable to single persons or married couples compare favorably with those in the U.S., while the average amounts payable to married men and their wives is the U.S.*

Dr. Clark also points out that the average benefit is but a small percentage of average personal income in Canada being 10 per cent in the U.S. Finally, the percentage of the gross national product now paid out in old age benefits is almost exactly equal in the two countries.

The claim that there is no element of charity in the U.S. system, it further points out, is strictly contributory basis, seems also to be open to question. So who does pay? Present benefits apparently are being paid for by present contributors and by the benefit is largely forced upon future generations.

There is general agreement that the U.S. system has many advantages and that the Canadian old age pension plan could and should be improved. However, a change to a contributory basis is not the solution, and merely raises innumerable difficulties and inequities as shown in the Clark report.

This matter will doubtless receive a full airing in Parliament, and the more light that can be thrown upon it the better.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

INDIVIDUAL TOLERANCES SHOULD GOVERN COFFEE HABITS

"Dear Dr. Molner: When I went to school (1918 to 1922) we were taught in hygiene that coffee drinking is unhealthy. Why is it now considered a healthy beverage?" — J.D.

That's a fair question, sir. Now that you mention it, I retail something more or less like that, years ago. I am under the impression that most of this sort of advice was aimed at young children and, in that, there was a certain amount of wisdom — for the youngsters.

Coffee (and tea, too, for that matter) contains caffein. Caffein is a stimulant, and stimulants are something that youngsters just don't need. A strong cup of coffee or tea will contain as much as a grain or a grain of caffein.

For adults, coffee (or tea) is another matter. We no longer have the effervescent bounce of the young. Can't afford it, really be living buzz-bombs?

In adulthood, a cup of coffee is a good pick-me-up. It mildly stimulates the heart and hence the circulation, and we are aware, a waker-upper for the brain, too.

Now the fact that a cup of coffee may keep you awake doesn't mean that you can drink large amounts of it without paying a price for it. Sleeplessness is indeed the "My self is asleep when I do my most effective thinking, while my intellect is in a semi-trance." And Carlyle, explaining slumber, said, "The unconscious is the seat of the creative power, the conscious that of mere skill."

Sir Walter Scott, that prolific novelist, would often retire at night, have himself awakened at ten for breakfast — and the ideas for hours — and the ideas would promptly greet him the next morning. Alexander Woollcott, wise, Pascal used to lay paper and pencil by his bedside, and many nights he would awaken and start scribbling his famous "Pensees."

Tartini, the Italian musician, claimed to him in his dreams the one night dreamed an entire violin solo, "Devil's Trill," in an entirely different (and improved) version from that in which he had originally set it down. Coleridge, the brilliant Parisian mathematician, had the same experience with mathematical formulae.

Diogenes Laertes, the Greek historian, mentions a Stoic philosopher named Cleanthes who corrected philosophical treatises while sleep-walking, and Zwinger, the Swiss physician, was never at all.

But why go on? That copywriter deserved to be fired — not for doing at his desk, but for doing it during working hours. He superiors the ancient, noble and highly creative tradition which he was following. How could he sell toothpaste or cigarets if he could not sell his own working habits?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE OVER-ALL HEALER

Everything in this earth has medicinal qualities hidden away. Scientists are aware of this fact and this has led to discoveries that have brought health back to thousands, and warned as many more.

Science see the cornerstone to knowledge is what lies hidden in the earth. For centuries interested men have been digging down into Nature, and that has made all the difference in the world to us. Every day, and deep into the night, devoted workers are in their laboratories, searching out the secrets of the world.

Many of these workers are in the employ of the great drug houses, and others are connected with universities, while still others, and a great number, are working on their own account. Some of us think that the latter type of research worker is the most interesting of all.

Just to take a walk through a big drug store is inspiration. The wild pungent odor of the pines stay with us, perhaps for years. The early settlers had no medicine men to go to when they themselves were any at all worth the name. Such concoctions as were used were nearly all made from the bounteous gift of Nature. My great Grandmother was one of these herbalists and I have an interesting book that she had written on the herbs, their names and uses.

Coming to the new theory the ape lost its hair beneath the sea leaving only enough on its body to protect it from the sun; it stood upright because of aqueous support; and it developed hands and hands feeling for shellfish and crabs.

Whether the theory holds water or not, we seem like the ape in points. Splashing about in the seas for some 500,000 years adds a question to questions and lovely life. Indeed judging by the present terrestrial unrest since, it may well have been an error for our sea-going ancestors to have decided to emerge. Many a time we have had the forlorn feeling of an ape out of water.

However, there seems nothing to do now but make the best of it. Let's face it, it's too late to dive back in. But at least we know where we are and must comfort homelike feeling when a plate of blueprints or boy scouts is set before us.

Blood at Chess Games

Believes Man Once Sea Ape

New York Herald-Tribune

He confess ourselves intrigued with the theory of a British zoologist that man descended from a hairless ape that lived in the sea for some 400,000 years. Since most of us have long since given up trying to "find" our origins, where mankind is going, it's only logical to concentrate on where it came from.

According to the new theory the ape lost its hair beneath the sea leaving only enough on its body to protect it from the sun; it stood upright because of aqueous support; and it developed hands and hands feeling for shellfish and crabs.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE BROAD WAY THAT LEADETH

A great English preacher once began a sermon with this story: "The other day I was going down the street," he said, "and I saw a drove of pigs following a man. This excited my curiosity and I decided to follow. I did so; and, to my great surprise I saw the pigs follow this man into the slaughter house. I was anxious to know how this was brought about; and I said to the man, 'My friend, how did you manage it?' 'Oh, I just put some bacon to induce those pigs to follow you there!' — 'Oh! Did you not see?' asked the man. 'I had a big ket of beans under my arm and

I dropped a few as I came along; and so the pigs followed the beans.' Yes," said the preacher; "and I thought, so it is that man has his baskets of beans under his arm, and he drops them as he moves. And what multitudes he induces to follow him to destruction."

We recall the words of Jesus that the broad and crowded thoroughfares lead to destruction. And, of course, there is a reason for this. The devil always has some inducement which causes souls to be willing to follow first time in seven days, and life was reported nearly back to normal.

HUNGER HELPS POLICE

Police appeared today to have smashed most resistance in other parts of the country. Their tough tactics against the strikers—and hunger among Negro families—have combined to force most of the workers back to their jobs.

The government is pressing its control over the Negro population by reinstituting the hated pass system.

But it has given some indication of trying to make the pass system more palatable to the Negroes, whose protest demonstrations against the identity papers three weeks ago drew police fire that killed 72.

In the unrest that followed the slayings the government suspended its requirement that all Negroes moving about in such "white" areas the big cities must carry identity books giving their identification, place of work and other personal details.

TO CHANGE STRESS

Justice Minister F. C. Erasmus said Wednesday, in announcing reinstatement of the pass requirement, that the government might consider "at some later date" such a way as to put more stress upon the idea that they are for the Negroes." He did not elaborate, and it appeared most unlikely that Negro leaders would accept any such argument.

Thousands burned their passes in jubilant demonstrations of victory when the pass laws were suspended. Officials said police would issue them temporary passes until the end of April.

Scattered violence continued.

Two churches were set afire early today in the Walmer Negro settlement near Port Elizabeth, on the Southern Cape, where incensed Negro agitators of setting the first to keep alive the race hate they have aroused.

More than 140 religious leaders — Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish—have issued an appeal for a day of prayer and penitence Sunday by all races to find "the right solutions to the problems of our country at this time."

DUTCH CHURCH JOINS

Among those joining in the appeal were leaders of the Dutch Reformed Church, largest in South Africa. Its leaders are members of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's National party belong. The church accepts the party's apartheid (racial segregation) policy, although it does not attempt to justify it on religious grounds.

World-wide indignation at the government's actions has shaken the British Commonwealth. A showdown may come when the Commonwealth prime ministers meet in London next month.

At least half of the 10 member governments are expected to support a resolution demanding the expulsion of South Africa unless its rulers ease race restrictions.

(CP Wirephoto)

There has been talk of the Verwoerd government withdrawing South Africa from the Commonwealth of its own accord. Verwoerd already is making moves to make the country a republic, retaining membership in the Commonwealth but no longer recognizing the Queen as the head of the South African state.

Another kind of pressure on the South African government is coming increasingly from businessmen, who feel that contribution of the crisis is cutting into their profits.

Some influential Afrikaner business leaders are reported considering an appeal to Verwoerd to consult with non-white leaders in search of a compromise.

Russia Proposes New Approach To Arms Problem

GENEVA (CP)—The Soviet Union proposed today that the 10-power disarmament conference break its deadlock by negotiating on the basis of the United Nations resolution which brought the talks into being.

This would involve dropping the rival Soviet and Western plans as a basis for discussion, Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin said. Neither side has been willing to base the negotiations on the other's plan.

Power Maintained by Diesel After Transformer Broken

Hydro service to the Bell Telephone exchange building at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets was out for over 12 hours last night after a car crashed into twin transformer poles outside the building, breaking one pole and pulling the transformer system out of commission.

Two hydro repair crews with three trucks worked throughout the night and it was not until after eight o'clock this morning that the damage was repaired and power restored to the building.

Mr. Grant Proctor, Bell Telephone manager at Belleville, said power service for the entire exchange building, including power for the telephone system and also for lights, was completely out.

However emergency diesel equipment cut in immediately the break occurred and telephone service was continued without interruption.

City police said that LaRue Thomas Burley, 17, of 21 Bonisteel Crescent, was westbound on Bridge shortly before eight o'clock last night and failed to straighten up his car after making a left turn onto Church St.

The car crashed into the twin transformer poles, breaking off one of the poles and striking the other with result that the entire power service to the Bell building was interrupted.

Damage to the 1952 model auto was estimated by police at about $500, while a passenger in the car, Susan Cunningham, 15, 181½ Albert Street, suffered a bruised ankle. The driver and one other passenger escaped injury.

Mr. D. H. Scott, manager of the Belleville Utilities Commission, said that most of the utility lines in the downtown area run throughout the night to repair the damage. Power was not restored to the Bell building until about eight o'clock this morning.

Mr. Proctor noted, however that emergency diesel equipment was completely adequate to supply power requirements for the exchange building regardless of the load.

Backyard Floods Spell Trouble For Landscaping

If your backyard stays pretty wet after rains, you should replant something more than additional trees and shrubs this spring.

That something is drainage. That is the opinion of Mr. Harold Hart, landscape horticulturalist with Hart Nursery Company. This spring's saturated soils can take a greater than usual toll in new plantings of young trees.

Newly planted trees are easy victims for the ravages of poor soil. In the first place, freshly planted trees are shorn of much of their root system and consequently dry out slower. Then, many young trees are planted at too low levels when they should be. Roots that are buried in water-logged soil are short on oxygen, which they need for their life processes.

Mr. Hart said that poor drainage is definitely the most serious problem in the landscaping field, field representative of the Hart Nursery Company.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

An enjoyable time was held at the home of Mrs. Frederick Cohen, Eldorado, last Saturday, when the family gathered to honor their father, David Cohen, who was celebrating his 80th birthday on Sunday.

He received numerous cards and gifts.

The evening was spent in cards and dancing.

Refreshments were served including a lovely birthday cake.

Hastings-Pr. Ed. Medical W.A. Plans Events

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society was held recently at the home of Mrs. J. N. Hart, Stanley Park Drive.

The president, Mrs. Morphy, called the meeting to order.

Extensive plans for the forthcoming Canadian Cancer and Salmon sale to be held the latter part of May in the nurses' new residence auditorium, were discussed. Mrs. Rota reported for the Health Week committee and to date the following merchants will assist: Mrs. Schwartz of Rachael's, will provide the fashions; O'Connor's Jewel Box, jewelry; Leslie's, shoes, Bata Shoe Co. Counsellor, make-up.

Mrs. Schwartz has arranged for the models: Stevie Dahl, Wendy Waters, Barbara Chaplin, Ellis Mahoney, Caroline Forhan, Mrs. Cathcart, Mrs. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Allen. Tweed will be the commentator.

Mrs. Schwartz has also arranged for a fashion article of wearing apparel to be drawn as door prizes.

Mrs. Ryley was asked to solicit from merchants. Mrs. J. Hart is to further publicize the fashion show and berate sale through the newspaper.

The April meeting will be at Mrs. Brock Nugent's, assisted with Mr. Johnny Meyers as the guest speaker.

The members were reminded that the bake sale would precede the April 14 dinner, thus beginning 3 o'clock.

After the meeting adjourned, a social hour was enjoyed.

Slate of officers for the year: Past president, Mrs. Doug. Ireland; president, Mrs. S. Morphy; vice-president, Mrs. J. Nelles; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Cronk; recording and press secretary, Mrs. A. E. Meyers; treasurer, Mrs. A. E. Miles.

Bride-to-Be Showered With Lovely Gifts

Last Saturday evening Mrs. Eleanor Wright was guest of honor at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Howard Cooke, for a bridal shower, arranged by Mrs. Don McInroy of Belleville and Miss Lois Cooke.

About 30 ladies, (neighbors, relatives and friends) gathered to spend this pleasant evening with Eleanor before her coming marriage.

As the guests entered, their gifts were placed on the dining room table which was under a large white bell, with pink streamers joining the bell to corners with a small bell at each corner.

Lois presided over a short program which she opened by reading, "A Bride's Prayer." Mrs. William Donnan led in community singing with Mrs. Lindsay Sills at the piano.

Mrs. Barton Haggerty and Mrs. John McInroy each gave readings and Mrs. M. Wolley favored with two solos with Mrs. Bruce Stapley at the piano.

Mrs. Lindsay Sills also favored with a piano solo.

Carolyn McInroy and Lois Cooke conducted several games and a contests which created much interest. Ever by put on apron slocking on, while wearing oven mitts on the hands and being blind-folded? Some fun for those watching.

ADDRESS GIFTS

After the contests, an address was read to Eleanor by Carolyn McInroy on behalf of those present, and Eleanor was invited to the dining room where she surveyed her gifts of various shapes and sizes, and found many useful and beautiful articles for her kitchen. Eleanor graciously expressed her thanks to the hostess and all her friends and invited them to visit her in her new home at Roslin.

Mrs. Cooke, Lois and Carolyn served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Ray Darrah, Marmora, and Mrs. Jim Carruthers, Corbyville.

The men were entertained at the home of Mr. Mac Sarles.

Blind Woman Awarded First Aid Certificate

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A blind woman, Mrs. William Leigh was motoring in the United States when a blizzard struck, came across a highway accident. A child lay injured on the pavement. No one in the Canadian car had first aid training and they had to stand by helplessly until an ambulance arrived.

That incident left Mrs. Burleigh determined to learn the first aid work, even though she is blind. She completed after a winter of training classes, she was awarded the first aid certificate by the St. John Ambulance Association's nursing division here. The divisional surgeon, Dr. Ian Cran presented to a blind person in Ontario.

Mrs. Burleigh has also completed a course in industrial nursing sponsored by the Brantford civil defence authority.

Her studies had to be crammed into an already-full schedule as housewife and mother of three small boil active boys.

Mrs. Burleigh, who became blind as a child, gives much of the credit in achieving her first aid certificate to her friend Mrs. Howard Shie, who studied with her.

"She has been of great value to me," she said. "She did all my reading and explained the pictures to me."

She learned to bandage by having the instructors guide her hands in the right movements. Sometimes they bandaged her so that she could follow every step. She would then undo the bandages and memorize the motions.

Mrs. Burleigh now intends to have her first aid books set in braille so that she can read them by herself. She also intends to keep taking courses toward her medallion and has offered her services to the Ontario School for the Blind here.

Choreographer David Adams Tells Women's Canadian Club There is a Definite Ballet Trend

Although records indicate ballet has been performed in Canada since as far back as 1838, there has never been "a real appreciation of it by Canadians."

This is the opinion of David Adams, premier dancer of the National Ballet Company of Canada, who addressed a combined meeting of over 100 members of the Women's Canadian Club and the Belleville Ballet Guild last night at Sir Winston Churchill Hotel.

The meeting was a special business meeting for the Belleville and district Women's Canadian Club, and was under the chairmanship of the president, Mrs. R. E. Tanner.

Mr. Adams, who was accompanied by his lovely wife, prima ballerina Lois Smith, told his audience that "only in the past five or six years has interest in ballet grown in Canada."

The Sadler's Wells "greats" who went there on a scholarship, said he believed the reason for this lack of acceptance of ballet in Canada, was because a great many people have not seen a ballet performance. He said that Canada's appreciation of dance of ballet and pre-requisite appeared some time ago.

The handsome, soft-spoken dancer and choreographer who began his career with the Winnipeg Ballet Theatre 21 years ago, said he feels there is a definite hope for live cultural entertainment in Canada, then in the United States where the theatre audience is slowly declining.

The building of large theatres all across Canada, over the past few years, have been built in the past four years, indicating a desire for more cultural entertainment on the part of the Canadian people," he said.

"It shows there is a definite trend — that Canadian people have arrived to go to the theatre," he stated.

Mr. Adams, who joined the National Ballet nine years ago, and is well known for his portrayals of "Prince Siegfried" in the "Swan Lake," and "Count Albrecht" in the classic "Giselle," said that ballet could create an aura of glamor which the audience enjoys.

"It is time Canadians create with their cultural endeavors a little glamor," he remarked. He added he did not mean movie glamor, but dedication of performers, but the "feeling of essence of glamor," the magic, glamorous atmosphere taken on by the theatre and performers when they are on stage.

"When Canadian audiences can think of the performers on stage as the characters they are portraying, and not as them-selves, then we will have come a long way toward appreciating the theatre," he said.

BALLET UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

Noting that ballet, the "universal language . . . which can be transferred from one country to another," is a longer history than most people realize. Mr. Adams said he plans to write a book on this subject which will deal with little known facts concerning its early history.

He disclosed one "little known fact" last night — the first time a Canadian ballet company has ever been seen outside Canada was in 1936 when a Toronto company performed at the Temple Grenier in Berlin.

At the conclusion of his address, he and his wife, both strikingly handsome and sartorially addicts, showed two groups of colored slides, for which they had taken themselves.

One group consisted of pictures of the Niagara Falls at every time of the year, and the other group of their St. Lawrence Market restaurant, Le Provencal, and beautiful scenes taken while on tour in Mexico. The second group consisted of scenes from various ballet performances, many of them taken while on tour, the audience since they were taken from the front of the stage. Included scenes from "Swan Lake", which starred Lois as the Swan Queen, the Nutcracker Suite

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

(SPECIAL QUESTION BOX FOR TEENAGERS)

Question: If you are dining in a restaurant with a group of your friends (all about 18 years of age) and a woman friend of your parents walks by your table, speaking to you as she passes, should you stand up?

Answer: No. If you stand in this case, it would mean that all the rest of the young people seated at the table also would have to rise. If the older woman does not stop (which she probably will), and simply says "Hello" as she goes by, you just smile, return the greeting and let it go at that. If she does make the mistake of stopping to chat, you have to stand all of you. Let's hope she doesn't, because it only makes for confusion.

Question: When meeting a blind date, should I introduce myself first or should the girl introduce herself to me?

Answer: Usually when going on a "blind date," the other boy will take you to pick up the girl that you do not know. Or it may be a girl who has asked you to escort a friend of hers. In either case, they are the ones who should introduce you to the girl. Should you be asked to call for a young lady, with the idea of joining the others later, you would introduce yourself upon arriving at her door. Saying, "How do you do? I am Jim Smith." She will take it from there.

Question: Is it proper for a girl to write to a boy, a very good friend, if she was the last to write to him and a long period of time has passed and he has not answered?

Answer: Definitely not. Wait for him to answer your letter. While his not having acknowledged your last letter seems rude simply to the fault we all have — putting things off — just might be that he wishes to break off your relationship. Just to be safe, and dignified, sit tight and let him take the next step.

Question: I am getting married in May. It is be a formal church wedding, followed by a big reception. Will you please tell me if it is correct to mail invitations to friends and relatives out of town as well as those in the town in which you live? Suppose you know that these people can't possibly attend?

Answer: By all means send invitations, to both the ceremony and the reception, to all of your out-of-town friends and relatives. By doing so you are making a gracious gesture which they will appreciate. They would actually be hurt if you didn't ask them, even if it is impossible for them to come.

Question: I am a divorcee. Perhaps this is a silly question, but I am worried about the hand on which I should wear my former wedding ring and engagement ring. Should I not wear them at all?

Answer: It is perfectly correct to wear the rings. They should be worn on the third finger of the right hand. If worn together, the wedding ring is usually placed on top of the engagement ring, becoming, in effect, a guard ring. If you were a widow, the rings would continue to be worn on the left hand, just as when your husband was alive.

Question: I recently gave a luncheon for twelve women at a large hotel. Before entering the dining room, my guests checked their wraps. Upon leaving, each guest secured her own coat, tipping the attendant herself. After it was over, I wondered if I should have tipped the cloakroom girl myself for all of my guests' wraps. Was I wrong in not?

Answer: Not necessarily. No harm was done by allowing your guests to pay their own tips to the cloakroom girl. However, it would have been more gracious if you could have quietly taken care of this little detail by asking your guests for their coat tickets, presenting them all to the girl, and at the same time tipping her.

Separates, Shirtwaists Are Favored

More individuality is the fashion rule among high school and college girls this spring. Where, formerly, campus fads often led to a sameness in dressing, now the girls are putting more stress on a personally becoming and somewhat different, look.

There is, of course, a fashion resemblance among them, since clothes for the young set reflect the general spring trends, with wide sleeves, many costumes, fuller skirts and paler colors notable. Each girl chooses from the season's favorite styles, then creates her own special flair of fashion.

The difference may come from the way new "separate" separates, designed for more mixing, less matching are put together, or it may be in the accessories chosen to accent a cropped-jacket suit, a Chanel-mood costume or a braid trimming coat.

Both high school and college agers give a high rating to shirtwaists and separates. They lead busy lives, needing clothes for school, for dates and parties, for sports, for leisure, for varied activities. Mixable separates can fill numerous wardrobe needs and a change of accessories makes a shirtwaist suitable for many different occasions. Costumes are liked for the same reason.

Since members of the young set always had a warm spot in their hearts, and a place in their wardrobes, for some bouffant-skirted fashion, they welcome the return of the wider skirts.

Cropped jackets over sheaths and Chanel-look jackets or easy tops over pleated young choices. Dressy feminine bouffants and well-tailored casuals are mainstays of the high schooler's wardrobe. She prefers short jackets for her suits and costumes, and normal, belted waistlines.

For variety, the college girl spices her wardrobe with an occasional lowered-waistline fashion. Cutaway jackets are a well-liked way of suggesting the longer torso.

SMOTHERED IN SNOW

KINGFIELD, Me. (AP)—A University of New Hampshire coed apparently smothered to death Monday while sleeping in a cave she dug into the side of a snowbank at Sugarloaf Mountain, Maine's premier ski resort. The body of Joan Bordeau, 19, was found by a fellow student Tuesday. She was one of 10 students who came here Monday on a camping trip.

Fete Couple With Party And Gifts

2ND OF SIDNEY — A very large crowd of friends and neighbors gathered at Harder's School on Friday evening, to honor the recent bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Frank White, who were married at Peterborough on March 12th.

Several tables of euchre were played while waiting for all to arrive.

Mr. Frank Sandercock, master of ceremonies for the occasion, brought the crowd to order, to allow Mrs. Paul Reid to read an address to the happy couple, wishing them many happy years together, and asking them to accept several gifts from their many friends and neighbors.

A lovely chair was presented by Mr. Frank Reid and Mr. Alfred St. Hilaire, two fine table lamps by Paul Reid and a smoker by Larry St. Hilaire on behalf of the neighborhood.

Mrs. and Mrs. Sine (nee June Meyers) of Frankford presented them with a personal gift of a beautiful cake plate.

Mr. and Mrs. White were taken by surprise as they thought it was just to be an evening for Mrs. White acquainted with everyone. It made them both very happy to know they had so many good friends and they thanked all very sincerely for kindness.

Dancing was then enjoyed after which refreshments were served.

Brioche — Fancy Breakfast Bun

by Mary Moore

The yeasty aroma of buns baking filled the house when Pete and Freddy and Doris came home from church. (Don't worry about my immortal soul. I went to the 9.00 a.m. service.)

The buns are called Brioche, and you may be familiar with them. The dough is so light and airy it may be used for a variation of croissants too. Croissants are universally popular because so many layers are exposed to the heat giving them a tender crustiness. This dough glazes well and could be used for many other varieties of buns too.

Follow the recipe carefully.

in centre of each large ball; dampen slightly with cold water and press small balls into the indentations. Cover. Let rise in warm place free from draft until more than doubled in bulk — about 1 1-2 hours. Carefully brush with mixture of 1 egg white slightly beaten and 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 15 to 20 minutes.

NOTE:

If desired the small balls of dough may be rolled in sesame seeds or finely chopped walnuts just before pressing them into the indentation in each large ball. This gives a toothsome variation.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Meat Balls in Chicken Gravy (see Wednesday); Noodles with Poppy Seeds or Oven French Fries; Fresh Frozen Green Peas; Shredded Fresh Pineapple; Fruit Bread; Tea.

SUNDAY

Kalaloum (a delicious African dish with Chicken and Vegetables — see Friday); Waldorf Salad with Almonds; Empire Torte (see Monday and Tuesday); Coffee.

BRIOCHE:

1-2 cup scalded milk, 1-2 cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 package granular yeast, 1-2 cup butter (part shortening if desired), 1-3 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 1 egg, separated, 3 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. In your big mixing bowl in which you are going to make the buns, soak the yeast in the lukewarm water with the sugar for 10 minutes. Stir. Meanwhile cream the butter and shortening until light, gradually adding the sugar and salt.

Add the lukewarm milk to the soaked and stirred yeast liquid. Mix. Add creamed butter and sugar and mix and stir. It will curdle but disregard this. Now add 1 1-2 cups of the sifted flour, 3 whole eggs and 1 yolk. (Reserve 1 egg white for glazing later.) Beat for 5 minutes. Beat in remaining 2 cups sifted flour and stir for 5 minutes. (The dough is stiff and difficult to stir. You may have to ask your husband or brother or son to give you a hand.) Scrape dough down from sides of bowl, cover with cloth that has been lightly sprinkled with water and let rise until doubled — 1-4 hours. Cover snugly with foil and put in refrigerator overnight. Stir down and turn out soft dough on lightly floured board or canvas. Cut off about 1-4 of the dough and set aside. Cut larger portion of dough into 18 equal pieces; form into smooth balls. Place in well greased muffin pans. Cut smaller portion of dough into 18 equal pieces; form into smooth balls. Make a deep indentation

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Tom D. — Dad won't help me with a loan.

Mr. E. D. — I want to see him get his comeuppance.

Tom D. — I am 22 and single and my only problems are job problems. I have no trouble getting them, but I do have trouble holding them.

The trouble is I'm the independent type. I guess my motto is "Don't fence me in." I won't be pushed around. I can't stand having some jerk who doesn't know anything about anything tell me what to do. I learn quickly and I don't want anyone standing over me.

As a result, I've had about a hundred jobs. There's no future in that. The only thing for me is to go into business for myself. I want to open a diner, but I need help from my dad. I want him to get a loan for me as I haven't been able to swing it. Dad refuses.

Mr. E. D. — I've always said the worst thing that ever happened to Tom was to be classified 4-F. He has a very slight disability, but the service wouldn't have him. I'd like to see him have to take orders from a tough top sergeant.

Well, that's water down the drain, but I still think Tom has to learn that everyone has to knuckle under to something or someone. I can't just ride roughshod through life. Maybe I'm a mean, selfish father, but I'd like to see Tom get his comeuppance.

His mother is on his side and she has been threatening to use some of her own money to help him. I've been talking myself blue to prevent her, but she always spoiled him and I expect she always will.

* * *

The Council: Mr. E. D. appears to be on the right track and we don't think his desire to see his son get his "comeuppance" is a mean or malicious one.

Tom is an irritating character, but we think his father is essentially interested in his welfare and wants to teach him to deal with life in reasonable terms.

Tom prides himself on his strength of will and character, but individuals like him are really very weak. They are victims of their emotions. Fear is the strongest motivating factor. Tom fears being overwhelmed by any authority.

A strong person accepts the fact that we must all take orders at some time. The strong person doesn't feel threatened by authority but accepts it in the natural course of things and tries to learn from those in power. In this way, he learns to take authority himself when the time comes.

Our guess is that if Tom got his own way and opened that diner he would make a mess of it. He thinks he would enjoy bossing others, but he would find himself completely unable to do it. At least, half the joy of disciplining others involves disciplining one's self, one's own emotions — and this Tom hasn't learned to do.

Psychologists believe that those who can't get along with authority have a built-in childhood pattern of resentment of one or both parents. The individual who hasn't gotten past both of these phases is simply not an emotional adult.

Tom should recognize that he is fortunate in having a father who understands his fundamental problem and is trying to get him to deal with it. He should set himself the task of conquering his childishness before taking on more responsibility than he can handle.

Shorthand Typist Branded Undesirable Relic of Past

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Firmly if ungallantly, the British shorthand-typist has been branded as an undesirable relic of a bygone age.

Two delegates to London's conference on office management planned the label of obsolescence on the faithful stenographer, calling for her banishment to the outer office and her enslavement to the earphones of a dictating machine, all in the interests of efficiency.

Not a voice was raised in the poor girl's defence.

Admittedly, one of the speakers had an axe to grind. He was an official of a firm that has more than a passing interest in the manufacture of dictating machines. But his indictment was damning.

TYPIST FOR WORK

"The average shorthand typist spends 80 per cent of her time on everything except the shorthand typing — for which she is highly paid—from answering telephone calls to getting cigarets or tuying theatre or rail tickets," he said.

The communications manager of a large industrial firm echoed his sentiments. "We must have efficiency," he argued. "And a shorthand typist is not an efficient person."

With depressing authenticity, the conference heard a description of a typical day in the life of the average boss.

He buzzes for his secretary. In she comes, crosses her pretty legs, poises her pencil over her notebook and awaits dictation. Then the phone rings.

Half an hour later the boss actually starts dictating. With luck, they may get through a couple of letters before lunch.

TRANSLATION HELP

In the afternoon, the girl returns to her desk, translates her shorthand into English with the help of her friends and puts on her employer's desk a reasonable facsimile of what he intended to say in the first place.

By this time, the boss is tied up with meetings and phone calls. He probably signs the letters without reading them, barely in time for the stenographer to shove them into envelopes and go home.

The average output of the shorthand typist, the conference was told, is 1,400 words a day. A relevant conversation.

Mother's Helper

TOTS or balls made of colorful sometimes rot dented in the normal (or rough!) course of play. But if they aren't cracked, they can be fixed by pouring boiling water over them until the dents disappear. This is especially useful in the case of table tennis balls. Not for plastic toys, though!

WOOLER MISSION BAND

WOOLER — The April meeting of the Wooler Mission Band was held on Sunday morning in the church basement.

Eighteen members answered roll call.

Mrs. N. Crosby and Mrs. J. Putnam were in charge. The meeting was opened with a poem, followed with the Mission Band Purpose in unison. The Missionary hymn, "The Mercy Mercy Children," was sung and Katherine Down led in prayer.

Mrs. Crosby took the roll call while Lorna Cole collected the offering with Jimmy Dehlile leading in prayer.

Mrs. Crosby took charge of the pre-school children and the Mission Band enjoyed the 9th chapter of the study book.

The April copy of "World Friends" was given each family, and interesting articles brought to their attention.

Ten members received their membership pins for memorizing their Purpose.

Pictures about Africa were coloured and the meeting was brought to a close by joining hands in a circle and repeating the Benediction.

Dolls as toys for children were common in ancient times in Greece, Rome and Egypt.

CAMPBELLFORD

Council Gets Into Argument Over Buying Flowers, Parking

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford ratepayers will have to wait another few days before they learn what the 1960 tax rate will be.

At the regular meeting on Monday night, during which the tax rate was to have been set, council became involved in lengthy discussions, with the result that the setting of the 1960 rate was left over to a special meeting, which will probably be held on Friday evening.

Members of the Seymour township council attended the meeting at the request of the town fathers, so that the two bodies could discuss the matter of Seymour contributing to the support of the overtaxed town coffers by paying a portion of the upkeep costs of the town dump. It was pointed out that the township does not have a proper dump at present, and township residents avail themselves of the town facilities by dumping refuse, which has at times included such items as dead animals and old machinery. While they were at it, members of the town council noted that Seymour paid nothing toward the upkeep of the local cenotaph, although the monument contains almost as many names of township servicemen who died in two wars and a police action, as those of Campbellford servicemen.

Seymour council members were sympathetic to the town's request for aid, and said that while they had their own problems, they would study the matter, and tell ure they were ready their way clear to contribute something in the way of money to both the dump and the cenotaph.

WELL STUDY REQUEST

F. R. Dennis, chairman of the Welfare and Senior Citizens' committee asked the township council if they would contribute to the summer swimming classes and the senior citizens' headquarters, as township residents also used these facilities without charge. The visitors said they would look into this matter as well.

Council took no action on resolutions received from the municipalities of Woodstock and Windsor.

The firm of C. W. Cochrane and Company presented the financial statement to council following their annual audit, and at the same time asked for council to approve a fee of $800 for the town audit, up $200 from last year. In addition the firm charges $400 for an audit of the PUC books. Council decided to ask Mr. Cochrane to attend the next regular meeting to discuss the increased fee.

A lengthy discussion followed receipt of a letter from the Chamber of Commerce, in which the Chamber made several suggestions as to how council could enforce the town's parking by-law and still retain the goodwill of the motoring public. A recent drive by police, during which a number of cars were ticketed for overtime parking, caused some ill feeling on the part of motorists, because of the fact parking regulations had not been enforced for many months, and a number of motorists felt that while they considered the by-law should be enforced, they should have been given some warning.

MAYOR PROTESTS

Mayor F.M. Rutherford spoke strongly against the Chamber letter, saying their letter was premature, and that they should have waited for council to discuss its own problems. He said the one-hour parking signs were up and that motorists could read them and obey them. Referring to the Chamber's advocacy of the use of warning cards for a short period and courtesy cards to tourists, Mr. Rutherford said otherwise did not do this, and that he felt the businessmen were the main ones who complained about the parking. He said he did not think much of an article in the Peterborough Examiner regarding the sudden enforcement of the parking by-law. He said it put council in a poor light.

Mr. Rutherford said he believed a notice should have been put in the local newspaper warning motorists that the by-law was to be enforced, but that he was going along with the police committee in their action.

It was finally decided to have council meet with the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the matter.

Council authorized payment of a levy of $237.51 to the Lake Ontario Development Association, based on a per capita fee of seven cents.

The Lions Club was granted use of the parking lot on Market Street for a carnival on July 14, 15 and 16.

A grant of $150 was authorized to purchase jackets for the OMHA Midget hockey team. A grant of $25 was made to the Canadian Cancer Society.

The clerk was asked to contact the town's insurance agent, asking him to bring in an adjuster to review a claim for damage arising out of an accident last December, when Mrs. Alex MacKenzie fell on a sidewalk and fractured her wrist.

Council decided at this point to leave the budget over until a special meeting later this week.

During the passing of the pay sheet, Reeve Free, chairman of the finance committee informed council that one item, an amount of $31 for flowers which had been charged to his committee, was done without his knowledge. A lengthy discussion revealed that the town clerk had been asked by Mayor Rutherford to purchase flowers for the opening of the new Bata shoe store a few weeks ago. Mr. Ibey, the town clerk said he felt that if flowers were to be sent to the Bata opening, they should also be sent to two other stores that opened about the same time. Seven dollars worth of flowers were purchased for each of the three stores.

Some members of council felt the taxpayers' money should not have been spent on flowers, and wondered where the line would be drawn in future. It was pointed out that probably council should also send flowers to anyone who builds or remodels a house. Mayor Rutherford said he felt it was good public relations to send flowers, and that council had spent much larger sums of money without haggling. He said the Bata shoe company had put on a banquet at which town officials were welcomed and he felt it was important to police to see that flowers were sent to their opening.

Councillor Ralph J. Locke said that officials of the Bata company had to be entertained by a private citizen on the occasion of the opening and that he felt the town should have done the entertaining. Mayor Rutherford said he had not been invited to the reception for the Bata officials.

A heated exchange between Mr. Locke and Mr. Rutherford developed during the discussion of flowers and the reception, but the exchange was shortlived.

Reeve Free finally continued with the reading of the pay sheet and council adjourned immediately.

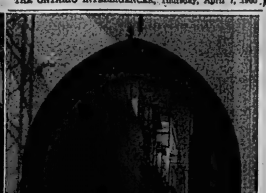
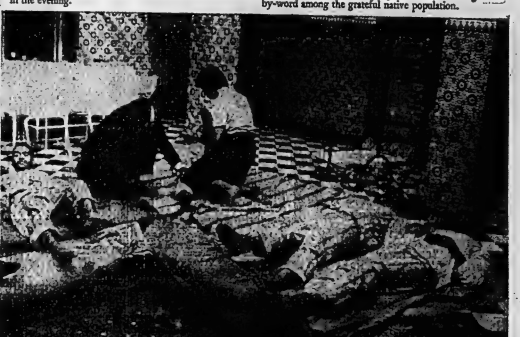
Canadians Aid Paralysis Victims



With Red Crescent in Morocco

A wheel of coloured beads holds the hopes of these determined young Moroccans as they work to restore life to limbs withered from the toxic effects of consuming airplane lubricating oil sold to thousands of unsuspecting natives as cooking oil. La maladie toxique, as it is known throughout Morocco, has crippled 10,000 men, women and children and new cases are turning up every day. An international team of Red Cross workers, 9 of them Canadians, has been working in the stricken areas since last August.

The one little cream-coloured ambulance, emblazoned with the red crescent-symbol of the Red Cross in Moslem countries—does yeoman service bringing paralyzed patients to treatment centres and returning them to their villages in the evening.



Physiotherapist Margot Joncas (right) of Montreal and Fanette Jacquet of Paris stroll down one of the narrow streets in the Arab quarter of Rabat. All of the members of the Canadian team are bilingual. "La Croix Rouge" is a by-word among the grateful native population.

Margot Joncas walks one of the paralysis victims assisted by nursing aide. A group of young Moroccan men and women are being given a "crash course" in physiotherapy in the hope that they will be able to take over when the Red Cross team leaves after a year's service.

Veiled Moroccan woman comforts her fretful child as she patiently waits her turn at the Meknes centre. In majority of cases partial recovery of atrophied muscles is expected. A fortunate few can look forward to complete recovery; a tragic minority will be crippled for life.

Winnipeger Dr. Max Desmarais, Director-General of the Red Cross operation in Morocco, discusses treatment for one of the more seriously afflicted patients at the Moulay Youssef Hospital in Rabat. Dr. Desmarais, who chairs the Department of Physical Medicine at St. Boniface in Manitoba, was asked by the Red Cross to head the team of 70 doctors, nurses and physiotherapists from Britain, Australia, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Germany, the United States and Canada.

Will Pay Tribute To Jack Miner In Wildlife Week

TORONTO (CP)—When Canada observes National Wildlife Week April 10-17 it pays tribute to Jack Miner who earned his first $5 as a boy trapping skunks and went on to become a world figure in wildlife conservation.

Naturalist Miner established what was probably the first bird sanctuary on the North American continent at his Kingsville home. He is credited also with doing more for wildlife preservation than anyone on the continent. His sanctuary on the Lake Erie shore 25 miles southeast of Windsor is still operated by his son Manley.

In 1947 Parliament enacted an annual National Wildlife Week to commemorate Miner's birthday April 10. He died in November, 1944, at 79.

Miner was a deeply religious man with a cracker barrel-type philosophy—"I'm going to live to be 100 or die in the attempt." He ranched and banded more than 32,000 wild Canada geese in his lifetime, inscribing on each band a post office address and a selected verse from the Bible.

RECEIVED AID

Through the bands he was able to study migration routes and give the world hitherto unknown details. He was always poor financially but continued the sanctuary through government grants and contributions from bird lovers.

Jack Miner was born in Dover Centre, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland. He was 13 when his family moved to Canada. He stated a trap line and earned $5 on his first skunk catch. It changed "my odor into financial fragrance," he once said.

His father had been a drain tile manufacturer in Ohio and Jack followed in his footsteps with a "one-horse tile yard." As the clay was excavated the cavity was made into an artificial pond for wild ducks and geese.

His first visitors were 11 geese in 1904 and in a few years the number had swelled to thousands. He invented a trap to catch the birds and caught as many as 300 at one time. They were kept only long enough to tag.

The Bible messages on the tags often were taken more seriously than intended. A Negro in the southern states shot one of the birds and took the verse as a heaven-sent message. It touched off a stirring revival in the community.

BOMB SCARE

NEW YORK (AP)—The police bomb squad rushed to the South African consulate in mid-Manhattan Tuesday after receiving word that an anonymous caller had reported an explosive in the building. No trace was found of a bomb.

MADOC

Men's A.O.T.S. Organized

MADOC — On Tuesday evening Bridge St. A.O.T.S. Men's Club of Bridge St. United Church met with 20 men of Trinity United Church, Madoc to Charter Trinity United Church A.O.T.S. M.C.

Everett Fairman of Belleville acted as chairman and started the dinner meeting. The Rev. H. W. Davis gave the invocation.

Don Williams was appointed Sergeant-at-Arms.

During the dinner, served by Trinity W.A., Mr. Fairman introduced the head table guests. Ivor Hughes led in a lively sing-song following the dinner.

Newt McFee, of Belleville, thanked the ladies.

Taylor Franklin led in a brief, but inspirational devotional, choosing the Bible Story in Luke's Gospel 23-27, where Jesus said, "I am among you as One that Serves."

Ron Rathburn carried out the installation of the charter members and Herb Brooks of Trenton, the installation of the executive as follows: president-elect, Archie Ashley; vice-president-elect, Wesley Hulin; secretary-elect, Ross Fleming; treasurer-elect, Bruce Shaw.

Eric Christiansen, of Trenton, presented the charter to president Ashley and E. Fairman presented the gavel.

President took over the meeting and after a few remarks called on T. Franklin to introduce the guest speaker, Mr. J. B. Leslie, of Belleville, who chose as his remarks, "Let's look in the mirror," and showed how one should look at himself and the church to find many ways to serve.

Thanks were expressed by Les. Boyle.

Warning System Necessary But Increases Chances of War Starting by Miscalculation

OTTAWA (CP)—Some authorities here are jittery as completion nears of the first of three missile warning radars.

They feel that this warning system is necessary but that, at the same time, it increases the chances of a nuclear war breaking out by miscalculation.

The big disadvantage of these 3,000-mile radars is that they can't identify flying objects. In other words, they can't distinguish between a nuclear-warhead intercontinental ballistic missile and a peaceful satellite.

In fact, normal interference caused by sun flares and the like might appear on the radar scopes as a missile in space.

SMALL SHARE

Canada is sharing in a small way in construction of the missile warning network. It is paying some $1,000,000 toward the cost of undersea land communication between the radar at Thule, Greenland, now nearing completion, and North American Air Defence Command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The second missile warning station is being built at Clear, Alaska, and the third will be erected at Fylingdales Moor in England.

This network is a stop-gap until the Nike-Zeus anti-missile Midas satellite which would provide warning of missile launchings in the Soviet Union.

SHARE CONTROL

Canada will share with the United States control of the missile warning radars because one missile warning can be misinterpreted picked up by the heavy radars and could be a threat to the entire U.S. command.

Norad is purely a defensive command and it would not be up to it to launch missile-and-bomber retaliation against the Russia. But there will be another display centre at Norad headquarters, command headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

Could the SAC commander or the president of the U.S. order retaliation before the radars were being positively what the radars showed?

Gen. Thomas Power, SAC commander, said last year he would not be able to retaliate against the strength of information being received from the warning radars.

"Sure as shooting," he said, "we'd get objects detected by the radars could well turn out to be 'spurious' interference or something like that".

WATCH BIRDS ONLY

CANADIAN CHARGED

HAMILTON (CP)—Bird watchers in Hamilton say they are not going to tell tales on city industries. Bob Elston, president of the Hamilton Naturalist's Club, said Wednesday the club's bird watchers are not going to follow a suggestion made by the federation of Ontario Naturalists that they become smoke-watchers.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police arrested Wednesday a youth who told them he had hitchhiked from Montreal and charged him with impersonating a police officer and attempted bank holdup. They identified him as Ernesto Lenzard, 19, who he told them he had fled from Acapulco Jan. 1 a few hours before his arrest.

Four Scientists, 1 Canadian-Born To Get Awards

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Four distinguished American scientists, one Canadian-born, have been named to receive the 1959 and 1960 Atoms for Peace Award for their contributions to transforming the atom into an instrument of peace.

The recipients are Dr. Leo Szilard, Hungarian-born professor of biophysics at the University of Chicago and co-author of the world's first nuclear reactor; Eugene Paul Wigner, also a native of Hungary, professor of mathematical physics at Princeton University; Walter Zinn, a Kingsser native who is vice-president of Combustion Engineering, Inc., and Alvin M. Weinberg, a Chicagoan who is director of the Oak Ridge National Lab o ratory at Tennessee.

The four men will share equally the $150,000 honorarium. The gold medallions symbolizing the award will be presented at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington May 9.

OUR DYING

Szilard may not be able to be present at the ceremony. He is a cancer patient in a New York hospital, and last December refused surgery lest it interrupt his work and his writing. He explained: "I have been told that I may not have long to live."

Dr. James R. Killian, chairman of the trustees of the award, said each of the four has been a leader in the development of nuclear reactors.

The 1959 award will be shared equally by Szilard and Wigner, while Zinn and Weinberg will divide this year's honors.

The fund was established in member of Industrialist Henry Ford and his son Edsel.

Zinn, for 19 years director of the Argonne National Laboratory at Lemont, Ill., aided in developing the "fast breeder" reactor and the boiling water reactors. He was on the team that built the first successful atomic pile, and he designed and built the first heavy-water reactor.

Tunnel Tragedy Again Revived In Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — The tunnel tragedy in suburban North York that claimed five lives March 17 was brought up in the legislature again Wednesday.

Labor Minister Daley, who has come under heavy criticism for not revising safety regulations more often, told the House that a study of regulations in other jurisdictions now is under way.

"We want to know if there is something wrong with our regulations," he said.

The issue was raised by CCF Leader MacDonald who asked if the labor department would withdraw "faulty copies" of the regulations governing persons who work in compressed air conditions. The regulations have not been revised since 1944.

WRONG WORD?

He said newspaper reports indicated the fatal accident was wrong in its regulations setting out the decompression rate for workers. The word "minimum" is used for the decompression rate when it should read maximum, certain labor authorities claim "minimum" is wrong.

Premier Frost said he would have a legal opinion in a day or two as to whether the regulations are correct.

Daley said he had read the regulations carefully, and "from a layman's point of view, I got the impression that the word minimum is the correct one."

Frost answered says minimum or maximum doesn't really matter," Mr. Daley said. "And if there is anything to do with the Hogg's Hollow tragedy.

We have a duty as Province Columbia and the state of Maine have exactly the same wording."

REGULATIONS SET DOWN

Mr. Daley said the department had definite regulations protecting workers and they are expressed air.

"It's definitely stated that a man working under 15 pounds pressure can only work for four hours. Then it takes five minutes for him to get through the air locks . . . after that he must rest one hour in the open before returning to work."

However, because of the tragedy "we are going to New York and to study their regulations. We want good regulations. . . . We want regulations that would remove the word "minimum" from the regulations and not substitute it there after a study is stitute it until after a study is made. But the regulations still made. But the regulations still stipulate the necessary amount of pressure reduction per minute.

Liberals Jeer As CCF Bans Trading Stamps

REGINA (CP)—Legislation by Saskatchewan's CCF government aimed at banning trading stamps sparked jeers and a rare thirdreading debate in the provincial legislature Wednesday night.

The house, primed to prorogue Wednesday, was forced to meet again today to continue debate on the proposal.

The measure would license retailers in the province. The government would not be able to cancel a retailer's license if he was convicted if an offence involving trading stamps.

Retailers would have recourse to a committee composed of retailers, a government representative and a municipal representative. Decision of the provincial Court of the Queen's Bench would be final.

The opposition made repeated objections Wednesday night when Attorney-General walter Erb viewed at length the briefs concerning the legislation.

At one stage most of the 14 Liberal members left the assembly. They jeered, laughed and held books during the Attorney-General's speech.

CALLS IT 'A LIE

Lawyer Mary Batten, Liberal member for Humboldt, delivered a blistering rebuttal for the opposition. She called the bill a lie because it would license retailers rather than control trading stamps.

"I don't think I have ever been more ashamed of being a lawyer until tonight," she said. "I am ashamed at being a member of the profession which houses the attorney-general."

"If the Criminal code cannot stop something that is illegal, then this government will," said Premier Douglas. He said the bill will be proclaimed if the Supreme Court of Canada rules trading stamps are not covered in the Criminal Code.

OLD COLLECTIONS — George W. Bannister of Ottawa looks over some of the 1,500 firearms in his private museum. Over the years he has collected stuffed leopards, animals and birds, half a ton of elephant tusks, armor and 200,000 stamps. Little of it is catalogued and he has practically no idea of its value. Most of it was picked up during his travels. (CP Photo).

Three Rooms on Two Floors Filled With Interesting Items

OTTAWA (CP)—The new carvings, an extensive coin collection and some 200,000 stamps, including a half dozen rare British blacks.

IVORY CARVINGS

What Mr. Bannister regards as his prize is in a glass cabinet in another part of the house —a collection of superb ivory carvings from the Far East.

Mr. Bannister's wife Nellie, points up her husband's laxity in cataloguing his collections.

"Sometimes," she says, "I have an old hat or something I want to get rid of. I just take it into the museum and hang it on an antler or something. He never knows the difference."

Mr. Bannister is rather vague about the origin of some items. Asked to identify a pistol at random, he said, "Oh, that's a flintlock from southern Europe —very old."

But he did know that one set of dueling pistols had once belonged to Philemon Wright, the founder of Hull, Que.

ETNA ERUPTS

CATANIA, Sicily (AP)—Mount Etna, Europe's tallest volcano, erupted Wednesday night, after four months of relative quiet. Showers of ashes from the cone of the 10,705-foot volcano could be seen in this Sicilian resort all the way to Messina.

No villages were in immediate danger.

PAINTINGS STOLEN — The Hamilton Art Gallery was Tuesday night robbed of 11 paintings worth $38,800. Identification officer Reg Marratto of the Hamilton police checks frames and glass for fingerprints of the thieves. (CP Wirephoto).

Coast-to-Coast Walk Proposed

LONDON (Reuters) — British marathon walker Barbara Moore has packed 18 pairs of shoes in preparation for sailing today to make a coast-to-coast walk in the United States.

The 56-year-old hiker will fly from New York to San Francisco next week and there start her 3,200-mile walk across the country.

Also in the luggage of the 80-inch six-born dietitian are three silk suits and a lace extractor.

The strictly vegetarian Dr. Moore explained she planned to live only on grass and fruit juice while trekking to New York via Washington.

She told reporters:

"I have always believed that mankind could be nourished on a diet of grass, which grows everywhere, but I have never had the opportunity of putting it to the test under conditions of great exertion."

Dr. Moore, who earlier this year made a 999-mile cross-Britain hike, added: "Except for buying a little fruit, I shall not have to make any preparations for feeding, as my meals will grow on the roadside."

Quebec's Canadianism Not Based on Religion, Language Say Sources Close to Scene

OTTAWA (CP)—The argument by Douglas Fisher, CCF member for Port Arthur, that Quebec's Canadianism is based on religion and language is contrary to the facts, say sources close to the Quebec scene.

Mr. Fisher said in the Commons last Friday that French-language Canadians seem to be enmeshed about their Canadianism.

They impose on other Canadians, he said, an interpretation of Canadianism that he and many members of the Commons could not accept.

"It seems," he said, "that the contradistinction between their kind of Canadianism and ours is that theirs is French-Canadian based upon language and Roman Catholic religion and, perhaps, so on the other hand we have to be Protestant and English-speaking."

It is erroneous, observers here say, to claim that French-language Canadians want to impose their language and religion on the rest of the country. What they would like, they say, is the respect of the rights guaranteed to the province by the constitution, the recognition that bicultural and bilinhic character of the country.

Mr. Fisher spoke as the House debated a resolution preparatory to the introduction of a bill establishing an alternative to the payment of federal grants to universities. This alternative method would consist in the transfer of a recovery a one-per-cent tax on corporation income for financial assistance to universities.

Some observers in the capital do not hesitate to accuse politics Mr. Fisher lacked skill in expressing his views.

Coming as they did on the eve of a general provincial election in the Province of Quebec, they are likely to help the Quebec CCF leader in the election a number of candidates.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue and Quebec CCF Leader Michel Chartrand have said Mr. Fisher's views were his own and not those of the party.

Observers say, the statement will not make things easy for the CCFC, which has had earlier co-operation from the CCF candidate has been nominated in the Quebec House.

Mr. Fisher said he will come back to it later, presumably when the bill comes up for debate in committee. Probably will be after the Easter recess.

Number of Foxes In Province Is Increasing

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender said Wednesday night he is surprised at the number of foxes in the province.

Questioned by Leo Trey (L—Nipissing) about the $50,000 set aside for fox bounty in the department's estimates, he said the program introduced last year with an estimate of $8,000 was so successful the amount had to be increased.

To combat the spread of rabies, Ontario pays a $3 bounty, matched by municipalities. More than 16,000 foxes were killed last year and the province paid out $32,000.

Hamilton Man Sent to Jail On 14-Yr.-Old Liquor Count

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—A furore has risen here over the jailing of an Ontario man 14 years after his conviction.

John Allan Morrison, discouraged by his circumstances as a Maritimer, headed west 14 years ago in greener pastures while a conviction for possession of a still was being appealed.

Without knowing the outcome of the appeal, he settled in Hamilton, got a job with the Steel Company of Canada and started climbing the economic ladder.

He never knew the appeal was very happy. I was getting along fine on the job and my salary increased over the years from $3,500 to $7,000 a year."

Then he went to jail here to serve his six-month term for the possession charge. He still owes a fine of $500 when convicted 14 years ago.

Last March 28 RCMP picked him up in Hamilton and escorted him to Sydney.

Morrison, 33, was staggered. He said his lawyer had dropped the case and he figured the whole situation had been "straightened out."

"I didn't try to conceal my identity," he said in an interview Wednesday. "I used my right name."

Morrison related how he was touched by the long, long arm of the law:

"I was told there were two men waiting to see me. I thought they were car salesmen. That's what they looked like.

"They told me they were RCMP. One of them pulled out a warrant for me, in his pocket and put it in my hands.

"If they had shot me there and then I wouldn't have felt any worse.

"They told me the warrant was sent from Sydney and that I would have to come along with them. . . .

"My lawyer told me he would appeal the case on his own. Then he told me to go out and try to get a job and I would be notified if anything came of the appeal."

"I tried to get a job but it was tough. I didn't know what I would work for me here."

Morrison said the appeal was made May 14, 1946, and that he was released pending decision, which he never heard the decision until last week. Records show the appeal was dismissed by the county court.

Efforts are being made in Ottawa to get Mr. Morrison's release, Lawyer A. O. Gunn of Sydney, who described the arrest as "colossal stupidity" if ever came across," has been in touch with the justice department.

Don McInnis, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Cape Breton South, has taken the matter to Justice Minister Fulton.

Morrison was considered because he has a job in Hamilton. Friends there have offered to pay the $500 fine.

Benoit Bouchot, secretary of the National Parole Board, said Wednesday night he is expected to go before the board in the near future.

"We are rushing inquiries concerning the case but the file is not yet complete. We are doing everything possible to get it cleared up quickly. . . ."

"As a police force we have no alternative but to execute an existing warrant," an RCMP spokesman said. "It's a court order and we must obey it."

Inspector L. J. Glendenning, commanding Sydney RCMP subdivision said:

"There was no reason to withhold the warrant. We are always picking up fellows on old warrants, although I will admit 14 years is unusual."

C. M. Rosenblum, who represented Morrison at the trial and launched the appeal, described the recent arrest as "iniquitous. . . . Anything having to do with liquor seems to be regarded more seriously than any other crime."

Mr. Gunn said: "This man was only a boy when he got into trouble. He didn't know what was happening or the implications and he moved to Hamilton."

Morrison, who lived in a boarding house in Hamilton, commented:

"I had 12 years seniority on the job. I don't know what will happen to me if I stay here for six months."

19 Yr.-Old Runaway Heiress Finally Gets Her Sweetheart

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Heiress Camilla Bernadotte has married her Romania-born sweetheart after kicking over family and legal obstacles in a two-day game of hide-and-seek in the Carolinas.

The 19-year-old New York girl and Andre Porumbeanu, 24, were wed in a five-minute civil ceremony at a remote mountain lodge near here late Wednesday.

A couple slipped into this resort center in the afternoon, got back the required physical examination and blood tests at a local hospital.

At the office of deeds registrar Marshall Watterson there was some question as to whether a marriage license would be issued in view of Porumbeau's Mexican divorce obtained March 15.

Watterson called in lawyer Arthur Reddoe, who consulted by telephone with the state attorney-general's office. That cleared the issuance of the license.

Redden then offered his mountain cabin for use as site for the wedding, and Magistrate Fletcher Roberts was called to perform the ceremony. Other civic leaders of the community joined the party, but no relative of either the bride or bridegroom was present.

"They seemed to be very much in love," said the 68-year-old Roberts.

The couple skipped off to Paris Christian season, and said they wanted to get married there, but family pressure led French authorities to send the girl back home. She was made a ward of a New York court as a wayward minor. She was 18 then. Porumbeanu, a former chauffeur, came back to the United States later.

The brief ceremony climaxed a hectic 24 - hour period during which the couple were thwarted in their efforts to get married. S.C. A marriage licence was refused after receipt of a telegram from Magistrate Feler Horn of New York who said Gamble is a ward of his court and prohibited from marrying without the court's consent.

Porumbeanu slipped out of New York, where he had been working as a hairdresser, last month and obtained a divorce in Juarez, Mexico from Mrs. Madi Helena Porumbeau, 32, mother of their child Dgil.

Mrs. Porumbeanu, when told of her husband's new marriage, said Gamble "is a very poor, unfortunate girl" who is in for a lot of trouble.

Mrs. Katherine Benedict, Gamble's grandmother, said custody of her Remington typewriter fortune, refused to comment.

Silent Member of Parliament, Liberal Critic of Postal Service, Gets Many Laughs

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Aseltine Denis, for nearly 20 years a silent member of Parliament, now has developed a standard technique for getting the Commons' attention—and a measure of laughter.

It is to ask Postmaster-General William Hamilton about the latest post office robbery or some sign of laxity in department security.

The round-faced, 52-year-old lawyer who represents Montreal St. Denis, is chief Liberal critic of the postal service.

He rose in the Commons recently to quiz Mr. Hamilton about a newspaper picture showing a mailman leaving his mailmobile a scooter-like delivery cart-at the curb on his mail route.

CHANCE FOR THEFT

Wasn't there a danger that someone would steal the mail, Mr. Denis asked, adding that a truck was recently stolen, with the driver in it.

No, said the postmaster-general, the mail was locked up in the rear portion of the scooter. Mr. Denis must have looked at the mailmobile just from the front end.

Maybe, Mr. Denis continued, a thief would take off with the mail and scooter as well.

"There are few people in Canada capable of carrying away 500 pounds of mail plus the scooter," Mr. Hamilton replied.

"I don't suggest that the postman should climb up the several flights of stairs with the scooter or his back," said Mr. Denis.

SPEAKER INTERVENES

"The question in my mind," interjected Speaker Roland Michener, trying to bring order to the laughing chamber, "is whether the subject will be exhausted before the House is."

In becoming something of a parliamentary specialist on post office robberies, Mr. Denis is returning the kind of criticism that Mr. Hamilton used to make of his Liberal predecessors. Mr. Hamilton, on the other hand, says he enjoys the fun as much as Mr. Denis does.

"I have never felt there was the slightest bitterness or animosity between us," he said after the recent exchange "... I like him personally. He's a raconteur par excellence."

But he makes one reservation. "If I can be humorous as well as give information I do so; but the Commons is not a place in which the amusement of members is the primary consideration of a minister."

For his part, Mr. Denis feels his constituents are more interested in federal services that affect them personally—such as

POSTAL CRITIC

After nearly 23 years of service in the House of Commons, Aseltine Denis, Liberal MP for Montreal St. Denis, has become a voluble critic of Canada's postal service. mail delivery — than in many more sophisticated fields of federal activity such as defence and foreign affairs. And he pays tribute to Mr. Hamilton as "a very intelligent chap—foxy, but a hard worker."

Mr. Denis, of medium height and stocky build, is one of the Commons' few survivors from the 1935 general election. He succeeded his brother, Arthur, a physician, who had held the St. Denis constituency from 1921 until his death in 1934. He is married but has no children.

Of the fact that he seldom spoke during previous years in Parliament, he said: "People elect a member to look after their business, not to make speeches. I agree with Bob McGregor, dean of the House and Conservative MP for York East since 1926), who says you are not re-elected because you just talk."

INCOME TAX PICTURE — Although no change in personal income tax was contained in Finance Minister Fleming's federal budget, Canadians will pay a bit more than they did last year. Graph traces the total income tax paid on a $5,300 yearly income by a married man with two children.

Although the rates for 1959 and 1960 are unchanged he will actually pay more in 1960 because an increase in old age security tax, in force for only the last half of 1959, will be in force for a full year.

The increase cost him $12 in 1959 and will amount to $24 for 1960. Graph shows a peak tax of $1,662 in 1943 but this included a $600 refundable portion which was returned after the war. A refundable portion of $300 was levied in 1942 and 1944. (CP Newsmap.)

Experts Divide On Use of Breath-Analyzer

TORONTO (CP) — A magistrate, police and traffic safety experts are divided on use of a breath - analyzer, a device for measuring alcoholic content of a person's breath.

Compulsory breath analysis tests could lead to compulsory tests by a lie detector or truth serum tests, Magistrate A. D. Barron of Kitchener told the Ontario Traffic Safety Conference Tuesday. He added he didn't believe a substantial number of injured and drunken driving convictions would result if breath-analyzers were given official support.

Police Inspector John Murray of Toronto favored the device, saying a driver wasn't being compelled to incriminate himself by undergoing the test. Police Sgt. J. H. Robinson of Hamilton said the British Medical Association had endorsed the breath-analyzer and said there is a bill before the British House of Commons to authorize its compulsory use.

But Dr. Grace Eccleton, English physiologist and college professor, said in London Monday the device could be right only half the time. In Toronto, D. M. Lucas of the Ontario attorney-general's department said 3½ years of operation had proved the instrument accurate within its specifications.

In other conference business, a panel was told that most, if not all, four-way-stop intersections in Ontario have been illegally established, even though officially approved.

R. D. Cowley, a transport department traffic engineer, said the Ontario Highway Traffic Act made no provision for such use of signs. But he said his department will not make municipalities change their signs.

Transport Minister Yaremko said the act is being amended to allow greater freedom in position-ing stop signs.

Rouyn Makes Johnny Horeck Swallow Pre-Game Boasts By Walloping Maroons 10-2

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — The David from the North is beating the Goliath of the South, and viciously too, in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-final.

Rouyn-Noranda Alouettes hammered 10 goals past Chatham Maroons' famed goaltender Cesare Maniago for a 10-4 victory and a 3-0 lead in their best-of-five series. The next game will be at Chatham Friday.

The Alouettes' victory came after Maroons' coach John Horeck had boasted that Als' top-scoring forward Cliff Connelly couldn't make his team, Alouettes couldn't make a Southern Ontario Junior B final and that Maroons would win the game by 10 goals.

His remarks followed a 3-2 win by Alouettes in the opener on Tuesday.

Connelly, who scored seven goals in three recent semi - final games against Sudbury Combines, showed he could score just as well against the southern champions by firing four.

Val Mitchell, Ernie Dominico and Gord Guimet each scored pairs of goals for the winners, while the Chatham tallies were by Gary Sharpe and Frank Battaile, both scoring while Als were shorthanded.

Rouyn-Noranda led 3-0 at the end of the first period and 4-1 at the end of the second. The game was watched by about 2,500 fans, 300 more than were at the opener.

The winner will play the victor of the Amherst Ramblers - Hull Lagniaires best-of-five series which Amherst leads 2-1.

In Western Allan Cup play, Trail Smoke Eaters beat Port Arthur Bearcats 4-1 and lead 3-0 in their best-of-seven final.

Third game will be played in Trail Friday with the series winner advancing to the Allan Cup final.

Hal Jones, recruited from Rossland Warriors of the Western International League, Laurie Hawkshaw, Norm Lenardon and Frank Turik shared the Smoke Eater scoring.

Captain Peter Johnson scored late in the first period for Port Arthur, the Lakehead team's first and only goal of the series.

As New York Goes, So Goes Third League

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York club of the Continental League named its officers and general manager Wednesday and said it expected to take a giant stride on April 27 towards getting a new ball park.

That's when New York city's board of estimate votes on whether to approve a $40,000,000 appropriation for final plans and specifications for a $18,000,000 stadium in Flushing Meadow that would seat 55,000.

"I'm confident it will be passed," said Bill Shea, chairman of Mayor Wagner's baseball committee and founder of the third major league. "If it's not passed, we're done in New York and so is the Continental League. As New York goes, so goes the league."

Charles Hurth, president of the Southern Association for the last 13 years, was named the first general manager to be picked in the league.

Donald M. Grant of New York, who said he represented the club's largest stockholder, Mrs. Charles Payson, is the president.

'Sliver's Pain In the Neck Still Persists

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)— Ted Williams still is wondering whether a throbbing pain and aging bones will carry him through another baseball season as a Boston Red Sox regular.

"The neck is neither better nor worse," the 41 - year - old slugger said Wednesday. "I still don't know what I'm going to do this year."

If hard work will prolong Ted's major league career, he could take over left field now. He has never toiled longer than he has this spring.

But the neck ailment, which dragged Williams from the lofty heights of American League batting championships in 1957 (.388) and 1958 (.328) to .254 last season, persists.

He is hitting .269 spearing in 14 of Boston's 21 exhibition games. His age is plaguing him in the form of the worst weight problem he has faced.

"I haven't even thought of Ted's neck since he reported," said manager Billy Jurges. "The weather has been hot and it should do something for an ailment of that nature. All I know is that Ted has worked hard and we'll just have to wait and see what develops."

Jurges looks for no more than 75 games from Williams. He wants to alternate him and 36-year-old veteran Bobby Thomson in left.

"We really need him," Jurges said. "Ted not only is important to us, he is important to the game of baseball."

Sam Snead, Amateur Champ Go Hot in Masters Prelims

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Sam Snead and the 29-year-old United States amateur champion, Jackie Nicklaus, rode the hottest streaks into today's opening round of the 24th Masters golf tournament.

A field of 84—37 professionals and 17 amateurs who compose the world's "who's who" of the fairways—starts the four-day, 72-hole test today.

Snead whipped up for a go at his fourth Masters title by winning an inaugural preliminary tournament.

Nicklaus, a tow-head Tarzan from Columbus, Ohio, rocked the game's elite with a brilliant final practice round of 66, six under par. He announced afterward: "I'm not here for the amateur prize—I want to win the tournament.

For those who try to handicap a golf tournament the way they would a horse race, Snead and Nicklaus are high in favor. But Arnold Palmer, the adviser favorite at odds of 6 to 1 and the year's leading money winner with $200,000-plus and four tournament victories on his belt, is still the solid pick of most players and spectators.

A foreigner never has won this prized event but 23 - year - old South African Gary Player—15-to-1 in odds—said: "With a break here and there, I think I could do it."

There are 19 foreigners in the select field, including the always formidable Stan Leonard of Canada.

Royals, Lions Series Tied

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goal - scorer Skippy Burchell and goal-stopper Gerry McNeil contributed the major part to Montreal Royals' 4-2 victory over Trois-Rivieres Lions Wednesday night, tying the best - of - seven Eastern Professional Hockey League semi-final at 2-2.

The seventh game will be at Montreal Friday, and the winner faces Sudbury Wolves in the EPHL finals.

Burchell scored three of Montreal's four goals. Reg Gray added the other.

Brothers Dave and Chick Saron got one each for Trois-Rivieres.

An important part in maintaining the Royals' lead, which began with Burchell's first goal in the third minute of the game, was played by McNeil who stopped 28 shots compared with 30 by Lions Claude vans.

Cougars Whip Canucks 4-2; Goyer Scores

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Victoria Cougars scored their sixth consecutive Western Hockey League playoff victory Wednesday night, whipping Vancouver Canucks 4-2 before more than 5,000 fans.

The victory gave Cougars a 3-0 lead in the best-of-nine final with the third game also scheduled for here tonight.

The game, played in the 16,000-seat Los Angeles Arena, marked the first time a WHL final was played away from the home rinks of the participating teams.

The two-game California trip is hoped to give a good picture of the possibilities of expanding to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The Victoria scoring was shared by George Ford, Gerry Goyer, Doug Anderson and Art Jones.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight the world champion Montreal Canadiens start what should be a rather brief safari in quest of their fifth straight Stanley Cup capture.

Too Blake's cup custodians who appear to have given the honored old mug a life-sentence, should be in good shape after that Bronco-bustin' Boston tea-party, and should be leading their championship shenpers shortly after the fifth game is in the archives—if not before.

That, at least, is the opinion of Art, "The Toe", Peever, who the Cook-O'Meara-Herrington-Mocreau clan claims is the Quinte private optic for the Habs.

The Peever prophecy, given the other night between hugs galore of his favorite beverage, "Some Like it Hot" pea soup, is "We'll trim 'em the first two in Montreal, win the third and t'row the fourth in Toronto, then knock off the mug in Montreal Saturday night."

"But," somebody said, "Mr. Imlach and now Mr. Clancy who has joined the Maple Leafs crystal-gazing corps and is blessed with equally resonant tonsils, state the series will go to seven games and the Leafs will win it. How about that?"

"The Toe" turned almost as green as his favorite thirst-quencher. He spat out a trio of black peas, being a segregationist, and trilled in his best bleachers' baritone, "Wadda those bums know about hockey? Take away Bower and wadda they got. They got no business being in the finals. They didn't have horsehoes. They had Bower and a bunch like him."

We will go along with part of that. Like Chatham's Johnny Horeck in the OHA senior finals, the Leafs had a little luck and a lot of goalie on their side, with the latter swinging the pendulum of ultimate victory.

The fewerer it Imlach and Clancy brough their verbal calisthenics on get the Leafs up for this series—they certainly weren't that way in the semi-finals—the set might go all the way. But the result won't be any different.

Imlach didn't finish in the money in his maiden race in the Crystal Gazer Stakes last year. The swami's initial predictions were badly punctured. He called the Leafs to take the Canadiens in four straight that season, his mental flames fired to heights, no doubt, by Toronto's meteoric finish in the fight for a playoffs berth, and their elimination of Boston. Instead, it had to watch the Habs earn its Leafs up in five tussles.

This season he called Toronto to take the Red Wings in five—but after what happened retired into his shell and conceded that the Wings took a pair and might have taken it all except for the sensational goaltending of Bower.

But now after a few days' rest and watching the Leafs rip through tough practices without turning a hair, his confidence has been restored. He has started the limb-creaker limb again, but has enlisted the services of King Clancy, who apparently doesn't mind what he says, prediction-wise, as long as it helps the morale of the team.

"We'll take 'em," roared the King. "The series will go seven games—but we'll win it. And if we don't there will be no alibis."

Now that is a very pleasant thought, Mr. Clancy.

Meanwhile down Montreal way, Coach Toe Blake, who generally has something to moan about, is quietly confident—over the outcome, yet is not selling the Toronto opposition short.

"I know the Leafs will be up for this series," he said. "They lost to us last year in the finals and they'll be giving an extra effort this time to atone for it. But our fellows know what it's all about and I'm sure they like the money just as much as the Leafs. I'm not worried about them being up for the series."

The first two games of the finals will be played in Montreal tonight and Saturday. The next pair of games is scheduled for Toronto next Tuesday and Thursday with the fifth slated for Montreal the following Saturday.

White Sox, Indians, Yankees Winter Deals Looking Good

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago White Sox traded for Gene Freese and Minnie Minoso in a bid to retain the American League pennant. New York Yankees acquired Roger Maris in a move to regain it and Cleveland Indians dealt for Bubba Phillips and bought Bob Hale to try to win it.

All those winter deals looked good Wednesday in spring training games.

Freese and Minoso had two of the three hits that produced the White Sox' runs in a 2-0 victory over Detroit Tigers at Sarasota, Fla. Maris had four hits, including the homer, in Yankees' 11th-inning rally that nipped Baltimore Orioles 4-3 at St. Petersburg, Fla. Hale delivered a bases-loaded double and Phillips walked to force in the winning run as Indians scored four times in the ninth to defeat Chicago Cubs 10-9 at Tucson, Ariz.

Milwaukee Braves defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 12 innings at Jacksonville, Fla.; St. Louis Cardinals outlasted Boston Red Sox 13-10 at Scottsdale, Ariz.; Los Angeles Dodgers whipped San Francisco Giants 14-10 at Phoenix and Pittsburgh Pirates shaded Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 in 10 innings at Fort Myers.

SLAMS CLUTCH HOMER

Sam Jones won it for the Braves with a 12th-inning homer after Carl Willey became the third Milwaukee pitcher to go nine innings. He left a 2-2 tie to Bob Shaw, who pitched three shutout innings.

Stan Musial homered for three St. Louis runs. The teams had 27 hits as Red Sox finished their Arizona spring work. Carl Sawatski and Leon Wagner also homered for Cards.

There were 21 walks in the Dodgers-Giants game, but five singles and a wild pitch by Joe Shipley produced Los Angeles's five ninth-inning runs. San Francisco's Sam Jones gave up six walks and seven runs in the first 1 2-3 innings.

Wally Moon and John Roseboro homered off Jones and Willie McCovey put one out of the park for the Giants. Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers walked eight.

Pirates got three hits each from Dick Schofield, Bill Virdon and Smoky Burgess. Schofield drove in the winning run with a single. He had an earlier RBI and Burgess had three.

PAPER TO PAY

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The Sydney Telegraph said Wednesday it will bring light heavyweight Tony Madigan home from New York to challenge for a berth on the Australian Olympic boxing team. Madigan, 30, Australia's best amateur boxer, is working as a model in New York and was not named on the Rome team because he declined to pay his own fare back to Australia for the Olympic trials last month.

Leafs Believe Split Openers Key To Stanley Cup

Toronto Win in Montreal Should Do It, Thinks Imlach; Habs Are Quietly Confident

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Manager-coach Punch Imlach thinks a split in the first two games here will be the key to Toronto Maple Leafs' success in the Stanley Cup finals against Montreal Canadiens.

A man with a chance to become one of the most spectacular giant-killers in hockey history, Imlach arrived here Wednesday night with his enthusiastic and predominantly youthful Leafs on the eve of the series opener.

The best-of-seven round gets under way in Montreal tonight with the second game here Saturday night.

"I think," Imlach said, "we can gain at least a split here and then, with the next two games in Toronto, we should be in an excellent position to move out in front and stay there."

OUT FOR RECORD

The Canadiens are gunning for a record fifth straight Stanley Cup as a sequel to their record fourth last season. They have not lost a playoff series since Toe Blake took over as coach in 1955.

The Leafs finished last in 1958 but last year squeezed into the fourth playoff berth and reached the final against the Canadiens.

This year they took second place with almost as much ease as the Canadiens took first.

The Canadiens eliminated Chicago Black Hawks in four games, the Leafs Detroit Red Wings in six.

Bert Olmstead, one of the few veterans in the Toronto lineup, did a good job of shackling Gordie Howe in the Detroit series but Imlach said he has no plans to have any particular Canadien shadowed.

"The Canadiens are all tough, so why pick out one of them? If (Jean) Beliveau is in top form, he's the greatest there is, but I hear he has been having trouble hitting his stride lately."

ALL WELL PLAY

Blake reported all players are ready for what almost is one of Montreal's regular spring attractions—it is the 10th consecutive year the Canadiens have reached the finals.

Beliveau missed a month of the regular season with a groin injury and still suffers muscular pains but will be in action.

Canadiens are approaching the series calmly. Goalie Jacques Plante explained his peace of mind this way:

"In the playoffs all we have to do is get one more goal than the other team and we win the game, no matter if they get half a dozen.

"During the season we may win a game 6-1, but it may be that one goal against me that could beat me for the Vezina Trophy. Maybe I'm unusually conscious of the trophy award after winning it a string of times, but that's the way it is.

"I'm really more relaxed for the playoffs. I'm sleeping fine and not worrying at all."

His teammates also were calm.

MIGHTY ATTACK

The Canadiens can muster far more firepower than the Leafs. Their 258 goals during the schedule were 36 more than the Leafs scored and they had three 30-goal men: Beliveau, Bernie Geoffrion and Henri Richard.

The Leafs have no outstanding scorer but have offensive balance and their defence, led by Allan Stanley and veteran goaltender Johnny Bower, has proved itself equal to any in the league.

And somebody mentioned Red Kelly Wednesday night. That brought a smile to Imlach's lips. He was probably thinking of the big part the veteran defenceman-forward played in getting his new team past his old Detroit teammates.

Latest quotations from the betting fraternity for the series, if you take Canadiens you lay 4 to 5 if you take the Leafs, you get 5 to 4.

For the first game if you take Canadiens you lay 7 to 5 and give a goal and a half.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Don Larsen, the only pitcher who ever hurled a perfect, no-hit world series game, has been consigned to the bullpen by Kansas City Athletics.

The big righthander came to the lowly Athletics in a winter deal that sent outfielder Roger Maris to New York Yankees.

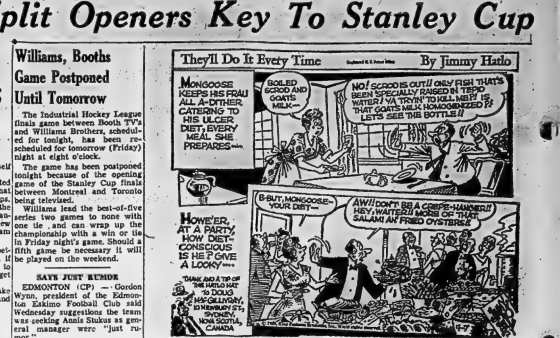
Williams, Booths Game Postponed Until Tomorrow

The Industrial Hockey League finals game between Booth's and Williams Brothers, scheduled for tonight, has been rescheduled for tomorrow (Friday) night at eight o'clock.

The game has been postponed tonight because of the opening game of the Stanley Cup finals between Montreal and Toronto being televised.



Williams lead the best-of-five series two games to none with one tie, and can wrap up the championship with a win or tie in Friday night's game. Should a fifth game be necessary it will be played on the weekend.

Petes Take Junior 'B' Title With Sixth-Game 5-2 Victory

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Peterborough Canucks neared a 5-2 victory over Belleville Combines in the sixth game here last night to capture the OHA Eastern Junior "B" group championship and the "Red" Sullivan Trophy for the third consecutive year.

Canucks thus won the hard-fought best-of-seven series four games to two for the battling but slightly out-classed Belleville crew and will advance into the provincial semi - finals against the Toronto Marlboros.

It was a terrific duel of two goalies for two periods here last night with the champions leading 2-1 after one period and 3-1 at the end of the second. Belleville cut the lead to 3-2 early in the third but the visitors found the net for goals decisive in the end.

The Canucks got great goal-tending from little Gary Curtis and a two-goal effort from Rick Eckert to mark their titular triumph. Bill Powell with a brace of assists was another leader throughout. Wayne Milburn, Pete Morris and Bob Jamieson potted the other goals while Keith Wright assisted on one.

Pat Asselstine and Gary Hull were the Canucks' top marksmen while assists were divided among Ronnie Hull, Garry Goyer, Ralph Plane and Bucky Ethier.

Last night's tilt was the cleanest of the series with officials Goyer and Williams presenting each team with seven minor penalties. Bryan Watson, choice of the Canucks' defensive men, drew a misconduct penalty for remarks to Goyer with less than two minutes left to play. Belleville's Pat Asselstine picked up no less than five of his club's seven sentences.

The clubs got off to a flying start in the initial frame with Belleville opening the scoring at 24 seconds and Peterborough tying it at 50 seconds. Asselstine gave the L-R's their brief lead when his drive from the blueline evaded Curtis. Eckert evened it 1 seconds later, batting the disc home off Noonan's stick on a play with Jewell.

The homesters missed a great opportunity to go ahead again when Bryan Watson was thumbed for interference at 8.58 and Jamieson joined him for hooking at 9.32. Curtis and his mates held on until both returned.

Asselstine drew his first penalty with just five seconds remaining in the period and from the faceoff near the Belleville net Jewell got the puck to Eckert who triggered his second to put the Canucks in front to stay.

Milburn tallied the only goal of the middle heat, a 35-footer high to the stick-side at 5.06, but it was a goalers' period.

Moon robbed Buttan on a breakaway at 3.00, stoned Muirhead at 6.00 and turned back Jewell in close at 12.00, among his better saves. On another occasion Moe Hunter broke in but Curtis failed to move and his shot went by a corner. Elliott and Goyer were in together early in the period but Goyer went too close and had the puck stolen.

The clubs checked closely to start the third but Belleville came to life when Gary Hull grabbed a pass and drilled it through Curtis at 4.52. A penalty to Asselstine, his first of three in the period, seemed to slow the locals' attack and at 9.27 Milburn took Wright's pass and rattled a blazer past Moran to make it 4-2. Jamieson's point shot sewed up the win at 11.03 although Belleville kept fighting until the final whistle.

Referees — Tim Williams and Vern Goyer Belleville.

RECORD SETTER — Orval Tessier (left), 26-year-old centre, is honored after setting a professional hockey record of 59 goals with Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional Hockey League this season. He surpassed the mark set in the 1948-49 season by Sid Smith of Pittsburgh and Carl Liscombe of Providence in the American League. Tessier also collected 67 assists for another pro record of 126 points, four more than Gaye Stuller got with Seattle in the Western League in 1956-57. Tessier is shown receiving a plaque from Mayor W. C. Mills (right) and Walter Elmser, team booster club director, in Kingston. (CP Photo).

Orval Tessier, Scoring Leader For New Professional Loop, Wants Another Crack at NHL

By DON SOUTTER
Kingston Whig-Standard

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The rookie-studded Eastern Professional Hockey League spawned a new crop of embryo stars in its first year of operation, but as far as National Hockey League moguls had hoped.

But the scoring prowess of a baldish 26-year-old minor leaguer named Orval Tessier shook the thunder from the rookies.

It was largely through Tessier's efforts that Kingston Frontenacs were second only to the league-leading Sudbury Wolves in scoring although they spent most of the season in last place in the standings.

The eight-year veteran from Cornwall, Ont., scored 59 goals over the 70-game schedule and wound up with 126 points—both records for professional hockey.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

When the seeds of the EPHL were being planted in Ontario and Quebec a year ago, the NHL was interested because it saw the new league as a place to develop young players at reasonable cost.

After the season ended NHL clubs were happy. Ready for a chance at the big time were such players as Bernie DeJordy and Fred Hiltz of Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds, Gerry Odrowski of Sudbury Wolves, Gerry (Red) Ouellette of Kingston, Leon Rochefort of Trois-Rivieres Lions and a cargo of ripening chattels at Montreal and Hull-Ottawa which are giving the Montreal Canadiens the jitters as draft time approaches.

Tessier had been completely overlooked as a potential EPHL scoring champion, let alone record-breaker, although he had previously seen some productive years—36 goals with Montreal Royals in 1954-55; 43 with Quebec Aces in 1956-57, and 27 with Springfield of the American Hockey League in 1957-58.

After five weeks he was fifth in scoring, 17 points behind Hull-Ottawa's Billy Carter. Then he loomed to 49 goals. But he slumped and it took him two weeks more to get his 50th.

SCORING SPLURGE

He still hadn't broken any records when the season got down to its last three games. But he came through with a three-goal performance to smash the 55-goal mark set by two AHL players in 1948-49—Sid Smith with Pittsburgh and Carl Liscombe with Providence.

A weekend windup produced four goals and an assist to put four better than the previous point record of 122 set by Clarie Fielder with Seattle of the Western League in 1956-57.

It raised the question whether there is an NHL future for the forward who has played with seven pro clubs—including brief trials with Boston Bruins and Canadiens—since moving up from Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Junior A league in 1951.

"I'm better qualified to play there now than I was before," he says. "I'm more experienced in the ways of hockey. And my attitude is a lot different. When I first went up I was single. Now I'm married and have more responsibilities."

WAS DISCOURAGED

Tessier admits he has had moments when he was discouraged.

"I was told to go to Quebec for the 1956-57 season, and if I had a good year I would be brought up. I won the scoring championship but didn't play a regular season game with Boston the next year."

The next year he came to Kingston after refusing to report to Providence, Boston AHL farm.

The Bruins repurchased his contract a week before the NHL playoff berths were decided, hoping to use him if they got into the Stanley Cup semi-finals. But they missed out and it will be next season before Tessier gets a chance to show whether he can emulate Bronco Horvath, the high-scoring Boston sniper who knocked around in the minors for seven years before making it in the NHL.

"I would like a good trial," Tessier says. "If I played there long enough and wasn't doing anything startling I would at least be satisfied."

Mackell Says He's Through With Bruins

HALIFAX (CP)—Fleming Mackell, veteran National Hockey League forward, said Wednesday night he probably has played his last game with Boston Bruins.

"I'm not included in their future plans," he said in an interview following an exhibition hockey game here. Mackell is touring the Atlantic Provinces with a group of professional hockey players.

"I doubt if I'll be back with the Bruins next season," Mackell said. "It's not that I don't want to play, but I guess I'm just not wanted."

Rowing Site Being Made in Volcano Crater

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (Reuters) — Workmen, some in diving suits, are working against time in the crater of an ancient volcano to complete one of Europe's most modern rowing sites in time for the Olympic Games here in August.

The crater is Lake Albano, 558 feet deep and overlooked by the Pope's summer residence in this picturesque town perched on the crater's edge.

The lake is one of two watter-filled volcanic craters straddling the Alban Hills south of Rome.

Lake Albano was picked as an Olympic site after weeks of rival futil study, in spite of its relative inaccessibility by road and a tendency, even in summer, to be lashed by waves.

Apart from improving the road network around the lake, workmen are setting up stands for 8,000 spectators, a tower equipped with the latest control and signalling equipment, photo - finish installations and a cabin for radio and television commentators.

MANY DIFFICULTIES

In spite of considerable technical difficulties, the competition area has been divided into lanes by steel cables laid across the lake, four feet below the surface. The cables are pulled by capstans, and held steady in all weather by multi-colored buoys with plastic material placed at their entire length at 40-foot intervals.

Special boat houses to contain 300 large and 300 small craft are being built on the banks of the lake. Dressing rooms, infirmaries, a carpenter's yard to repair damaged boats, piles of rafts and rowing equipment are being put into position.

To bring the thousands of anticipated fans to the site, a new road is being built to link the shore of the lake directly with a major highway into Rome.

'Hearts' Tour Canada in May

EDINBURGH, (Reuters — Hearts, almost certain champions of the Scottish soccer First Division, may have to leave four players at home in a five-week tour of Canada and the United States next month.

A party of 22 players and officials will leave by air May 10. Four Hearts players may be selected by the Scottish Football Association for an official tour of Austria, Hungary and Turkey in May and June.

Four of Heart's 10 games will be against English First Division Manchester United.

White Sox to Cop Pennant Yankees Second, Tribe Next

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Chicago's improved White Sox, having added punch without easing their strong pitching, loosening their tight defence or slowing up their "go-go" type of offence, are this corner's choice to capture the American League pennant in 1960.

Even if 40-year-old Early Wynn falls short of his 22-victory total of last year, the addition, by trades, of sluggers Minnie Minoso, Gene Freese and Roy Sievers should enable Al Lopez's defending champions to win by a more comfortable margin than they did last year.

The trio should provide the long ball, Chicago's main weakness last year, Outfielder Minoso, third baseman Freese, and first baseman - outfielder Sievers together hit 64 homers and drove in 211 runs even though Sievers, injured much of last year, had a poor season.

YANKEES SECOND

New York Yankees, who dropped to third place, 15 games off the pace, after four straight first-place finishes, should move up a notch, past Cleveland. The Indians runner-up last year, have a pitching staff too young to carry the burden left by the departure of 19-game winner Cal McLish and Minoso's 20 homers.

The Yankees' expected rise is traced to the acquisition of slugger Roger Maris, who, together with Mickey Mantle, could supply the team with the one-two punch it lacked last year, Mantle is too good a player to suffer through two straight bad seasons.

The surprise of the league may be Baltimore's Orioles whose fine young pitchers could lift them into the first division for the first time in their brief tenure in the American League. Detroit easily is the best of the rest.

The expected order of finish:

1. Chicago
2. New York
3. Cleveland
4. Baltimore
5. Detroit
6. Kansas City
7. Boston
8. Washington

Hull Defeats Amherst 5-4 In Overtime

HULL, Que. (CP) — Playing-coach Jacques Monette of Amherst Ramblers places most of the blame on himself for the team's 5-4 overtime loss Wednesday night to Hull Legion in the third game of their Allan Cup hockey quarter-final.

Monette, who leads the Amherst goal, said after the game that he would have had no trouble stopping the winning goal if he had stayed still instead of skating to the side.

Gilles Champagne potted the winning goal at 5:47 of the sudden-death overtime, cutting the Ramblers lead to 2-1 in the best-of-five series.

Fourth game is Friday in the Hull Arena where the entire series is being played.

MEET ONTARIO CHAMP

Winner of the quarter - final match either Rouyn - Noranda Aiouettes or Chatham Maroons for the Eastern Canada title and the right to play the western champions in the cup final. Als lead that series 3-0.

Monette had high praise for the scrimishing of Hull's Roger Fortin.

The winning goal by Champagne was his second of the night. Veteran Leo Gravelle also scored twice for Hull and Rheo Dagenais added a single.

Amherst marksmen were Ron Geraldi, Bill Dyakiw, Sherman White and Gerry Boss, the latter two scoring in the final period.

Gravelle is a former Montreal Canadiens player.

Snead 'Threw' Match to Keep Show on TV

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Sam Snead said Wednesday, he forfeited one of the oldest traditions in show business—the show must go on—in throwing an important golf match on a television series in December.

The old pro acknowledged he supposed tossed away the match Maxie Rudolph after discovering on the 12th hole he had 15 clubs, one more than the limit, in his bag.

In match play golf, an excess of clubs calls for the forfeit of all holes played before the excess is corrected.

Snead told of how he met what he called a "terrible dilemma".

It was an hour television show "and if I mentioned I had too many clubs the match would be over and there would be just no show".

Snead three-putted the 18th to give Rudolph the match.

Rudolph, also here for the Masters, said he knew nothing about the match being given to him until he started hearing rumors around the tour.

The match was worth $4,000, with the next match bringing $2,000 to the winner.

"It wouldn't have been worth $100,000 to me to win the match illegally," Snead said.

Dolores Michaels Nearly Ate Herself Out of Good Roles

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I tried crash diets, smash diets, bird diets—all kinds of diets. But I would lose 5 pounds and then gain seven back. I never made any progress until I realized that my weight problem was mental."

This was the testimony of Dolores Michaels, a striking blonde with a brilliant future predicted by her studio—now. But there were times when it looked as if she might blow a golden opportunity.

"I was a compulsive eater," she confessed. "I read that Ingrid Bergman did the same thing I did. I'd starve myself on fruit and cottage cheese all day. But as a midnight icebox raider, it got so I wouldn't even remember waking up. Then in the morning the icebox would be empty and I realized what had happened.

"I was up to 152 pounds when I was a ballet dancer in New York, if you can imagine that. I had behind peasant blouses 'and pleated skirts.

"When I was signed by 20th Century-Fox, I weighed 135. I could slim down between pictures. But when I had the excitement of starting a picture, I'd start eating. It was nothing for me to eat two pounds of chocolates at one sitting. I couldn't leave them alone until they were gone."

The climax came after the death of her father a year ago. With him gone, she was lost. She sought psychological analysis.

She commented that analysis completely changed her life. She has a new respect for her work. And she is down to a svelt 115 pounds.

"This country is diet-crazy", she concluded. "But most people who lose weight on diets gain it back because they don't know the reason why they crave food. Generally it is because of some frustration in their lives."

Tee Pees Take Junior Crown, Defeat Irish by 7-2 Count

TORONTO (CP) — St. Catharines Teepees defeated Toronto St. Michael's College Majors by a convincing 7-2 Wednesday night to win the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs before 4,853 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens.

St. Michael's lost the first two games of the best-of-seven series then came back with a win and two ties before bowing out.

Teepees were OHA Junior A champions in 1954 and went on to take the Memorial Cup. They made the OHA playoffs last in 1957 but were defeated by Guelph Biltmores.

Leading the way for the Teepees Wednesday night was captain Chico Maki, this year's scoring champion, who tallied two goals. Murray Hall, Ray Cullen, Vic Hadfield, Don Grosso and Duke Harris each scored singles.

Larry Keenan and Bert Jackson scored for St. Michael's.

The Teepees meet Brockville Junior Canadiens in a best-of-seven series for the eastern Canadian title. The series starts Sunday in Montreal.

SWEPT MARLIES OUT

St. Michael's finished fourth in regular-season play and reached the finals with a four - game sweep over Bridgeburg-Toronto Marlboros.

St. Catharines finished third and eliminated Guelph and Peterborough.

At the end of the second period Wednesday, Teepee coach Max Kaminski let his team was going to win.

"Our boys were leading 3-1 at the end of two after being down 1-0 after one period," the softspoken coach said.

"All during that intermission, they were whooping it up and I couldn't keep them quiet. They wanted to get out there and wrap it up so I knew we had the desire and fight to stay ahead."

BIG KILL

QUEBEC (CP)—The moose kill in Quebec last year was 2,148, compared with 1,879 in 1959, provincial government figures show. There were 11,730 hunting permits issued in 1959, including 435 to non-residents, compared with 10,701 in 1958, including 332 to non-residents.

Indians Shade Providence 4-3

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Bill McCreary, veteran left winger, scored all of his team's goals as Springfield Indians defeated Providence Reds 4-3 Wednesday night and took a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven American Hockey League semi-final playoff series.

McCreary became the fourth player in AHL annals to get four goals in a playoff game, matching the feat of Johnny Sorrell, Camille Henry and Gerry Ehman.

McCreary scored once in the first period, twice in the second and then scored into an open net at 19:43 of the third after the Reds yanked goalie Bernie Gemblin.

The Indians will seek the clincher in the fifth game in Springfield Friday.

At the Belle

"Beloved Infidel", and Hollywood Preview Tonight.

Like Sheilah Graham, whom she plays in Twentieth Century-Fox's filmisation of Jerry Wald's "Beloved Infidel", the story of Miss Graham's love affair with F. Scott Fitzgerald, Deborah Kerr spent the early part of her life in England, but finally came to America to find success and satisfaction.

Miss Kerr, who co-stars with Gregory Peck and Eddie Albert in the story of the love affair between these two talented and star-crossed lovers, feels that the Sheilah role is one of the best and most natural she has ever played.

The DeLuxe Color, CinemaScope Henry King directed film, is now playing at the Belle Theatre.

Deborah Kerr is rated as an actress much the way Miss Graham is rated in her specialty, as a columnist, as one of the finest. And Miss Graham, Deborah is a strong willed, determined woman who has refused to let personal tragedy and problems stand in the way of her seeking her goals.

For instance, when she grew tired of playing genteel parts in motion pictures, she single handedly went after the role of "Karen Booth" in "From Here To Eternity, a role which won her an Academy Award nomination. And, although one of the most challenging acting jobs in recent theatre, she virtually made the role of "Laura Reynolds" in "Tea and Sympathy" her own.

In fact, her home studio bought the stage property for her as a film, in which she starred with John Kerr (no relation).

In "Beloved Infidel", she plays the role with a variety of emotional levels and works with her top-line co-stars in the kind of tradition audiences have come to expect from Deborah Kerr.

Plot Not at All Mysterious But Sly and Sophisticated

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP —Steel Hour, Recommended tonight:

a usually pedestrian and often soapy CBS program was in a rare sly and sophisticated mood Wednesday night. The name of the piece was How to Make a Killing, and it was a crime story told with tongue in cheek.

The plot was forthright and not at all mysterious. Eva Gebor played a sultry charmer busily dispatching by poison, drowning and gunshot three generations of rich Flaschers in succession. Her husband—to acquire the family fortune.

Then her husband's 22-year-old illegitimate son arrives to claim the estate, armed with a letter from his father fastening blame on the lovely lady. The play ends as the young heir and the bereaved widow depart the detective's office together, arm in arm.

The lesson is that some men are willing to die for a beautiful woman.

Genevieve, who stole the show with Bing Crosby as a fellow guest, will be back visiting Perry Como on May 11, and again May 25. . . . The Monday night Katie Smith show is gathering a happy and sizable audience. It should, for it is a pleasant show. . . . There probably should be some legislation against such things, but the Pat Boone show to be taped in Paris for ABC broadcast will be called "C'est Si Bonne."

Cowboy Five Seven, NBC, 8.30-9.00 — Repeat of documentary about the Strategic Air Command, filmed at Westover air base and narrated by James Stewart.

Revue, CBS, 10:31—A make-believe tour of New York night clubs with Peggy Lee, Earl Grant and Jose Green.

TICATS SIGN GUARD

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union announced Wednesday they had signed Kurt Schwarz, 24 year old guard and tackle from the University of Maryland. The six-foot, 215-pound Schwarz, played two years as a tackle with Maryland.

Kerwin, Fullmer Fight Draw In Dull Bout

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Welterweights Gale Kerwin of Ottawa and Jay Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah fought to a dull 10-round draw Wednesday night at an invitation-only fight held in a fashionable beach-front hotel ballroom. All the tickets were bought for delegates to a convention.

The pretence of fighting undefeated world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and Kerwin was about the only exciting feature of the fight, as Kerwin and Fullmer began mixing only in the last half of the 10th round.

Marciano called the fight a draw, giving each fighter 96 points in the 10-point-must system. Judge Davis Feid favored Kerwin 98-95 while Judge Barry Pearlman called it for Fullmer 97-95.

Kerwin, 145½, who now fights out of Valley Stream, N.Y., didn't seem to exert much effort in going after Fullmer, who weighed 139.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, April 8

General tendencies: Now you have unusually good day to take all of those big ideas with which you have been so imbued during the past several days, and reduce them to a detailed and workable basis. There is little chance that you will run into any big opposition today. So, map out your day's work and follow to the letter, spirit.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You can add far greater efficiency both in home affairs and in business today by using more modern methods and dealing with fellow workers in a co-operative spirit. Think more positively and adopt a more friendly attitude.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — You can be very ingenious at times and now you can exercise this talent in getting your affairs operating more efficiently. You will also have time for a certain amount of recreation and today might can be spent in wise amusement. Be romantic.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — The welfare of family ties should be uppermost in your mind today. Be of greater service to them. Bring home little gifts. P. M. put shoes in fine order and then enjoy an evening at home. Be thoughtful and affectionate with loved ones.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — This is an ideal day to browse around book stores, second-hand shops and the like for rare items and bargains. It pleases you to do occasionally. Then impress others with your good sense and talents. P. M. have fun with pals and kin.

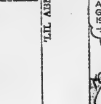
Leo (July 24 to Aug. 23) — Get your financial affairs handled properly today. Consult with experts and financiers in all property matters. Follow their good advice this evening so that you can enjoy greater abundance and real security.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22) — Instead of putting yourself out for others now, give thought to own welfare and take the right steps that will help you to advance in career and gain greater personal prestige. P. M. go out socially and relax.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — An excellent day to put surroundings in the most charming order possible so that you can have peace of mind and joie de vivre. Then go out in search of ideal recreation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Your best opportunities can come today through the good offices of kind friends. Don't hesitate to express your ideas and plans. P. M. go out socially and make the added contacts that can be very helpful in the future.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be sure you are in the busy whirl of affairs today since higher-ups will be in a mood to supply the information or advice, support you need. Endeavor to take some big-wig out to dinner. Make a fine contact this way.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — It would be very wise today to cultivate those persons who are progressive and well - informed so that you can get excellent ideas which will help you to advance in your career or personal life. P. M. go out socially, too.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Self-analysis and knowing your true position with others should be concentrated upon now. Do not be too proud to ask the advice of higher-ups if you need help or knowledge that is vital to you. P. M. do some serious studying.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — There is wisdom in having a pleasant talk with some close partner so that you can cement better relations. P. M. go out together socially for fun and getting even better acquainted. Be charming, generous.

If your child is born today — The delightful child born today will be very neat from earliest childhood. Unless this desire for order and sanitation is carried on to an extreme, the chart is ideal for nursing, medical and dental professions. Train as early as possible to give minor details only the importance they require, that the major issues are far more important. Handle your progeny wisely for greater success.

ALWAYS TIRED? DRAGGY? RUNDOWN? TAKE SYNTONA AND FEEL BETTER FAST

If you feel tired, worn-out and listless; if bowels are irregular and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn and sour, upset stomach; if you have headaches, backache and rheumatic pains and cannot get sound, restful sleep — take a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and see what a difference it makes in just a few days.

WHAT IT IS!

SYNTONA is an effective formula of medicinal ingredients including 13 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. It is compounded in a modern laboratory by skilled chemists and its unique formula has proven effective in thousands of cases.

The ingredients in SYNTONA are especially selected to act on the liver, stomach, liver and bowels. When taken as directed with the food you eat, this compound helps relieve constipation, indigestion, gas, heartburn and sourness. It actually helps your stomach to digest the food you eat.

AT THE SAME TIME SYNTONA helps relieve that tiresome pains, backache and headaches.

Syntona will help relieve constipation, improve mind and mood, dreary, rundown feeling.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

LOOK!

Do you like lots of room both outside and in? We have a fine listing of a two-storey brick home that is really the old fashioned kind — that has every room has plenty of room — the dining room is even bigger than the living room. The kitchen is real nice and you could have a dance in the bathroom. It has four bedrooms. Now you could live in town and feel like a bit land owner — the lot size is 132 by 200. It's on the North Side and the price is only $9,500. Now we know that there are those who would like to see it first. Call us.

PICTON

PICTON — Preparations for Harmsworth Trophy race on Picton Bay, August 19-20-23 by Prince Edward Yacht Club, under the supervision of the Ontario Boating Federation, are well under way.

For some time past, organizational meetings have been held by the club directors. As the club will be fully engaged with the actual staging of the race, the many other activities in connection with the event must be handled by committees and organizations.

Since finances play an important role in the over-all picture, the club is requesting co-operation of various groups interested in staging booths and operating concessions.

A meeting of directors was held Tuesday night when representatives of various organizations were present to advise of any activities planned during Harmsworth Week and to learn how best they can cooperate. It was an enthusiastic meeting, ably chaired by Commodore Richard Hart, who referred to the magnitude of the task and to the importance of this great international event. Full co-operation was offered by spokesmen Basil Foreman for Chamber of Commerce, Clare Campbell for Quinte Isle Tourist Association, Major R. Robinson for Rotary, Don Turnpenny for the Kinsmens Club, Wm. Beasley for Elks' Lodge, Russ Gardiner and Elmer Gerow for Marching Debs and Mothers' Auxiliary. A. R. Owens for Picton District Shrine Club, Phil Dodds for Agricultural Society, Jack Leidigh for Kiwanis Club, Randolph Clapp for town council, Robert Williams for Junior Farmers. Other groups were represented but had made no plans for activities but are willing to co-operate.

DRAW ON MOTOR

Len Foley outlined plans for a draw on August 22 for a 7½ horsepower motor with carrying case, valued at $315. Tickets will be distributed over a wide area.

Special Harmsworth year membership in Prince Edward Yacht Club are available at $10 and those permit man and wife and family to attend the Harmsworth trophy race.

NAME COMMITTEE

Commodore Hart announced that the Prince Edward Harmsworth regatta committee will be composed of Mayor H. J. McFarland, honorary chairman; Commodore R. W. Hart, chairman; L. G. Allan, treasurer; W. Barry Anderson, secretary. Directors are: Jack B. Cole, Fred Van Dusen, Herb Vincent, Lawson Hutchings, James Bird, Randolph Clapp, Ern Ward, Birney Hepburn, George Shipman, Capt. A. G. Ford, RCSA.

Chairman of the various committees are under direction of J. B. Cole and include D. H. Boland, accommodation; Herb Vincent, course; F. Van Dusen, barge; L. Hutchings, pits; L. Foley, grounds, draw and concessions; N. G. Love, course patrol; Pat Hodgson, advertising and publicity; Howard Seeley, entertainment; Jay Spearman, communications; A. R. Miller, public address system; C. Widdifield, press, pass and registration; R. Clapp, inner traffic control; James Bird, harbor control; George Shipman, magazine and program; Ern Ward, county traffic control; Capt. Ford, safety, first aid and fire control; John Titchenick, transportation; B. Hepburn, Bastion-VIP; Ross Van Vlack, water sports; Lionel Hicks, club facilities.

Finance committee consists of L. G. Allen, R. W. Hart, J. B. Cole and F. VanDusen.

Canada will defend the first hydroplane to be used in the event, took the trophy to England for the late Sir E. Mac Kay Edgar. Previous entrants had always been displacement craft.

Canada is the fourth country to defend the prize, also known as the British International Trophy which originated competition in 1906 when it was an all-English competition. France won over England and U.S.A. in 1906; England won it from France in 1908; England won over USA in 1906 and the USA won over English entries from 1907-11. Then in 1912 England won it back and the U.S.A. regained it by defeating England and France and held it twelve years, until 1939 when Jim Thompson of London, Ontario, brought it to Canada which had failed in three previous attempts.

According to Commodore Hart a tremendous crowd is expected in Picton for the race and a great deal of organization and effort, which started months ago, will be necessary to make it a success.

IRISH TIMBER

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CP) — Timber exports from Northern Ireland are increasing and it is estimated they will reach 40,000 tons this year.

Scoharie

"A rush of bing song, a patter of dey,

Two Main Negro Groups Banned In South Africa

100 of All Races Held By Police in Dawn Raids

CAPETOWN (CP) — The South African government today outlawed the country's two main Negro organizations while police swooped down on more scores of representative racial leaders.

The ban on the powerful African National Congress and its more-militant offshoot, the Pan-Africanist Congress, was announced in Parliament by Justice Minister Francois Erasmus. It came as police arrested and carried out co-ordinated raids in widely scattered parts of the country, arresting more than 100 men and women of all races. The arrests were the second under emergency regulations proclaimed last week. In only the first day, 256 persons were arrested.

The main centres of today's arrests were Capetown, Johannesburg, Durban, Port Elizabeth and Pretoria. Many of those taken into custody were ordered out of their beds before dawn and driven to the police stations.

SEVERAL EVADE NET

But police found that several of the most wanted leaders had disappeared from their homes.

Erasmus told Parliament the ban on the ANC and the Pan-Africanist movement would remain in force until the end of the state of emergency. Legislation empowering the government to ban any organizations was passed by Parliament last night. The bill was rushed through the two Senate representatives of Negro interests opposing the bill. They said they felt the government now appears to have the whole situation under control, and it is called up more military reservists.

The whole situation was more nearly normal today than at any time since Negro demonstrations against carrying identification passes flared into violence three weeks ago.

Thousands of Negroes answered their passes at the height of the campaign of defiance have been suspended for one month. They have these "internal passports" to move around or work.

The Associated Press reported that most Negroes now appear to be back at their jobs, apparently the campaign of the now-outlawed militant leaders to keep them at home.

But the calm that prevailed was uneasy.

Breaking into a play, the South African Broadcasting Corporation Thursday night read a long list of reservists and ordered them to report for duty immediately.

West Prepares To Counter Red Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Western Allies are getting set to counter an expected barrage of proposals from Nikita Khrushchev in the broad field of East-West relations.

Strong on propaganda aspects, the Soviet leader's proposals probably would be in a form unacceptable to the West.

Khrushchev may spring a series of such propositions at next month's summit conference when the talk moves from disarmament, Berlin and Germany into the calmer climate of East-West relations.

For weeks Allied diplomats have been drafting possible counter-proposals in this area. A group of foreign ministers are expected to appear them when they gather here Tuesday for a three-day round of pre - summit strategy sessions.

POSSIBLE MANOEUVRES

Diplomatic officials anticipate anything from Khrushchev manoeuvres calculated for more trade and cultural exchanges, to revivals of projected Soviet proposals for a scrapping of the Atlantic and Rio defence alliances between the Warsaw powers and Western Allies.

Allied diplomats have not come up with any major proposal of their own which they eventually believe might ease tensions.

French diplomats are reported interested in something that Russia join the West in a combined economic aid program. Neither American and British authorities are known to be taking a dim view of this approach, believing it would give Moscow an unnecessary voice in the economic affairs of key countries.

Afrikaaner Paper Advises Ditching Word Apartheid

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters) — A pro-government newspaper today is an editorial that South Africa's representative measures against Negroes are violating the country in a hostile world.

Die Burger, a leading pro-government daily, says under the heading "Overseas Catastrophe" that South Africa's political, commercial and cultural relations with other countries are in acute danger.

The newspaper says that "the word apartheid has irretrievably become a target for volley of political segregation has "exclusive association in overseas minds with negative actions."

"South Africa cannot any more hold on to any more affixed label word in respect of our overseas relationships. If we want to hold up those relationships in the future we must expedite all positive aspects of our race policy in line with the haste of history."

The paper continues: "We must give grounds for fair-minded foreigners to move to our side. . . .

"If we are not able to do this with our internal policy, we must look forward to a permanent status the skunk of the world. . . .

"South Africa has already been found guilty, condemned and hanged as far as the overwhelming part of overseas public opinion is concerned. . . ."

"A bachelor, my boy is a man who didn't have a car when he was young."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Persistent northerly winds have brought cool Arctic air into the Great Lakes area. Daytime temperatures in the low 40s and night-time temperatures near or a little below freezing in Southern Ontario, together with considerable cloudiness and scattered light showers or snowflurries, are forecast for most areas today and Saturday.

BAR-ROOM PLOT ON MANAGER'S LIFE REVEALED

Received Call From Wife in Montreal

OTTAWA (CP) — A tipster's warning of bar-room plotting to kill port manager Guy Beaudet of Montreal was relayed Thursday to an RCMP national committee investigating the toll operations of a national harbour board judge under Mr. Beaudet's authority.

Quietly but with signs of strain in his voice, Mr. Beaudet told the railways committee of a noon-hour telephone call he had received from his wife in Montreal. He said she'd been phoned the night before by an anonymous caller who warned that two men next to him in a bar "would have had been 'plotting to kill me.'"

He said if I was wise, I'd get protection," said Mr. Beaudet, adding that he'd called the RCMP in Montreal and arranged for a guard at his home.

The man had told Mrs. Beaudet that he would be in a Montreal courtroom Tuesday when Mr. Beaudet's bail conditions appear on charges of theft and breach of trust. If he recognized the two plotters, the man had promised, he would inform the RCMP.

The Beaudet statement was the most dramatic moment in a colorful turn so far in the committee hearings — a development parallel with an RCMP inquiry begun late last year. First indictments were announced last week.

Jacques Cartier bridge toll collecting was handled manually until September when an automatic system was installed. Irregularities increased immediately.

The report was accompanied by a series of threats to bridge personnel. At least one member of Parliament got a warning by two armed men to Mr. Beaudet last August to halt the installation or expect harm to himself and his family.

Pierre Sevigny, associate defence minister, said a series of unanswered letters had been received he was named to the cabinet.

Beaten Negroes Meekly Return To Their Jobs

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Chief Albert Luthuli, African tells story assailed all signs of resistance for the time being.

Nyanga's men returned meekly to their jobs in nearby Capetown this morning after a week for those still detained following Thursday's mass police roundup.

Chief administrative official of the township said: "I estimate that at least 95 per cent of the men have gone to work this morning."

Police armoured troops moved in with police Thursday but found no resistance. After meeting with their armored cars, machine-guns and bayonets, Nyanga's women ordered police jeeps and some policemen stopped to buy fruit and vegetables from them.

There were only a few men seen on the streets.

Peace has certainly returned to Nyanga for the present.

Lewis Duncan, Noted Lawyer, Suicide Victim

TORONTO (CP) — Lewis Duncan, veteran Toronto lawyer who was a prominent figure in the court in the Supreme Court of Canada two years ago, was found dead in his car and police have called it suicide.

Det.-Sgt. Frederick Queen's coroner, first lawyer to be cited for contempt of Canada's top court, was found dead in the basement of a downtown department store.

Police said the car and a body. A brand new 45 calibre automatic lay beside the body. Police the store receipt still attached.

Mr. Duncan was identified by papers in his pockets.

Dutch Reformed Church Provides 'Spiritual' Support for Apartheid

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters) — The powerful Dutch Reformed Church is giving the South African government its spiritual support for apartheid, the official policy of racial segregation.

In its position of religious leadership of the pro-government Afrikaner people, the Dutch Reformed Church always has been regarded as an apartheid supporter.

The church's approval has been expressed from time to time in synod statements such as that issued last week by nine church leaders in Capetown:

The Dutch Reformed Church has made it clear that it can approve of the policy of 'independent development' (apartheid) provided it is carried out in a just and honorable way without doubting or offending human dignity."

In its support of apartheid, the Dutch Reformed Church frequently has clashed with the English-speaking Catholic Churches in South Africa.

Children were separated over color lines and police even stopped to buy fruit and vegetables from them.

Portable Pensions, Barrette Visit Highlight Session

TORONTO (CP) — A serious one-hour discussion of portable pensions and a visit by Premier Antonio Barrette of Quebec highlighted the legislative session Thursday.

Members of all parties spent one of the quietest evenings of the session going into the problems of a compulsory, contributory pension plan. All agreed that portable pensions are necessary.

Premier Frost said a special committee is now studying pensions. It is up to them to the legislature at the next session, at which time a definite proposal to the House will be set up to make specific recommendations.

The House took on an informal atmosphere during the afternoon as Mr. Frost permitted cameramen to set up lights and take pictures of Mr. Barrett's brief visit to the floor. Mr. Barrette later went to speak in the Ontario legislature since Confederation.

More Nerve Gases Should Be Developed Says U.S. Expert

CLEVELAND (AP)—An army chemical warfare expert says the United States should push development of more deadly chemical weapons even though there has "kill is a moral" nerve gases already possessed by the U.S. and Russia.

Maj.-Gen. Wilbur Jones says such effort may already be under way, but that the public should be told and require vigorous public support Dr. William H. Summerson, a Cleveland surgeon, told a parallel with an RCMP inquiry begun late last year. First indictments were announced last week.

"It is to our national interest to uncover as - yet - unrevealed principles which can be used as rapidly as a potential enemy has been able to, and preferably before he does."

Summerson made the statements in a speech prepared for delivery to the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. He and other government scientists painted a grim picture of the Communist bid to win the Red and the allies arising from possible chemical warfare even without the need for assuring strong defences and counter-measures.

The remarks were underscored by the statement of Maj.-Gen. Jones, U.S. army chief chemical officer, that "there is some evidence that the Communist bloc may surpass us in this field."

He said the Communists succeed by attaining a superiority in . . . few chemical and biological weapons which we cannot detect or which we cannot defend against," said Jones. "Our retaliatory strength could be of academic value."

Jones said the Communists lead in developing protective masks and shelters even without the "more thought must be given to making fallout shelters impervious to radiation and chemical agents."

Jones brought out at the conference—staged at the American Chemical Society's national meeting—that 75 per cent of the population in a 34,000,000-square-mile area with only 450 pounds of nerve gas per square mile literally dropped from a B-52 bomber, provided there was no medical defence.

Summerson told reporters that with sufficient planes and proper meteorological conditions it would be possible to 75 per cent of the population in a 34,000,000-square-mile area with only 450 pounds of nerve gas per square mile literally dropped from a B-52 bomber, provided there was no medical defence.

Summerson told reporters that with sufficient planes and proper meteorological conditions it would be possible to 75 per cent of the people in Soviet Union.

He and the others indicated that the same could be true in a reverse Russian attack.

Russia Asks Powers Pledge Not to Use A-Bombs First

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia called today on the world's nuclear powers to make a solemn pledge never to be the first to use nuclear weapons.

Valerian Zorin, chief Soviet delegate, called for the pledge as the first measure to be taken under a five-point document as a prelude to the 10-power disarmament conference here.

But Western conference sources immediately said the new document was designed to exploit the Soviet position and would not help break the deadlock which has developed here following each side's rejection of the other's disarmament proposals.

In addition to the pledge not to use nuclear weapons first, Zorin called for discussion on:

1. The scope of disarmament measures to be taken which all armament would be completed;

2. Control of disarmament. The position at the end of disarmament.

Zorin argued that the pledge on nuclear arms would create appropriate conditions for an early agreement on a disarmament treaty.

He said the states with nuclear arms participating in the talks here—the United States, Russia, Britain and France—should "solemnly proclaim that they renounced to be the first to use such weapons."

Office Manager Highjacked With $6,400 Payroll

BRANTFORD (CP) — Benjamin McLaughlin, an office manager who picks up his company's payroll alone every Thursday was hijacked by two men Thursday and robbed of $6,400.

The money was the weekly wages of 150 employees of the Kitchen Overall and Shirt Company.

Police said McLaughlin was driving into the company parking lot when a man walked up on each side of his car. They pulled guns, possibly paleface cups and dark glasses and held handshakes to their faces.

McLaughlin said later there was work going on around the lot and he believed the two were workmen until they pulled guns and bundled him back into the car.

One drove and the other held the manager.

After a short ride, the two taped McLaughlin's mouth and bound his hands behind him with wire before forcing him beneath the dashboard. They left him there when they abandoned the car about half a mile from the factory.

Police said the manager freed himself and telephoned police but they had already been called after a three-day state visit that for the moment obscured differences between the two neighbors on the question of total disarmament and nostalgia.

TWO SENIOR MPS LOOK RUEFULLY AT DEFENCE BILL

Claim Money Spent On Obsolete Arms

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of the more elderly members of Parliament looked ruefully at Canada's huge defence bill Thursday and declared that too many people are devoted to something more constructive.

The high cost of running the country's defence establishment — estimated at more than $1,386,000,000 in the current fiscal year — drew the attention of H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) and Hon. J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood). Both are veterans of the First World War.

Mr. Herridge, 66, reiterated his party's call for drastic reduction of wasteful defence expenditures. Mr. Macdonnell, 71, former minister without portfolio in the Conservative government, bemoaned the expenditure of billions of billions on weapons that are already obsolete.

WOULD AID OTHERS

Both members, speaking in a budget debate that ranged far but seldom dealt with the 1960-61 budget, advocated more foreign economic assistance to underdeveloped countries.

Mr. Herridge said he did not know how the West could let the gap grow. However, he lamented:

"We watch new weapons being manufactured become obsolete before they are even ready for use. . . . Our defence policy (current (to war) is not being manufactured."

He said he was referring to the deterrent value of a "working relationship" with the RCAF, which would permit the emergence of peaceful ways of settlement under which free institutions can exist.

Mr. Macdonnell suggested that Prime Minister Diefenbaker take up with the new Australian prime ministers' conference arrangements "great steps" of further economic aid to underdeveloped lands.

WORLD STOP WASTE

Mr. Herridge said that "for a start" Canada could save $300,000,000 by curtailing wasteful defence expenditures, as proposed by the CCF. "A no-cost defence motion now before the House.

"We in th's group are quite confident that every dollar that is being spent to create more missile is being wasted," he declared.

The CCF member said a $300,000,000 saving would more than take care of the combined basic disability war pensions; increases in war veterans' allowances; a 10 monthly boost in the old age pension; and civil service salary increases of $1,150 to $3,000. These, he calculated, would come to $287,000,000.

Mr. Herridge also called for a capital gains tax and a national investment policy to develop our resources and give employment to the jobless.

Queen's Infant Son Christened By Archbishop

LONDON (AP) — With water from the River Jordan, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, christened Prince Queen's infant son Andrew Albert Christian Edward.

The first two names were for grandfathers of the seven-week-old prince. The last was for his great-great grandfathers, King Christian IX of Denmark and King Edward VII.

De Gaulle Leaves British Hosts Basking in Rosy Glow of Nostalgia

LONDON (AP) — Charles de Gaulle returned to Paris today from both a wife and a state visit to France's alliance with British after a three-day state visit that for the moment obscured differences between the two neighbors on the question of total disarmament and nostalgia.

In 10 days the Gaulle flies to Canada for a three-day visit and thence to the United States for an eight-day tour. He then returns to his capital for the East-West summit talks.

Frost Announces All Safety Rules Will Be Studied

Investigation Ordered By Royal Commission

TORONTO (CP) — Establishment of a royal commission to investigate the adequacy of all workers safety regulations in Ontario was announced today by Premier Frost.

He told the legislature the investigation had been ordered in line with the recommendations of the coroner's jury which investigated a March 17 tunnel tragedy in which five Toronto construction men died after being trapped by fire.

Mr. Frost named Judge P. J. McAndrew of Thunder Bay district head of the commission. Other members are Dr. Gordon Bateman, a consulting geologist, and Russell Harvey, a special union representative serving on the Ontario labor relations board.

The commission would study every possible safety method which covers any aspect of job safety.

CONSIDER EXPLOITATION

Mr. Frost also announced that the government would give "special consideration" to recent complaints that Canadian laborers were being exploited, particularly in the Toronto area.

He said a special cabinet committee has been set up to investigate this matter. Unscrupulous employers" were reported to be exploiting Canadian laborers in the construction field and the committee would consider "certain legislative and administrative steps to meet the situation."

In the first step, special material was being prepared for provincial distribution "to acquaint newcomers with their rights as workers and employers with their duties under various provincial laws." The material would be issued in various languages.

The Frost administration was also being given to the establishment of a training program within the labor department to "create and maintain" reduce or prevent the present shortage in accidents such as the Toronto tunnel tragedy.

The royal commission had been instructed to cover every aspect of job safety and was empowered to summon witnesses and take evidence under oath.

New Schedule For Teachers In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — After six months of negotiation, the board of education Thursday night approved a new salary schedule for secondary school teachers.

The new scale, accepted by the teachers Thursday, takes effect Sept. 1 and classes teachers in four groups—group one has a $1,250 annual minimum and a $1,750 maximum; group two, $1,400 minimum $1,700 and maximum $3,000; group three, $1,550 to $3,800; group four, $5,500 to $3,100.

Heads of departments in classical, modern and home economics receive $300 above their group maximum, plus $100 for each assistant and at maximum salary, $200 bonus is paid for heads of English, social studies, mathematics, moderns, guidance, science and the four heads of departments. A co-ed emile, commercial and shop directors receive $700 more.

Canada Makes New Proposal On Sea Laws

GENEVA (CP) — Canada told the United States today submitted a compromise proposal to the world maritime conference to limit historic foreign fishing in coastal waters to a period of 10 years.

George Drew of Canada and Arthur Dean of the U.S. unofficially suggested ending traditional foreign fishing within 12 miles of shore by Oct. 31, 1970. After that date all fishermen operating in distant coastal waters would be excluded by universal law.

The limitation of foreign coastal fishing was agreed upon by Canada, Britain, the U.S. and other major maritime powers after continuous negotiations behind the scenes at the 87-country meeting. It represents a compromise after a serious rift among the Western maritime powers.

DROP RIVAL PROPOSALS

The Canadian and American delegations today announced they withdrew their earlier rivaling "six plus six miles" proposals in favor of recognizing the extension of foreign fishing in coastal waters.

The U.S., supported by Britain, originally sought unrestricted recognition of historic fishing rights in foreign waters for 10 years. Canada's proposal, which had the support of Iceland, Norway and many smaller coastal states, opposed any perpetuation" of foreign fishing within 12 miles of shore, and demanded the exclusion of foreign fishing.

To be adopted, the new compromise proposal must first receive a two-thirds majority by the 87 delegates sitting as a committee and then a two-thirds majority—84 votes—in the plenary session of the conference.

Thomasburg Man Faces Several Fraud Counts

James Morley Fox, former Thomasburg resident, now living in the Toronto area, was arrested in that city yesterday and has been brought back to Hastings county to face fraud charges involving the passing of forged cheques.

Fox will face three charges in the Tweed area, while four similar charges in the Toronto area are pending. Several hundreds of dollars were said involved.

Tweed police chief Walter Higgins said cheques were written against the accounts of three Tweed district men. The offences were said to have taken place within the past two months.

Now lodged in Hastings county jail, Mr. Fox will appear in court before Magistrate R. C. Jackson next Thursday.

Talk on Nature Photography Heard by Club

Mr. A. G. "Jack" Asgill of Wooler was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Belleville Camera Club on Tuesday. Mr. Asgill has won international honors for his nature slides. He pointed out that the type of camera was not the only thing to consider in taking good nature pictures. The photographer himself is the most important factor. To be a nature photographer, one must have a great deal of patience and become accustomed to working in all kinds of weather.

When photographing plants or fungi, the subject can be dug up and taken indoors where the lighting can be controlled by the photographer, but bird photography needs electronic or some other type of flash because of the movements of the movements record. One must work out his own problems and stick to the old motto of — "try, try again".

After Mr. Asgill's enjoyable talk, he showed some of his many slides. Questions were asked through the showing and a lively discussion took place after.

The Camera Club's third annual salon will be held from May 9 to May 14 at the Corby Public Library auditorium. Camera clubs in Trenton, Peterborough, Kingston, Campbellford, Lindsay, Cobourg, Lakefield, the three Belleville high schools and Queen's University have been asked to compete. Robert C. Ragsdale, A.R. P.S., a charter member of the original Camera Club in Belleville, who is now a well-known photographer in Toronto, has consented to judge the pictorial entries and the Rev. Austin will be judging the nature entries. The pictures will be on public view at the centre week during library hours.

In the print and slide competition Wally Kirkpatrick took first and second prizes in the black and white group and Hedley James was third. In the color slides section Morris Smith was first, Katharine Willis and Don Peters tied for second and Mike Peters received a third.

The meeting closed after a showing of slides from the CPAC. Pictures the Judges Have Liked".

Winter Session Of 'Ladies' Day Out' Group Ends

The winter season for the Ladies' Day Out group of the Y.M.C.A. just completed a most successful season. Registration at the first was so successful that in order to achieve the aims of the Ladies' Day Out the group was divided with half of the ladies coming on Tuesday and the rest on Thursday.

The ten-week program featured many outstanding speakers—Ella Mercer Haig talked about city affairs and gave the ladies a good outline of the city's administration. Dr. J. Nellis spoke to the ladies on Red, White, Blue and Yellow Babies. Other speakers were Mr. G. Griffiths on investments, Harriet Stevens, Mrs. J. Grant, on arts and crafts; Muriel Andres on art; Mrs. Poole on cosmetics; Mrs. Wheeler on millinery; Dr. Burns on pets in the home; Dorothy Belchelor on hints on shopping; Mr. Farrow on home decorating; Mrs. Vanover on children's styles; Mrs. Hartley on adoption and a number of educational films.

On a typical day the ladies arrived in the morning at 10.30 for a gym class of games, exercises and volleyball and then to the pool for a relaxing swim. It was then time for lunch which was usually followed by two speakers, one on an education-al subject and the other on a practical topic.

The mothers didn't need to worry about their children as they were taken care of by excellent baby sitters.

Witnesses Fail to Identify Man Charged With Robbery

Failure on the part of four Crown witnesses to positively identify the accused as one of two men who held the point of a hold-up of a Tweed grocery store last February, resulted in the dismissal at Marmora yesterday of Fred Axford, 30-year-old transient, charged with armed robbery.

Axford was freed by Magistrate Jackson in Marmora magistrate's court after the four witnesses failed to identify the accused. Several weeks ago Tweed witnesses picked Axford out of a Toronto police lineup and on the strength of the identification he was formally charged with the Tweed offence by Tweed police chief Walter Higgins.

The offence took place last February 13th when two men drove into the Tweed village in White Store at closing time and after herding three people into the back of the walk-in refrigerator, scooped up the contents of the till and escaped. About $1,400 was taken.

Several weeks after the robbery Axford was arrested in Toronto in connection with what was brought back to face trial in Tweed. He was later being identified in a Toronto police lineup.

The witnesses in all were called at yesterday's preliminary hearing into the charge of discharging by Magistrate Jack-Donald. Chief witness was Detective Charles Weir of Toronto, who told the court how he took the accused into the police lineup as one of the witnesses to the Tweed robbery.

Crown Attorney Thomas Lailey appeared as legal aid for Axford at the Marmora hearing.

Moira River Rapidly Reaching Peak With North Run-Off

Swelled by the run-off of melting snows from the northern reaches of the watershed, the Moira is gradually and steadily reaching its crest with residents in the flats south of Foxboro keeping their fingers crossed, hoping for the crest will not be greater.

This morning the water was lapping at the highway pavement along Benedict flats a mile south of Foxboro. Residents of some of the homes on the river side of the highway were carefully creeping up the garden walls.

The higher river level boosted the water into the Corbyville dam at mid-morning broken chunks of ice were being carried on the swollen river current through Belleville and on to the Bay.

Engineers in Belleville district saw their crest last Sunday and Monday when the floods were inundated. Since then most of the water has found its way into the Corbyville dam and from the north is beginning to reach the bridge and Corbyville has been closed off due to flooding of the roadway in places being a foot or so under water.

Mr. Chubb said it was not expected the river level would go much higher.

Home owners in the lowlands south of Foxboro say the river has been rising steadily for the past three days and this morning was still increasing.

Fancy Haircuts, Shaves Going Up in Price

Take note boys, those fancy duck-styled haircuts are going up in price.

And so is the price of shaves.

Members of the Belleville Exhibition Association got together this week and decided that due to the high costs and effort which must be given, all fancy haircuts will be raised to $1.50 in the near future.

And at the same time the price of shaves will be increased from the present 75c to $1.

The price of brush cuts will remain at the present $1.25, while the cost of the regular haircut will also remain, it was stated.

PROFESSOR CONVICTED

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Dr. Charieb J. Goebel, 39, a University of Rochester professor, was convicted Thursday of manslaughter in the death of Michael Torres, 8. Goebel picked up the boy, who was arguing with Goebel's small son, and flung him down. A stick punctured the boy's eye and brain.

'Y' Prep Girls Receive Awards For Swimming

The prep girls at the local YMCA held their annual swimming competition in the "Y" pool yesterday afternoon. Some 70 girls competed all of them ranging between the ages of nine to eleven years inclusive. Both beginners' and swimmers' sections were held under the direction of Carol Hickson, swimming instructor for the girls' classes.

In the beginners' section held in the shallow end of the pool competitions were held in breath-holding and the crawl (both style and speed). Sharon Nash, Lorraine Fairman and Marion Hawkins placed first to third respectively in the breath-holding competition. In the other beginners' competitions they were: crawl speed — Sharon Nash (1st), Lorraine Fairman (2nd), Janice Hogan (3rd); crawl stroke — Sharon Nash (1st), Lorraine Fairman (2nd), Janice Hogan and Barbara Fournia (3rd).

In the swimmers' section the winners were: free style, Rosanne Craig (13.5 sec.), Sally Craig (18 sec.), Margaret Lewis (20 sec.); back crawl, Shawnee Craig (20 sec.), Elaine Macdonald (21 sec.), Joan Pierson (21.5 sec.); surface dive, Mary Ann Carter, Elaine Macdonald, Sandra Clarke; side stroke, Mario Diamantides, Elaine MacDonald, Shawnee Craig.

Judges for the competition were: Marianne Corke, Dorothy Dickey, Pat Featherstone and Kay Summers.

Jimmy Barriage Dies in Hospital, Ill Seven Weeks

James Joseph "Jimmy" Barriage, 23 Everett Street, well known baseball and hockey player, died in the Belleville General Hospital this Friday morning after an illness of seven weeks.

Mr. Barriage was born in this city 48 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Barriage and lived in this community his entire life. He was educated in the public and high school of the city and was a prominent member of the employment of the Belleville Lock Company, where he was employed for many years and for the last couple of years was a valued employee of the Belleville Hardware Company. In both baseball and hockey circles he was highly regarded, both by management and a wide circle of friends. He was a machinist by trade.

In the sporting life of this city he played an important part and was regarded as a member of a championship team but he left his mark on the sport picture as a fine all round athlete, a sport that he undertook. He was an excellent outfielder and a very good softball insofar as this city was concerned. He made the balls and strikes made him a splendid leadoff man on any baseball or softball team and many times the spectators have been brought to their feet with a spectacular catch by Jimmy in the outfield. He was also a great deal of "Hustle" to the game and he never quit trying no matter the score and he was an excellent team man.

SUNBEAM ALLEY CHAMPIONS

After Jimmy quit the playing fields, he joined the bowling ranks frequently and again he made his mark in that pastime. He captured innumerable cups and trophies for his prowess on the alleys. He was always in the high average group at the end of the season and he always starred in the role of the closing banquets, where he could enjoy the fellowship of his many friends. Jimmy Barriage was a kindly man, never had a mean word to say of any person and was never happier than when discussing sport with his many buddies through the years. He will be sadly missed by a wide circle.

Mr. Barriage was a member of St. Thomas' Church and his surviving is his wife, the former Dorothy Louise Aiker, two sisters, Helena and Miss Lillian Barriage at home, four brothers, Harold Barriage of Toronto, Kenneth Gerald and Albert Barriage of this city and four sisters, Miss Mary Barriage of Howe Island, Mrs. Allan (Rainbow) Mitchell, Mrs. Alva (Eva) Deinard, and Mrs. Martin (Helen) Kerik all of this city.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon from St. Thomas' Church with interment in Belleville cemetery.

In Memoriam

DWYER. — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Gertrude Dwyer, who passed away April 7th, 1957.

"Too dearly loved ever to be forgotten."

—Lovingly remembered by husband, Bert.

JONES. — In ever loving memory of a dear father, Frank Jones, who died April 8th, 1955.

Time may change and years may pass,
But memories linger on.
Within our hearts he lives still,
Dear as he ever was.
—Ever sadly missed by granddaughter Beverley, husband and grandchildren Susan and Robbie.

JONES. — In loving memory of a dear father, Samuel Bruce Jones, who left us April 8th, 1957.

We have only your memory,
Dear Dad.

To remember our whole life through;
Your smile, your laugh, your cheery voice,
And all the things we used to do.
—Sadly missed by children Elsie, Mary and Liddie, and daughters-in-law Lois, and son-in-law Ernie and Howard.

TAYLOR. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away April 8th, 1950.

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a blank,
The world can never fill.
—Remembered by son Bert.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market had the "weekend feeling" this morning as investors showed little interest in trading prospects.

The 11 a.m. volume was 411,000 compared to the 480,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

Mexican Light and Power was the one bright spot in an otherwise dull industrial section, gaining 1¼ at 14¼.

Many last interest. Hudson Bay and Ventures Ltd. both slipped ¼ at 46¾ and 23¾ while Noranda and Steep Rock both were off ¼ at 41¼ and 10¾.

An earlier lead in industrials was cut back at the close of trading Thursday but the market still wound up on the bright side.

Index changes: Industrials up .75 at 502.31; golds up .56 at 99.61; base metals up .44 at 100.80; western oils off .73 at 98.52.

Final volume was 2,000,000 against 1,627,000 Wednesday.

Western Grocers A took the initiative among industrials with a gain of 1¼ at 34, with Weston B up 1¼ at 33½ and Loblaw A up a point at 27½. Canadian Iron Foundries was ahead ¾ at 21¾, while Argus and Moore went ahead at 29¾ and 40½.

Crow's Nest Pass was down two points at 17½, with Trans-Canada Pipe off ¾ at 23¼ and Imperial Bank, Imperial Life and Shawinigan Water and Power all off ¾ at 51, 73 and 28.

Noranda went ahead ¾ at 41¼, Hollinger put on ½ at 24¼, Castle at 9¾ at 45¾ and 25¾ while Argus and Moore went ahead at 29¾ and 40½.

Quemont was off 25 cents at $9.25, Labrador lost ¼ at 24¼ and Hudson's Bay dropped ¾ at 43¼. Gunnar was up 30 cents at $5.80 and Consolidated Denison gained five cents at $9.30.

Hudson Bay dropped ¾ at 23¾, New Oil A and Pacific Petroleum were off ¼ at 10¾ and 11¼ at 10¾. Siebens dropped 10 cents at $7. Great Plains was up at 10¾.

Disposal Plant To Be Discussed With Committee

Physical and financial aspects of the city's proposed sewage disposal plant and connecting sewers will be the topic of discussion at a meeting next Wednesday between a special committee of city council and Dr. A. E. Berry of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Committee chairman Alderman Jack Ellis noted that there were a great number of details to be ironed up before the city could go ahead with its sewage disposal project.

One of these would be the best method of financing the heavy expenditure, and also what aspects of the program should be first proceeded with.

Alderman Ellis said that the project was completely strange to many of the committee members who are new to council.

He expected the meeting with Dr. Berry would be in the form of questions and answers following which the committee would be in a better position to bring a recommendation to council.

Special committee members include Alderman Ellis, as chairman of public works, William Jarvah, finance chairman, Jack Ireland, representing the industrial commission, John Barlow, planning, and Eugene Harrison, member-at-large from council.

DE GAULLE

brought into full display at pomp and ceremony unprecedented in modern times.

The French president addressed a joint session of Parliament's two houses, something no foreign chief of state has done since the war. He reviewed the Queen's household troops on parade, something no foreign chief of state has done in recorded history.

There were the usual banquets, drives through the streets and a ballet Thursday night at the Royal Opera House with pageant ceremonies. But surrounding the stately visit were memories—some of the dark days of 1940, when de Gaulle symbolized all that remained of free France, standing alone with Britain against the threat of Hitler across the channel.

The visit was not all ceremony and sentiment. De Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan had two long talks.

They discussed the separate economic groups in Europe to which their governments are allied and the possibility of a serious clash between them.

Macmillan told the French president of his talks with President Eisenhower 10 days ago, and de Gaulle briefed the prime minister on his recent talks with

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)— The broad active demand for lightweight cattle of the past few weeks came to an abrupt halt this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Slaughter steers, heifers and yearling steers at prices already to the bulk of last week's sales and were 50 cents per hundredweight lower than the high sales of Thursday and Friday.

Cows were steady and bull prices steady while veal calf prices were higher and hog prices steady to the close. Sheep and lambs were unchanged.

Cattle receipts were about the same as last week and some 500 head fewer than the same week in 1959. Receipts from Western Canada totalled 1,447 head, 165 head more than last week. There were three shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers and two exports to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 23-23.50 with odd sales higher; good 22-23; medium 19-21.50; common 15-18.50; good heifers 20-23; with sales to 21.50 and an odd choice to 22; medium 17-19.50; common 14-17; choice fed yearlings 23-24; and odd tops to 25; good 22-23; good cows 15-16.50; medium 13-15; common 14-15; canner and cutter cows 12-14; good heavy bologna bulls 18-18.50; common and medium light bulls 14-17.50.

Replacements: Good feeder weight stockers mostly 23-24 with sales to 25; common and medium 19-22.

Calves: Good vealers 33-35 with choice to 36.50; medium 28-32; common 20-25; boners 12-18.

Hogs: Grade A 21; heavy sows 15; lights 17; slags 10 on dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Good handyweight lambs 23.50-23.75; some good feed lots at 24; common and medium lambs 18-22; sheep 4-10 according to quality; spring lambs 4 prices ranging from 25-40 per hundredweight.

Kiwanians Take Verbal, Visual Australia Trip

TRENTON — The regular weekly dinner meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club was held Thursday night.

Guests were introduced by Howard Aziz. From Trenton: Alan Hone; Oil and Pacific Petroleum were off ¼ at 10¾ and 11¼ at 10¾. Siebens dropped 10 cents at $7. Great Plains was up at 10¾.

Geoffrey Robinson; from Ballmoore, Frank Carter from Port Hope; Bill Weatherup, Bob McCormick, Ron Dewland, Tom Lorry, Harry Dolge and the president of the Port Hope Club, Don Lamb.

Al Weaver read a newspaper article describing the recent hockey game between the Trenton club and the Port Hope club. The winning goal for Trenton was scored by a non hockey player who shot the puck into his own goal. President Don Lamb presented a trophy to the Trenton coach, Clarke Nelson.

Joe O'Neill was given a pin for two years' perfect attendance by president Dick Burnet.

Guest speaker, Squadron Leader Roy Wood, was introduced by Ted Selder. Mr. Selder said that S-L Wood had joined the RCAF in 1939. He served as a navigator during the war until his plane was forced down behind enemy lines and spent two years as a prisoner of war.

After the war, S-L Wood was a member of 414 Squadron with headquarters at Ottawa. He had been part of the team engaged in mapping and reconnaissance work in the Arctic.

In 1952, S-L Wood became senior public relations officer at Training Command Headquarters. He became acquainted with many townspeople and publicized many local activities, including the Trenton Centennial.

He was then transferred to Ottawa to assist in publicity in connection with the RCAF's 25th anniversary and the 50th anniversary of powered flight in Canada.

Mr. Selder said S-L Wood had retired from air force activities, but added he could never be considered as retired in any sense. He will be with Philabusters, Fly-With his family.

S-L Wood addressed the club on his recent tour of Australia and New Zealand as part of an RCAF goodwill mission. He said the tour had been taken up by aircrew members from various anti-submarine patrol squadrons in Canada's ten provinces had been represented by one or more crew members.

Ford Gatenby, formerly of Trenton, had been a member of the tour.

The tour entailed 23,000 flying hours. The last leg of the trip was a record-breaking hop from Honolulu to North Bay, covering 4,700 miles, non-stop.

In the supplementary film with which Wood illustrated his remarks, members were shown scenes of Australia, New Zealand and Honolulu.

The crew members attended a reception in Brisbane as the guests of the Lord Mayor, and another reception as guests of the Premier of Queensland.

Other highlights of the film dealt with wildlife in the countries, scenes from formal beautiful gardens, sheep ranches and Maori villages.

S-L Wood said there are three million people in New Zealand and 48 million sheep.

At Christchurch, the photographer had taken scenes in a large recreational park of 8,000 acres where every form of known sport is played.

S-L Wood was thanked by Ray Fantham.

TRENTON — Because of a recent visit by a member of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion that government, club was a college student who worked for a short time only, and two were non-service-men.

Mr. Lawson said that the Legion branch felt that Elmer Sandercock, MPP for Hastings West, had been co-operative.

Two Fire Calls

TRENTON — Shortly before noon Thursday, firemen answered a call from a Sinclair house wife at 24 Ramsay Street. The woman said firemen were had switched on the oven preparatory to cooking the noon-day meal only to have the oven burst into flames from an accumulation of grease.

Around 1:30 p.m. the department was called to the first grass fire of the year, in front of the Canada Creosoting Company premises on Dufferin St.

Three Trenton Men Members Of Queen's Own

TRENTON — This summer the Queen's Own Rifles celebrates its 100th anniversary.

Plans are being made for an extensive program of military ceremonies, sports events and social functions in connection with the anniversary observances.

Trenton men who are members of the renowned regiment are Sgt.-Major Ernest Gay, Fred Genereaux, 118 Bridge Street, Belleville, and brother of Mrs. Jack Keegan, Bayside. Fred was Queen's co-member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, during the Korean War, he served with the Royal 22nd Regiment, later joining the RCAF. He has been a member of the Queen's Own for almost a year, and is stationed at Calgary.

Also stationed with the Queen's Own Rifles at Calgary is Corporal Earl Ashley, Earl has been with the regiment for three years. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Ashley are former Trenton residents. They now live in Whitby, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley may attend the anniversary celebrations in Calgary this summer.

First Lieutenant Bill Westfall is stationed at Camp Borden. He is a sports instructor and will attend the celebrations in his capacity. Bill served in the RCAF during the war, from which he joined the Trenton Rifles. Bill's mother, Mrs. E. A. Hogle, lives at 101 Division Street in Trenton. His brother, Constable Bruce Westfall is a member of the Trenton police department.

Club Purchases Two Additional Wheel Chairs

TRENTON — The Quinte Disabled Persons' Club met in the Trenton Recreation Hall Saturday night with 15 members present.

Mrs. Mitchell continued lessons in oil painting in which several members are becoming adept.

It was announced that two more wheel chairs had been bought by the club with the proceeds of the recent rummage sale.

There will be a tag day for handicapped persons' care in Belleville, May 7.

Miss Eva Morrison, club president showed pictures sent to her by a weekend magazine which recently ran a feature article on the low-cost housing project for handicapped persons in Toronto.

Miss Morrison also extended the thanks of the Baker family for flowers members had sent as an expression of sympathy on the death of Jesse Baker, Mr. Baker will long be remembered by the club for the interest he showed in club activities. He taught several members leather work, enabling them to add to their incomes.

Following the meeting, the members played euchre and lunch was served by Mrs. Jim Patterson and Mrs. Bill Wilson.

The Peril of Democracy

In a democratic society it is the chief responsibility of each and every citizen to maintain an active and informed interest in all the activities of the government and in the politics of his country. To get out and vote every election day, which only about 35 per cent of us do anyway, is certainly not enough. We have to vote intelligently and we should have a sound reason for the decision we make in casting our ballot.

When we vote we should know either what we expect our candidate to do or we should approve of his record as a representative of the people and we should have good ideas as to whether or not he is capable of making decisions which will be best for ourselves and our country in the long run.

After a government has been elected we also have responsibility. This is to ensure that the government of the day is acting in a responsible manner and for the benefit of the people of the country. In order to determine this it is up to the citizen to make the fullest possible use of as many news sources as possible in order to keep himself as well-informed as possible about both domestic and foreign affairs. One does not require a university education to do this. One only requires an interest in himself, his fellow men, his country and in his responsibility as a citizen.

What happens in a democratic state when people do not assume this responsibility? The world today is, unfortunately, just chock-full of examples. We may point out South Africa where a militant Boer minority's actions have put them in control of the government via democratic processes but they have dedicated themselves to a policy of intolerant persecution of another section of their society. We may point to our great neighbor to the south where labor racketeering and political corruption have developed to the point where the active participation in politics is believed that gangsters are very close to being a major influence in the life of one of the greatest democratic nations ever built.

We can point these things out right at home as well as abroad, but this does little towards correcting or remedying the faults. These things may be corrected when people realize that there is more in life than their own little family circle. This will only happen when people realize that if our way of life is to continue it has got to be filled with the breath of vitality and vigor such as comes from a people who take an interested and active part in maintaining it, not from a mediocre mass of materially contented backsliders whose only gasp comes at the end of a TV commercial or when they think they will personally suffer some inconvenience.

We hear only too frequently the excuse that "politics is dirty" and therefore one doesn't want to get involved. Yet this same person by this very statement admits that he is willing to be the pawn of the "dirty" politicians. Then we hear the other excuse that "it doesn't matter if I take an interest or not, my vote won't matter." Personally we feel that same individual is the type that society doesn't matter either and we wish him an early departure from the community or country. There is also the common remark that "I don't know anything about any of the candidates. One is probably as good as the other."

We feel that if a person is stupid enough to make a remark like this he probably shouldn't be given the privilege of voting to begin with. The remark indicates a moronic level of intelligence concerning interest in one's country.

We often wonder at these remarks. We wonder where on earth these people came from. We wonder if they were actually raised in Canada for they seem to have so little interest in their country. We greatly fear these people. Their weakness becomes the weakness of the entire country for they form the weak link. They are the greatest peril to our country — the uninformed, uninterested, ungrateful sponges. They are content to take all the advantages and benefits and give back nothing in return. You can usually identify them by their complaining, the quantity of which seems to be in inverse proportion to their acceptance of a citizen's responsibilities and the quality of which seems to be even less than the latter.

It is this element of our society which forms the greatest peril to the maintenance of our democratic way of life. It is an added responsibility for each of us to see that our children and our friends do not join or form a part of this element. If we believe in our way-of-life this element is a useless extravagance which we most certainly cannot afford.

Perhaps some readers might wonder why this sort of an editorial is not saved until an election is due. To this we respond that it is now that a citizen should take the greatest interest in what is going on around him. It is what goes on between the elections that should govern his action at the polls. This responsibility is a full-time affair, not just to be saved for election years.

There are two types of citizens—the responsible and the sponge—which are you?

Someone remarks that one of man's chief flaws as a biological creature is that he has no flaps to his ears; those that he had have atrophied. Not so; his chief drawback is no flap to the mouth that can be battened down. (Peterborough Examiner.)

Set My People Free

Montreal Gazette.

There is an ancient command. And all the ages have hung it. It is the command. — "Set my people free."

It is a command that is heard again in Africa, and in a still louder. Anxiety broods over this seething upsurge of the colored people. The world holds its breath. And hopes the pain and the terror that lie just under the surface may not break out into a flood.

Yet, in the midst of all this anxiousness, there is the feeling that these people, armed only with their sticks and their stones, are groping after something greater than their own emancipation. They partakers of mankind's long search to be free.

It is a time when fairness and understanding compels a due sympathy with those who are about to face with this tension. The white people of South Africa have put their earthly possessions are at stake. Certainly they may be about to lose control over the land they settling generations ago. It may be unfortunate, according to their judgment, that the blacks were released; and they are its defenders against a surge of barbarism.

But they must be realized that ideals are easily preached when the life and limb of others are at stake. Righteousness is so precarious a possession in any race or land, that the framing of its standard may be the hypocrite's most lordly gesture.

Yet even with the conscious-stricken among those in other lands, who look with unfriendly eyes on the white people in Africa, must feel that these colored people, moving forward to their goal, have to be free to live on their side the forces of fate.

They have little in the way of material armament. Those in authority in South Africa can command the armed forces; they have, if they are so determined, enforce their will by weapons of destruction. But bloodshed, unguaranteed, is secure and undisturbed authority. Even the most powerful nations have upon them the defenceless must make the will hesitate, and stricken the heart.

Those who advance with nothing more than sticks and stones may only be groping and stumbling towards the light. They may be without training or competence to use the authority they have overcome. They may have blind impulses in their hearts.

Yet, if they are seeking after liberty, who can withstand them? Anywhere and forever the people, in the end, must be free. And it is there, there in the grace of wisdom, they may be guided towards the light they are blindly seeking. They may be given a hand to steady them in the darkness. They may be taught something of the duties and responsibility and enabled to bear some of its burdens.

And, when the time comes when they are ready to enter into their destiny, then there is hope for friendship — even for brotherhood — in a community of free peoples.

Perhaps in these groppings after freedom are suppressed, and sometimes ugly stirrings becomes the occasion for new devices of resistance, the healthy impulses of freedom are stained by hate. And those who have entrenched themselves to suppress what they cannot extinguish, find themselves driven into even greater harshness and still more desperate measures. And the end they must lose faith in themselves.

Whatever the dangers of this movement towards their free-dom may be, the colored people are doing something greater than themselves, and even greater than they know. Were it not so — had the doctrine of apartheid could be enforced with ease and unopposed, there would be something would have gone out of the heart of humanity.

South Africa happens to be the place and this happens to be the hour. But what is happening there and now is beyond place, and time. It is the flame all their fumblings, these colored peoples in Africa are shed blood brothers of all who have ever sought to be free, or will ever be free, in the world.

If they are not capable of freedom, they must be helped towards it. For he who refuses freedom to others, can know no peace within himself. He shall destroy something in himself that is precious as he denies to others — the dignity of man.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

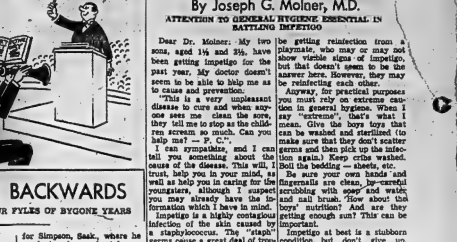
WE NEED BURDENS

We protest against problems, against problems our lives would wither up and die. Life is a struggle and — constituted as it is — life is never healthy unless it is involved in struggle. This struggle may be so great as to break one's will and purpose — or, at least, so great that one may find it to break his will and purpose.

A great scientist some generations ago, in observing the struggles which the butterfly must go through in order to secure into life, thought he would help the struggling creature by cutting the sack in which it was enveloped. The butterfly never gained color, and they crawling about listlessly for a few minutes died.

Some years ago a man was sent to prison because he had espoused an unpopular cause. Technically he was guilty, but many people believed he was being unjustly punished and they tried in every way to get him out of the jail. One of the prisoner's discharged, and it warned these well-intentioned people that, if they succeeded in getting the man out of jail and thus freeing him of problems and removing challenge and zest to life, the "hero" would shrivel up and die. His was released but in less than six months did precisely that.

You do not like struggle — neither do I. Yet without struggle, life would lose tang and savor. Maybe you are involved in too much struggle — but that's another matter.



Motoring Less Trouble

Understanding that the democratic form of government of Switzerland might become the pattern for the projected "United States of Europe" after the conclusion of the present war, was voiced at the regular luncheon meeting of Belleville Rotary Club by Mr. Anton Lendi, born and educating in Switzerland, but now living in Toronto. Although erroneous lantern slides, the speaker portrayed the scenic beauty, some of the 9,000 bridges and the lovely cities of his native land. He explained that Switzerland was about half the size of Lake Superior, wick and had little more than half the population of Toronto. Practically all the raw materials for Swiss manufacturers were imported. She had maintained her industrial position through making superior products plus hard work. Her imports totalled $230,000,000; her exports amounted annually to $250,000,000. Against this admirable record was the tourist industry, but the war had driven away the tourists, and the country was now hard pressed to balance its budget.

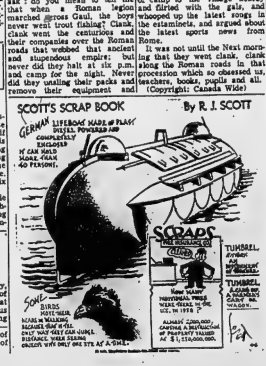
THE PACKSACK



By GREGORY CLARK

History was taught to me and my generation as a dreary succession of dates to hold our attention and interest, our teachers and our school books set in motion before us a dramatic procession of kings and ceasars, conquerors and tyrants, with occasional glimpses of the masses of mankind, like moists in the background, dark and afar.

It never occurred to me to ask: do you mean to tell me that when a Roman legion marched across Gaul, the boys never went trout fishing? Clank, clank went the centurions and the standard bearers, but never a rod, reel or occasional reference to the fact that the soldiers carried packsacks?

It was not until the Next Month that I got clank, clank along the Roman roads in that packsack which so obsessed us, camera, books, pupils and all.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ATTENTION TO GENERAL HYGIENE ESSENTIAL IN BATTLING IMPETIGO

Dear Dr. Molner: My two sons, aged 4½ and 2½, have been getting impetigo for the past year. My doctor doesn't seem to be able to help me as to cause and prevention.

"This is a very unpleasant disease to cure and when anyone sees me clean the sore, they tell me I am foolish to even scream so much. Can you help me? — P. C.".

I can sympathize, and I can tell you something about the cause of the disease. This will, I trust, help you in your mind, as well as help you in caring for the youngsters, although when you may already have the information which I have in mind.

Impetigo is a highly contagious infection of the skin caused by a staphylococcus. The "staph" germs cause a great deal of trouble of various sorts, and now that we are having more success in controlling the "strep" types, we are more and more becoming aware of the "staph" problems. Boils, carbuncles, infected, boily petigo, usually respond to antibiotics, and we would be rather glad if except for one thing, in fact: the various breeds of staph germs have the ability rapidly of becoming highly resistant to antibiotics.

I hope your doctor will have the good, fortune of hitting upon a combination to which the particular germs in your children's case have not become resistant.

This may require special tests to determine the germ's sensitivity to antibiotics, and the cost of procedure may well be worth it.

If such facilities are not available in some communities, trial with a different antibiotic may be worthwhile.

Now when children are aged 1½ and 2½ it is difficult to keep their hands from picking at the sores. Little fingers touch the infected areas, then spread impetigo to other areas of the skin is likely.

It makes you want to cry, sometimes, because the small children can't understand.

If your youngsters were older I would suggest that they might be getting reinfection from a playmate, who may or may not show visible signs of impetigo, but does spread it. So the answer here. However, they may be reinfecting each other.

For practical purposes you must rely on extreme cautions in getting well agents. We say "extreme", that's what they tell me. Give boy toys that can be washed and sterilized (to make sure that they don't scatter germs and pick up the infection again.) Keep cribs washed. Boil the bedding, etc., etc.

Be sure your own hands and fingernails are clean, by-careful youngsters, although not to wash and nail brush. How about the boys' nutrition? And are they getting enough sun? This can be important.

Impetigo at best is a stubborn condition, but don't give up. You'll win out.

As to criticisms of those who hear the boys scream: remember that you are trying to conquer an infection. Sores must be healed, and that is the only know how. Hard scrubbing won't do any good. But above all remember that care is the best way to prevent the germs from spreading.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What, if anything, can be done to correct a child's stammering baby talk? This child is ill. — Worried.

Nothing, at this stage of the trouble. Adequate Vitamin D and milk (for calcium) may well prevent further damage.

Mrs. E. T.: If the hair growth is due to the medication you received, it should have disappeared by this time — six months.

Afflicted with arthritis? You may find relief if you follow the advice given in my pamphlet, "Diet in the Treatment of Arthritis". Weight-Drink Ratio Fixed

Sault Ste Marie Star

Reported in a recent edition of Newsweek is a decision made by New York courts to the effect how much a motorist can safely drink by the passing of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's highway safety bill.

The Rockefeller bill is based upon the assumption that the motorist can drive so long as he can drink with impunity; the bill declines the relation between weight, alcohol, and sobriety. For instance, if you weigh 180 pounds you may drink as much as four ounces of 80-proof spirits, five 12-ounce bottles of 5 per cent beer, in one hour and still be pairing your driving capacity. For a heavier man of 200 pounds, the safety area extends to 11 ounces of spirits, or about eight 12 - ounce bottles of beer in an hour.

These figures (which also assume that a person has eaten two hours before driving) says Newsweek, are based on data compiled by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and by many American safety experts— D. J. Duke Elkow of New York University's Safety Education Division, among them — the figures have been checked by Dr. Elkow said "The passage of the safety force the New York State medical society's Produce evidence to validate the drink-for-weight theory."

We wonder whether in the provinces where the RCMP took after traffic also are they prepared to back these figures. We also wonder whether the same amounts apply to women as well as men.

In our view, though we can quote no authority on the subject, drinking of alcohol is a very personal thing, and ability to drink without getting impaired depends upon the physical condition, temperament and personal habits of the individual.

Hard and fast rules defining drunkenness imply always improved fallacious, with the possible exception of the odest of all: "He is drunk who can from the floor, can rise again and ask for more".

Values Shift In Many Ways

A Canadian toy manufacturer is heard to remark that when he was a boy he used to get a shoe box with a string tied to it, and that it did duty as "Henry Ford" get toys worth $50." he said.

Many things show the falling of values has not been confined to the toy department. A mare and buggy gave owners as much satisfaction in 1890 as a new car does to-day. Because there is in 1890 entertained as satisfactorily as the modern motion picture. Oranges, berries, and even fresh tomatoes tasted better in 1890 than they do now. That was because people could not buy them all the year round.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON THE PLANTING OF BOOKS

I never buy an interesting book without giving it a careful examination. Books have influenced the thought of the world, and the influence of a book on a man is what has modelled it in the form of a Republic.

All over this world are great libraries, planted like seed, to stimulate the minds and hearts of millions. How many times I have looked upon a flower by the roadside, and made the silent remark that many books may be planted where the beauty and fragrance of a single flower is like a planted.

Every new book is a seed planted in the hearts of millions of careful observers. Empires have been created, which after been turned to dust. Books, to the contrary, have created and created things that lean upon the earth in the form of ideals.

The planting of a great book, in the fertile soil, is endless in its influence. Day by day, year by year, a planted book rises to demonstrate its power and show its significance. Just think of how stupendous it would be for all mankind, to get excited over the fact that useful books should be planted like seeds, to share their glory far and wide!

Eyes to Match Costume Now Latest Fashion

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—Lines for a poet of the strange like:

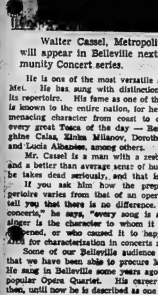
"Your eyes are like rubies,
Your lips are like grass,
Your skin like violets, my rainbow lass."

This is the new beauty prescription for glamor girls of the space age, and no fooling. Already on the United States market, and highly touted by experts in these matters, are colored contact lenses, violet or green face powder and lipsticks in traditional-shattering shades of green, blue, violet and yellow as well as the old-hat rosy hues.

Eyes to match your costume color are the latest to hit the fashion spectrum, introduced at a recent full-dress fashion show in New York.

Colors available in the standard line of contact lenses include: yellow; red; pink; orange; tangerine; tiger gold; three greens, from olive to emerald; three browns, including amber, taupe and espresso; lavender; orchid and jet. More than 150 other colors may be had by special order.

Even more startling, and recommended only for daring types, would be the mix-match trend—one red eye and one green, for instance.



GREEN FACE POWDER

Just to make things more confusing, there are the new face powder and foundation shades of green and lavender, specifically promoted by some of the top U.S. cosmetic houses, and the offbeat lipstick colors, also off and running.

When it comes to hair, the solar spectrum is the limit. As any girl who reads the fashion magazines knows, it's possible to have hair of any color, from emerald green to shocking pink to match the color of a dress, and change it next day to peacock blue or orange. This may be done with the natural hair, by means of rinses, or by having a wardrobe of vari-colored wigs.

Odd to the picture the current widespread use of colored eyeshadow, mascara and eyebrow pencil, and the new style beauty can stop traffic anywhere in the world.

The beauty experts argue that there's no law that says women have to have red lips and beige skin, pink cheeks and the hair nature gave them. After all these thousands of years, they feel women and their public may be tired of the same old face.

Walter Cassel, Metropolitan Opera star, who will appear in Belleville next season on the Community Concert series.

He is one of the most versatile artists on the roster of the Met. He has sung with distinction in almost every wing of its repertoire. His fame as one of the great Scarpias of all time is known to the entire nation, for he has sung that sinister and menacing character from coast to coast, and opposite almost every great Tosca of the day—Renata Tebaldi, Maria Meneghine Callas, Zinka Milanov, Dorothy Kirsten, Eleanor Steber and Licia Albanese, among others.

Mr. Cassel is a man with a zest for the enjoyment of life and a better than average sense of humor, but there is one thing he takes dead seriously, and that is singing.

If you ask him how the preparation of a concert repertoire varies from that of an operatic repertoire, Cassel will tell you that there is no difference. "It's the same thing in concerts," he says, "every song is a different story, and the singer is the character to whom it happened, or who said it happened, or who caused it to happen. There is the same need for characterization in concerts as in opera."

Some of our Belleville audience will be delighted to hear that we have been able to procure Mr. Cassel for next season. He sang in Belleville some years ago as a member of the very popular Opera Quartet. His career has grown steadily since then, until now he is described as one of the most valued singing actors on the Metropolitan Opera's roster.

The Tuesinska Little Symphony is also procured for next year. They bring with them a very fine two-piano team. Two more concerts will complete the series of four.

Tonight's concert—Sudie Sinclair—is a bonus to new members. Memberships available at the YMCA or before the concert at the Belleville Collegiate. (Advt.)

Spring Bride

By TRACY ADRIAN

Intricate sprays of miniature beaded flowers tied with bows and streamers are sprinkled over the bodice and skirt of this spring bridal gown.

The best display the exquisite embroidery, the silhouette features a long sheer-effect skirt with a train and a bodice with a scooped decollete and brief pleated sleeves.

Eggleton WMS. W.A. Enjoy Slide Tour

MADOC JUNCTION — Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. held a successful social evening Friday at the church.

Mr. Oscar Bridges acted as chairman for the program, as follows: Miss Linda Chandler gave two delightful baton numbers with Mrs. Bruce Stapley as accompanist; Miss Grace Clarke gave a reading, "A Tip," the Sharp sisters, Miss Carol, and Jean, of Mount Pleasant, favored with two duets which were showered.

Seven young children, Carol Danford, Teddy Clarke, Michael Browning, Lin Stapley, Keith McMullen, Lloyd Clancy and Wayne McMullen, dressed as darkies, sang "Nellie Bly."

Mr. T. Bridges introduced Mr. Douglas Stapley of Campbellford, a former neighbor, who recently returned from a boat to England, Scotland and France.

Mr. Stapley first showed his departure from Montreal, then the rolling Atlantic and on to Scotland's shores. By pictures he assembled Edinburgh Zoo, Windsor Castle, Shakespeare's birthplace, Anne Hathaway's home, and on to the rolling country of Scotland.

Mr. Stapley and his father, Mr. Frank Stapley, on their trip visited the shores of Dieppe and the grave of a neighborhood boy, Ralph Stapley, who had given his life in World War Two.

All were delighted, especially the children, to see the pictures of London Zoo. His last pictures for the evening were of his trip through Western Canada and the United States, highlighting spots were Lake Louise, museum at Saskatoon, and the Grand Coulee Dam.

The Centennial Parade in Stirling brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

Mrs. Warren Harlow thanked Mr. and Mrs. Stapley and others who had assisted on the program, on behalf of Eggleton W.A.

The ladies of the W.A. and W.M.S. served refreshments.

Minervas, Rebekahs Hold Surprise Party

FOXBORO — On Saturday night, members of Minerva Chapter, No. 138, Eastern Star, and members of Rebekah Lodge came as a surprise to Vickie Simmons on the occasion of her birthday. Although taken by surprise, but in her courteous manner welcomed the guests. Her grandma, Frank Wootton, of Whitby, was also present.

After an evening of social get-together, the ladies, convened by Mrs. C. Ostrom, centred the dining room table with a beautiful birthday cake and a most delicious supper. While the hostess prepared the coffee and lunch, at 12:30, they all sang "Happy Birthday to Dear Vickie" and extended to her best wishes during the coming year.

Club Activities

MOUNT PLEASANT-RAWDON MISSION BAND

RAWDON— Miss Joyce Cooney presided for the meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Mission Band held in the church hall. The children opened with their theme hymn "Little Sunbeams" and repeated in unison "The Mission Band Purpose".

Barbara Williams gave her report and there were 26 children and two adults in attendance.

Judy McAdam read the Bible lesson, and Kenneth Sharp gathered the offering which Kalvin Sharp dedicated.

The group sang, "Wonderful Things in the Bible I See", and Donna Knight closed the worship period with prayer.

Two piano solos were rendered by Betty-McAdam and Brenda Williams and Nancy Johnson and Carolyn Merrick contributed a vocal duet; readings were given by Nancy Dean, Kenneth Smith and Glen Spencer.

The Easter program will be prepared by Mary Ann Hall and Janet Fletcher.

Mrs. Herbert Smith gave the story of "Beyond the end of the road in the Belgian Congo". This is a very interesting story and Mission station was a long way from a city.

This village was situated in a small clearing in the forest where the trees were high and the undergrowth thick. Here the Missionary doctor cared for many sick people.

The children enjoyed a game did more work on their map.

The service closed with the theme hymn "Be sick, or rich the poor, with blessings from Thy boundless store".

Young Couple Feted by Many Friends

MADOC JUNCTION — An enjoyable evening was spent recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kovach, when several friends and neighbors of Eggleton community gathered to extend congratulations and hold a presentation for Mr. and Mrs. Dan Noyes, (nee Norma Wood, cox), who were married in December.

Norma had lived with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kovach, when she is Belleville. Her friendly personality and helpfulness will be missed at Sunday School and at community gatherings.

A round of community singing opened an interesting program.

Several readings were given: Elaine Prest read, "Friendship." Mrs. Bruce Stapley, "Isn't That Just Like a Man?", Mrs. Harry ——— "Take Time." A reading was also given by Isabelle Prest.

Two duets by Miss Sharon Reid and Miss Marilyn Stapley, "I've Got a Mansion," and "It is No Secret," were enjoyed.

Miss Annamae Clarke was asked to read an appropriate address expressing best wishes, after which Norma and Dan were presented with a stepladder, television lamp, and a wall plaque.

The ladies served dainty refreshments.

Mrs. Simmons gratefully responded. Her grandson Frank, and Miss Janet Jones of Oshawa, who was a visitor, beautified the spacious living room with pots of rose "mums."

She received many lovely gifts from the ladies and her Foxboro friends. Her son, Mr. L. Simmons, of Montreal, and her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Wootton, who is in Florida, regretted her could not be present, but sent gifts, and many friends from Florida whom she met last winter while visiting there, sent cards and best wishes.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. C. Ostrom for convening such a lovely evening and also to Vickie for opening her home for the occasion.

Thank You

Over the past weekend 4,000 Belleville and District residents visited Belleville's first all electric Gold Medallion Home.

We believe, that this Gold Medallion home, featuring electric heating, air conditioning, modern lighting, and the latest electrical appliances will start a trend toward many more all electric homes in the Belleville area.

We wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Horlock for opening their home to the public on this occasion.

STIRLING — The last card party of the season was held on Friday evening under the auspices of River Valley Women's Institute with 63 paying guests.

Over 40 visitors were in attendance from Campbellford, Wallaces, Mount Pleasant, Stirling, Stockdale, Springbrook, Bloomfield, Uxbridge W.I., Pinegrove W.I., and Wellbridge W.I. There were 10 members of River Valley W.I. at this party.

Mrs. Vernon Harry and Mrs. H. Morrow convened the euchre in the school house with 10 tables in play.

The prizes were donated by Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis and Mrs. Don Scott and were won as follows: ladies' high, Mrs. Walter Wrightman, Mount Pleasant, 58 points; second, Mrs. Ina Fraser's high, Ed Heasman, 91 points; and second, Fred Smith, Campbellford.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, president of River Valley W.I. welcomed the guests and expressed thanks to all for their patronage.

The conveners assisted by Mrs. Claude Tucker, served light refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Mr. Bert Bedford expressed appreciation on behalf of all the visitors to the members of River Valley Institute for providing such entertainment for them during the winter months. He said the various guests from far and near highly prized the weekly card parties. The visitors gave a hearty ovation to this message of thanks to which the president graciously replied.

HISTORIC TAPESTRY

A tapestry depicting tapestry of the 16th century was discovered in 1960, still in good shape, under plaster in Oslo's ancient city centre.

New Lingerie

By VERA WINSTON

Pure silk crepe prints in dark toned are the newest news in the lingerie world. This model, with matching short panties, is in black and taupe print with a garnish of black lace. Despite the dark tones, there's nothing somber about it. The slip and pants are also available in two tones of gray with gray lace.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.A.

WELLINGTON — The April meeting of St. Andrew's W.A. was held at the home of Miss Neah. The meeting was opened by prayer by the president, Mrs. Blower, followed by the Lord's Prayer and members' prayer. The Scripture reading, by Mrs. Smith, was taken from St. John 8. Eleven members answered roll call and two guests were present.

Reports were heard from the treasurer, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Ogilvy, reporting that she sale for the Dorcas Society had been sent. Mrs. Blower reported that the Junior Auxiliary is getting ready for the rally. It was requested that thank-offerings be brought to the next meeting. It was decided that half of the pledge money be sent in. Other business was completed.

Miss Hewton was welcomed as a new member by Mrs. Blower.

The study period by Mrs. Upton was quite interesting. Miss Farrell will conduct the study period in May. The next meeting to be held at Mrs. Hare's.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour spent.

K.A. Club Sees Weed Slides, Enjoys Poem

The April meeting of the Tabernacle Keen Age Club was held in the church parlors with the president, Stella Burley, presiding.

The worship period was conducted by Jane Boyce with the singing of the hymn, "Breathe On Me Breath of God," after which the scripture from "Acts of the Apostles," using the second chapter. The service was closed with prayer.

A short Easter story on film was shown after which the business part of the meeting was held.

The catering convener, Isabel Goodfellow, announced that the catering calendar is well marked and the club will cater for the next two months.

The official board representative, Kit Cornish, announced that the Y.O.W. tea is being held in Tabernacle Church in May and asked the group to patronize it with both homebaking and their personal attendance as it is a most worthy project.

The first part of the meeting was closed with a reading by the president, a lovely and simple poem by Doris Sunday, which is printed herewith:

An Old Patriotian Donkey

I'd rather carry loads of olive wood,
Or sacks of wine, than a man,
for they won't trick you,
They'll tend your hurts and you'll carry more than you should.
But a man will jerk your mouth and swear and kick you.

But once I took a Man down streets paved with palms,
And crowds of people yelling, packed in tightly.
Slowly I walked, He smiled as they sang psalms.
His hand was soft on my mouth, He rode lightly.

He wasn't a governor. Although that crowd
Screamed, it was honest praise and not plain fear,
He wasn't a general. Although they bowed,
There wasn't one soldier to threaten with his spear.

No dogs barked at my feet that day. They crept
Away, where once they would have bit and run.
At the road's edge a shrouded woman wept
As a mother might for a lost or suffering son.

Head up, ears straight, I carried that Man well.
(A donkey has his stubborn little pride.)
Who was He? Where did He get
I cannot tell.
He never came back to me for a ride.

I suppose He's a shepherd now, counting sheep,
Or lost in the wars, a sword scooped hole for a grave,
Or a farmer scanning the sky before His sleep,
Or dragged to imperial Rome, a galley slave.

I had a gray colt trotting by my side,
Nudging into my ribs, scared of the noise,
Maybe it's trudging somewhere now, its hide
Itching, overloaded, beaten by boys.

And look what's happened to me: my hooves are chipped,
My ears (they were handsome once) are raw and torn,
My old bones ache, and yesterday I slipped
And gashed my shoulders in a patch of thorn.

I've carried children, pine roots, every load
In sand and stone, wherever donkeys go,
But still my back rides lightly where He rode,
The fur is cross-shaped and it seems to glow.

ST. JOHN'S WART WEED

The highlight of the evening was the guest speaker and narrator, Dr. Morris Smith, of the Belleville Branch of the Entomology Laboratories. His address was accompanied by colored slides taken while doing biological control work in British Columbia. This particular operation was to combat the weed known as St. John's Wart, which is injurious to cattle grazing in pasture where this weed is present. Dr. Smith enumerated 10,000 Colorado Potato Beetles to the infected area to feed on the weed, which are beneficial in that they are harmless to everything except this weed.

It was interesting to note that sprays such as 2-4-D are not effective against this pest and another weed known to the Belleville area as the common butter and egg plant. This plant is injurious to wheat crops in the Saskatchewan and Peace River districts. It grows thick and tall and, at the harvesting time, does not allow the combines to work with the proper efficiency.

Dr. Smith's address pointed out many amazing things in the control of weeds and other pests, which made the club appreciate more the challenge being met by the Belleville branch of the Entomology Laboratories.

Dr. Smith was thanked for this most informative and enjoyable address by Kit Cornish.

Refreshments were served by the committee and the meeting adjourned.

BARONESS CONVICTED

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—A baroness daughter of the Rothschild banking family was convicted Wednesday of possessing narcotics. Baroness Kathleen Annie Pansonby Rothschild de Koenigwarter was arrested in 1958 on the charge after stopping for a motel on a U.S. Washington with two jazz musicians. Sentencing will take place April 21. One was Thelonius Monk, the world-known pianist and composer.

80th Birthday Marked by Family

ELDORADO — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cotton entertained his father, Mr. David Cotton, of Belleville, to a birthday party on Saturday evening, commemorating his 80th birthday.

Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cotton and family of Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cotton, also of Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sine and Gordon of Belleville and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sine of Eldorado.

A most enjoyable evening was spent. About midnight the guests were called to order and "Happy Birthday" was sung for Mr. Cotton. Refreshments were served.

Mr. Cotton was the recipient of many lovely gifts and good wishes.

Holloway United WMS Holds Service

Spring flowers and quiet music was the setting for the Easter thank-offering service of the W.M.S. held in the Holloway Street United Church on Tuesday.

The president, Mrs. T. F. Townsend, welcomed the members and many guests who were present from several local societies.

Mrs. Coulter and her group had charge of the devotional and opened this part of the meeting with some thoughts on "Easter." Mrs. Jose read the Scripture from Matthew 28, and Mrs. Coulter led in prayer.

Mrs. Bertrand gave a few comments on the Scripture, saying in part: "God has no hands but our hands to do His work, and this is an invitation for all to help."

Mrs. Furmidge favored with a solo, "The man With the Hoe." Mrs. Crowson, pianist.

Mrs. C. Holmes brought greetings from Bellefield Auxiliary and introduced the speaker, Mrs. Woodcock, who recently came from Lethbridge, Alberta, and is now serving at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. She spoke on how Mary poured the box of precious ointment on Jesus' head as a thanksoffering for what He had done for her. Our disciple's devotion for the waste, but Jesus understood: He said she did it for My burial, and wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, it shall be told for a memorial of her. There is a work that only women can do, and many ways we can work by sacrificing and sharing, as Mary did, to show our love for what He has done for us. He gave His life that we may have eternal life."

Mrs. Woodcock closed this helpful and inspiring address with prayer. Mrs. Furmidge sang, "In the Garden."

Mrs. T. F. Townsend thanked the speaker.

Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social half hour.

The Experts Say
Good Food, Good Service, Friendly Atmosphere Needed

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians are timid in their approach to new foods.

That's the opinion of Hugh Craig, newly-elected president of the Canadian Restaurant Association.

Born in Ireland, he now makes his home at Fort Macleod Alta., 29 miles west of Lethbridge. Mr. Craig has been in the restaurant business since 1926 when he opened a service food hamburger stand in Fort Macleod. He now owns a variety store in Fort Macleod, a pancake specialty house in Calgary and an extensive summer resort in Waterton Lakes National Park.

Interviewed while in Toronto for the annual association meeting, Mr. Craig said the success of a restaurateur offers good food, good service and a friendly atmosphere.

SPECIAL ITEMS

The big change in restaurants is the growth of the specialty trade, he says. Dining has also become much more leisurely and catering to families has become a big business.

A limited menu gives better quality control, he advises and promotions are an effective way of introducing new or specialized foods.

Most diners scrutinize the menu before they even look at the menu. "We're real shoppers when it comes to menu prices," Mr. Craig says.

Many dining room customers usually add up the cost of making the same meal at home, but fail to take into account the amount of services included in the price.

"No other industry goes through so many services, and they're bound to be reflected in the price," he explained.

Mr. Craig would like to see the development of regional specialties. "In Alberta we push beef steaks and we do push it at Alberta beef." He would advise the Maritimes to take advantage of their seafoods, Quebec of its "marvelous pea soup" and British Columbia of its salmon.

The bane of the Canadian restaurant industry is the availability of operators' licences, Mr. Craig says.

"Anyone can go down to city hall, take out a licence and poison the first 50 people to walk into the restaurant the next day," the association, he says, would like to have tighter restrictions which would keep unqualified people out of the business.

When there is a legitimate complaint, tell the operator. Telling your neighbors isn't likely to rectify the matter.

Despite the fact that Mr. Craig is a dedicated restaurateur, he says there's nothing like home-booked meal.

It was also Mr. Parliament's birthday.

Daffodils centred the table on which a bountiful supper was served to Mr. Willet Black, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Black and George, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Willett Barber, Jimmy and Penny, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner, Roger Redner, Mr. and Mrs. John Black, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dellsell and Chris, Mrs. Rex Ralph and Scott, Mrs. Roscoe Vandervater, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parliament, Miss Gertrude Parliament, Arthur, Hugh and Lyle Parliament and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Foster.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Redner and Mrs. Vandervater. The guests of honor were presented with a set of china by sisters, brothers, nieces and nephews. Mrs. Parliament was also presented with a corsage of pink carnations and silver ribbon. Mr. Parliament a boutonniere.

Members of Mr. and Mrs. Parliament's family presented them with flowers, silverware and jewellery.

Several tables of euchre were enjoyed during the evening with prizes going to Mrs. Ralph Redner and Ross Foster.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Roberta J. — He has taken a dislike to my faith.

Henry J. — She's just trying to get out more.

Roberta J. — My husband and I have been married 12 years and have three children. We are on the verge of breaking up because of religious differences.

My family warned me not to marry outside my faith, but I wouldn't listen to them and now I see they were right. My husband promised me faithfully that he wouldn't interfere with the religious training of the children, but now he has changed his mind. I send them to a Sunday school of my faith just because I feel they should have some religious schooling. I'm not really religious myself.

Henry has suddenly taken a violent dislike to everything about my faith. He is constantly after me to keep the kids away from the church which they happen to love.

* * *

Henry J. — Roberta always said she had no interest in her own religion and admits she cares less about it than I do about mine. She is just sending the children to the Sunday school to get me goat. She talks a lot of high-sounding stuff about children having to get religious schooling, but the words mean nothing at all. If I had been smart enough to keep my trap shut the first time she suggested Sunday school, she would have forgotten the whole thing by now.

She's right, though, about my liking taken a violent dislike to her faith. I went along with her and the kids a couple of Sundays and I never heard so much nonsense in my life. I have a right to my say about the kids' education.

* * *

The Council: We doubt whether many marriages have actually broken up over religious differences in themselves, although religious differences are among the favorite excuses and weapons in marital battles.

The fact is that deeply religious individuals, who have seriously studied the meaning of their faiths, get along well with members of other faiths. On the rare occasions when such persons marry someone from another faith, some solution is usually found to the childbearing problem.

Individuals with little or no religious understanding, however, sometimes marry outside the faith of their birth for reasons that have little to do with real issues. Their basic attitudes are selfish ones and they pick up any handy weapons to fight one another. Religious differences are convenient and they are used to the hilt. The problem of child rearing is also convenient and many battles are fought in which the children are mere pawns.

The situation is a tragic one. Perhaps it would help couples like Roberta and Henry to recognize that religious differences are not tearing their home apart. The practice of true religion would not have such a result. The battle is a more personal one. It involves two partners who have not learned to love.

We are sure that some solution can be found here, but Roberta and Henry must first decide to love one another and their children. If they stop trying to wound one another their eyes will be opened to the best pain to follow in relation to the children.

QUESTION:

. . . Have you any recipes using bologna? I often see these large pieces of bologna in the stores and have often wondered if there is any way to bake same with a glaze. If you do have any recipes using bologna pieces I would appreciate them very much . . . Mrs. D. F.

ANSWER:

I think yours is a good question. I have never tried glazing or baking a whole bologna, a thing that will happen is that the skin will burst when heated. This will help you to peel off the casing. Try baking the bologna at 300 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 hours. Peel off casing carefully. Then apply glaze: 1) 2-4 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 2 tablespoon vinegar. Return bologna to oven and baste carefully, occasionally with fruit juice or cider or juice from pickled crabapples or peaches or 2) Score peeled surface of bologna in squares or diamonds. Spread surface with beaten apple or red currant jelly to which you have added 1-2 teaspoon each dry mustard and cinnamon. Return bologna to oven and continue baking until glaze is bubbly and tinged with brown — at least 1-2 hour at 300 deg. Fahr. Let me know how you make out please. I would suggest you prepare a whole bologna only when you have a large crowd to serve as it will go a long way.

QUESTION:

Our church group is studying Africa as a mission project this year and to enable us to feel more at ease with the African way of life, we would like to plan an African meal. Have you any recipes peculiar to this country? — Mrs. Phyllis E.

ANSWER:

I know you will forgive us for having a good laugh. Your letter reminded us of a joke about the natives who invited authentic ideas which you can use as a basis for your meal.

KALALOUM:

MODERN MANNERS

THE CASE OF TOO MANY FLOWERS

Our little friend, Mrs. Inexperienced, went through an unfortunate episode the other day that I think is worthy of comment. She was elected president of her club, and, on the day of the first club luncheon at which she was to preside, her husband, to do honor to the occasion, sent her two lovely orchids. Mrs. Inexperienced arrived at the luncheon wearing the orchids, and they received much admiration.

But when she reached her place at the table, she found waiting her there a gardenia corsage, a gift from the club members. Mrs. Inexperienced was in a dilemma. To remove the orchids, lay them on the table, and pin on the gardenias, seemed awkward. To combine them would have made too much corsage. So, in her little speech of thanks, she presented the gardenias to the retiring president, with the statement: "The bouquets should really go to you."

Now Mrs. Inexperienced is wondering if she did an ungracious thing in the manner in which she accepted the gift. I'm very much afraid she did. To begin with, she really should have had the fore-thought to leave the orchids home, as it is usually customary to present a corsage to new officers of a club. I'm sure her thoughtful husband would have suggested this; however, as she did slip up, the gracious thing to do would have been to take off the orchid corsage, asking someone to place it in a box for her, and replace it with the gardenias. Under no circumstances should she have presented the gardenias to someone else!

Incidentally, I think most of us have, at one time or another, received corsages that were unsuitable in color to the costume we had planned to wear. There are gowns, too, which simply won't permit any extra decoration. I don't think one should go to the extreme, out of courtesy, and wear the flowers at the expense of the costume. Pin them on your wrap, or bag; even carry them, thereby saving your dress and the feelings of the donor.

While on the subject of flowers, I have been surprised at the number of letters I have received from readers asking how to wear a corsage. The question is, should the flowers be worn with the faces up, or the stems up? My answer to this one is: Have you ever seen a flower growing upside down? Of course, you always wear them the way nature intended, with their faces pointing up!

Question: I received a gift of six oyster forks. I have never had any experience in using them before, and would like to know where they are placed on the table.

Answer: The oyster fork is always placed at the right of the plate outside the knives. All other forks are placed on the left.

Melrose W.I. Enjoys Tour Of Court House

MELROSE — A large number of ladies were accompanied by their husbands and friends, availed themselves of the opportunity of a "Tour Through the Courthouse" last Thursday evening. Mrs. J. English, convener of Historical Research, suggested this trip and complete arrangements for same were made by Reeve Charles Long.

All met in the main corridor and were conducted on the tour by Judge Anderson, who described the various offices and rooms visited and explained the particular duties that were carried on by them in charge.

He illustrated with several examples of the transactions that might transpire within the course of a day. It was the first visit to this old landmark building for some and proved most interesting. The large and extensive library at the disposal of the lawyers was a revelation indeed, as many many other pleases made known.

Mr. Rocque Robertson, County Sheriff, and Mr. R. Denyes, clerk of Hastings County, were on hand to answer any questions asked.

After completing the tour, all assembled in the court room and Mr. Boyce, president of Hastings County Historical Society, gave an informative address on "The Early of the Courthouse." Being vastly interested in the history of Belleville, which is actually a city of great historical interest, and with many others appreciates the historical worth of the county courthouse, whose days are now numbered, he traced the many noted events which took place in this building and the notable guests who had been welcomed on the beautiful terrace there.

Thanks and appreciation were expressed by Mrs. E. McMechan, president of Melrose W.I., to all who had contributed to the enjoyable evening which will long be remembered.

BETTER HOMES MAKE BETTER FAMILIES

Home with a View

AN ATTACHED TWO-CAR GARAGE, at left, gives this charming ranch home its L shape. The exterior is predominately board and batten with a stretch of horizontal siding and a brick facade extending past front and back garage walls.

Clever Planning Unites Indoors and Outdoors

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

He 's a home that turns its back on the busy hustle-bustle of street scenes and concentrates on a quiet and peaceful view of a prettily landscaped patio and back yard.

An L-shaped home, Design H-338-KF is ideal for city or suburb.

The entry hall is centrally placed so that it connects with all areas of the house.

SLEEPING QUARTERS

At right, it branches off to sleeping quarters — three bedrooms and a bath. Two of the bedrooms have picture windows.

At left, the hall leads into a front kitchen-family room and to a spacious back living-dining area.

The combination kitchen is sure to please the homemaker, for it keeps her kitchen from being an isolation booth. Since the family room is planned as an informal living area, Mom will have the pleasure of company as she works.

The beauty of the back yard view is apparent the moment you enter the living room, for sliding glass doors make a back wall that joins indoors and outdoors. Close to the kitchen, one end of this L-shaped room is for dining.

STORAGE FACILITIES

For extra convenience, a large storage room is provided, Note, too, extra closets — one in the bedroom hall for linens; one in the entry hall

Since this home does not have a basement, heating facilities are placed in a small area accessible from the entry hall.

Design H-338-KF comprises 14,594 cubic feet; 1,222 square feet for the house, 434 square feet for the garage.

AS THE FLOOR PLAN SHOWS, the living room and two bedrooms enjoy picture-window views of the patio and yard.

Use Your Eyes

Don't overlook pictures in your spring house cleaning. Minor changes to these important decorative accessories can spruce up an entire room, and often compensate for major furnishings expenditures that cannot be squeezed into the budget.

Perhaps the best way to bring new attention to favorite pictures is to change the general groupings. If the family has grown so accustomed to the look of a print on a certain spot on the wall that they no longer really see it, the time has come to change for a fresh, new look.

Pictures have undoubtedly been removed from the wall to make way for a thorough cleaning. A necessary proceeding each spring and fall to prevent unsightly marks that make changing arrangements impossible between paint jobs.)

Once the new groupings have been organized, carefully inspect each picture. You can often do something about a tired looking frame without the expense of replacement. A new coat of chellac will suffice in most cases, but why not repaint a few in a single bright color.

Vibrant shades are new and popular in picture frames. Your bright color choice can repeat a dominant color in other pictures within the grouping and provide decorative continuity with other accessories throughout the room.

If mats have become yellowed, don't confine replacements to white matboard. Let your imagination roam toward colors again, especially for water color prints. Pen and ink sketches can be matted in wall paper or scraps of fabric.

When making new mats out of fabric, it is simpler to cut mat oversize then stiff cardboard. Material should be cut one inch wider than cardboard and then folded back and tacked into place with glue. The print can be attached to reverse side of the fabric-covered mat with masking tape, and the entire mat and picture inserted into a newly painted frame.

According to the Picture and Frame Institute's experts on decorating with pictures, your own eyes are best guide in choosing of mat and frame colors.

Typewriter Is Useful in Home

Nowadays, portable typewriters have come out of the closet. Typewriter "corners" that are an integrated part of the decor are taking an increasing importance in the home. New design and new color make the portable a pretty as well as practical accessory for kitchen planning centre, study desk, family room or even a gracious living room or bedroom desk.

Not so long ago the household portable was the exclusive property—and an education aid—of the school-age son or daughter. Today it has become a family must. Pop uses it for business trips and for work at home; Mom uses it in her kitchen or at her desk for club correspondence, bills and all manner of home planning.

The new portable designs have a classic simplicity that blends equally well with a modern setting or a fragile period desk and there is, of course, a choice of colors.

And yet, with all its new importance in decor, the portable has the prime requirements of a family typewriter — it's smart looking, and it travels.

For business trips, just close it up in its handsome carrying case. And when you are home again, bring it back to the spot you've chosen for it—out on view with the rest of your handsome accessories.

Canadian Garden Service

By GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

ARE THEY SUITABLE FOR CANADA

Anyone who read the newspaper last winter, or for that matter, during the other seasons of the year too, knows that we have our own climate in Canada. Actually we have several climates, ranging from the balmy to the, shall we say, brisk. For that reason the flower and vegetable seeds that we sow, the shrubs and vines we plant and even our trees must be selected especially to grow well under Canadian Conditions.

Generally we must have vegetables and flowers that grow quickly, come into bloom or table size away ahead of the early frost. And in nursery stock, too, we can't afford to plant namby-pamby stuff that fears a bit of cold. But there are compensations.

Nowhere in the world is the sun warmer or stronger than in Canada during the summer and as a result in the long hours of daylight in June and July growth is far more rapid in northern Canada than it is in tropical Mexico. But it is important that we plant things that are especially designed for the Canadian climate. When one selects from a true Canadian seed catalogue, one can be sure that that seed is suited to Canada, that it has been tested under actual Canadian conditions.

DON'T MAKE IT A CHORE

For some reason or other, there are still people who seem to think that gardening is 'hard work.' Probably they have watched a neighbor tossing earth about, or down on his knees spudding out dandelions, and that is all wrong.

Gardening is one of the few hobbies or recreations that one can take just as easily as one pleases. If you want to garden you can have it. If you want to coast you can do so. The main thing is to have your flower beds or vegetable rows just as long or as short as suits your disposition and the time at your disposal. Furthermore, once things have got nicely started in the spring, beyond a little exercise for the power mower, there is not much to do except sit in a lawn chair, admire the view and the fresh, crisp vegetables growing right at the door. People who regard or make gardening a chore are missing something really worth while.

PLANTS ARE INDIVIDUALISTS

Plants, like people, are individualistic. Flowers and vegetables, shrubs and vines, even the grasses have very real preferences when it comes to soil, shade, moisture, fertilizer and such things that combine to make growth.
